Col. William C. Holley

Col. Holley Leaves For New Duties With Joint Group

Colonel William C. Holley, 30th Engineer Group commander, will depart next week for Washington, D.C., where he will become Army representative in the Photographic and Survey Section of the Joint Intelligence Group. Colonel Wayne E. Downing, commander of the Group's Alaska task force, will succeed Colonel Holley as commander of the local organization.

At a recent farewell address to members of the engineer group, Col. Holley expressed appreciation for "loyalty up and down" on the Group, Area and post levels.

A veteran of extensive combat service during WWII and the Korean conflict, Col. Holley was commissioned in the USAR in 1936 and in the Regular Army in 1938 following graduation from Oregon State College. He has also attended numerous officer command schools and is the holder of an MS degree from Harvard University.

During WWII he participated in the Rome-Arno, Appennines and Po Valley campaigns serving concurrently as a battalion commander and a division engineer. In Korea he served in a similar capacity with the 1st Cavalry Division.

He has earned seventeen awards and decorations, among which are the Silver Star, Bronze Star, the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf cluster, the Air Medal and the Italian Military Cross of Valor.

Colonel Holley's command of the Engineer Group began in August, 1953.

Now Hair This!

One delighted chief petty officer who admitted he hadn't bothered to buy a comb in years remarked enthusiastically: "Why, this will change the whole complexion of my home life. Right now, my wife says I'm a shining example of why every man should wear a toupee."

A self-composed young private with thinning locks pointed upward and declared: "When this all goes, I may switch to another color."

But if you intend to take advantage of this opportunity, act now. The VA may run out of your size.

Ideas Spark Progress!

Sixth Army Outlines Program For Civilian Incentive Awards

Army Commander Lieutenant General W. G. Wyman announced recently that a Sixth Army program has been developed for the administration of the new Government Employees Incentive Awards Act which provides honorary awards and cash awards up to $25,000.

To accelerate participation in the incentive program, Sixth Army has adopted the slogan, "Ideas Spark Progress," and developed the cartoon figure, "Sparkie," to symbolize the slogan, and as a means of bringing the awards program to the attention of all civilian employees.

At the Presidio, recorded "Sparkie Says" announcements will accompany the time information services of the Presidio telephone exchange.

The stepped-up incentive program establishes cash and honorary awards in two categories, ideas and performance. In the idea category, suggestions for improvements or change in procedures and methods such as modifications of equipment and form revisions will be considered. Suggestions do not have to relate to assigned duties.

Sustained superior performance covering at least a six-month period on the assigned duties constitute the performance category.

Awards in both categories may be honorary or monetary and in many instances both types of incentive awards will be employed.

In the honorary award area, a Presidential award is slated for contributions of such distinctive character or wide governmental benefit that other awards do not give adequate recognition.

Distinguished Civilian Service awards will be given by the Secretary of Defense yearly to five civilian employees contributing most to economy and efficiency in operation of the Department of Defense.

On the Department of the Army level, a "Decoration for Exceptional Civilian Service" will be presented by the Secretary of the Army to employees who have made beneficial contributions. On the Army area level Army commanders are authorized to make awards for outstanding civilian services.

"Certificates of Achievement" will be presented by installation commanders to employees deserving

Pacific 'Gyroscope'!

SFPE Sends First Units of 508th RCT (Airborne) Winging for Japan

San Francisco Port of Embarkation began the first phase of the Pacific Area's first "Operation Gyroscope," the widely-heralded Army program for overseas duty rotation by unit instead of by individuals, last week.

The current movement consists of moving out, by air, the advance party of the 508th Regimental Combat Team (Airborne) of Fort Campbell, Ky., which is replacing the 187th RCT (Airborne) in Japan this summer.

The 508th's advance party, consisting of approximately 270 military personnel and dependents, will be lifted to Japan on five chartered commercial air line flights. The first left San Francisco International Airport via Pan-American Airways on Friday. There will be one California Eastern trans-flight 30 May, one California Eastern and one Transocean 31 May, and one Transocean 1 June. The same planes will return the advance party of the 187th RCT which is being transferred to Fort Bragg, N. C.

The main bodies of the two units will be moved by the United States Air Force Tactical Air Command in July, according to a recent Washington announcement.

In addition to handling the advance parties, San Francisco Port of Embarkation is being called upon to move part of the hold baggage and household effects of both units.

"Operation Gyroscope" is the program developed by the Department of the Army to rotate entire units, with their families, between permanent stations overseas and the continental United States. The 508th-187th transfer is the first announced for the Far East. The 10th Infantry Division is replacing the 1st Infantry Division in Germany this summer.

Grave Headstones

A bill which would allow the Secretary of the Army to make cash allowances to relatives of deceased servicemen for the purchase of headstones or grave markers has been introduced by Rep. Dewey Short (R.-Mo.). This would enable relatives to buy headstones or markers of their own choosing. At present, the Army furnishes markers, when desired, for the graves of deceased servicemen.

In Talent Finals

Winners in the Sixth Army finals of the all-Army talent contest are now at Fort Dix, New Jersey, where they are entering all-Army competition, out of which will come the 12 top soldier acts in the nation. Preliminaries will continue through this week with the finals slated for Monday, 6 June. Those from Sixth Army who are entered include Cpl. Pat Dougherty, Presidio of San Francisco, vocal soloist; Pvt. Thad H. Jacobs, Van Nuys, California, instrumental soloist; Pfc. Ivan S. Jensen, Fort Huachuca, Arizona, equilibrist, and Pvt. Acevedo Dominico, Pfc. Ramon P. Rodriguez, Pfc. Manuel R. Cruz, Pfc. Carlos Cardenas and Pvt. Obed R. Vigo, all of Fort Lewis, Washington, instrumental novelty group.

President Defends Need for PXs, Commissaries

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower believes it would be a "terrible injustice" to Armed Forces personnel to take away their commissary and exchange facilities.

The President was referring to recent recommendations to Congress by the Hoover Commission, known officially as the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government.

In its report, the commission recommended that the Defense Department confine exchanges and commissaries to remote localities.

At present the DOD operates 438 commissary stores in the U.S. and overseas. Of these, 199 are in the U.S., and 239 abroad.

Exchange facilities are more numerous. The Armed Services now operate about 450 exchanges in the U.S. and 2,700 abroad, including branches.

President Eisenhower told a press conference he had never believed in the "uncontrolled spread" of exchanges. He also said "to take away the commissary privileges and post exchange privileges from the military, uniformed personnel, wherever they may be, when those are really needful things in order to give them the normal business of living, and giving it to them at a decent price, I believe it would be a terrible injustice to those people."

M-N Commissions?

The Defense Department has given its approval to a bill sponsored by Rep. Frances P. Bolton (R-Ohio), that would authorize the appointment of male nurses and medical specialists as reserve officers.

The measure would amend the Army-Navy Nurses Act of 1947 which limits commissions as nurses to women.

The bill provides that computation of pay and retirement pay of any person appointed under the act should be based on all previous military service in any branch of the Armed Forces.

DOD Board Studies Brainwashing Effects

Washington (AFPS)—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has announced he soon will appoint a board to study the effects of Communist brainwashing on servicemen captured in Korea.

Mr. Wilson said the board will study case histories of ex-POWs accused of following the Communist line, in order to prevent brainwashing in the future.

A Wilson aide disclosed that the Air Force and Navy have completed a study of POWs held during the Korean War.

Annual Celebration!

'Role of the Army' Named Theme For Senior Services' 180th Birthday

Washington (AFPS)—The Army will celebrate its 180th birthday June 14 with ceremonies at commands scattered throughout the world.

Theme for the 1955 observance is the "Role of the Army." Commands have been advised to hold open house festivities featuring parades and weapons and tactics demonstrations.

The Army said that observances will be strictly internal affairs and will not detract from Armed Forces Day celebrations May 21.

With an eye toward tradition, the Army has suggested that the following resolution establishing the Army and passed by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1775 be read at retreat or similar parades:

"Resolved, that six companies of expert riflemen, be immediately raised in Pennsylvania, two in Maryland, and two in Virginia; that each company consist of a captain, three lieutenants, four sergeants, four corporals, a drummer or trumpeter and sixty-eight privates.

"That each company, as soon as completed, shall march and join the Army near Boston, to be there employed as light infantry, under the command of the chief Officer in that army."

"That the pay of the Officers and privates be as follows, viz, a captain @ 20 dollars per month; a lieutenant @ 13 1/2 dollars; a sergeant @ 8 dollars; a corporal @ 7 1/2 dollars; drummer or (trumpeter) @ 7 1/2 dollars; privates @ 6 1/2 dollars; to find their own arms and cloaths."

The "Army" mentioned in the resolution as already being in the area of Boston was actually militia recruited by individual states. The force called into being by the resolution was the first to be raised under Congressional auspices and thus marks the real beginning of the Army.

STOP

watch those hands!

In spite of the obvious clarity of traffic signals executed by members of the 505th MP Battalion at Presidio traffic control points, a number of Presidio personnel are apparently confusing the precise hand and arm signals used by MP's on post with an assortment of signals employed by police in many surrounding communities. To thoroughly familiarize every driver at the Presidio with the MP hand and arm signals and their exact meanings, the Post Safety officer, the Provost Marshal, the 505th MP Battalion and The Star-Presidian have joined forces in a solid safety front in presenting a series of cartoon figures clearly illustrating traffic signals. The cartoon figure itself bears no resemblance to any of the Presidio's MP's but the hand and arm signal demonstrated means just one thing: STOP. Play it safely; obey the MP's signals and keep the Presidio a safe place to drive! (Cartoons illustrating the remainder of the MP signals will appear in succeeding issues.)

New MOS Scheme Marked for Next Troop Conference

Troop Information Conference this week will feature a discussion of the Army's new MOS system which goes into effect 1 July, this year.

The conference will reveal that the new military occupational specialty numbers are the result of years of study of the MOS structure in the field. The system is designed so that it can be expanded to encompass a thousand jobs in the service. There are only 383 jobs listed in the new structure.

The new system also eliminates the old potential primary MOS and brings into existence the "entry MOS" and the "advanced MOS," it will be pointed out at the conference.

All MOSs will have from three to five digits except a few in specialized sensitive fields which might have as high as seven. It will be shown that the first digit of the new number will indicate one of 10 general occupational areas such as combat and clerical.

The second digit will indicate the entry group such as armored, field artillery and finance. The third digit gives the exact job of the individual, such as helper or administrator.

The conference will show how the fourth digit which follows the decimal point, is set up to represent the actual amount of skill attained by an individual, determined by training and experience and does not indicate the soldier's present grade, TO&E or T/D position. Each MOS will have a limited number of skill levels that can be assigned to it.

Special qualifications, such as parachutist, instructor, linguist or psychological warfare expert will be indicated in the fifth digit.

There are about 20,000,000 living Armed Forces veterans, who, with their families, comprise two-fifths of the nation's population or 62,000,000 persons.

200 Idea Dollars!

OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD was won by Mr. Jorge Wilson-Walker, Illustrator for the Review and Analysis Division, Comptroller Section, Sixth Army, for continuous superior performance of duty. The award included a letter of commendation and $200 cash. Shown presenting the award is Colonel Paul A. Mayo, Sixth Army Assistant Chief of Staff. Mr. Wilson-Walker was born in Chile, was until 1942 the chancellor for the Chilean consulate here in San Francisco and served as an illustrator for the U. S. Navy during World War II. Many of his cartoons have appeared in national periodicals and magazines.

Outstanding Rating!

Sixth Army Illustrator Earns Superior Performance Award

Jorge Wilson-Walker, illustrator for Headquarters Sixth Army Comptroller Section, has been recently awarded an outstanding rating "for sustained superior performance of assigned duties in accordance with criteria. . . ."

The Local Incentive Awards Committee approved a cash award of $200 for Mr. Walker along with a letter of recognition for his superior performance.

Mr. Walker has been with the Comptroller Section of Sixth Army since 1951 and his duties have included designing charts for staff level conferences, some of which are used for Department of the Army conferences and by the Army Finance School and Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

Born in Santiago, Chile, of English parents, he graduated from the University of Chile, took two additional years of architecture and then moved to New York University for a final two years of post-graduate work in architecture. While attending NYU, he enrolled in evening courses at the Art Students League.

Mr. Walker arrived in San Francisco in 1931 and was attached to the Chilean consulate as chancellor (executive secretary) until 1942 when he joined the U. S. Navy.

He did much the same work in the Navy that he is now doing for Headquarters Sixth Army, and was assigned to Amphibious Flag, Coronado, California.

Most of Mr. Walker's spare time is devoted to designing ecclesiastical vestments, furniture and altar tabernacles.

Along with this, he has had many cartoons and illustrations purchased and published by national magazines and periodicals.

During the latter part of March of this year ten journalists from Latin American countries visited the Presidio and its sub-installations in Marin County as part of a 30-day tour for the purpose of observing industrial, agricultural, military and general developments in this country.

While at the Presidio, Mr. Walker addressed the group in Spanish at a briefing on the scope and mission of the Sixth Army, which controls military installations in the eight western states.

Officers Recently Assigned

Captain Max S. Leonard has joined the addressograph section of the S-4 Section, Presidio of San Francisco. Recently returned from 28 months in the Far East, he served first in Korea for 10 months as battery commander, 82nd AAA battalion, 2nd Infantry division. The past 18 months he has been in Japan as battery commander of a 120mm AAA Unit.

A veteran of 18 years' Army service, Captain Leonard was an enlisted man for the first six years of his service. He attended O.C.S. at Fort Monroe, Virginia, and the officers' basic Artillery course at Fort Bliss, Texas.

During World War II, he served from 1942-43 in Panama, 1945-46 in Hawaii, and 1946-49 with occupation forces in Germany.

Captain Leonard was decorated with the Bronze Star Medal while a member of the 2nd Infantry Division. His mother, Mrs. K. K. Leonard, resides in Stuart, Florida.

Lt. Thomas E. Hutchison has become assistant officer in charge of the Communications center, Signal section, Headquarters Sixth Army. He returned only recently from 16 months of duty as operations officer, Communication center, and crypto-security officer, KMAC.

During World War II, Lt.

Hutchison was with the U. S. Navy, and served aboard the carrier Valley Forge as an aviation machinist mate. He served 27 months and then entered the inactive Reserve.

In 1951, the lieutenant entered the R.O.T.C. program and received his commission and degree in health and physical education from Tennessee Tech., class of 1952. He was then called to active Army duty.

Lt. and Mrs. Hutchison and child reside presently in Redwood City.

Lt. Gerald J. Miedema is now assigned as Veterinary inspector at the Presidio of San Francisco. This is his initial duty station.

In private practice in Cleveland, Ohio, up to four months ago, Lt. Miedema received a direct commission.

He first attended the five-week orientation course at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and then the 10-week meat and dairy hygiene school in Chicago's Army Medical Service school.

Lt. Miedema attended Michigan State college for six years, and his home is in Grand Rapids, Michigan, where his mother, Mrs. William Pratt, resides.

Lt. Robert D. Snyder is also newly assigned to the Veterinary detachment at the Presidio of San Francisco, his first duty assignment.

He entered the Army in February of this year from a short private practice in Groton, South Dakota.

Prior to coming to the Presidio, he also attended the meat and dairy hygiene course at Chicago.

A graduate of Colorado A&M with a degree in Veterinary medicine, Lt. Snyder's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Snyder, reside in Conde, South Dakota.

CWO Charles F. Elower returned recently from Naples, Italy, where he served three years at the NATO Headquarters there.

He is now the assistant classification and assignment officer, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

A veteran of 20 years of Army service, Mr. Elower is a graduate of the CIC school in Tokyo, Japan, and the Personnel Management school, Fort Lee, Virginia, and served from 1947 to 1950 as administrative assistant, G-2 Section, Headquarters I Corps, in Japan.

Mr. Elower's World War II service was in Germany where he served 18 months with an Armored unit. He and his wife and their two children are now residing here.

Soldier Gets 12 Years For Desertion, Giving Secrets to Russians

Berlin (AFPS)—Pvt. William Marchuk, released recently by the Russians six years after disappearing into East Germany, has been found guilty by an Army court martial of desertion and giving away classified military information. He was sentenced to 12 years at hard labor, dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

The Russian-speaking Marchuk, 38, was attached to an Army intelligence unit in West Berlin when he vanished in 1949. He was released by the Russians last January after having been held for a time in a Soviet prison camp near the Arctic Ocean.

Most of the evidence which emerged at the trial was not made public because it involved confidential matters. Marchuk's sentence is subject to review by higher Army authorities.

"POINT" POTENTIALS! These three Honor Guard EM were on the list of 89 men from certain Presidio units eligible to make application for entrance to the U. S. Military Academy. Captain Eugene V. Gasior, (right) commanding officer of the Honor Guard and post USMA representative has just interviewed and explained the conditions for acceptance to (r. to l.) Pfc. Bernard E. Thummel, Pvt. Glade B. Grotegut, and Pvt. Thomas Knudson, all of Company A, Detachment 1, 6002 SU. Deadline date for applicants is 15 June and a qualification examination will be given all applicants on 11 July.

"Point" Entrance Open!

EM Academy Aspirants Urged To Apply By 15 June Deadline

Military Academy advisor, Captain Eugene Gasior, indicated this week that a screening of enlisted personnel records at post headquarters shows 89 local personnel to be eligible to make application for cadetships at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point.

This figures does not include men from the 30th Engineer Group, the 46th Ordnance Group, the 30th AAA Group, California Military District and Letterman Army Hospitals since these organizations maintain personnel records and can name their own military academy advisors.

Application for admission under quota allots a specific number of USMA cadetships to enlisted members of the Regular and Reserve Components of the Army and Air Force.

Besides a sincere desire on the part of applicants to pursue a Military career with officer status, those who apply must also be from 17 to 22 years old, citizens, never married, physically fit, and high school graduates or the equivalent.

Application of local men desiring USMA entrance must be made by 15 June this year.

The annual USMA designating examination will be held at the Presidio 11 July under the direction of Capt. John H. Mason, post unit personnel officer.

The three and one-half hour examination will consist of high school algebra, vocabulary and reading, and the ability to recognize three-dimensional figures from flat drawings.

The number of applicants for the examinations in the past years has been insufficient to fill the quotas allotted by the Department of the Army.

Personnel interested in applying and taking the test next month may contact Captain Gasior at the Honor Guard or their unit commander for further information concerning West Point application

Enlistees in the Women's Army Corps must be 18 to 26 years old, at least five feet five inches tall weigh no less than 100 pounds and be high school graduates.

Tradition Revival Slates NCOs for Retreat Parade

The second edition of the local revival of one of the Army's oldest traditions will be evidenced at the parade ground Friday afternoon, when enlisted men once again serve as staff and commanding officers at the weekly retreat parade and ceremonies.

Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, initiated the revival which calls for noncommissioned officers to replace commissioned officers at parades and reviews scheduled for the first Friday afternoon of each month.

The first parade of this type although originally scheduled for 6 May was held three weeks ago on 13 May.

Purpose of the present revival is to re-emphasize some of the Army's morale-building traditions which were relinquished during recent years and to further enhance the prestige of noncommissioned officers.

Another WAC First

Ft. Monroe, Va. (AFPS)—M/Sgt. Florence E. Friedman, currently a secretary to Maj. Gen. Robert M. Montague here, is scheduled to be the first member of the WAC to serve in Indochina.

She will accompany Gen. Montague, Deputy CG of the Continental Army Command, in early June to his new assignment as Chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Saigon, South Vietnam.

Sgt. Friedman enlisted in the WAC in January, 1943, and has been the general's secretary since 1951.

Wins High Praise!

RETIREMENT HONORS: Master Sergeant Charlie Fox of the 18th Ordnance Detachment was presented the Sixth Army Achievement Award at Headquarters 46th Ordnance Group this week by Col. George C. Masters, Sixth Army Ordnance Officer. The award cited M/Sgt. Fox's high standards of ethics, moral conduct and leadership. The award was presented during his retirement ceremony, recently.

A Helping Hand!

Headquarters Company, Sixth Army Solid Community Citizens

They never got a battle star for one of the greatest campaigns they helped fight. They got battle stars for fighting Japanese and Germans, French and Italians, North Koreans and Chinese Communists, but the only recognition they ever got was the inner satisfaction that comes to a man when he knows that in his own small way he has helped humanity.

For the men of Headquarters Company Sixth Army, who also call San Francisco their home, helped win the fight against polio. They fought the fight with dollars instead of guns, and they stood in line to give their dollars, but they gave more money in the final battle last January than any other unit at the Presidio of San Francisco.

When the call came to pitch in and help fight the battle against infantile paralysis by contributing to the March of Dimes, the 350 men of the company donated $585.00. They felt that the battle against polio was a battle for all Americans to fight and win, soldiers and civilians alike, and that as citizens of a community it was just as much their battle as that of their civilian neighbors.

Two kinds of soldiers make up Headquarters Company Sixth Army. There is the "old soldier" typified by Master Sergeant Hubert W. Gaskin, who has spent 16 of his 34 years in the Army. Then there is the "young soldier" like Corporal Edmund M. Fink, 20 years old and in the Army two years. But it is only in age and length of service that the difference is noticeable. Both are Regulars and both have served their Nation in the States and overseas whenever they were needed.

Sergeant Gaskin entered the Army in 1939 and in October of 1942 he sailed with the Third Division from Newport News, Virginia, to North Africa. There he helped make the first breach in Hitler's Festung Europe. By V-E Day, May 8, 1945, he had helped his Division use Casablanca, Tunisia, Sicily, Salerno, Cassino, Anzio, Rome, Southern France, the Vosges Mountains, Strasbourg, the Colmar Pocket, the Siegfried Line, Nurnburg, Munich and Salzburg as stepping stones to the capture of Hitler's own chalet at Berchtesgaden.

He remained on occupation duty in Austria until June, 1948, then spent six months at the Adjutant General's School at Fort Lee, Virginia. By February, 1949, he was back in Europe, this time to serve with the First Infantry Division in Germany until April, 1952. In August, 1953, he was overseas again, this time in Korea for 14 months with the 24th Engineer Group.

Since his return from Korea, Sergeant Gaskin has been assigned to the G-1 Section, Sixth Army Headquarters.

Corporal Fink is from Los Angeles, California. He enlisted in the Regular Army in May, 1953, and was assigned after basic training to the Second Infantry Division on the 38th parallel in Korea. Before returning to the United States in March, 1955, he had been transferred to Eighth Army Headquarters.

Corporal Fink is going into the Army Reserve when his enlistment is up next May. He feels that as a member of the Army Reserve he will thus be fulfilling his duty as a trained soldier and as an American, by continuing his training and by being ready and available whenever he might be needed again.

New Job!

Capt. Clinton D. Reglin

Reglin Will Succeed Gollinick as Company Commander of 6000 SU

Captain Clinton D. Reglin, post T.I.&E. and assistant S3 for the past 18 months, has been named to command Headquarters Company 6000 SU. He succeeds Captain Albert H. Gollinick, who has received his overseas assignment.

Entering the Army in '41, Capt. Reglin served three years enlisted service prior to winning an OCS commission at Ft. Benning in '44. During WWII he was a platoon leader with the 306th Infantry Regiment of the 77th Infantry Division. He served in Okinawa, Philippines and Japan. He later served as personnel officer for the 306th.

Following WWII, Capt. Reglin won his bachelor of science degree in education from Northwestern University. While serving as education and vocational counselor on the faculty of the University of Kansas City, he was awarded the Harris Fellowship in education at Northwestern and returned there to complete his master's degree in '48.

Captain Reglin was recalled to active duty in '50 and ordered to Okinawa. He served as personnel officer for 29th RCT and later as director of dependents school for RYCOM. In this capacity he was directly responsible for some 1800 students and 60 instructors.

Just prior to his return to active duty, Capt. Reglin was dean of administration at Palos Verdes College in California.

First Pay Raise

The first rates of pay for enlisted men were established by federal law in September, 1789, and set the base pay for privates at $4 a month. In July, 1872, the basic pay for privates became $13 a month and was increased to $15 in May, 1908. Effective June, 1917, the basic rate was $30 a month but was reduced by the act of June, 1922, to $21. The Pay Readjustment Act of June, 1942, set the pay at $50, the act of June, 1946, at $75, and it is presently $78.

Whole Company Gives!

BLOOD MISSION! Recently 117 enlisted men and six officers, the entire 561st Engineer Company, turned out en masse to contribute blood through the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank's mobile unit. Here, Irwin nurse Miss Lou Arnsby and Dr. Earl Wright join forces in drawing a pint of blood from willing Pfc. Robert Flint.

LAH Reveals Need To Increase Local Blood Donations

Letterman Army Hospital issued an appeal for more blood donors this week in order to assure at least an adequate supply for treatment of military and dependent patients at the hospital.

Civilians and military personnel of the Presidio are being contacted (by sections) by Letterman Army Hospital to donate a pint of blood to the hospital blood bank. Blood for Letterman patients is used at an average of 200 pints a month and there is a vital and continued need for donors.

Each civilian who gives a pint of blood will have it credited to him for the period of one year at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank in downtown San Francisco to be used by him or members of his immediate family. To use the blood, the donor needs only to notify the LAH blood bank and it will be transferred to whatever hospital the individual designates.

Letterman keeps a reserve credit with Irwin in addition to the normal hospital blood bank level. Those who donate at Irwin Memorial may specifically state that the blood is for Letterman and it will be credited to the military hospital. This reserve bank is used regularly both to supplement Letterman's own supply and for obtaining rare blood types.

Those donating at Letterman or the Irwin bank will be taken by appointment in order to assure quick service. Those wishing to donate are asked to call the Letterman (or Memorial) blood bank for appointment, or make arrangements through their sections or unit commanders.

Can You Write It?

The Army is searching for the man who can put into verses and chorus lyrics which will become the official Army march. "The Caisson Song," well known to every Army man, is favored extensively as far as music is concerned, but the problem now is to get into words, lyrics which would apply to the entire Army and which would picture the great battles in which the Army has participated, beginning with the days of the Revolution and with each subsequent verse characterizing a war, using the same chorus throughout. Can YOU do it? All entries are to be submitted to The Adjutant General, Washington 25, D.C., Attn. AGMD, by 15 October.

VA Cautions K-Vets On Training Deadline

A veteran must start Korean GI Bill training within three years of his separation from service, the Veterans Administration has reminded.

It is not enough that he file an application before the three-year deadline, intending to begin study afterwards, the VA emphasized.

Having begun training in time, veterans must also be in attendance on the dead line date unless interrupted by authorized vacation or some other legitimate reason.

Such an excusable interruption would be the up-to-a-year suspension of training allowed by the law. In some cases, the suspension may last even longer if the VA is satisfied it was impossible to resume within the 12-month period.

Incentive

ing recognition but not of a sufficient nature to merit awards on higher levels. Commendations for outstanding work by employees may be made by all superiors.

Monetary awards ranging from $10 to $475 may be made by installation commanders based upon actual and computed cash savings resulting from suggestions as well as intangible benefits not easily measured in cash savings.

All civilian employees in the Sixth Army area are eligible for monetary awards up to $25,000 if the idea or suggestion which is submitted is of broad enough application to indicate adoption throughout the government.

The Sixth Army incentive policy committee under the chairmanship of Col. Charles N. Hunter, deputy chief of staff for administration and manpower, is composed of Colonel Charles C. W. Allan, assistant chief of staff, G-1; Col. P. A. Mayo, Comptroller; Col. Joseph B. Coolidge, assistant G-4; and Mr. Clifford Miller, civilian personnel division, G-1 Section.

A Sixth Army operating committee headed by Colonel John Beck, Sixth Army G-1 Section, will be responsible for reviewing suggestions adopted by installations and forwarded to the command for possible extended application. It will also review suggestions requiring changes in existing regulation before adoption and provide leadership and guidance to installation committees in publicizing the program and its benefits.

Newest On-Post College Classes Begin Next Week

Three new on-post college courses are scheduled to begin Monday, 6 June, Post education center announced recently. Designed to meet requirements toward an AB degree, the courses will be conducted by San Francisco State College.

Slated for Monday and Wednesday evening sessions in building 1131, Physical Science 153, Atomic Energy and Man, is an elementary physical science course underlying atomic energy and its impact on society and on human thought. Peacetime use of atomic energy including power, human health and research will be discussed. Also, military application of atomic energy including atomic attack and the possible defense against an aggressor's use of nuclear weapons will be analyzed.

Problems of administration and supervision encountered in large scale organizations will be presented in Government 148, Human Relations in Government and Industry. Such topics as the motivation of employees, factors affecting employee morale and the maladjusted worker will be observed. Discussion of cases will be a focal point of the course which will be held Tuesday and Thursday beginning 7 June in Building 1101.

A course which meets the American History requirement of most colleges in History 10-110, the economic and social history of the U. S. Economic and social development of the nation from colonial times to the present is set for a thorough survey treatment. Classes are set up for Tuesday and Thursday evenings beginning 7 June, in Building 1101.

Announcement was also made by the education center this week that registration for summer session classes of University of California Extension is open to Presidio and sub-post personnel. Bulletins have been received listing an extensive variety of courses to be held in downtown San Francisco classrooms, in Oakland and at the main campus in Berkeley.

Chapels at 10 installations in the Third Army Area are now being air conditioned while eight other chapels will be air conditioned at an early date.

Win Drill Award!

ENGINEERS WIN: Lieutenant Colonel Norman H. Adams, Engineer Section, Sixth Army, presents the "Honor Unit" plaque to Captain William Moulden, commanding officer of Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group, which stepped smartly to win the weekly retreat parade last Friday.

Two USAR Units Set For Job Training Duties At Presidio Activities

Post S-3 section revealed recently that two USAR units, the 6211 ARSU and the 6215 SCU, are scheduled for training at post headquarters sections and other Presidio activities.

Training will consist primarily of "On the Job" with duty assignments varying from officer command positions to enlisted technical slots.

The 6211 ARSU is scheduled for the "on-the-job-training" from 19 June to 3 July and the 6215 SCU is assigned from 10 to 24 July.

Camera Club Fete

Members of the Camera club have set a walking tour of the Presidio for 1330 hours Saturday, in which they hope to capture some scenic shots for future exhibit. And when the club meets Tuesday at 2000, they will have a slide program to be presented by Pfc. Lew Patterson of the 30th Engineers who will show a series taken near Point Lobos, and Sgt. William A. Colt of 6300 SU, who will show scenes from the Philippine rice bowl. Others having slides which could be exhibited may bring them to the meeting, it was emphasized.

Col. Freeman Named Regional CAP Leader

Colonel Howard Freeman will be installed as regional commander of the Civil Air Patrol of Alaska, California, Hawaii, Nevada, Oregon and Washington at a dinner at the Presidio Officer's open mess Saturday night.

At the same time, Colonel W. H. Easley will become the new wing commander of the California Civil Air Patrol, the post occupied by Colonel Freeman for the past six years. Colonel Easley has been operations director of the California CAP.

Guests will include all 97 CAP unit commanders of California and approximately 20 commanders of military units stationed in California. Among them will be Major General Robert Landry, Fourth Air Force commander, and Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy Post commander, Presidio of San Francisco.

AAA Best Mess Told!

Lieutenant Colonel Bernard Drew, 30th AAA Group executive officer, presented the organization's Best Mess award for the previous month last week to Sfc. Elmo D. Northcut, Mess Steward for Headquarters Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion. Headquarters Battery earned the award by receiving more points than any other Battery in the 30th AAA Group.

TIC LEADERS CLASS: Sergeant Richard Powell, Pfc. Norman Clein and Pvt. Richard Henderson teamed up in presenting one of the classes of the post TI&E. Forty Hour Discussion Leaders Course recently. Programmed under the direction of former I. and E. officer, Captain Clinton W. Regelin, the course was designed to prepare local unit I. and E. NCO's to conduct informative Troop Information Conferences for Presidio and sub post enlisted personnel. The course consisted primarily of public speaking, information analysis and topic presentation.

Explorer Scouts Win Gold Award At Area Bivouac

Four Explorer Scouts and their advisor, members of Troop No. 77, Presidio of San Francisco, got into a real contest over the past weekend when they attended the first annual Explorer Camporee held at Parks AFB.

And the boys did right well, too, for in competition with 65 Explorer units in the Bay Area council, representing more than 560 boys and 100 leaders, they qualified for the Gold award, which is the second highest possible in competition of this sort, and were only six points away from the Silver award, the highest attainable.

Those taking part included Dan Dale Buttolph, senior crew leader; Michael Woodrone, deputy senior crew leader; Robert Kelley, Henry Thomas and Pfc. Jack Winitzer, the Explorer advisor and also Scoutmaster of Troop No. 77.

The boys all encountered five bivouac problems and in one, Explorer quiz to test the Scout's knowledge of the Explorer program, the quartet came out second from among all the 65 units participating. In physical fitness, which involved an obstacle course, they were fifth. The other problems included first aid, compass and pioneering in which they built a tower.

In the optional events, in which it was necessary to place in seven of 10 categories for the Silver award, the young men scored 45 out of 50 in the rifle marksmanship, put up a tent in four minutes and 35 seconds, and took part in a Yankee Doodle relay, Morse code, horseshoe pitching, trail packing and menu planning for a five-day trek and an observation quiz in which it was necessary to identify some 80 objects, everything from plane and automobile machine parts to camping equipment.

Both Catholic and Protestant services were held on Sunday with 100 per cent attendance by the Scouts. They also had a uniform and a campsite inspection in which Presidio Explorers scored 100.

Local Victory Marks Baseball League Opening

PRESIDIO MERMAIDS Mary Boyers and Peggy Harris (l. to r.) are ready for the big splash as they work out for the Raider swimming team in the Letterman Army Hospital Pool. Both girls are from Company D, 6002 SU, Presidio WAC Detachment, and are the only women on the local garrison swim team. Boyers swims the back-stroke and Harris is a free-styler.

Coach for the Raider natators is Major Ken Meyer. Swimmers interested in performing for the Presidio in the Sixth Army meet and other competitive events should contact the Post Sports Office, building 122, ext. 3968.

Girls Make Good!

WACs Soar Through Double Diamond Victories This Week

Following up their opening day victory, the Presidio WAC nine blasted out two lopsided wins over the Oakland Army Base WACs and the Fort Mason nine. The local girl softball team seems to be heading for a repeat of 1954 when they won the Sixth Army championship.

Gavigan and Van Houten, Presidio's leading hurlers, led the way by pitching a near perfect game, limiting the Oakland girls to nine hits, and two runs while the locals were running up 33 runs for a rather lopsided 33-2 victory.

The local nine went on a real batting rampage off the hurling of Oakland's Wright and then Lynch. The attack was led by Presidio's Ledoux getting the game's only four-bagger in the second inning.

Against Fort Mason this week the Presidio WACs rolled to their third straight victory 22-7. The game featured defensive play as well as the usual powerful batting attack. The Mason nine gathered 20 hits during the seven inning contest but only crossed the plate seven times.

Gavigan and Van Houten combined for the locals in hurling the victory while Pennell went the distance for the losers. The local girls were strong at the plate, smashing out four home-runs, led by Osburn's two round trippers and one each by Ledoux and Sinnett. Hampson was the only Fort Mason player able to find the range—hitting a home run in the 6th inning.

Next week the powerful Parks Air Force nine visit the local diamond.

State Antelope Herds Show Slight Increase

Aerial census counts taken in northeastern California show the state's prong-horned antelope herds have increased 5.7 per cent over last year, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

Visual counting supplemented aerial photography when light conditions were poor. The survey was taken by Pittman-Robertson federal aid in wildlife restoration crews.

Counts showed 2,137 animals this year as against 2,022 last year. Of the total 1,383 were in Modoc County, 506 in Lassen, 217 in Siskiyou and 31 in Shasta county.

9th AAA Men Blast 7 Straight Wins in Post Intramural Softball Play

Ninth AAA's top-ranking softball contingent soared into their seventh straight win in the last intramural round as they belted 102nd MRU, 5-2. In the previous match they blasted Company C 6002 SU, 16-2. Last year's Post champions, the 9th AAA men are aiming for the top again this year.

Against Company C, Coleman pitched a four hit game with three strike-outs and five walks. Hurler Forrest Coleman was with the 9th AAA's 1954 championship team.

The AAA men belted five two-baggers, Isais batted a three base hit, and Bush knocked in a homer against Company C pitcher Coke. Coke allowed 11 walks, 15 hits, and struck out three.

In the tight contest with the MRU, Coleman gave six hits, struck out two, and allowed four walks. Cringoli blasted a home run and the AAA men knocked four two-baggers.

Bush, Coleman, White and Ryan are returnees from the championship AAA team of last year. Eight new men fill out the top nine roster sparked by Cringoli at short stop and Isais in center field.

Next match for the 9th AAA comes up 7 June when the Ack Ackers meet 46th Ordnance. On 14 June they meet Headquarters Company, Sixth Army.

Still in the Game!

TEN TENNIS HOPEFULS are still in the running in the 1955 Presidio Tennis Tournament, being played at the Infantry Terrace Courts. In the singles competition, 14 have been eliminated so far with Fleming, Schmutz, Velarde, and Ketterer still undefeated. Above are doubles team, Lt. Col. Victor Fox and Lt. Col. Gerry Sage. The Tournament will finish next week and winners will compete in the Sixth Army Tourney.

Laurels at Last!

Raider Nine Smashes Sharpe In First BAAF League Game

By Pfc. Dick Stewart
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Presidio's Red Raider nine soared into prominence this week as they belted the favored Sharpe General Depot contingent 11-1 in the first official BAAF League game of the season. The soldiers went into action against the Parks Air Force Base flyers yesterday and will meet the Two Rock Ranch diamond men Thursday in the opening round of the League season.

The current Bay Area Armed Forces League is composed of Army and Air Force installations in and around the Bay Area. The Navy teams dropped out of non-championship competition last year, but the Raiders have scheduled games with Alameda and Treasure Island.

The locals will bat against the Alameda Hellcats Tuesday in non-League competition. The game will be played at the Fort Scott Field at 1600 hours. Games with the TI Pirates come up later in the season.

Harry Sutfin hurled for the Raiders in the first five innings against Sharpe and gave only three hits, allowing the rivals' one run of the game. He walked one and struck out seven. Sutfin will be discharged in the near future and Presidians will depend on Roger Collins and Bob Pool on the mound.

Collins pitched one inning for the Raiders and netted two strike-outs. Collins, from the 21st Engineers at Fort Scott, is a product of the New York Giants. Finishing off the game, Pool hurled a shutout in the final inning.

The local garrison was scoreless in the first period, shut out by the rival hurler. In the second inning, the Raiders came back for two runs. Shelstad opened the inning with a walk and Rubcic bunted, putting two men on.

Aires was thrown out, then Inestad belted a two-bagger to bring in both runs. Sutfin and Duke fled out to end the inning. In the third, Shelstad walked again and Miyahara and Hendrickson singled. Rubcic walked and a run was walked in. Aires grounded out, then Ynestad singled and two runs came in on his hit. Sutfin made an infield out.

In the fourth and fifth the locals were again scoreless, although they loaded the bases in both innings. In the sixth, Duke and Miyahara singled and Duke scored on a fly out by Hendrickson. Shelstad singled on an error and Miyahara was thrown out trying to steal home.

Rubcic walked and Hendrickson singled, then both scored on a single by Ynestad. The Raiders knocked in two more in the top of the seventh as Rex Willis walked and Bryant singled. Both came in on a double by Don Duke.

Local Cindermen Enter Sixth Army Tourney 7-8 June

Presidio cindermen travel southward this weekend to enter the Sixth Army Track Meet at Fort MacArthur, 7-8 June. The locals have been aiming toward the Sixth Army competition all season and the previous meets were planned as preliminaries to the Command tourney.

Coach Jim Guimarin, who took a second spot in the hotly contested Caledonian Games last week, will enter the high and low hurdles and the 400 run. Don Leshner will also enter both hurdle events, as well as the hop - skip - and - jump and the broad jump.

Representing the local garrison in the mile will be John Byrnes, and Armando Macias will carry Presidio's colors in the sprints, running the 100 and 220. Macias will also enter the broad jump and the hop-skip-and-jump.

Hendrickson will also enter the 100 and 220 sprints and the broad jump and hop-skip-and-jump. Rosmussen will run the 880. Newcomer Arnie Lubash, a gymnast of national note, will go into the high jump for the Raiders.

Former Raider lineman Frank Wilson will represent the locals in the hammer throw, and Ernie Oestreich will throw the discus and javelin. Finalists in the Sixth Army meet will compete in the All-Army tourney later in the season.

Spring Huddle

Presidio pigskinners who have signed up to play for the local garrison this year will meet 23 June in the Post Sports Office at 1800 hours to discuss plans for early practice. Prospective Red Raiders who have not signed up are urged to do so before the meeting, as the roster is not yet filled.

Little League Founder Touring O'Seas Bases

Williamsport, Pa. (AFPS)—Carl Stotz, commissioner and founder of Little League Baseball, Inc., is touring Europe and North Africa to stimulate interest in baseball among sons of military personnel stationed abroad.

Stotz was invited by Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, Commander in Chief of USAFE, to visit England, France, Germany and North Africa.

In some foreign countries little leagues for boys eight to 12 are operated by the military for service children. Stotz pointed out that, in a few instances, native youths also are playing in the leagues.

Cosmopolitan Tilt!

Little League Season To Open With Double Header Tomorrow

One of the most cosmopolitan baseball leagues of all times will open its first season with a double header at 1300 tomorrow afternoon, 4 June, at the Presidio of San Francisco. The Golden Gate Little League, believed to be the first of the officially franchised junior age circuits on an Army post in the United States, is composed of eight teams whose 116 members boast birthplaces including France, Germany, Hawaii, Alaska, the Canal Zone, Greece, the Philippines and most of the 48 states.

To emphasize the international flavor of the loop, opening day ceremonies will include a christening ceremony for the league's new field near the Presidio Officers' Open Mess. At that time water from the Atlantic Ocean and Caribbean Sea, sent by Little Leaguers from the East Coast and New Orleans, will be mixed with water from the Pacific and sprinkled on the field.

Top-ranking officers from the Presidio will be present at the ceremonies, a color guard will raise the Flag and the Sixth Army Band will be on hand to furnish the music.

Members of the four "major league" and four "minor league" teams in the organization, all between the ages of eight and 12, are sons of Army personnel stationed at the Presidio. The organization of the league began last fall with a group of Presidio parents forming a sponsoring committee. President of the league is Chief Warrant Officer Samuel L. Mullins of Post Headquarters.

Assisting with league operations are 26 men, serving as coaches, officials and groundskeepers, and six mothers who are helping with clerical and secretarial duties.

The league schedule calls for daily games Monday through Friday evenings, with doubleheaders on Saturday.

Flyer Helps Rocky

Sgt. J. B. Reed of Travis AFB, Calif., was one of the sparring mates who helped heavyweight king Rocky Marciano train for his title bout with British Empire champ Don Cockell.

Honor Guard 1st Sergeant Named Pilot for Softball

Master Sergeant George Van Kirk was named recently by the Presidio Sports Office as pilot for the 1955 Post Softball team. This year will initiate softball competition on the All-Army level. In addition to competing in the Sixth Army softball tourney, the local garrison contingent will also participate in the Bay Area Armed Forces tourney, 25-30 July.

As mentor for Presidio's 30-man softball squad, Van Kirk brings a broad background of military sports to the local team. In 1946 he played on the 3rd Armored Field Artillery Battalion team which won runner-up honors for the European Command championship.

Stationed in Greece with the JUSMAG in 1953 and 1954, Van Kirk's softball squad rolled into first place championship of Greece for two years running. This will be his first experience as a coach rather than a player.

Stationed previously with the US Military Mission in Greece, Van Kirk arrived at the Presidio 1 September, 1954. He is presently assigned to the Honor Guard as First Sergeant.

Van Kirk's small son, George, who was born while his father was stationed in Greece, already shows an ardent interest in the great American sport. Just two years old, he wears a small-size baseball cap and listens attentively while his father explains the intricacies of baseball.

Washington's rookie moundsman Ted Abernathy won 13 and lost three while pitching for Fort McPherson, Georgia.

Keg Kapers!

102 MRU Holds Pacific Lead As Presidio's Leagues Roll On

In the early stages of the new Pacific keg league competition, 102nd MRU tops the pin-droppers with seven won and one lost. In a close second is the Headquarters Company, 30th Engineers, group, with six and two, and third are the Sixth Army Signal men with three and one.

Hoffacker leads the MRU contingent with a 217 high game and a 174 average. Top kegler for the 30th Engineers is Huff with a 180 high roll and an average at 144. Adair heads the Sixth Army Signal roster with a high game at 200 and a 187 average.

Individual high game for the Pacific goes to Thorne of the Keystone Kops with a smashing 242. High series and high average are held by Dickey of the 505th MP Battalion, Company B. He has a 572 series and a 190 average.

Warrior Golfers Outpoint Locals Over Ord Links

Fort Ord's eagle-eyed Warrior linksmen out-scored the Presidio Red Raiders, 20-7, in the recent tourney on the new Ord course. Low medalist of the contest was Ord's Bob McAllister, who rounded the tough new links in a low 74.

In the first foursome, Presidio's Lt. Col. Thomas Ward won one up on the first nine, lost two down on the second, to come up with a loss, one down, for the eighteen. Capt. Rollin Kapp lost two and one on the first nine and three and one on the second against Warrior Joe Torres. Presidio lost the best ball one down for the eighteen.

Presidio's Capt. L. A. Thomas lost one down on the first nine, two and one on the second, and lost the eighteen three and two, playing against the Warrior's Dick Runkle. M/Sgt. Sid Domingue swung the local garrison's only complete win of the day against Ordster Jim Ellis. Domingue took the first nine four and two and the second three and one to take the eighteen five and four. Presidio won the best ball, one up.

The Raiders lost out all the way around in the final foursome as Dennis Whyte of Presidio lost the eighteen six and four against Ordster Rolf Westgaard and Lt. Robert Mason lost five and three to Warrior Mark Tarpey.

Runners up for the low medalist honors were Presidio's Ward and Domingue. On the unfamiliar and tricky course, Ward shot a 75 and Domingue a 78.

Fort Meade Pitcher Beats New York Giants In Charity Game

Boston (AFPS) — Young Dave Sisler, a $40,000 bonus rookie on leave from Ft. Meade, Md., turned up at Fenway Park here recently to hurl the Boston Red Sox to a 4-3 victory over the New York Giants in an exhibition game.

The contest, played for the benefit of hospitalized veterans in New England, was called at the end of six-and-one-third innings.

Sisler, son of the one-time baseball great George Sisler, allowed four hits, walked four and struck out one. The young righthander was signed by the Red Sox before entering the service. He is currently pitching for the Ft. Meade Generals.

It's This Way, Son . . .

GEE, DAD, did you really play for the Dodgers? The small baseball enthusiast is George Van Kirk, son of M/Sgt. George Van Kirk who is First Sergeant for Company A, 6002 SU and coach of the Presidio softball team. M/Sgt. Van Kirk is showing his son a trophy commemorating softball championship of Greece, won when he was assigned to the US Military Mission in Greece in 1953 and 1954. Practice starts this month for the Red Raider softball squad.

Law Enforcement! Civil, Military Police Efforts Stressed At PM Conference

The three-day Sixth Army Provost Marshal Conference, presided over by Colonel Shaffer Jarrell, Sixth Army Provost Marshal, was concluded recently following discussion of military police activities both on and off-post in the eight western states. The conference included subjects of mutual interest to civilian law enforcement agencies.

Held at the Joint Operation Center Building at Fort Scott, the conference was attended by Provost Marshals of all Class I installations in this Army area. Military guests included Provost Marshals from Class II installations and a ranking representative from the Air Force.

Welcoming the conferees, Major General R. G. Prather, Sixth Army Chief of Staff, stated: "The Military Police are constantly in the public eye. They are in intimate daily contact with the public, certainly more than any other part of military force. They represent the Army. Through their courtesy and tact, tempered with firmness, they can accomplish a great deal in improving the relationship between civilian and military."

Guest speaker, Chief William H. Parker of the Los Angeles Police Department, emphasized public relations, both from a civil and military standpoint. He also explained the operation of his department relative to liaison with the services.

Chief Parker further stressed the values of continual cooperation through the medium of the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Boards.

Chief W. R. Creighton and Inspector Clyde W. Carpenter of the California Narcotics Bureau, discussed key factors and difficult problems of narcotic law enforcement in California and lauded MP cooperation.

Law enforcement and crime prevention problems and procedures pertaining to the military in the Sixth Army Area were outlined in addition to information emanating from the Fifth Annual Provost Marshal General Conference at Camp Gordon, Georgia, earlier this year.

House Committee Cuts DOD Travel Budget For Change of Station

Washington (AFPS) — The House Appropriations Committee has sliced $22 million off the Defense Department budget for change of station travel by Armed Forces personnel and movement of household effects.

The cut amounted to 5 per cent of the funds the DOD had asked for PCS. The DOD previously had reduced the Services' requests by 15 per cent.

If the committee cut is approved, the DOD said, the Services will have to remap travel plans for fiscal 1956 to fit the budget.

Comptroller Conference Set at Harmon Armory; D-A to Send Officials

A Comptroller conference, to be attended by Comptroller personnel from all Class I and II installations and major activities in the Sixth Army area, will be held at Harmon Armory on 7 and 8 June.

Colonel Paul A. Mayo, Comptroller, Headquarters Sixth Army, announced that the conference will be important from several standpoints since a new budget and funding policy will go into effect on 1 July and relationships between the headquarters and its Class II installations will be revised on that date.

Among those attending will be Mr. LaRoy J. Bove who will represent the Comptroller of the Army; Mr. Lawrence W. Acker, deputy chief, Army audit agency, Washington, D. C., and Colonel Stuart W. Davis, regional director, San Francisco regional office, Army audit agency, who will discuss D/A's internal audit program.

Lt. Colonel Charles B. Whittle, Comptroller, Fort Lewis, Washington, and Major Frank Friedman, budget officer, Fort Ord, California, will also address the conference.

Ranking Nationalist Visitor

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL of the Chinese Nationalist Army on Formosa, Maj. Gen. Liu Ch'ing-sheng discusses varied techniques of quartermaster administration with Sixth Army Quartermaster, Col. Louis G. Bumen, during a visit at the Presidio last week. General Liu observed Sixth Army QM operations for possible adoption by the Chinese Nationalist Army.

65% Participation! Current Savings Bond Drive Sets Automatic Deduction Goal

Machinery for the Sixth Army and post Savings Bond drive is humming at full speed this week giving sharp impact to the initial June effort of the sustained national campaign this year.

Chief emphasis of the current campaign is to encourage the sale of U. S. Savings Bonds through the automatic payroll deduction system. Payroll savings through bond purchases are categorized as Class B or Class B 1 allotments for military personnel and Class A pay reservations for civilians.

Because the entire campaign is directed at continuous payroll savings, cash sales of U. S. Savings Bonds do not count toward filling the campaign goals.

Dollar quotas have not been set for the initial phase of the drive ending 30 June on either the Sixth Army or post levels. Instead, the goal for the drive has been expressed in percentages—65 per cent of all military and civilian personnel within the Sixth Army as a whole and within each installation and activity in the Sixth Army area.

Military personnel may have one full bond of any of the denominations deducted each month as a Class B allotment. Or the soldier can have one-third of the cost of a bond, a Class B-1 allotment taken out each month, thereby receiving a U. S. Savings Bond every three months. The minimum monthly amount which military personnel may save by the automatic bond allotment method is $6.25.

Civilian personnel may have as little as $3.75 deducted from their bi-monthly pay checks, yielding a $25 bond every five pay periods.

Savings Bond drive leaders plan personal interviews with all military and civilian personnel in order to accelerate bond purchases through automatic payroll deductions.

Sixth Army will award a suitable plaque for the highest percentage of participation to an installation or major activity with over 1,000 working population and another plaque to an installation or major activity with less than 1,000 working population.

The Treasury Department, which is supervising the current Savings Bond campaign, stressed that the automatic payroll bond purchase plan is one which applies the element of systematic certainty to individual savings.

The Treasury Department also stressed that bond purchases increase an individual's security, support the national defense program and minimize inflationary trends by widely spreading the national debt.

There were 391,000 known participants in the Revolutionary War.

Admiral Burke Nominated to Top Navy Position

Washington (AFPS)—Rear Adm. Arleigh A. Burke has been nominated by President Eisenhower to succeed Adm. Robert B. Carney as Chief of Naval Operations.

At the same time, the President nominated Adm. Arthur W. Radford for a second two-year term as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Adm. Burke, who presently commands the Navy's Atlantic Fleet Destroyer Force, will begin his two-year term as CNO 16 August. He will have the rank of full admiral.

The White House said that Adm. Carney was not reappointed as CNO because he would have reached the mandatory retirement age of 62 before being able to fill out another two-year term.

Adm. Carney, who succeeded Adm. William N. Fechteler in August 1953, announced that he will retire to private life upon completion of his duties as CNO. He described Adm. Burke as "well-equipped to give the Navy intelligent and vigorous leadership."

A 1923 graduate of the Naval Academy, Adm. Burke became known as "31 knot" during WWII in the Pacific because of the high speed he demanded of destroyer squadrons under his command.

His "little beavers" — Destroyer Squadron 23 — covered the first landings on Bougainville in November 1943, and then went on to participate in 22 separate engagements with the enemy in the following three months.

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower has nominated Gen. Nathan F. Twining for a second two-year term as Air Force Chief of Staff.

Gen. Twining has served in that post since 30 June, 1953, when he succeeded the late Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg.

He will continue as a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, together with Adm. Arthur W. Radford, who has been nominated for a second term as Chairman, the new Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, and new Chief of Naval Operations, Read Adm. Arleigh A. Burke.

Vol. 4, No. 2

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 10 June, 1955

NEW SIXTH ARMY CHIEF OF STAFF, Brigadier General Louis J. Rumaggi, accompanied by Capt. Eugene J. Gasior, inspects a guard of honor during ceremonies attending official installation in his new assignment, this week. General Rumaggi succeeds Major General Richard G. Prather, chief of staff since last July, whose new assignment will be announced shortly. The new chief is a ranking engineer.

New Chief!

Outstanding Engineer General Officer Assumes Key Position

Brigadier General Louis J. Rumaggi assumed the duties of Sixth Army Chief of Staff after a brief ceremony at the Presidio of San Francisco this week.

General Rumaggi comes to the Sixth Army from Washington, D. C., where he was Deputy Chief of Engineers for Military Operations. He succeeds Major General Richard G. Prather, chief of staff since last July, whose new assignment will be announced shortly by the Secretary of the Army.

Born in Memphis, Tenn., on 3 December, 1900, General Rumaggi was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1922 as a second lieutenant of Engineers. After an assignment in the Hawaiian Islands, he attended the University of California for a year, earning his B.S. degree in civil engineering in 1927.

General Rumaggi served at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, from 1935 to 1939 as engineer officer in charge of aerial mapping activities. When World War II broke out, he was serving with the 36th Engineer Topographic Battalion. A six-months' tour as commander of the 649th Engineer Topographic Battalion followed, after which he served two years in various engineer units throughout the United States.

In June, 1944, he went to the Southwest Pacific Theater for a 30-months' tour, during which he rose to the position of Acting Chief Engineer, Army Forces, Western Pacific.

General Rumaggi went overseas for a third time in July, 1952, (Continued on page 8)

USMA Aspirants!

U. S. Military Academy Advisor, Captain Eugene J. Gasior of the Honor Guard, announced this week that of the 89 men eligible to take the annual USMA designating examination 11 July, 25 enlisted men have indicated a desire to do so. Those who pass this exam will be notified by AGO and assigned to the West Point Preparatory School at Stewart Field, New York, to prepare them to take the regular USMA entrance examination. Additional Presidio and sub-post personnel interested in taking the 11 July exam should contact Captain Gasior at the Honor Guard.

Col. Bryant, ANC Chief, Gets Honorary Degree

Colonel Ruby F. Bryant, chief of the Army Nurse Corps, this week became the second woman in history to receive an honorary degree from the Medical College of Virginia in its commencement exercises held on 31 May.

Colonel Bryant received the degree of Doctor of Laws.

New Defense Request Wants Permanent Law For Equalization Act

The Defense Department has asked Congress to make permanent the law which permits officers to retire in the highest temporary grade satisfactorily held while on active duty. The present law expires 1 Jan., 1957.

Called the "Uniformed Services Retirement Equalization Act of 1955," the new bill would authorize payment of retirement benefits based on the highest grade attained.

The bill specifies that officers will be promoted on the retired list "to the highest permanent grade in which they served for any period; or the highest temporary grade in which they served satisfactorily for at least six months as determined by the appropriate service secretary."

West Point Graduates 470 Cadets 7 June; 140 to Enter USAF

West Point (AFPS)—Four hundred and seventy cadets were graduated from the Military Academy at commencement ceremonies 7 June.

The Infantry will receive the greatest number of new second lieutenants—143. One hundred and forty will enter the Air Force and 85 will go to the Artillery.

Forty-two are scheduled for commissions in the Corps of Engineers, 33 in Armor and 23 in the Signal Corps. Four cadets were not commissioned for varying reasons including foreign nationality and physical disabilities.

SPECIALITY: Training

General Wyman Will Test Fresh Concepts in New Assignment

The command picture of the Sixth Army underwent several rapid changes this week with the announcement by Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens that Sixth Army Commander Lieutenant General W. G. Wyman had been assigned deputy commanding general of the Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va. He will assume his new duties on 1 August. No official announcement as to his successor had been made as this issue went to press.

In his new capacity, General Wyman will be second in command to General John E. Dahlquist, commanding general of CONARC, and will also have direct responsibility for the direction of Weapons and Equipment Development which is among the command's major activities.

General Wyman brings singular ability to his new assignment because of his wide experience in the development of the Army's new concept of small, mobile combat forces. He has, within the Sixth Army, put great emphasis on the Army's adoption of new tactical organizations. This effort has been in the utilization of available weapons within combat units as they are organized today to develop techniques and practices which would prevail on atomic battlefields.

The use of troops within the Sixth Army has emphasized organization for combat in such a manner as to insure maximum utilization of the Army's superior firepower and mobility. Maneuvers under his direction have tested these innovations to determine their most effective use under the concept of modern warfare.

Recent maneuvers of Sixth Army units directed by the general have tested practically every type of combat. Last March he

Moving Up!

THREE MAJOR training exercises within his area of command during the past year kept Sixth Army Commander Lieutenant General W. G. Wyman busy in the field. Now slated to move up to the Army's number two training assignment, General Wyman will bring a solid background of combat, staff and training experience to this key assignment.

180th Anniversary!

Army Birthday Tribute Tuesday Includes Competitions, Parade

Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, announced this week that the 180th birthday anniversary of the Army next Tuesday (14 June) will be observed on the Presidio of San Francisco with both a weapons competition and a decoration ceremony.

Following these morning presentations, all military personnel except those required for minimum operation will have a holiday.

Disassembly and assembly of weapons will begin at 1000 hours on the Presidio Main Parade ground.

The 505th Military Police battalion, commanded by Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, will conduct unit competition in field stripping the 45-caliber pistol; Company A, the Honor Guard, commanded by Captain Eugene J. Gasior, will field strip the M-1 rifle, and Detachment 1, 6000 SU, commanded by Captain Clinton D. Regelin, will compete with the 30-caliber carbine.

Adjutant's call for the review will be at 1115 hours. Units participating will be the Sixth Army band, the 505th MP Battalion, 30th Engineers, the Honor Guard, Headquarters company and D Company, Station Complement, 561st Engi- (Continued on page 4)

Drivers Note!!

The Post Provost Marshal's office urged motorists this week to avoid whenever possible the use of Crissy Field avenue and Lincoln boulevard at points where these thoroughfares cross under the portions of the Golden Gate Bridge approach which are supported by structural steel. Soon the bridge authority will begin sandblasting and painting the metal structures, making it possible that drops of paint might fall on vehicles passing underneath the approach. Warning signs will be placed near all of these points and parking will be restricted in certain affected areas. Painting activities will require about 90 days, so Presidio drivers are further encouraged to observe the warning signs and avoid the possibility of paint damage to their cars.

This MP signal means proceed at the legal rate of speed. The way is clear for you to drive carefully to the next intersection at the Presidio where another 505th MP is stationed to eliminate rush-hour traffic congestion. Once given the "proceed" signal don't confuse the issue and decide to take a turn to the right or left because you'll not be permitted to do so and you may end up embracing a traffic violation certificate instead of your charming companion. It's safe to have your next move in mind before you get to the next intersection. And safely is the only 100 per cent accepted way to drive at the Presidio. Obey the MP's signals. Traffic control is his business, and safe driving is yours!

how green is my pasture?

Money talks: True words, friend, but allow us to present a man who itemized some "service blessings" that talk just as loud. Here are the thoughts on the subject by a 24th Inf. Div. enlisted man writing in his outfit's newspaper the Taro Leaf. We thought them well worth passing along.

We also thought that you men in the other branches of the Armed Forces enjoying these same blessings might want to point them out to the men in your outfit who are uncertain about making the Service a career.

"My $365.60 a month isn't too much, but it's comfortable. Five more years and the retirement checks will come in, one in the mail box every month for $152.10. At three per cent, I'd have to have just $60,840 in bonds to get those dividends.

"I'll be 38 when I quit, not too old to work at a trade the Service taught me. Newspaper work won't make me rich, but I like it.

"One GI Bill helped me get a new home. There are two more I can use the same way—the Korea GI Bill and the Career Serviceman's Housing Act. My kids will benefit in the long run. Call it investments in real estate backed by the government.

"My boys were born on Army posts, at a cost of about $10 each. One has had four major plastic surgery operations; there were minor operations; major surgery for the wife. We had the best of doctors and treatment for only nominal costs each time.

"Education? Just finished a language course which cost the Service several thousand dollars per student. Another investment the Service made in me which will work to my advantage in the future.

"It wasn't all peaches and cream. There have been a couple of wars, and unavoidable separations of other kinds. But those things are just part of the job.

"Maybe it's square to feel good about being able to do a little for the country—and the outfit—which have helped me so much.

"If that's being square, then I'm mighty proud of the corners on my head." (AFPS)

Discharge Papers

Rep. Olin Teague (D-Tex.) has introduced a bill in the House prescribing that no fee shall be charged for providing a veteran with a copy of his discharge or certificate of service. Under a recent Defense Department ruling, original discharges are issued free-of-charge but additional copies cost $1.50.

Atomic Air Research

President Eisenhower has signed into law a bill authorizing $13,-300,000 for the construction of air research facilities including work on a nuclear powered aircraft. The Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory of Cleveland was allocated $4,850,000 for research into nuclear propulsion for air travel.

Lt. Colonel Jack W. Downey has just returned from a year's duty with a U. S. Military Advisory Group to Kashmir. Prior to that he served three years with the career management division, office of the Adjutant General, the Pentagon.

Colonel Downey, a veteran of 21½ years' Army service, is now with the G-3 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army.

During World War II, the colonel commanded a tank unit of the 3rd Armored division in the ETO for 23 months. He is a graduate of the Armored school, Fort Knox, Kentucky, and the associate Command and General Staff course, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Colonel Downey's decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the ETO ribbon with four battle stars. He and Mrs. Downey and their 13-year-old daughter and two-year-old son are residing in San Francisco.

Lt. Colonel Margaret M. Thornton is newly assigned to the G-4 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army, plans division.

Colonel Thornton first entered the WAC in July 1942 and served four years before entering the Reserves. She was recalled in 1948 and served first as assistant commandant, WAC O.C.S. at Fort Lee, Virginia.

She next had a tour in Panama, followed by two years at Fort Meade, Maryland, on recruiting duty. Just prior to coming here, Colonel Thornton served two years in the Pentagon in the office of the assistant chief of staff G-1. She has been awarded the Commendation ribbon.

The colonel's home is in Los Angeles. She has her B.A. and M.A., English major. She attended both U.C.L.A. and the University of California. Her father, Dr. David D. Thornton, is presently in Weaverville, California.

For her Pentagon service, Colonel Thornton has been cited for "outstanding devotion to duty and major accomplishments during the period January 1953 to May 1955." She received the letter of appreciation from Major General Donald P. Booth, acting assistant chief of staff, G-1 of the Army, and it was presented to her here by Colonel John W. Gaddis, G-4, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Lt. Colonel Delmas L. White has been named assistant to the chief of the manpower division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. He has just completed three years with the 65th Infantry in Puerto Rico. For the first six months he was regimental S-4, and for the past 30 months, battalion commander.

Entering the Pacific theatre in 1942 with the 111th Regimental Combat Team, Colonel White's company later joined the 7th Division and participated in the landings at Kwajalein and Eniwetok. Upon his return to the States in November 1944, he was sent to Germany, where he became C.O. of C company, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

In 1947, Colonel White became aide to Major General R. B. Woodruff, at that time deputy commander of First Army, a position he held until 1951. The colonel is a graduate of the guerrilla warfare school and officer's advanced Infantry course, both at Fort Benning, Georgia, and the Command and General Staff school, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. He is a rated parachutist and also served a tour with the 82nd Airborne Division.

The colonel holds the Combat Infantry Badge, the Parachutist Badge and the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster. Colonel and Mrs. White reside at Wherry with their two daughters, Christina Marie, 17 months, and LuAnn Marie, five months.

Major Ralph W. Echols has become a member of the Department of the Army's personnel management team with station at the Presidio of San Francisco.

His most recent assignment was at Fort Bliss, Texas, where he served 18 months as a personnel management advisor and D/A liaison officer with AAA and Guided Missile units.

During World War II, Major Echols was in Nanking, China, for a year with an Army advisory group, followed by a tour at the Texas Military district and then three and one-half years in Germany with a replacement depot.

Upon his return to this country, Major Echols, who has 19 years of Army service, was assigned to the Arkansas Military district. He is now residing with his wife and son in Oakland.

Captain Lee V. Worthen has been assigned as training officer with the Provost Marshal section, Headquarters Sixth Army, after serving 18 months with the Armed Services Police detachment at Treasure Island.

From June 1951 to September 1953, Captain Worthen was in Leghorn, Italy, as assistant Provost Marshal, prior to which he spent 14 months in Vienna, Austria, with the 796th M.P. battalion and as aide to Brig. General William T. Fitts.

In addition to his six and one-half years' Army service, the captain also served in the Navy for four years during World War II, and was an enlisted man in the Medical department aboard the U.S.S. Texas in the North African theatre. He has been awarded the Navy Good Conduct Medal as well as ETO theatre ribbons.

A former detective with the Riverside, California, police department, Captain Worthen received a direct Reserve commission and was called to active Army duty in November 1948. He is a graduate of officers' basic MP course and the correction and confinement course at Camp Gordon, Georgia, and the CIC school, Oberammergau, Germany. He and his wife and son are now residing in Oakland.

Captain John D. Gillespie has been named detachment commander of the Sixth Army Flight Detachment. His last assignment was in Korea with the civil assistance command, with whom he served 14 months.

In the Army for 15 years, Captain Gillespie served two years in the Pacific during World War II with the 4th Infantry regiment. In 1944 he attended the officer's advanced Infantry course at Fort Benning, Georgia, and the following year, the Army-AF liaison pilot schools at Sheppard field, Texas and Fort Sill, Oklahoma, where he was awarded his pilot's wings.

He next served three years in Germany and a year in France with the U. S. Constabulary forces. The captain has been awarded the Combat Infantry Badge and the Bronze Star Medal.

Captain and Mrs. Gillespie and their four children are residing in Alameda.

Lt. Nicholas B. Nikas is newly assigned as trial counsel with the Judge Advocate section, Presidio of San Francisco.

For the past 16 months he has been in Korea, the first 10 with the 25th Division and the last six with the 7th Division, 32nd regiment.

Entering the Army four years ago, Lt. Nikas attended basic and leaders course at Camp Roberts, California, and O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia. He served the next 10 months at Fort Ord, California, before being assigned to Korea.

Lt. Nikas attended Carbon Junior College at Price, Utah, prior to entering service. He and Mrs. Nikas and their three children are now residing here.

Lt. Colonel Carlyle R. Williams has joined the staff of the S-4 Section, Presidio of San Francisco. He has just been graduated from the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

In Korea from July, 1953, to the beginning of this year, Colonel Williams was KMAC advisor to a ROK regiment of the 15th ROK Division. This was his second tour in Korea, having been KMAC advisor to the 3rd ROK Division during the period October, 1950, to November, 1951. In the interim he served with the 8th Division at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

The colonel has been with the Army for the past 15 years. He was graduated from officer's advanced Infantry school at Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1942, and served with the 84th Division in the ETO. Following the war, he stayed on from 1945 to 1949 with the U. S. Constabulary forces. He next served two years as instructor with the 3rd Battalion, 116th Infantry regiment, Virginia National Guard.

Among Colonel Williams' decorations are the Combat Infantry Badge with Star and the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters. He and his two children are now residing in their new home in Mill Valley.

At Honolulu, a five-ton granite marker commemorates 131 civilians and 47 Navy and Marine Corps personnel who died in defense of Wake Island.

The Star-Presidian

Serving Those Who Serve A Nation

The Star-Presidian is an authorized dual purpose weekly publication published by and for the military personnel of the Sixth Army Headquarters and the Presidio of San Francisco, California, under the supervision of the Post Troop Information and Education Office. News, features, photographic and art material are solicited from military personnel. Publication depends on available space and general interest value as judged by the staff. No payment will be made. Every effort will be made to return rejected material but no responsibility can be assumed beyond the exercise of due care in expediting return.

Commanding Sixth Army

LIEUTENANT GENERAL WILLARD G. WYMAN

Deputy Post Commander

COLONEL C. E. LUNDQUIST

Post TIE Officer

MAJOR EARLE K. STEWART

Editor

MR. KENNETH S. ERWIN

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

Quartermaster Corps Celebrates 180th Anniversary of 1775 Establishment

On 16 June, 1955, the Quartermaster Corps will mark its 180th Anniversary. The Office of The Quartermaster General was established by the Continental Congress on 16 June, 1775 at the request of General Washington, who said that he considered such an office "indispensably necessary for the good government of the Army." This was a year before the most famous date in American history—4 July, 1776, when the Continental Congress declared independence of British rule. The Quartermaster Corps was formed, in other words, before we became a free nation and is actually older than the United States itself.

In the early days of the American Revolution, units were small and the principal Quartermaster duties were the procurement, storage and issue of food and clothing.

During the Civil War, Congress systematized the duties of the Quartermaster General's Department, and it began to function much as it does today. In 1861 considerable difficulties were encountered because of the sudden expansion of the Army, but gradually the Department became adequate in size and organization to handle the heavy demands placed upon it.

For the first time, field depots and permanent supply depots in large cities were established. The Quartermaster Department fulfilled its duties superbly well and earned this commendation from Secretary of War Stanton: "During the war this branch of the Service never failed. It answers the demand and is ready to meet the national call."

Note 180 Years

The 180th anniversary of the Quartermaster Corps will be observed by local personnel with a picnic at Marin Town and Country club, Fairfax, Saturday, 18 June. Among the groups participating will be those from Quartermaster section, Headquarters Sixth Army; Post Quartermaster section, Presidio of San Francisco; Port QM section, San Francisco Port of Embarkation, and Oakland QM Market center.

At the end of the Civil War, Congress heavily cut the Quartermaster Department which resulted in nine of its ten divisions being abolished.

When the Spanish - American War was over, drastic reductions again made the efficient functioning of the Department difficult. In 1912, to increase efficiency, Congress consolidated the supply activities of many departments under one agency. The new consolidated agency was to be known as the Quartermaster Corps of the Army.

In World War II the Quartermaster Corps preserved its identity and took on great new responsibilities. The provision of food, clothing and personal equipment for more than 8,000,000 men was an achievement of which any supply organization might be content to rest. But this was not all. Salvage and repair, laundry and bath service, and care of the dead were auxiliary functions of the Corps which were brought to a higher degree of performance on a much larger scale than ever before.

After World War II, the Quartermaster Corps reduced its personnel and facilities to a pattern commensurate with the post-war Army. With the outbreak of hostilities in Korea and the enlargement of the Armed Forces, the Quartermaster Corps again expanded its organization to meet the requirements of the troops. Since cessation of hostilities in Korea, readjustments have been made in conformity to altered conditions and requirements. Stress was being placed upon management and fiscal procedures and accounting with a view to effecting all possible economies and continuously improved efficiency.

Chief of Quartermaster operations today is Maj. Gen. Kester L. Hastings, the Quartermaster General.

Quartermaster Savings! Fiscal Report Shows Property Reclamation At Peak Volume

Sixth Army Quartermaster, Colonel Louis G. Bumen, disclosed this week that the past year of Quartermaster operations reveals that an accelerated program of reclamation, repair and alteration of property in the Sixth Army Area is continuing at peak rates.

In all a total of 704,556 major pieces of government property were restored to usefulness and service during the past year in Sixth Army field maintenance facilities.

Of the items processed in the field maintenance facilities, alteration and repair of clothing and textiles constitutes by far the greater volume. A total of 537,678 such items were processed during the preceding year.

The number of items repaired in other major categories were as follows:

Typewriters and Office Appliances	42,476
Furniture	51,093
Materials Handling Equipment	21,900
Metal and Wood	51,409

Thirty posts, camps and stations presently operate 106 Quartermaster field maintenance facilities in the Sixth Army area. These facilities are established for the reclamation, repair and alteration of all types of Quartermaster property, and their missions include the repair of materials handling equipment, special purpose equipment and vehicles, canvas and webbing, heavy tentage, clothing and textiles, shoes, typewriters and office appliances, metal and wood, furniture, musical instruments and parachutes.

Many items are altered or repaired in these facilities for immediate return to the user or for return to local station stock, while others are processed locally for return to depot Quartermaster maintenance facilities and stockage.

Four such laundries processed, at a minimum cost, 28,964,852 pieces of clothing and textiles during the past year. These laundries provide service to individual military personnel as well as to government property requiring cleaning.

Key Food Service Additions Listed By Area Function

The 180th year of Quartermaster Corps activities has been highlighted at the Sixth Army Quartermaster section with significant innovations in food service.

As the result of a Sixth Army Food Service study of AAA mess requirements, the Department of the Army approved and issued frozen food cabinets to each CONUS on-site mess.

The study was then expanded to cover the need for frozen food cabinets in all Army messes. The Quartermaster finding was again accepted by the Department of the Army and at the present time upright frozen food cabinets are being standardized for general issue to all messes. It is anticipated that procurement and issue will be effected by the fall of this year.

To better serve the troops at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, a new central pastry kitchen was built, and opened in January 1955. These shops not only provide high quality bakery goods to each mess but also serve as a training ground for mess personnel who work there on a rotation basis.

New and rehabilitated messes were added to the increasing number of modern eating facilities in Sixth Army. The Army Food Service School at Fort Ord is graduating each week a group of trained cooks to staff these new mess halls and to produce fine meals that mean so much to the man in the mess line. The school also conducted a course last fall for Civil Defense workers. This course included training in methods of emergency mass feeding and the use of field expedients in the event of disaster.

Active Army support of Reserve Component Messes during summer training imposes a big load on Sixth Army Food Service personnel. This welcome challenge was ably met in the summer of 1954 and for this year's encampments 15 Officer Food Advisers and 30 Enlisted Specialists are now engaged in technical support of our reserve units. Mess stewards and cooks are being furnished, also, to those units which are not able to subsist themselves.

QM General's Message

In a message to Colonel Louis Bumen, Sixth Army Quartermaster, Maj. Gen. K. L. Hastings, the Quartermaster General, stated: "The Quartermaster Corps is rounding out another decade in its illustrious history of service to the Army, the Armed Forces, and the people of the United States. Since its creation by the Continental Congress on 16 June, 1775, the Corps has been synonymous with Army supply. The victories won by our troops, whenever and wherever they have been called upon to defend the Nation, testifying to the competence of our Service. . . It is fitting that we take pride in our past achievements and rededicate ourselves to the task of assuring that the Quartermaster Corps will meet, with ever-increasing efficiency, all challenges of the future."

Food For Instance! Presidio QM Operations Bring Vital Supplies to Local Units

The post Quartermaster section, under the direction of Lt. Col. Walter McCarthy, Jr., spreads its vast wings of supply over every unit at the Presidio and the sub-posts, however remote their location.

The scope of its operations includes all organizations at the Presidio, Fort Scott, Fort Barry, Fort Cronkhite, Letterman Army Hospital as well as all NIKE sites throughout the San Francisco Bay Area.

Its mission includes the receipt, storage and distribution of general supplies, office equipment, sanitary supplies, petroleum products, quarters and office furniture, and cook and mess equipment.

Post Quartermaster directs the issuance and resale of military clothing, and the issue of subsistence supplies to troop mess halls. This organization is responsible for field maintenance activities and the operation of repair shops for other gear and equipment, such as the one for parachutes, which handles about 600 'chutes each year.

Responsibility for the operation of Ration Breakdown activities and also the administration of the central meat-cutting program which sends meat to the mess halls on the ready-to-cook basis is another part of the post Quartermaster section's, widespread mission.

Among the more unusual duties of this activity is the administration and operation of the San Francisco and Golden Gate cemeteries.

Considerable effort is given by this section toward salvage, repair, alteration and restoration of Army materials and equipment, a tangible job to conserve tax dollars.

A further indication of the supply function of the post Quartermaster section is the fact that its operations require the use of 17 warehouses for the storage, receipt and issuance of supplies to the Presidio's broad national defense activities.

DOD Seeks Change In Uniform Code Of Military Justice

Washington (AFPS) — The Defense Department has asked Congress for legislation to amend the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

The proposed bill would return commanding officers' authority to punish minor offenses, provided that the accused waives his right to trial by a special court-martial.

The DOD said this action would reduce the work load of court-martial boards.

Other key provisions revising the present code which has been in effect since 31 May, 1951, include:

Authority to extend the time during which the accused may petition for a new trial to two years after the convening authority approved sentence.

Authority for commanding officers to mete out non-judicial punishment to enlisted men. This could not exceed seven days' confinement and forfeiture of more than a half-month's pay for minor offenses.

Authority to fine officers half of their pay for three months, instead of one month, on order of the commanding officer.

A provision to punish individuals who pass bad checks. The DOD said the code contains no provision precisely covering this and many are escaping punishment for such offenses.

The right to confine members of the Armed Forces with those of other nations friendly to the U. S.

Anniversary

neer company, and Detachments 1 and 2, 6000 SU.

Birthday dinners will be served in unit messes beginning at 1200 and the early afternoon will be given over to sports with the WAC softball game slated for 1300 at the field near the Main Post Exchange, and a baseball game between the Presidio and Oak Knoll Naval hospital at 1330 hours on the Fort Scott field.

Across the bay at Oakland Army base Officer's Mess, far-flung Presidio AAA units will be taking part in another kind of competition, cake baking.

Unit bakers will submit their fluffiest to a panel of eight women who will judge them on texture and decoration. Prizes will be $20 for first place, $10 for second and $5 for third.

Units participating include C Battery, 9th AAA Gun battalion, Headquarters and A Batteries, 752nd AAA Gun battalion; and A and D Batteries, 740th AAA Gun battalion. Others taking part will be Section A, 6020 SU, Oakland Army Base, and Headquarters detachment, Fort Mason.

In the evening at the Presidio Service club, General Motors corporation will present its "Previews of Progress," non-technical science show, beginning at 2000.

Qualifications Stated For Atry. Survey Class

Enlisted men grade E-5 and above may now qualify for the Artillery Survey Advanced Course to be conducted this year.

Prerequisites for the course include qualification as an artillery survey specialist, a minimum physical profile serial 222211, normal color and depth perception, a standard score of 100 or higher on aptitude area II, credit for high school trigonometry or the equivalent and security clearance to include CONFIDENTIAL.

New 30th CO

Col. Wayne E. Downing

Colonel Downing Assumes Command Of 30th Engineers

A veteran pilot and authority on Army aircraft, Colonel Wayne E. Downing, will begin command of the 30th Engineer Group (Topo Survey) today succeeding Colonel William C. Holley who departed last week for a new assignment at the Pentagon.

Colonel Downing first came to the 30th Engineer Group in March, 1954, serving as commanding officer of the aviation command until December, 1954, when he was named Group Aviation Commander.

During his 25 years service with the Army, he saw action in major campaigns in World War II and the Korean conflict. In WWII, he participated in the Rhineland, Northern France, and Central Europe Campaigns.

Among the numerous decorations which Colonel Downing wears is the Bronze Star, the Legion of Merit and the Chummul Distinguished Military Service Medal.

Prior to his most recent activation with the Idaho National Guard, Colonel Downing was associated with Morrison-Knudsen General Contractors in his native Boise, Idaho.

Colonel Downing has just returned from Alaska where he commanded the 30th Engineer Group's Task Force Alaska which is currently engaged in photomapping operations above Arctic circle.

All of the survey and supporting Army aviation elements of the 30th Engineer Group are now in Alaska for their sixth consecutive season during which they have surveyed Western Alaska from the Aleutians Islands to the Arctic Ocean.

New Bill Would Pay Retiring Reserves TP

The DOD has asked Congress to approve travel and transportation allowances for reservists "to homes of selection" upon retirement or severance. This would be immediately following at least eight years of continuous active duty.

The bill would also authorize payment of such allowances to all members of the Armed Forces who are retired for physical disability or placed on the temporary disability retired list.

The Comptroller General has ruled that, although there is authority in present regulations to pay transportation and travel allowances to regulars, there is no such authority to pay reservists for similar travel.

Self Control!

Army's Antiaircraft Command Gets Broad Personnel Control

Washington (AFPS)—The Army's Antiaircraft Artillery Command has been given direct control of its personnel starting 1 Aug.

The new policy will give the AAA Command the same authority now held by the overseas commands and the Continental Army Command.

Technical developments and expansion of AAA operations in recent years have made it necessary for the AAA commander to control assignments, promotions and transfer of personnel, the Army said.

Such control is expected to improve the efficiency of the continental U.S. defense system. It should also improve the spirit of AAA units by providing their personnel with greater stability in assignments.

The AAA Command will assume control over enlisted promotions, intra-command transfers, overseas applications and the processing of category renewals for reserve officers on active duty.

Beginning in August, the command, which has its headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., will make its personnel requisitions directly to the Department of the Army.

From September, it will receive enlisted personnel and assign them directly, without going through the continental armies.

Enlisted promotions will be handled similarly. The AAA Command will receive an allocation of promotions each month and distribute them to its units. At present, AAA enlisted promotions come through the Army Command in whose area the individual units are stationed.

Personnel Advanced School Openings Set

Two sessions of the Advanced Personnel Management enlisted course, number 12-E-2 are set for late summer and early fall at the Adjutant General's school, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

Designed to train selected enlisted personnel to fill key supervisory positions in the Army personnel system, the course has prerequisites including grade E-5 or above, a 716.6 of 716.2 MOS, a standard score of 110 or higher on aptitude area CL and a high school graduate or the equivalent.

Reporting date for the first class is 5 August and the second is 9 September.

On-Post Classes For HS Graduation Commence 13 June

The summer session of on-post high school classes will commence 13 June, it was reported this week by the Post Education Center. Offered in conjunction with San Francisco Public Schools for a high school diploma, the classes include mathematics, U. S. History and Constitution, general science, and English. Classes meet for eight weeks and these same four courses will be offered again in September. A person who completes one course in the summer session will have only three courses to complete in the fall to meet the residence requirements for a San Francisco High School Diploma.

In addition to the residence course requirements, candidates for high school diplomas must successfully complete the High School GED test battery. Study of the four courses will provide adequate background for the High School GED tests.

Currently, 19 enlisted men are candidates for a San Francisco High School Diploma in June pending successful completion of the four courses, and the GED test battery. Over 100 other enlisted men in the past have obtained high school diplomas through the Post Education Center's on-post classes and GED test program. Local personnel interested in the program may contact the Post Education Center, Building 117.

Duty Free Imports

The House has approved a bill to make permanent the exemption of servicemen overseas from having to pay import duties on many of the items they ship home. The bill was sponsored by Rep. Jere Cooper (D-Tenn.) and now goes to the Senate.

Wyman

commanded Exercise SURFBOARD at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation in California. This exercise required an amphibious landing at San Simeon for entire regimental combat teams in order to seize an inland objective.

Since the beginning of 1955, the Sixth Army Commander has supervised the activities at Camp Desert Rock, Nevada, where thousands of troops of all the armed services were indoctrinated during the recent atomic tests.

This was followed by a maneuver employing over 25,000 troops at Yakima Firing Center, Wash., to test the use of new tactical concepts developed under the general's direction.

In these maneuvers and in others conducted in the Sixth Army since General Wyman assumed command, a maneuver enemy, the "Aggressor," has been included. In 1946, when he was assigned as an assistant chief of staff at Headquarters, Army Ground Forces, the general originated and introduced the concept of this mythical, standardized enemy force against which all Army tactical forces now pit themselves in field maneuver problems.

CONARC is an Army Group type headquarters primarily concerned with training and technical operations and with relatively few administrative responsibilities. It was established to provide for effective direction of the Continental Armies to limit the number of commanders reporting directly to the Chief of Staff and to permit operation of the six Armies and MDW as decentralized activities of the Army.

General Wyman has commanded the Sixth Army since March, 1954. He succeeded Lieutenant General Joseph M. Swing.

It's Stretching A Point

COMBINE AND SHAKE WELL and the outcome is a white fluffy mass of synthetic rubber that looks like over-active gingerale. Actually, only 60 seconds is required to build this synthetic and the next step could be the front tire of your car. This is but one of the fascinating experiments which will be presented at the General Motors dramatic non-technical science show, "Previews of Progress," which will be given at the Presidio Service club Tuesday at 2000.

Wealth of Wizardry!

"Previews of Progress," Show At Presidio Service Club

"Previews of Progress," a dramatic, non-technical science show sponsored by General Motors corporation, will be shown at the Presidio Service club Tuesday, beginning at 2000.

Witnessed by millions of Americans, "Previews of Progress" will graphically present many of the most recent developments in scientific research which contribute to a more enjoyable and comfortable life.

For instance, modern application of jet propulsion will be illustrated in two ways. A miniature jet engine, operating on the same principle as the German V-1 buzz bomb, will be placed in operation after being anchored in place. The blast of its high pressure flame creates a roar that fills the room.

Then models of a Douglas Sky-streak fighter plane and V-2 rocket will be driven at high speed the entire length of the room, propelled by tiny but powerful jets of compressed gas. And a replica of Hero's aeolipile of 200 B.C., the world's first known jet engine, will be on display.

A bottle with a dual personality will also be demonstrated. Used first to pound a nail into a piece of wood, it is next shattered by dropping into it a small piece of abrasive material.

But the experiment that compares with any feat of magic is the manufacture of synthetic rubber. The demonstrator merely pours two liquids into a pop bottle and shakes. In 60 seconds, out jumps a large ball of white fluffy rubber, 12 to 15 times the volume of the bottle which contained it!

Microwaves that wiggle through the air at the rate of 10 billion a second and carry piggy-back thousands of telephone messages and several TV programs, at the same time, are also to be demonstrated.

C. L. McCuen, vice-president in charge of General Motors Research Laboratories says, "the pursuit of scientific knowledge is a search that never ends. 'Previews of Progress,' dramatizes this process in an unusual stage presentation that provides a glimpse into the workings of men in a competitive society."

Ft. Baker Service Club in Hawaii Shift During June

The Fort Baker Service club is on a South Pacific holiday this month.

You, too, can vacation in the land of leis and palm trees.

Already two of the big parties have been held. "Aloha U.S.A." was held on 7 June when the boat sailed, and the "Beachcombers Ball" was held Tuesday of this week.

But there is much more to come.

Come next Tuesday, there will be a South Seas Festival featuring native dancers and authentic island refreshments. Festivities will get underway about 2030 hours.

The payoff comes on Tuesday, 28 June, at the Ship Wreck dance. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. The theme—and this is important—"How You Would Look When The Ship Went Down!"

So if you've always wanted to be an admiral with a spyglass—what better time??

Other regularly scheduled activities; crafts, tournaments, square dances and movies, will continue to be held throughout the month, having been shifted to the islands previously to be in readiness for you.

Celebration in S.F.!

UN's Tenth Anniversary Set As Next Information Subject

A timely discussion of the United Nations, which will convene at a tenth anniversary commemorative session in San Francisco during the week of 19-26 June, will be featured at the troop information conference next week.

In the conference, it will be pointed out that the world scene is not the same as it was when the Conference on International Organization met a decade ago. Today, there is less unity of purpose toward peace than existed at the end of World War II.

The United Nations has not only survived these very difficult years, but it has grown in stature with sixty nations now represented in the General Assembly.

The declared business of the San Francisco Conference ten years ago was to chart a course for peace. The historic conference also decided on the establishment of the International Court of Justice whose function is to decide on disputes between nations on the basis of international law.

The troop conference will discuss the fact that the UN flag was fought under by sixteen member nations and the Republic of Korea in the attempt to maintain international peace. This was an example to the premise of the UN: that nations will work collectively to promote a free world.

It will also be emphasized that through discussion in the UN units, many international disputes have been settled or eased. Two unanimous decisions of the General Assembly in 1954 brought more hope toward UN goals.

One was a fresh attempt by the powers to find some road to disarmament. The second was the establishment of an International Atomic Energy Agency within the UN to spread peaceful benefits of atomic energy throughout the world. This plan stemmed from President Eisenhower's speech to the Assembly in 1953 that proposed the giving of atomic material by the powers involved to such an agency.

Other facets of the United Nations operations such as the Economic Commission for the Far East, Europe, and Latin America, the International Labor Organization, the Food and Agriculture Organization, the International Civil Aviation Organization and UNESCO will be presented during next week's troop information conferences.

Courts Sizzle As Net Tourney Burns Into Finals Next Week

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Writer

One of the most bitterly fought Post Tennis Tournaments in recent seasons is drawing to a close at the storied Presidio Infantry Terrace Tennis Courts, with prospects for next week's finals looming brightly on the horizon.

Competition is especially keen as top players are slated for action in the forthcoming Sixth Army Central Division Tournament, being held from 6-9 July here at the Presidio. Winners from the Central Division go to the All-Sixth Army Finals at Madigan Hospital, Washington in late July.

From there the action shifts to the All-Army Finals being held this year by the Second Army from the first to the fifth of August.

Action centered on players from a variety of units on the post, from a private in an AAA group all the way to a Headquarters, Sixth Army, Staff Officer.

The leading match for the top spot in the winners bracket during this week's action was Tuesday's bitterly contested match between M/Sgt. Velarde and Schmutz with Velarde emerging victorious by the score of 5-7, 6-4, 6-2. From here Velarde will meet the winner of the Michaels vs. Lt. Ketter or Blom game.

This pits the winner of both the winners and losers flights together for the Post Championship. There is no such thing as a favorite for on any one day anyone of these talented netsmen is capable of an upset.

Early action in the doubles was featured by the win of Velarde-Michaels over the 30th Engineers' Lt. Snowden and Lt. Wright.

Scores for some of the closer matches follow: Schmutz over Blom, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3; Fleming over Fox, 6-4, 7-5; Velarde over Sage, 6-2, 6-4; and Davis, 6-2, 6-2; Ketter over Michaels, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2; Fox over Berry, 6-4, 6-2; Blom over Schwartz, 6-3, 9-7 and Fox, 6-2, 8-6; Michaels over Fleming, 7-5, 6-3 and Sage 4-6, 7-5, 10-8.

LAH Fencers Cross Blades In U. S. Nationals In New York

The first military fencing team ever to come from the Sixth Army area, and possibly the first team of its kind in the Army, entered the U. S. National Fencing Championships in New York this week. Letterman Army Hospital's Pacific Coast champion blade men began fencing in New York yesterday in the nine-day tourney, 9-17 June.

Yankee Hurler Takes Sports Post at Lowry

Lt. Loyal (Gene) Carlson, property of the New York Yankees' organization, is the new athletic officer at Lowry AFB. The 22-year-old righthander is pitching for the Air Base Group in Lowry's eight-team Group Baseball League. In his first start, Carlson fanned nine and walked two during five frames while yielding four runs and five hits. He also socked two safeties in three trips and batted in two runs. Carlson won 11 games and lost five for Boise (Pioneer) in 1953.

Representing the local garrison as part of the contingent from the Northern California division, Amateur Fencing League of America, are Col. Laurence Brownlee, Sgt. Herb Rhodes and Cpl. Jose Tafoya.

The three form the top echelon of the LAH foil team and have won honors in numerous Bay Area and state-wide blade competitions for the last two years.

Colonel Brownlee is a 29-year veteran in the art of the foil. He began his fencing as a cadet at West Point and has kept up the sport throughout his career in the Army.

Rhodes and Tafoya have been fencing for a comparatively short time and have studied the exact science of the foil with Letterman's volunteer coach, Bill O'Brien. O'Brien, himself, has fenced in world-wide competitions and is a former national champion.

The Letterman fencing team, now only two years old, has continually faced competition of national calibre and has been successful enough to qualify for the Nationals. They have fenced locally in almost all of the Northern California division AFLA events and have engaged in matches with colleges and universities in the Bay Area.

The local blademen have been asked to participate in meets as far distant as the state of Washington. They have also engaged in fund-raising drives and exhibitions for the U. S. Olympic Fund as well as in local functions.

Bolling AFB in Washington, D. C., has a new athletic director. He's George Makris, former Michigan State boxing coach.

TROPHY WINNERS from the Mixed League Winter Tournament were presented with their awards recently by Lt. Herbert Youngdahl, Post Special Services Officer, in a ceremony at the Presidio Service Club. First place in the league's winter bowling was taken by the King Pins and the Lofters rolled in for second. Mrs. Doretta Youngdahl rolled off women's high game and high series and V. Vincent took high series and high average for the men. Ted Yoshino won men's high game honors.

She's Off!

MARY BOYERS—One of the two women on Presidio's swimming team—takes off in a fast start to backstroke a lap. The local garrison swimmers are now in their fourth week of official training and swim 1700 yards a day. Within two weeks they will be swimming 2500 yards a day and the figure will be upped to 3000 before the Sixth Army meet. The Presidio swimmers work out daily in the Letterman Army Hospital Pool.

Annual Golf Tournament Swings Into Play Here For Locals, 21-24 June

Presidio's annual Golf Tournament will swing under way here this month, 21-24 June. The meet will be an open tournament to military personnel of the Presidio with qualification set at 18 holes in 87 or under. The competition will run 72 holes. A meeting for all participants is planned on 21 June at 0800 hours in bldg. 122.

Winners in the Post matches will represent Presidio in the Sixth Army Golf Tournament, 18-22 July. The Command competition will be played on the new course at Fort Ord. Sixth Army winners will go on into the All-Army meet, hosted by Second Army, 1-5 August.

In last year's tourney, Presidarian Dick Yost swung through four sizzling days of under-par golf to take the tournament 22 strokes under his nearest competitor. Lt. Col. Thomas Ward finished second, and former divot captain Ray Steelsmith swung in 11 strokes over Ward for third.

Going into the 1954 Sixth Army matches, Yost took second for Presidio, three strokes over Bob Whisman of Fort Lewis. Ward scored heavily for top spot in the Senior match division and both went East for the All-Army Tournament.

On the All-Army links, Yost again came through with a tie for second and Ward placed in the Senior division.

WACs Lose!

Presidio's WAC Softball team met its first defeat of the season this week at the hands of the Parks AFB WAFs, 15-9. The local girls held the fliers to a tie in the seventh and the rivals came up with a six-run scoring spree in the eighth to finish off the WACs. Gavigan pitched for the Presidiennes and gave 20 hits and no walks. Neal hurled for the Parks WAFs.

Notables Honor Little League Park Dedication Here

Presidio's Little League field was dedicated in the first Little League game of the season this week to the late M Sgt. Carus Hicks. His widow made the dedication in a ceremony which included Major General William F. Dean, deputy commander, Sixth Army; Major General Richard Prather, Sixth Army chief of staff; Brigadier General Claude Burbach, chief, CMD, and Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, Presidio of San Francisco.

General Dean threw the first pitch, a perfect strike, at Hicks Field to officially open the field and the Little League's first season at the Presidio. In the opening-day double header, the Cards smashed the Yanks, 22-12, and the Cubs belted a five to one victory over the Giants.

M Sgt. Carus Hicks, to whom the field was dedicated, had long been well known at the Presidio for his tireless activity in youth groups. He was long associated with the Cub Scouts here and when Little League was formed, stepped in to assist in any way he could. He was known by every boy on the Presidio as a man who was always ready to lend a helping hand.

M Sgt. Hicks, who passed away on 30 May, was a school principal before his tour of duty in the U. S. Army. He was principal of the High School which was removed for the installation of the Oak Ridge atomic energy center.

Also present for the dedication of Hicks Field were Jerry Donovan, vice-president of the Pacific Coast League; Al Flores, chief scout for the San Francisco Seals, and the representative of the National Headquarters of Little League.

Charlie Capazzoli On Fort Mac Team

Fort MacArthur, Calif. — Pvt. Charlie Capazzoli, present American record-holder for the three-mile run and intercollegiate champion in the two-mile and cross-country, has joined the Fort Mac track team.

What with Capazzoli, famed miler Pvt. Fred Dwyer and sprinter Pvt. Lang Stanley, Fort Mac has the nucleus for a fine cinder squad.

Gloves a Star

Andy Carey, New York Yankee third baseman, hugs his fiancée, actress Lucy Marlowe, after they announced their engagement at a Catskill Mountain resort. The couple plan to be married next fall after the baseball season. Both are natives of California—Miss Marlowe of Hollywood, and Carey of Alameda. Her latest movie is "A Star Is Born."

IT'S A HIT! And Don Duke smashes one deep into left field for the Red Raiders in this week's diamond test with the Alameda Hellcats. The local garrison lost the non-League game by a run, ten to nine. Sunday afternoon, Presidio will host the Jefferson semi-contingent at 1330 hours on the Fort Scott Field. Next week the Raiders travel to Fort Ord to play two non-League games with the Warriors.

One win, one defeat marked the scorebooks this week for the Presidio soldier horsehiders as they knocked out a 4-3 BAAF League victory over Parks AFB and took a non-League drubbing, 10-9, from the Alameda Hellcats. The Raiders met Two-Rock Ranch yesterday in their third League game of the year, and will bat against the Jefferson semipro on Sunday at the Fort Scott Field at 1330 hours.

6th Army Results

Presidio's Jim Guimarin ran first in the 440 hurdles in the Sixth Army Track and Field Meet at Compton, California, this week. Guimarin finished several yards ahead of Lang Stanley of Fort MacArthur, a well-known half-miler who started fast but tapered his stride at the finish. Guimarin's winning time was 59.9 seconds. Team standings at the end of the first five final events placed Fort Ord ahead with 26 points, Fort MacArthur second with 15, and Presidio third with seven.

Baseball Games Aired For Over Seas Troops Every Day By AFRTS

Los Angeles (AFPS) — The Armed Forces Radio and Television Service here provides baseball-loving American servicemen in the Far East and the Pacific with two daily play-by-play short-wave broadcasts of the season's best baseball games.

AFRTS-Los Angeles, which began beaming exhibition games across the Pacific 19 Mar., provides a one-hour and 55 minute show to its AFRTS stations and individual listeners at 0305-0500 GMT and 1005-1200 GMT.

Most of the games aired by AFRTS-Los Angeles are rebroadcasts of the Mutual Broadcasting System's Game of the Day series which are broadcast from major league ball parks.

Rafer Johnson, decathlon champion in the recent Pan-American Games, is in the AFROTC at UCLA.

Harry Sutfin pitched for the Red Raiders against Parks AFB in his last appearance with the local garrison before his discharge. He gave five hits and two walks and struck out ten. Lee, hurling for the flyers, gave five hits with no walks, and struck out three.

Opening the game at the plate for the locals, Bryant struck out, Duke grounded out to short stop, and Miyahara got on on a single. Hendrickson hit a single, then Shelstad hit a one-bagger, sending Miyahara across the plate for the first run. Rubcic flied out, ending the inning.

The second was a short inning for the soldiers, as Aires and Ynested flied out and Sutfin grounded out to second. In the third, Bryant took first on an error, then was sacrificed at second on Duke's one-bagger. Miyahara struck out and Hendrickson finished the period grounding out to short stop.

In the fourth, Shelstad flied out and Rubcic stepped up to belt out a double. Aires got on base on an error which allowed Rubcic to core. Ynested singled, then Sutfin sacrificed him at second with Aires coming in on the sacrifice. Bryant closed the inning with a fly out.

Duke got on first on an error to open the fifth, then Miyahara and Hendrickson flied out. Shelstad got on on another error and was thrown out on a steal, but Duke scored on the out.

In the final inning, Rubcic flied out, Aires flied out, and Ynested got on on an error. Sutfin struck out, ending the inning.

Bob Pool took the mound for Presidio against the Hellcats this week and began his season with seven hits, six walks, and four strike-outs. Nietzling relieved him in the sixth to give two hits and two walks and strike out three.

Navy hurler Scott of Alameda gave up ten hits to the Raiders and allowed seven walks, but his fast ball struck out ten soldiers.

The Army was scoreless in the first, with three fly-outs and one walk. The second was a shut-out on eleven pitches, as Scott hit his peak for Alameda. In the third, however, the Raiders were back in the game.

ant sacrificed him at second on a fielder's choice, then Duke singled. Miyahara came up to smash a homer over the left field fence and put the locals back with three runs. Shelstad walked, then Rubcic flied out.

In the fourth, Aires batted a single and Ynested sacrificed him on a fielder's choice. Ruyle walked and Pool belted a single to bring in Ynested. Bryant hit into a double play to retire the side.

Duke opened the fifth with a single, then Miyahara flied out to right field. Shelstad singled and scored Duke, then Rubcic and Aires flied out.

In the sixth, Ynested walked and Jackson singled to put two men on for the Raiders. Nietzling struck out then Bryant singled to bring in both runs. Duke struck out and Bryant was thrown out on a steal.

Miyahara walked in the seventh and Shelstad sacrificed him on a fielder's choice. Rubcic struck out and Aires flied out to leave the Army scoreless for the inning.

In the eighth and final inning the locals made a strong try but made only two runs, to lose the game by one. Ynested struck out, Jackson singled, then Mitchell struck out. Bryant knocked a double, and Duke got on on an error scoring two. Miyahara walked, and Shelstad ended the game with a strike-out.

CHECK THAT FROSTING: Among many fancy cakes commemorating the Army's 180th year this week at local mess halls is the Company E, Det. 1, 6002 S.U. one above decorated in an Old Glory motif. To add a woman's touch to the celebration, Pfc. Pat Shorey of the WAC detachment was called in to make the first cut on the colorful pastry. She's surrounded by some of the unit's mess personnel who are, from left to right: Sfc. Alvin R. Bagley, Pfc. Cecil Dunlap, and Pvt. John Williams. Cake was baked and decorated by Cpl. Juan Pascual.

Birthday Observance!

Hundreds See Anniversary Parade, Ceremony on Presidio

In one of the largest parades held recently on the Presidio, military personnel saluted the 180th birthday anniversary of the Army Tuesday with the pomp and ceremony befitting the occasion.

Prior to the morning parade, during which former Pfc. James S. Weaver, 505th Military Police battalion, was commissioned into the Chaplain Corps, weapons competitions were held before the bleachers on the Main Parade ground.

Mess halls were resplendent with turkey dinners and birthday cakes for the noon meal, following which all military personnel that could be excused from other essential duty were given the remainder of the day off.

In the competitions, members of the 505th MP battalion, commanded by Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, demonstrated field stripping and assembling of the 45 caliber pistol. First place winner was Cpl. Eugene C. Roux, A Company, in 35.8 seconds. Second place was won by Sfc. Edwin E. Bowe, also of A Company, 36.3 seconds, and third place, Sgt. Vincent M. DellaJacono, A Company, 40 seconds.

Field stripping of the M-1 rifle in charge of Company A, the Honor Guard, commanded by Captain Eugene J. Gasior, followed. Winners in this event were Sfc. Robert A. Schultz, C Company, 505th MP battalion, first place at one minute, 12 seconds, Pvt. Rob-

Promotions!

The Army has allocated 117,250 enlisted promotions for June, the highest monthly quota since May 1954 when 192,500 were made.

Here is the breakdown by rank:

Private first class, 42,000; corporal, 66,000; sergeant, 8,000; sergeant first class, 1,100, and master sergeant, 150.

New Program!

Extended Duty Plans Ready For Army Reserve Officers

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has put into effect its long-range active duty program for reserve officers, which gives greater assurance to capable reservists that they will remain on active duty until ready for retirement.

The program eliminates the present practice of periodic renewals of category commitments for EAD. Details of the program are listed in AR 135-215 and DA Circular 135-6, which are now being distributed.

The Army emphasized that most reserve officers on active duty are expected to qualify for EAD under the new program.

Effective immediately, the Army stated, officer requests to remain on EAD must be submitted not earlier than eight months nor later than three months before the expiration of their current category commitment.

Officers whose commitments expire after 1 January 1957, have been given the option of making advance requests for active duty in accordance with a schedule listed in DA Circular 135-6.

Those accepted for EAD under this program may be relieved from active duty for five reasons:

1. Voluntary request.
2. Forced reductions in Army strength.
3. Promotion passover.
4. Failure to meet acceptable standards of efficiency or conduct (annual screening similar to that now conducted for Regular officers).
5. Qualification for retirement.

To provide added security in the event of involuntary release, the Army is seeking legislation to provide readjustment pay for reserve officers released from active duty prior to retirement.

It's Official!

New CG Has Had Outstanding Staff, Combat Assignments

Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens has announced the assignment of Major General Robert Nichols Young to succeed Lieutenant General W. G. Wyman as commanding general of the Sixth Army.

The former assistant and deputy assistant chief of staff for personnel at Department of the Army has at the same time been nominated for three-star rank by President Eisenhower.

Long an Army trouble shooter, General Young recently garnered high military and civilian praise for outstanding staff work in the successful streamlining of Army personnel planning. He has more recently been serving as deputy chief of staff for special projects with G-1.

Prior to his Washington assignment in January 1953, General Young was commanding general of the Infantry Center and School at Fort Benning, Georgia. He had previously commanded the Second Infantry Division in Korea from September 1951 until his Infantry Center assignment.

General Young is a native of Washington, D. C., and was graduated with a BA degree from the University of Maryland. He was commissioned in the Infantry Reserves in 1922, receiving a Regular Army commission in January of 1923.

Following a tour of duty with the 65th Infantry Division in Puerto Rico, he returned to the University of Maryland as Profes-

Alma Mater!

President's Visit Highlights June Week at U.S. Military Academy

West Point (AFPS)—President Eisenhower returned to his alma mater, the Military Academy, for a three-day visit as just one of the old grads this month. The occasion was the June commencement exercises and a reunion of the chief executive's own Class of 1915.

Along with his classmates, the President took his place in the ranks of the annual alumni parade. Later, he declined a place on the dais to sit with old school friends at an alumni luncheon.

President Eisenhower's class is one of the most illustrious in Academy history. Sixty of 164 members became generals, among them General of the Army Omar Bradley and Generals Joseph T. McNarney and James A. Van Fleet.

After taking the salute at two reviews of the 2,400-man cadet corps, President Eisenhower told them they should train to be prepared for "leading toward peace as well as for the tasks of war."

"Your enduring contribution to America may well be at the council table far removed from war," he said.

The President presented the fifth annual Eisenhower Award for excellence in military psychology and leadership to Cadet Capt. Delbert H. Jacobs of Rochester, N. Y.

He also took advantage of a traditional privilege of chiefs of state who visit West Point. He ordered all minor punishments being administered for infractions of the rules to be wiped from the books.

The chief executive's visit marked only the second occasion in ### Class Leader!

Cadet First Captain Lee D. Olvey was graduated at the head of his class this month at West Point. Olvey, who took both top military and academic honors among his 470 classmates, was awarded a two-year scholarship to England's famous Oxford University. Olvey's achievement has been duplicated only about five times in West Point history, by General Douglas MacArthur among others. He hails from Hinesville, Ga.

there's NO other way!

Sure. It's been a devil of a day and the only place you wish to go is away. But you've just received the right turn signal, either because you indicated to the 505th MP at the Presidio intersection that you'd like to turn right, or because he'd like you to turn right for traffic control reasons. When you get the "right turn" signal that's the only way to turn if you are going to be on the right side of safety and, incidentally, maintain the MP's good graces. Obey the MP's precise signals and you're bound to get away a lot quicker and just a bit more than a lot safer.

Next Week!

Troop Conference Features Army's History, Organization

The Army's mission and history as well as the short history of the Sixth Army is slated for discussion at the Troop Information Conferences next week.

Making it the senior service in the Armed Forces, the Continental Army was created 14 June, 1775, with George Washington named commander-in-chief.

Throughout America's history, the Army has made yeoman contributions in many fields of national endeavor, including education, exploration, maintenance of domestic order, government, diplomacy, engineering, sanitation, transportation, medicine, communication, and aviation.

Pre-eminent in the Army's varied roles throughout the nation's history is its role as an instrument of force, and thus a defender and keeper of the national peace.

Any mission which is given to the Army is mainly concerned with success in battle in the defense of the nation. The Army's task is to defeat the enemy's land forces, seize, occupy, and carry on the primary mission of victory in land combat.

Peacetime missions directly connected with national defense are directed at the maintenance of combat-ready active and reserve units, the research and development of ground warfare technology, the keeping of ground forces overseas for protection of American bases and strategic land areas, and the furnishing of allies with military advice and assistance.

Structurally, the Army is controlled by the people through the President and the Congress. The Department of Defense is the executive administrative department which governs the Army as well as the other services. The Department of the Army is one of three military departments within the Department of Defense.

Top strategic planning group for all Armed forces is the joint chiefs of staff. The Armed Forces Policy Committee, composed of the secretaries of the three military departments and the joint chiefs of staff, advise the Secretary of Defense on combined civilian and military policies.

The Sixth Army is one of the continental Army's major commands and has responsibility for providing ground defense of the Pacific Coast. It was a major command in the Pacific during WWII with an outstanding record of military successes contributing to the defeat of Japan.

Established early in 1943 at the request of General Douglas MacArthur to spearhead the return to the Philippines, the Sixth Army was reactivated with headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco in 1946.

General Young

sor of Military Science and Tactics.

In September 1932, General Young entered the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., and was graduated the following May. In August 1933 he entered the Signal School at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. Upon graduation the following June he was assigned to Fort Benning where he served with the 24th Infantry and served as an instructor at the Infantry School. He was named assistant secretary of the Infantry School in February 1937. The following August he entered the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, from which he was graduated in June 1938.

General Young went to Hawaii in August 1938 to become assistant operations officer of Schofield Barracks. He was transferred to the 27th Infantry at that post in July 1939, remaining there until October 1940, when he became aide to Major General Walter C. Short, commanding general of I Corps at Columbia, South Carolina.

In January 1941 he was assigned to the Real Estate Section of the Services and Supply in Washington, D. C. The following June he became assistant to the Secretary of the War Department General Staff in Washington, D. C. From September of 1942 to March 1943, he was secretary of the War Department General Staff and was then named assistant commander of the 70th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington.

In October of 1944, General Young joined the Sixth Army Group in the North African theater and later that month was named acting assistant commander of the Third Infantry Division in the European theater. In January 1945 he was appointed assistant commander of the Third Infantry Division.

In July 1945, General Young assumed command of the Military District of Washington, D. C. A year later he was named commandant of the School of Combined Arms of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth and became an instructor at this college in June 1948.

In May 1949 he went to Fort Shafter, Hawaii, where he was chief of staff of the U. S. Army in the Pacific until July 1950. In September 1950 he was designated assistant commander of the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

General Young's decorations include the Silver Star for gallantry in action on 30 January, 1945, and a Purple Heart for wounds received during this action. He holds a Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and a Distinguished Service Medal. All decorations were won during combat assignments.

Liaison Role in Civil Defense Alert Played By Sixth Army Group

Sixth Army installations in the eight western states participated this week in a nationwide civil defense exercise.

During "Operation Alert 1955," senior staff officers from Sixth Army Headquarters were on liaison duty at the headquarters of Region 7, Federal Civil Defense Administration, in Santa Rosa and other civil defense headquarters.

Taking an active part in the play of the exercise were Sixth Army signal, medical, quartermaster and engineer units alerted to meet anticipated civil defense requests for supplies, communication and evacuation facilities.

Congress Studies!

New 'Benefits Act' Could Prove Security Boon to Career Soldier

Washington (AFPS)—A proposal to do away with $10,000 government life insurance for servicemen and future veterans, except disabled ex-servicemen, and substitute greater social security benefits is under study in Congress.

The new plan is designed particularly to benefit career men. Their loss of present insurance rights would be made up and, in cases of longer service, more than compensated for by VA and social security benefits. A Defense Department official said the plan was the best one possible to equalize survivor benefits throughout the Armed Forces.

The proposal would revamp the present Survivor Benefits Act, bringing all servicemen under the Social Security program for their entire period of active duty.

Present holders of National Service or U. S. Government Life Insurance would keep their policies. But, if the new plan is adopted, no further policies would be issued, either to servicemen or veterans. The only exceptions would be ex-servicemen with disabilities. They would be allowed one year after leaving service to apply for NSLI coverage.

Washington (AFPS)—Here are examples of the effects of proposed revision of the Survivor Benefit Act. A serviceman's widow without children would receive a lifetime pension ranging from $112 to $262 monthly depending on her husband's rank or grade.

Widows of E-1s would receive $112 while those of E-7s would be entitled to $139. Widows of warrant officers would receive pensions ranging from $145 to $178. Officers' widows' pensions would start at $134 a month. Widows of two star officers and higher would be entitled to $262 monthly.

At present, all widows of regular servicemen without children receive $165.50 a month for 10 years but less than half that amount thereafter. Government insurance payments of $92.50 monthly expire after 10 years, leaving the widow only the Veterans Administration pension of $70.

The plan resulted from several months' study by the House Select Committee on Survivor Benefits and a joint military task force. Open hearings are scheduled to be held before the committee.

Under the scheme, a serviceman's social security benefits would be calculated from his base pay, up to a maximum of $350 monthly. Benefits now are based on a monthly wage credit of $160 for all servicemen, regardless of what they actually are paid.

At present, members of the Armed Forces are not given social security coverage until they have been in service 18 months. This would be changed under the new proposal to begin coverage from the day active duty begins.

Social security credits are now lost on leaving the Service. They would be retained under the projected plan.

The plan would also make a change in the payments made by the Veterans Administration to servicemen's survivors. The size of VA payments would depend on the grade or rank of the deceased. At present, they are the same for all.

No further distinction would be made between survivors of regulars and reservists. Present laws provide higher benefits for dependents of reservists who die in peacetime than for their regular counterparts.

Trailer Pay!

Washington (AFPS) — The Defense Department's Joint Travel and Per Diem Committee has approved the payment of trailer allowances for military personnel.

The allowances, included as an amendment to the recent pay bill, will be retroactive to 1 April. They will be put into effect in the near future by the various service secretaries.

Servicemen will be paid 20 cents a mile if their trailers are hauled by commercial movers. They will be allowed 10 cents a mile if they themselves drive their trailers to their new duty stations.

Bond Savings Up But Drive Needs More Participation

Incomplete reports from Headquarters Sixth Army United States Savings Bond campaign leaders show that the first 17 days of the drive has netted a 12 per cent increase in military bond allotments and a 13 per cent rise in civilian payroll bond purchases.

Although the figures show a marked up-swing in the rate of payroll bond savers, campaign leaders hinted that the June drive must be stepped-up if the 65 per cent participation goals are to be met by termination of the initial effort which ends the last of the month.

To meet goals of the Sixth Army Area drive a further increase of more than 25 per cent participation is needed.

Because the campaign which is aimed at continuous payroll savings, cash sales of U.S. Savings Bonds do not count toward filling the campaign target.

Military personnel may have an allotment as small as $6.25 for bond purchases each month and civilians may have as little as $3.75 deducted from their bi-monthly pay checks.

The Star-Presidian

Serving Those Who Serve A Nation!

The Star-Presidian is an authorized dual purpose weekly publication published by and for the military personnel of the Sixth Army Headquarters and the Presidio of San Francisco, California, under the supervision of the Post Troop Information and Education Office. News, features, photographic and art material are solicited from military personnel. Publication depends on available space and general interest value as judged by the staff. No payment will be made. Every effort will be made to return rejected material but no responsibility can be assumed beyond the exercise of due care in expediting return.

Birthday Highlight!

NEWLY COMMISSIONED Chaplain (First Lieutenant) James S. Weaver, takes his first salute as an officer in company with Major General Richard G. Prather, Headquarters Sixth Army, who has just pinned on the silver bars in Army birthday ceremonies held on the Presidio parade grounds. A private first class in the 505th Military Police battalion prior to being commissioned, Chaplain Weaver was ordained a minister in the Presbyterian church, USA, last September, and since that time has served as assistant to the 505th Chaplain. Following Chaplain officer's basic officer course at Fort Slocumb, New York, Chaplain Weaver will be assigned at Fort Lewis, Washington.

Quick Transition!

Commission in Chaplain Corps Given Former 505th Soldier

Highlighting the Army Day observances on the Presidio Tuesday was the commissioning to the rank of first lieutenant of former Pfc. James S. Weaver, 505th Military Police battalion.

Before approximately 1,000 Presidio troops and a throng of spectators, including the new Chaplain's mother, Major General Richard G. Prather, in one of his last official acts before leaving the Presidio for his new assignment, pinned the silver bars to Lieutenant Weaver's shoulders. He then stood at attention with General Prather as the parade passed in review.

Following the ceremony, dozens of persons including his commanding officer, Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, came forward to congratulate the new lieutenant. His commissioning to the Chaplain Corps from the ranks is believed to be the first of its kind ever held.

Lt. Weaver has left for the East where he will attend Chaplain officers' basic course, Fort Slocumb, New York, following which he will be assigned for duty as a Chaplain with the 5th Infantry Regiment, Fort Lewis, Washington.

He was ordained by the Presbyterian Church, USA, last September, and at that time applied for a commission in the Army Chaplain Corps. For the past nine months he has been serving as assistant to the Chaplain of the 505th MP battalion.

The lieutenant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. S. Weaver of Alexandria, Virginia. His father is economic advisor to the chief counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D. C.

Graduating from the University of Virginia in 1950, Lt. Weaver received his degree in divinity from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1953 and throughout that summer served as chaplain intern at Austin State hospital, Austin, Texas.

He entered the Army as a private in November 1953, and following training and leadership school at Camp Gordon, Georgia, was assigned to the 505th MP battalion on the Presidio in June 1954.

Ten Presidio Men To Get High School Diplomas Monday

Goals somehow thwarted during civilian life will be attained by 10 local servicemen as they walk to the podium at the San Francisco Board of Education Building next Monday afternoon and receive high school diplomas earned by participation in the post education center's high school program.

A straight "A" average maintained by Sfc. Paul D. Wolfe resulted in selection of the local NCO as leader of the "Pledge of Allegiance," a position in the adult school graduation banquet similar to that of a valedictorian in standard graduation ceremonies.

To earn the coveted parchments, all 10 military graduates-elect successfully completed the Army's GED high school qualification test series and attended classes on-post given by the San Francisco Unified School System. The subjects included history, mathematics, English and general science.

Slated to receive diplomas at the banquet are: Pvt. Thomas E. Denohue, Cpl. James P. Wagner, and Cpl. W. Saxon of the 521st Engineer Company; Sgt. Max Gutierrez, Sgt. Wm. T. Satele, and Pvt. Dean Smith of Detachment 1, 6002 SU; M/Sgt. Hughes L. Turner, and Sfc. Paul D. Wolfe, of Headquarters Company, Sixth Army; Sgt. Herbert M. Gray of 56th MRU and A/1c Christian Eash of Detachment 6, 6400 SU.

On hand as spokesmen for the Army's education program at the Presidio will be Maj. Earle K. Stewart, post T.I.&E. officer, and Mr. Ralph L. McElroy, post education center director.

Laurels Pile Up!

Presidio's Crack Drill Team Wins Santa Maria Contest

Before 35,000 spectators, Presidio's crack drill team, the Presidians, walked off with a pair of prize catches in one of California's most competitive drill and parade events, the annual BPO Elks No. 1538 Rodeo and Parade in Santa Maria, last week.

The 17-man precision drill team from the Honor Guard marched away with the first place trophy in the drill event, and continued its splurge of victory and returned to the post with the Grand Sweepstakes trophy tucked proudly under their well-tailored belts.

To add the handsome prizes to their thriving collection of trophies, the Presidians had to outclass the performances of more than 200 units and 700 entries in the yearly, four-hour parade.

Colonel Carl Lundquist, deputy post commander, officially presented the two gleaming silver trophies to Capt. Eugene J. Gasior, CO of the Honor Guard; 1st Lt. Robert A. Liday, platoon leader of the Presidians, and the team's drill master and platoon sergeant, Sgt. David Hackings, in a ceremony at post headquarters recently.

Shortly following the official presentation, it was announced that a congratulatory telegram was received by Sixth Army Commander, Lt. General W. G. Wyman, from Mr. L. I. Linman, chairman of the BPO of Elks No. 1538, Santa Clara and a member of the civilian advisory group of the Sixth Army.

Observation balloons were used by the Army as far back as 1862.

Wins Cash Award!

IDEA PAY-OFFS: Mr. Delbert O. Tanner, a Post Signal field maintenance employee was presented two cash awards by Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander. Mr. Tanner's suggestions and developments of signal maintenance implements netted him a total of $90 under the current civilian employees incentive program.

Incentive Dollars!

Helpful Ideas Bring Two Cash Awards To Inventive Maintenance Worker

Inventive tendencies combined with the new Civilian Employees Incentive Awards program has placed an extra $90 in the wallet of a post Signal Maintenance employee this week.

In a ceremony at the offices of Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, Mr. Delbert O. Tanner was presented $50 for one suggestion and an additional $40 for another.

The first award covered a maintenance fixture for adjusting tape pins on teletype transmitter-distributors. The fixture has been locally adopted and is currently in use throughout the Army establishment.

Second award came to the signal worker-innovator for his suggestion for a jig to resurface the commutator rings on the same machine, using a drill press as the source of power.

It's estimated that use of this tool will result in savings of 416 man-hours per year amounting to roughly $832.

Based on this estimate, an initial award of $40 was approved by the local Incentive Awards Committee and the suggestion has been forwarded to higher authorities for possible broader application throughout the Army area.

In the course of Mr. Tanner's employment at the Presidio he has submitted six suggestions. For these suggestions he has received altogether four initial awards and one additional cash award.

Two of the six suggestions are presently under consideration by the Local Incentive Awards Committee and another has been adopted locally and forwarded for possible Army-wide use.

If it is adopted Army-wide, it will result in an additional cash award.

ROK Chief of Staff On Three-Week Tour Of Army Community

General Chung Il Kwon, Chief of Staff of the Republic of Korea Army, arrived in San Francisco this week from the Far East for a three-week orientation visit at the invitation of General Matthew B. Ridgway, Chief of Staff, U.S. Army.

Full military honors were accorded General Chung at the Presidio early this week. General Chung presented Sixth Army Commander Lt. Gen. W. G. Wyman with a plaque in appreciation of his aid to the ROK army while commander of the IX Corps in Korea.

Accompanying the general were Major Gen. Lim Sun Ha, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, ROKA, and Major Kim Kyon Hi, Aide-de-Camp.

Also arriving in San Francisco this week were high ranking officers of the Japanese Ground Self Defense Force, who will visit several military installations in the United States under the auspices of the Mutual Defense Assistance Program.

The Japanese officers are: Major General Atsushi Masuda, Chief, Corps of Engineers, Ground Staff Office; Major General Shigekichi Osaki, Chief, Quartermaster Corps, Ground Staff Office; Major General Toshio Suzuki, Chief, Medical Corps, Ground Staff Office, and Colonel Kanetoshi Mashita, Infantry.

Crockett Wins Again!

BEST MESS. For the second time since the inception of the post monthly Best Mess competition, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 660th Engineer Battalion emerged victorious. Holding the Best Mess plaque shortly after presentation by Colonel Carl Lundquist, deputy post commander, is Sfc. Weston Remington and Capt. Davey B. Crockett, CO of the unit. Sgt. Remington received the award for the mess steward, Sfc. Willie Fulton, who is currently on TDY to the 30th Group's Task Force Alaska.

ONE OF THE MANY Signal facilities at Headquarters Sixth Army is the MARS radio station located atop Building 35. Here Colonel William James, acting Sixth Army Signal officer, receives a copy of a publication pertaining to MARS from SFC Clarence Rocu.

At the right is Sgt. Raymond W. Davis. All facets of the Signal Corps will be observing the 95th birthday anniversary of the corps on Tuesday, and facilities in Bldg. 35 will hold open house for military and civilian personnel here.

Newest Marvels in Field of Signal Brought to Front on 95th Anniversary

The Signal Corps is the world's greatest communication system.

And come Tuesday, it will be 95 years old.

Emphasis during the past year has been on research and development to devise communication systems with greater speed and capacities, and in advanced concepts in the use of radar.

A major accomplishment during the year was the activation of the Army Electronic Proving ground at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, erected to meet the urgent need for tests to establish communications and electronics systems to support the new concept of the Army in the field.

At Headquarters Sixth Army, the Signal Corps provides the Army commander with such Signal facilities as are needed to carry out his mission with uninterrupted precision.

Among the more interesting and involved projects in recent months has been Nike control-to-launcher sites, range communications, hospital remote dictating systems, nurses' visual-audio call systems, administrative telephone systems.

Others are microwave point-to-point and back up systems, special television systems, radio transmitter and receiver sites for ACAN, and the soon to be installed automatic tape relay system.

Operation of the ACAN (Army Command and Administrative Network), a world-wide telegraph system linking Army installations via a radio and wire tape relay network, is a massive function of the Army Signal Corps. The system interconnects at numerous points, of course, with Navy and Air Force tape relay systems.

The Sixth Army area portion of this vast world-wide network comprises the Sixth Army primary relay station at the Presidio, the Los Angeles Communication center, the Fort Douglas, Utah, minor relay station, the Fort Lewis, Washington, minor relay station and the associated major relay station operated by the Alaska Communications system, Seattle, Washington.

On Signal or Around the Clock with The Signal Corps

Reveille — Signal Corps wakes the soldier up.

Chow Call—Signal Corps tells them when to eat.

Drill Call

Sick Call

Chaplain's Call

Etc., etc.

Hospital Program Distribution System—Nurses Call System—Provides for the soldier when he is sick.

Attended Pay Stations — Puts him in touch with his family when he is homesick.

Signal Corps Training Films—Supplement his training courses.

Radio Control System — Keeps him in touch with his headquarters when he is in an official car.

Signal Corps Pictorial Films — Photograph him for identification purposes.

Signal Corps Maintenance Facilities—Maintain TV and radio sets in his service club.

Signal Corps Worldwide Telephone and Teletypewriter System—Keeps him in touch with his headquarters when he is on leave or elsewhere on official duty.

Taps — Another facility of the Signal Corps bugle call system. Puts the soldier to bed at night and while he sleeps the Signal Corps fire alarm system keeps the soldier and his property safe for the night.

The Alaska system is under the direct control of the Chief Signal officer, Washington, D. C., but provides a vital link to Sixth Army tributary stations in that area.

Above named relay stations link 121 military and other government agency stations in the Sixth Army area via direct leased-line teletypewriter circuits and commercial Teletypewriter Exchange service.

Telephonically speaking, within the Sixth Army area there are 70

Army-operated telephone administrative PBX systems which comprise approximately 28,000 telephones at 27 installations. The whole telephone system, including the outside distribution plant, is owned, operated and maintained by the Signal Corps. In addition, a network of tie lines connect other important posts, camps and stations.

The Pictorial branch includes two units which are devoted to the military application of visual techniques.

The Film and Equipment Exchange unit directs the distribution of training films through 29 film libraries within the Sixth Army area. Importance of this operation is indicated by the fact that more than 4,250,000 manhours each quarter are devoted to viewing training films in this Army area.

Otherwise, the Pictorial branch concerns itself with the administration of some 40 Sixth Army photographic laboratories. One recent photographic operation involved the processing of 9,000 photographic dosimetry badges in conjunction with personnel radiation protection at Camp Desert Rock.

With all these facilities going constantly, naturally the activity of Sixth Army Field Maintenance is a big one.

There are 12 fixed or semi-permanent shops employing approximately 185 civilians and 15 TO&E shops with approximately 160 military technicians.

Mission of the TO&E shops is to provide direct support to their unit's equipment, while fixed shops provide back-up support for the TO&E shops and, in addition, are responsible for all Signal equipment not directly supported by TO&E shops.

Included are many items not readily associated with Signal, such as V-mail processing equipment, lie detectors, various types of mine and/or metal locators, Geiger counters, and similar radiation detection and measuring instruments, speech recording and monitoring equipment, electronic organs, and television receivers.

95th Anniversary!

Signal Equipment to be Shown Public At Open House Tuesday

Also observing the Signal Corps' 95th birthday Tuesday will be members of the Post Signal section.

Still a young section on the Presidio, having been formed to operate independently only since 1 December 1953, the Post function is one of vital importance, having to do for the most part with logistics and maintenance of Signal equipment.

Its scope is far-reaching and in the Post Signal repair shop, such items as are classified telephonic, telegraphic, electronic and photographic, are repaired and revitalized into first class working condition.

Some 50 trained technicians work on the gadgets in the shops, and, when necessary, make field trips to repair items that for some reason cannot make the journey to the repair shop. A 24-hour day for emergency only is the rule.

Everything from a portable radar or telephone van to the tiny exposure meter of a camera can be nursed back to health at the Post Signal repair shop. Some items needing repair are so minute they must be tinkered with under a magnifying glass.

For the most part, the men who do the repair work are civilians. But they are 95 per cent veterans both of World War II and the Korean conflict and, as such, really know the meaning of getting the job done well and on time!

Since becoming a Post function, the section has been in charge of Major Lawrence W. Bucy, who shortly leaves for his new assignment as Lt. Colonel Dudley Miller takes over as Post Signal officer.

Locally, the anniversary will be noted with open house to be held throughout the day, so that Presidio personnel, military and civilian, may have an opportunity to view the vast workings of this exciting field.

The tour will include a visit to the Communication center and primary relay station, which is the Army's second largest such station in the entire world.

Through it passes a major portion of Army command and administrative traffic from Washington, D. C., to the Far East, since Sixth Army is the only one of the continental Armies which relays overseas messages. Subsequently, through it pass more than 5,000 messages a day, some 500 of which either originate or terminate at Headquarters Sixth Army.

Manned 24 hours a day, seven days a week, it has aptly been called the "Western Union" of military installations, with both sending and receiving Army teletype equipment as well as commercial Western Union and teletypewriter exchange (TWX) facilities, all in one neat, compact arrangement.

Messages may receive a variety of treatment, depending on what they are.

Those dealing solely with the local installation are merely sent via pneumatic tube to the Sixth Army AG section where they are reproduced.

Classified material gets real VIP treatment. Transmitted entirely in code, these messages are seen only by personnel cleared to handle such documents and are carried in separate tubes. If they pertain to this headquarters, the messages are de-crypted under lock and key in the crypto room.

Many messages come addressed to two or more addressees. And Signal has an answer for that one too. It is the multiple tape processing unit or ZVA section, which is equipped to prepare in multiple up

Lt. Colonel Dudley D. Miller

Lt. Colonel Miller Is Assigned New Post Signal Head

Lt. Colonel Dudley D. Miller has been assigned as the new Post Signal officer, replacing Major Lawrence W. Bucy, who has received further orders.

Enlisting in the Army in September 1931, Colonel Miller was graduated from the Signal Corps school, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, in 1937 and served that post a total of eight years.

He attended the first officer's candidate school of the Signal Corps and was commissioned a second lieutenant on 1 October, 1941. He remained on the school's faculty for a time, and then held assignments at Governor's Island, Eastern Defense command and First Army.

Early in 1943, the colonel went to the Pacific theatre, serving as Signal officer, Hawaiian Seacoast Artillery command. There followed service on Okinawa and in Korea as Signal officer of the Korean Base command.

This is Colonel Miller's second tour on the Presidio, having served with Headquarters Sixth Army Signal section up to October, 1950, at which time he went to Japan to become director of the Signal Corps school at Etajima.

Just prior to being assigned to the Presidio, the colonel was serving as executive officer, Signal Corps Training center, Camp Gordon, Georgia.

Colonel and Mrs. Miller will make their home in San Francisco.

Salute to Army!

The Army Hour will present a radio broadcast commemorating the 180th anniversary of the Army, Saturday at 1630 hours over KFRC (610 on your dial). The program will feature dramatic readings from actual diaries kept by soldiers during the Revolutionary war.

COMMEMORATIVE NEW TESTAMENTS, marking the 40th millionth Bible given by the American Bible Society to the Armed Forces, took place at the Fort Baker chapel Sunday. Here Chaplain (First Lieutenant) Wayne F. Kildall, Fort Baker Chaplain, presents copies to (l. to r.): Major General Hobart Hewitt, commander, Western Anti-Aircraft Command; Lieutenant Colonel Bernard J. Drew, 30th AAA Group executive officer; Major Thomas I. Hyde, 9th AAA Missile Battalion executive officer, and M/Sgt. and Mrs. Audavee Gaston, 561st Engineer Company, as part of the regular Sunday morning Protestant services. The Society's 40 millionth volume was presented to Admiral Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, on 14 April. The group is composed of 55 Protestant denominations.

One Placement!

Sixth Army Soldier Second Specialist Division In Army-wide Talent Show

Ft. Dix, N. J. (AFPS)—The Army put its best foot forward in the entertainment field here recently in the two-day finals of the second world-wide All-Army talent contest.

The khaki-clad singers, dancers, comedians and specialty performers represented the best Army talent in 12 Stateside and overseas commands.

There were four categories featuring 47 acts and 73 contestants. The 12 finalists, including first, second and third place winners in each category, later appeared on the Ed Sullivan CBS-TV show "Toast of the Town."

The top entertainers were awarded bronze statuettes, the Army's version of the "Oscar." Second and third place winners received silver plaques.

First place winner in the vocal soloist category was Cpl. Robert R. Measells, Special Services Gp., Nurnberg, Germany. He gave a moving rendition of the Negro folk tune "The Crucifixion." Pvt. James V. Cobb Jr., Ft. McPherson, Ga., took second place honors and Pfc. Robert C. Floyd, Hq. Fifth Army, Chicago, Ill., was third.

Sgt. Lloyd N. Lindroth, swing harpist, of the U.S. Army Band, Washington, D.C., garnered top honors among instrumentalists with his performance of "Cumana," and "Tea for Two." Second place was captured by jazz clarinetist Pvt. Roger D. Balph, Ft. Lee, Va. Pfc. Robert Sherman, classical pianist, of the N. Y. Port of Embarkation, placed third.

In the specialty acts, Pfc. Paul A. Desmond, Garmisch Det., Germany, a comic-impressionist, walked off with first prize. He was followed by Pfc. Ivan S. Jensen, Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., who did a balancing act. Cpl. Kenneth R. Berry, Ft. McPherson, Ga., a tap dancer, finished third.

Top performers in the group act category were the "Rifle-Aires," a precision drill duo featuring Cpls. Richard S. Lindfors and John R. Morton, both of Ft. Myer, Va. Pvt. Lloyd D. Isaacson and his sidekick, Pvt. Murray A. Levine, Ft. Dix, N. J., a comedy team, placed second. The trampoline act of Pfc. Hugo and Rene Zacchini, Ft. McPherson, Ga., came in third.

New High School Date!

A summer session of eight weeks, offered by San Francisco Public Schools and leading toward a high school diploma has been rescheduled to begin on Tuesday, 5 July. Two courses may be taken this summer to complete one-half of the program. The other two courses may be completed during the Fall semester which begins in September. Diplomas will be awarded in January after successful completion of the High School GED tests at the post Education Center. All classes this summer will be held from 1800 to 2100. Mathematics is set for Mondays and Wednesdays in building 117, the same classroom in which the English class will be conducted on Tuesdays and Thursdays. American History and Constitution and General Science will be conducted in building 101 B (16th PBO), History on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and Science on Mondays and Wednesdays. Further information can be obtained at the Education Center, building 117, telephone extension 3189 and 2974.

Raiders Undefeated In BAAF; Challenge Hamilton Next Week

By Pfc. Dick Stewart
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

The toughest BAAF competition this season faces Presidio's Red Raiders next week when the undefeated soldiers take on the Hamilton AFB Defenders on the flyers' diamond Tuesday, 21 June. If the local garrison can whip the strong Air Force contingent, there is little doubt but that they will win the BAAF Baseball Tournament for 1955.

The hard-hitting Raider ball club soared rapidly to the top of the BAAF League with three wins and no defeats in league play. The local soldiers smashed an 11-1 victory over Sharpe General Depot, then won a tight 4-3 match from Parks AFB, and went on to belt Two Rock Ranch, 6-4.

In an extra, non-league game this week, the Reds trampled a Navy nine from Oak Knoll Naval Hospital, 13-2. The Raiders, hosting the competition at Fort Scott Field, hit all over the Navy rivals. Bob Neitzling pitched for Presidio, with Pool and Collins relieving him.

The Presidians also met the Jefferson semi-pro squad and came up with another, non-league win for the record. The soldiers stomped the Jefferson contingent, 13-2, on the home field at Fort Scott.

Climaxing the week's diamond schedule, the Raiders traveled to Fort Ord yesterday to take on the Warriors. A second game with Ord is slated for today, and the locals will wind up the week on Sunday in a game with the Stockton Braves at Stockton.

Local Net Stars Highlight Tourney In Final Matches

Three action-packed matches captured attention this week as the 1955 Presidio Post Tennis Tournament drew into its next to last week. Two of these matches have been played and the remaining one is to be played today. The first of these was Tuesday's singles match when Schmutz defeated Ketter 6-0, 7-5, to win the loser's bracket and the right to meet Velarde for the Post Championship.

Since this is a double elimination tournament, Schmutz must defeat Velarde twice to gain the title. This is the result of Schmutz dropping an earlier contest and Velarde being so far undefeated in tournament play. The Final Match is due to be played today and the winner will carry off the singles crown for the current season.

Wednesday's match between Fleming - Ketter vs. Blom - Clum led the way in this week's doubles competition. Fleming and Ketter emerged the winners after a hard-fought game, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3. They will meet Sage and Fox in the semi-finals doubles match early next week.

Only two players remain in singles competition out of the more than twenty-five original net enthusiasts that started this year's Post Tennis Tournament. The tournament started the last week in May and is due to wind up next week. In doubles play eight combo's started action with four teams remaining in play through this week. The tournament is directed by the Presidio Sports Office and the arrangements handled by Sgt. Julian Kite.

The local garrison will host the Central Division matches which are preliminaries to the Sixth Army Tournament and will provide an additional level of elimination. Winners in the Central Division matches will go on to the Sixth Army Tourney being held this year at Madigan Hospital, Washington, in late July.

Keg Leagues Roll Into Early Lap Of Competition Here

With four local keg leagues rolling into the first lap of the current tournament competition, winning teams are emerging in the Presidio, Pacific, and Mixed Leagues. The Eastern League is farthest into the season with more than 20 games bowled off.

The Sixth Army Signal team leads the Presidio League with a one and a half point margin, chalking up 13½ won and 6½ lost. Following closely are the Fort Baker Engineers in for second with 12 and 8, and the Mix-ups are third place runners-up with a driving 11½ won and 8½ lost.

Top kegler for the Signal contingent is Adair with a 222 high roll and a 176 average. Whitesell leads the Fort Baker Engineers with a high roll at 192 and a 168 average. Alexander tops the Mix-ups, holding a 184 high game and a 156 average.

High game for the Presidio set went to Thorne of the Barons with a smashing 233. Adair of the Sixth Army Signal took high series, and high average was Reedy from the Barons.

Tied for number one spot in the Mixed League are the Nine-plus-Ones and the CMD group. Each have 7 won and one lost. The King Pins, Lofters, and Kings and Queens are in a three-way impasse for second and the Kegglers stand alone at third.

High point man for the CMD contingent is Reams with a 163 high roll and a 148 average. High game for the King-Pins goes to Dawson at 216 and Adair rolled high average with a 174. Warren Ragar leads the Nine-plus-One with a smashing 209 high game and a 153 average.

Regan of the Kings and Queens swept the field for individual highs with a 220 high game, a 192 average, and a 577 series. Women's individual high game went to Matossian at 184 and high series and high average went to V. Esh with a 487 and 149.

Sixth Army Signal tops the Pacific League with 13 points won and 3 lost, and the Baker Company MPs roll right behind them for second with 11 and 5. Third place for the Pacific goes to the 102nd MRU group with 9 and 7.

Adair leads the Signal team with a 200 high roll and a 171 average. Long-time high roller Dickey of the 505th MP Battalion, Company B, leads his squad with a 216 high roll and a 184 average. Hoffacker blasted a 217 high game to top the MRU contingent and rolled a 169 average.

The Pacific's individual high game went to Thorne of the Keystone Kops with a 242. Dickey of the MPs blasted a 583 for high series, and his 184 took high average for the league.

In the Eastern League, 102nd MRU tops the field with 23 won and 9 lost. The Pick Uppers are second place runners-up with 22 and 10, and the 6513 group are third with 20 and 12.

Bryant tops the MRU kegglers with a 204 high game and a 171 average. Vincent leads the Pick Uppers with a 148 average and a 180 high game. A 178 high game gave Marks top spot in the 6513 SU team and his average is 164.

Weekly high game in the Pacific went to Walker of the Harbor Defenders at 213. Goodnight of the Dragnets holds high average at 173, and high series goes to Carlisle with 582 for the Nuggetts.

Late Flash!

Letterman Army Hospital's crack fencing contingent of Colonel Laurance Brownlee from Sixth Army Headquarters and Cpl. Jose Tafoya and Sgt. Herb Rhodes, both of LAH, are now competing in the US National Fencing championships in New York. The Letterman team now holds eighth place in the team-sabre event, fifth in the team foil event, and eighth in the three-weapon contest. No results are available at this time for the individual standings or the epee. More than 70 teams and over 200 individual entries are competing in the National Fencing League's US championships.

Trout Planting Continues Despite Holiday Record Crowds At Waterways

Planting of catchable trout in California streams and lakes was on schedule this week in spite of a record half million anglers who swarmed to the mountains, valleys and ocean waters over Memorial Day weekend.

Extra planting effort had been made previous to the holiday, but regular planting after the three-day weekend was not affected.

Fish and Game Wardens reported that there were more fishermen afield by far than on opening day of trout season. However, they did not limit themselves to trout streams, flocking to the ocean, streams and lakes of the valleys and in ponds and reservoirs everywhere.

With many of the high lakes still iced over, the roadside streams received tremendous fishing pressure, the wardens said.

BOBO OLSON, of the Bay Area, goes into the fight of the year next week when he enters Madison Square Garden to meet Archie Moore for the light-heavyweight championship of world. It will be no surprise to fight fans if Bobo, the middle-weight champ, will demand a shot at Rocky Marciano, king of the heavies, if he can get by rough, tough Archie Moore.

Victory Trail!

WACs Return To Win Column; Hit Hamilton Field Girls, 11-8

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Writer

Jumping right back on the victory trail after last week's setback, the Presidio WAC nine blasted out an 11-8 win early this week over the Hamilton Air Force Base girls. The contest, played at Hamilton field, featured some fine defensive play as well as timely hitting.

Softball All-Stars

An All-Star team for Intramural Softball will be selected from competing teams at the close of the season, it was announced recently by the Post Sports Officer. Players chosen for the All-Star group will receive medals and selection will be made by managers of the Intramural softball teams. Managers will not be able to name men from their own teams to the All-Star contingent.

Intramural Finals Start Here Today For Post Softball

As the Presidio Intramural Softball Tournament swings into the final inning, last year's Post champs, the 9th AAA contingent, top the National Division, and in a tie for lead in the American Division are Headquarters Company, 6002 SU, and the Hilltoppers. Play-offs for the championship begin today and will be played through Monday and Tuesday of next week.

The Ack-ackers blasted their ninth straight win over 46th Ordnance, crushing their rival 22-0. Isais was the winning pitcher and he held the Ordnance men to a single hit.

The triple A men belted 14 hits with three triples from Cringoli and a pair of round trips by Staub. Isais and Bush both batted two triples and the Ack-ackers also racked up a pair of doubles.

Completing their 10-win, no loss record for the season, the championship contenders belted Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, 5-3. Forrest Coleman, manager, coach, and pitcher for the Ack-ackers, hurled a five-hit game and gave two walks.

Cringoli, powerhouse for the victors, smashed a homer and a pair of doubles to spark the AAA men to seven hits for the tilt. They brought in one run in the second inning, one in the third, and three in the fifth.

Ruth Gavigan took the mound for the Presidio girls and went the distance while Stakley and Hiby divided the mound chores for Hamilton. The local nine were out-hit for the first time this season, gathering 12 hits to their opponents' 15.

The Presidiennes started out with a bang by scoring two runs in the first and from there on were never headed as they gathered in five more in the second, three in the third and wound up their day's scoring with Argue's round tripper in the fifth.

Hamilton's Daniel started the second inning for the rivals by blasting out a home run with a mate aboard. Lavigne also hit a homer in the third but from then on Gavigan kept out of serious trouble, shutting out her opponents in the last three innings.

Today the Presidio WACs leave for action against the Fort Lawton, Washington, WACs, flying up for a non-league game with their northern foes. The girls return for another non-league game here Wednesday when the Mather Air Force Base nine visits the local diamond.

Fairway Trimmed As U. S. Open Golf Meet Begins Here

Par of 280 strokes for the seventy-two hole championship grind stood a better chance of being broken when Joe Dey, executive director of the U. S. Golf Association ordered the rough to be drastically trimmed and altered early this week.

Fairways were trimmed and the rough that was from ten to twenty-four inches high cut back to five inches. Still most of the golfers were predicting scores of around 280 which is par for the long layout.

Defending champion Ed Furgol arrived in San Francisco Monday, fresh from his victory in the rich International Tournament in Washington, D.C. He thinks that he can win again this time and said, "The Olympic Club course is 20 per cent easier than Baltusrol, and par golf is all that is needed."

Furgol won the 1954 open at Baltusrol with a 284-four over par. The champion added that "the weather is going to be a big factor with all this rain and fog here," but with such talented linksmen as Snead, Littler, Nelson and others it will be no easy path to the winner's circle.

SWEET SWINGER—Sgt. Ruth Gavigan, pitcher on this year's WAC nine, shows some of the batting power that stamps the local girls as the ones to beat for the Sixth Army Championship. Shown catching in the above shot is Louise Wilnot from Rice Lake, Wisconsin, another member of the pennant contenders. The above action took place in an inter-squad contest played here on Army Day between the Youngsters and the Hotshots. Although no score was kept, good fun was had by all, to say nothing of the valuable practice gained by the girls in quest of their second straight Sixth Army Championship.

Guimarin Sparks Presidio To Fourth Place In Sixth Army Track Tourney

Presidio's Jim Guimarin charged into the Sixth Army Track and Field Meet recently to capture two firsts and a second place, leading the Raiders into fourth place in the Sixth Army team competition. Guimarin took first in the 440 intermediate low hurdles and the 120 highs, as well as third in the 440 yard dash.

Presidian John Byrnes ran second in the two-mile steeplechase and third in the mile and three mile. Rasmussen copped a third in the steeplechase. Presidio garnered a total of 21 points for fourth place team honors in the entire Sixth Army Command.

First place in the giant track and field meet, held at Compton California, went to Fort Ord, with Fort MacArthur second and Fort Lewis in for third. The meet included the triathlon event, won by Miller Pren of Fort Lawton.

Fort MacArthur's Fred Dwyer hobbled to a new Army mile record of 4 minutes 9 and 2/10 seconds at the Sixth Army Track and Field Meet last night while carrying an old starter's pistol shell picked up by his spikes on the back stretch of his third lap.

Evidently the cartridge shell was long imbedded in the sleek Compton, Calif., Ramsaur Stadium track, as shown by its antiquated condition. But it didn't keep Dwyer from finishing well ahead of the former Army record of 4 minutes and 14 seconds.

Briskly paced by teammate Lang Stanley for the first two laps with an initial brace of laps of fifty - nine seconds each, Dwyer came on easily to win despite the handicap on his right foot, spikes.

The former Villanova star, who ran his fastest mile last week in the Compton Invitational in four minutes and one and eight-tenths seconds, greatly helped Fort MacArthur's team to capture second place in the meet.

Other events saw Fort Ord nearly sweep the field in the 100-yard dash with Alex Burl, first; Van Parrish, second, and Edward Griggs, third. Ord's Sgt. James Burks, last year's runner-up in this event, developed a leg cramp in the race and stymied his team's chance to take the four top point-gaining spots. Lee Schreeder of Fort Lewis finished fourth.

On the first night of the two-night Sixth Army meet on 7-8 June for which Fort MacArthur was this year's host, the outstanding final event was the spectacular running of Capazzoli. He went the three mile run distance in fourteen minutes and fifty-seven and five-tenths seconds.

In the hop, step and jump event, Frank Flores took first place honors with a mark of forty-five feet, four and one-quarter inches, taking the measure of Morman Shanklin of Fort MacArthur, who placed second with forty feet, eight and one-half inches. Edward Griggs of Fort Ord was third with forty-three feet, ten inches.

Bob Peveiani, former USC great and later signed with the New York Giants football team, threw the javelin just barely farther than teammate Gerald Perry for first place in this event with a heave of one hundred sixty-two feet, six and a half inches. Fort Lawton's Robert K. Miller took third place with one hundred sixty-two feet even.

Finalists in the Command competition will represent Sixth Army in the All-Army Track and Field Meet 26-27 June. The All-Army test will be run at Fort Riley, Kansas, with Fifth Army as host.

Squaw Valley May Be Site of Winter Olympics in 1960

President Eisenhower put White House approval this week on a Congressional resolution inviting the 1960 Olympic Winter Games to Squaw Valley.

Among the six cities which have applied for the 1960 summer Games, Rome and Lausanne appeared to have the best chance of getting them, according to informed sources. Brussels, Budapest, Detroit and Tokyo also have made formal bids.

It was reported that St. Moritz and Squaw Valley, California, had the best chance of landing the 1960 Winter Games. Choice of a site for the 1960 summer and winter Olympic Games is the main task of the Olympic Congress, attended by 47 countries.

The International Olympic Committee formally opened its annual Congress this week in Paris with a speech by Avery Brundage, IOC president from Chicago. Meetings were held in the grand hall of the Sorbonne University and the Circle Interallie Building in Paris.

It is expected that Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps athletes will form a strong part of the 1956 and the 1960 Olympic teams from the United States. Service athletes figured prominently in the U. S. grand sweep of the Pan American Games, held earlier this spring.

The annual Presidio Golf Tournament has been postponed, the Post Sports Office announced this week. The competition will be held 5-8 July at the Presidio Course. Contestants must sign up for the tourney with the Sports Office, Bldg. 122, Ext. 3968, before 5 July. There will be a meeting of all participants at 0800 hours 5 July in Bldg. 122. The tournament will determine representatives of the Presidio for the Sixth Army Golf Tourney to be held at Fort Ord.

Army maintenance shops in this country and abroad have rebuilt $2 billion worth of equipment at a cost of $379 million.

"HERE'S OUR NEW ORDERS" is what Chaplain (Colonel) Edward T. Donahue, Sixth Army Chaplain, (seated) is saying to three other members of the Presidio's Chaplain complement, who, together with Chaplain Donahue, will be leaving this month. Standing l to r: Chaplain (First Lieutenant) Stewart K. Lewis, assistant Sixth Army Chaplain, who is assigned to Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany; Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) Chester T. Loszewski, deputy Sixth Army Chaplain, and Chaplain (First Lieutenant) William J. Smith, assistant Post Chaplain, both of whom will attend phases of the Chaplain's school, Fort Slocumb, New York. Chaplain Donahue will also be going to the Chaplain's school as its new commandant.

Far Away Places!

Post Loses Four Chaplains To Assignments Around Globe

A quartet of Presidio chaplains will shortly bid their assignments here adieu as they embark on new tours of duty around the globe.

Chaplain (Colonel) Edward T. Donahue, Sixth Army Chaplain since 1 September, 1952, will become the new commandant of the Chaplain's school at Fort Slocum, New York.

Chaplain (Lt. Colonel) Chester T. Loszewski, deputy Sixth Army Chaplain, and Chaplain (First Lieutenant) William J. Smith, assistant Post Chaplain, will become two of Chaplain Donahue's first students at the school.

Chaplain Loszewski, who has been here since 5 December, 1953, will attend the advanced officer's course, and Chaplain Smith, stationed at Letterman Army hospital three months and at the Presidio nine months, will attend the basic officer's course, following which he will be reassigned to the Far East Command.

Chaplain (First Lieutenant) Stewart K. Lewis, assistant Sixth Army Chaplain who has been with Sixth Army since April, 1954, will leave for his new assignment at Garmisch - Partengirchen, Germany.

Chaplain Donahue, ordained to the Baptist ministry in October, 1927, entered the Army from his pastorate at Lee's Summit, Missouri, in August, 1940, and was assigned to the then newly activated First Armored Division at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

His combat service during World War II was in Algeria, Tunisia, Naples-Foggia, Rome-Arno, the Apennines and the Po Valley.

A graduate of William Jewell college, Liberty, Missouri; Kansas City School of Law, Kansas City, Kansas, and the Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, Chicago, Illinois, Colonel Donahue and his wife are the parents of three children, a daughter, Janice, and sons, William, first lieutenant, AG Reserve, and Philip, currently assigned to Camp Roberts, California.

Chaplain Loszewski was ordained to the Roman Catholic priesthood in June, 1936, and served as an Army Chaplain for 41 months during World War II in North Africa and Italy.

Recalled to active duty on 1 September, 1950, Chaplain Loszewski then served a tour in Korea. His decorations include four battle stars.

He received his religious training at St. Vincent's Seminary, Latrobe, Pennsylvania, and St. Mary's college, Orchard Lake, Michigan.

Chaplain Smith was called to active duty on 30 June, 1954, and has been on the Presidio for his entire Army career.

He was ordained to the Roman Catholic priesthood on 1 April, 1950.

Chaplain Smith's schools include St. Mary's college, St. Mary, Kentucky; St. Mary's Seminary, Cleveland, Ohio, and St. John's Seminary, Camarillo, California.

Chaplain Lewis served as an enlisted man during World War II and was with the 78th Infantry Division in the ETO, participating in the Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns, earning three battle stars as well as the Combat Infantry Badge.

He was ordained to the Presbyterian (U. S.) ministry in June, 1946, and on 17 November, 1951, was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Chaplain Corps and remained on extended active duty. He went to Korea where he served as battalion Chaplain with the 15th Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division.

A graduate of Wheaton college, Wheaton, Illinois, where he received his B.A., and the Louisville Presbyterian Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky, where he was awarded his B.D. Chaplain Lewis and his wife are the parents of three sons.

Signal Corps Museum Dedicated During 95th Anniversary Fete

Ft. Monmouth, N. J. (AFPS)—The Army Signal Corps Museum was dedicated here recently on the eve of the Corps' 95th anniversary. It is named "Armstrong Hall, in memory of the late Maj. Edwin H. Armstrong, a pioneer in the development of radio.

The museum houses many mementos tracing the career of Armstrong, an electrical engineer credited with development of the superheterodyn receiver and frequency modulated (FM) broadcasting. He served in the Signal Corps in WWI.

Also on exhibition is a collection bearing on the career of Brig. Gen. Albert J. Myer, the Army's first Chief Signal Officer. It was presented to the government some years ago by his widow and had previously been on display in the Pentagon.

The Signal Corps celebrates its birthday on 21 June, dating its founding from the establishment of the old Army Signal Department in 1860.

Traffic Signal Tests!

Presidio Provost Marshal's office announced that they will be testing next week the use of portable traffic signals at various intersections for possible adoption here. The electric signaling device will feature the standard, red, yellow and green indicators. First intersection expected to be used for the mechanical signal trials is the Arguello Boulevard-Moraga street.

Officer's Course Slated In Plane Maintenance

Commissioned or warrant officers of the Regular Army or a Reserve component officer in active status or on active duty whose assignment is to an aircraft maintenance unit, activity or staff position are eligible to attend the Aircraft Maintenance Officer Course at the Transportation School.

The 14-week school has set five sessions with reporting dates 18 July, 2 September and 14 November this year and 9 January and 19 March 1956.

to 18 copies of a message at one time.

The relay center also boasts one of the three air defense set-ups on the entire West Coast, which is standing by constantly for any defense emergency that might arise. Tapes long since prepared are standing by for immediate use, and within six minutes of any emergency, every station within the entire 28th (San Francisco) Air Defense Control area would be notified of the impending disaster.

In another section is the Tele-conference room. Here may gather groups of officers from any section who need to converse with staff officers in another portion of the world.

By means of a double movie-screen set-up they may do just that with both sides of the conversation registering on the twin screens just as it is taking place. The conversation is teletyped at the rate of 60 words a minute and becomes a matter of permanent record for possible future reference. Both classified and unclassified conferences are handled in this manner.

A total of 23 military and 144 civilian personnel are required to accomplish this 24-hour-a-day task. They are assigned to the 6300 SU and operate the relay station and radio control room as well as the transmitting and receiving station facilities at Davis and Middletown, respectively.

There are in addition six military and 29 civilian slots assigned to the Post Signal (6002 SU) which is responsible for the operation and logistical support of the Sixth Army Communication center.

At the Middletown Receiving station, located 100 miles north of San Francisco, incoming messages received are forwarded via microwave through the microwave repeater station on Mt. Vaca to the tape relay station at the Presidio. Outgoing messages are forwarded via microwave through Mt. Vaca to the transmitting station located in the Sacramento valley between Davis and Winters, some 85 miles northeast of San Francisco.

At the conclusion of the birthday celebration, work will commence to move the radio control facilities from the Presidio to the Davis station in preparation for testing a new 100-line fully automatic tape relay station which will be in operation by the end of the year.

The new system was developed by the Signal Corps working closely with private industry. Some of the features of this automatic system include the use of common and pooled equipment to effect maximum economy and efficiency, and the handling of message traffic in accordance with assigned military degrees of precedence.

In effect the equipment reads reacting indicators and precedence and handles the traffic accordingly. "Priority," and lower precedence military traffic in process of transmission, is interrupted to permit immediate transmission of high precedence traffic. Alarm circuits showing equipment conditions and electrical checks on the progress of each message are built into the system.

During the tour of the Communication center, visitors may witness a demonstration of facsimile equipment used for picture transmission of such things as messages, maps and weather maps, and a demonstration of closed-circuit television.

ert Woodworth, 46th Ordnance, and Pfc. Don Payne, C Company, 6002 SU, tied for second at one minute, 28 seconds.

In the 30-caliber carbine competition, conducted by Detachment 1, 6000 SU, commanded by Captain Clinton D. Regelein, Pfc. Fernando Arando, Detachment 2, placed first in one minute, seven seconds; Cpl. Donald Day, 21st Engineers, second in 1 minute, 10 seconds, and Pfc. Don Payne, C Company, 6002 SU, third in 1 minute, 28 seconds.

During the parade which followed, the Sixth Army Band presented "Auld Lang Syne," in honor of Major General Richard G. Prather, Sixth Army chief of staff until his recent promotion to major general, who will leave shortly for his new assignment.

It was General Prather who pinned the silver bars of a first lieutenant to the shoulders of former Pfc. Weaver, who was commissioned directly from the ranks in a unique ceremony. The pair then took the salute together as marching units passed in review.

Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, expressed his gratitude for the military and civilian turnout at the functions.

"The reinstitution of an annual ceremony to commemorate the founding of the United States Army is in keeping with the concepts of modern military leadership which recognizes the revitalization of tradition as the key to military esprit de corps," Colonel Lundquist said.

Awards Bill!

Rep. Shephard J. Crumpacker (R-Ind.) has introduced a measure in the House to authorize the payment of cash awards to "anyone" who contributes to the national defense.

At present there is no general program for servicemen to receive cash incentive awards for special accomplishments and suggestions, although civilians employed by the Defense Department do.

Friday 24 June, 1955

ARMY'S UN MOTOR POOL: Enlisted men from the post and other Sixth Army installations served as members of the United Nations Provisional Motor Pool which was organized by the Army to provide transportation for the local 10th Anniversary UN session. Cars shown with the drivers in front of the San Francisco War Memorial Opera House were furnished by local dealers and manufacturers.

Unique Service!

Sixth Army's Special Motor Pool Furnishes Drivers For UN Delegates

A detachment of 200 soldiers from the Presidio and Fort Ord has been organized to provide transportation for members of the delegations of 58 United Nations member countries participating in the United Nations 10th anniversary session in San Francisco this week.

The unit, designated the United Nations Provisional Motor Pool, was organized by the Sixth Army at the request of the San Francisco Executive Committee for the UN Commemorative Session. It is commanded by Captain Leon A. Thomas, assistant Transportation Officer at the Presidio of San Francisco.

A fleet of approximately 130 new civilian cars, donated for the session by local manufacturers and auto dealers, are being used by the soldier-drivers to transport participants of the session.

The soldiers, all carefully selected by the Army for driving efficiency and military bearing, have been further trained in the operation of their assigned vehicles. Additionally, they have been brought up-to-date concerning San Francisco traffic regulations and have been briefed to be able to answer questions by the delegates concerning points of interest in the city.

They are driving members of the delegations from all countries except those of the USSR, the Ukraine and Byelorussia; those delegations furnish their own drivers.

The motor pool office is set up in the Veterans Memorial Building and includes an operations office, drivers' "ready room" and a small kitchen for the drivers. The city has installed a television set in the "ready room" so that members of the motor pool are able to watch proceedings of the session when they are not driving. Garage facilities for the cars are in the Palace of Fine Arts.

Dispatchers are located in the ticket booth at the Opera House, in the operations office at the Veterans Memorial Building and at the San Francisco International Airport so that no delays will be encountered in furnishing transportation for the delegates.

Principal assistants to Captain Thomas include First Lieutenant William A. Rathbone of Fort Ord and Master Sergeant Maurice L. Dineen and Sergeant First Class William M. Baker, both of the Presidio Transportation Section.

30th AAA Celebrates Third Anniversary As Bay Area Defenders

The 30th AAA Group, charged with antiaircraft defense of the San Francisco Bay area and outlying air bases marked its third anniversary this week since reactivation 20 June, 1952.

The Group was originally activated in April, 1943 and was twice cited in the Order of the Day of the Belgian Army for action in the defense of Antwerp and Antwerp Harbor and also winning Belgian Fourregere.

Commanded by Col. D. H. Wollaston, the group is composed of five battalions and other attached elements. Included are the 9th and 740th AAA Missile Battalions, the 52nd and 536th 75mm Sky-sweeper Battalions, the 752nd AAA Battalion, and the 518th AA Operations Detachment.

Big Business!

Department of the Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens recently released some impressive facts on Army spending. The Army spends $30 million a day, has fixed assets of $43 billion and carries an inventory of one million items.

Parade Today

The regular weekly retreat parade will be held on the main parade ground of the Presidio at 1630 hours today. Units participating will include the Sixth Army band, the 561st Engineers, the 30th Engineers, the Honor Guard, Detachments 1 and 2, 6000 SU and Headquarters and D company, 6002 SU.

Mass Blood Giving Credits 72 Pints To 30th Engineers

An urgent call for blood donors to the 30th Engineer Group this week was met with a mass turnout of 87 officer and enlisted personnel who gave a total of nine and one-half gallons of blood to the credit of Letterman Army Hospital.

A mobile blood unit from Erwin Memorial Blood Bank of the San Francisco Medical Society was set up outside Headquarters Company and the 30th Engineer and LAH personnel provided additional facilities in the unit's basement to accommodate the large turnout.

From the 87 personnel volunteering, 74 units of blood were received while 13 men were rejected due to such reasons as insufficient time lapse following a previous donation and factors involving medical case histories.

This response represented 75 per cent of 30th Engineer Group personnel who were eligible to donate. Officials from LAH and the Erwin Blood Bank plan to set-up another group-wide donor program when the bulk of the organization's personnel presently engaged in photomapping duties with Task Force ALASKA return to the Presidio this fall.

Captain Robert S. Cox, Jr., in charge of Letterman's blood bank commended the high percentage of blood donor participation of the 30th Engineer Group which is commanded by Col. Wayne E. Downing.

Wilber M. Brucker, former general counsel for the Defense Department, has been nominated by President Eisenhower to become Secretary of the Army.

Robert T. Stevens, Army Secretary since Jan., 1953, has resigned his post.

Mr. Brucker has been counsel general at the Pentagon since April, 1954 and is 61 years old.

A resident of Detroit, Michigan, Mr. Brucker is a former governor of the state, serving from Jan., 1931 to Jan., 1932 and previously was his state's Attorney General.

From 1923 to 1937 he was prosecuting attorney of Saginaw County, Michigan.

NG Volunteers!

New Army Plan Starts 1 July For Training Nat'l Guard EM

Washington (AFPS)—The Army will start a new program July 1 to permit 12,000 National Guard enlisted men to volunteer each year for eight weeks of basic training. They will take it together with other trainees at active Army installations.

The Army said the plan offers an inducement to NG recruits to complete their individual basic training in eight weeks. After that, they will return to their state units, prepared to take advanced individual training.

These men, the Army pointed out will provide a source of future NG non-commissioned officers. The program also will enable Guard commanders to place more emphasis on unit type training during their armory drills and summer field training.

Five active Army installations have been chosen to train the guardsmen: Ft. Jackson, S. C., Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., Camp Chaffee, Ark., Ft. Ord, Calif., and Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

To maintain an even flow of trainees to each installation, 1,000 volunteers will start their training each month. While undergoing training, they will receive standard Army pay and allowances, according to their grade.

The NG Bureau has allotted quotas to each state. State Guard officials will be responsible for the selection of individuals who volunteer for training. Each trainee will retain his state status during the eight-week period.

The DA, however, will prescribe training policies, and the Continental Army Command will be charged with overall responsibility for carrying out the program.

Although the trainees will remain subject to the military laws of the state in which they hold NG membership, they will be required to conform to all Army administrative orders and directives generally applicable to trainees.

Time Grows Short

Only one week remains for civilian employees to initiate filing under the "late filing" authority, to take civil service examinations which will enable them to acquire status in their positions. Those who were on temporary indefinite appointments on last 23 January and who have letters of authority are to file them by 30 June.

Huge Shrink Job!

Microfilming of records makes molehills out of mountains. The Army's adjutant general section microfilmed 11,000 file drawers of the Army records and put the finished films in 55 film filing cabinets.

New Army Chaplain

Chaplain (Col.) Kilcoyne

New Sixth Army Chaplain Is Native San Franciscan

Chaplain (Col.) John T. Kilcoyne assumed the duties of the Sixth Army Chaplain this week. He succeeds Chaplain (Col.) Edward T. Donahue, who left this week for duty at the Chaplain School, Ft. Slocum, New York.

A native San Franciscan, Chaplain Kilcoyne graduated from St. Patrick's Seminary in Menlo Park and was ordained at St. Mary's Cathedral in 1930. After serving as assistant pastor at St. Joseph's Church in Berkeley for three years he was commissioned in the Reserve in 1933. In 1934, Chaplain Kilcoyne was commissioned in the Regular Army.

Prior to his most recent assignment as Sixth Army Chaplain, Chaplain Kilcoyne served as 8th Army Chaplain in Korea. He was awarded the Order of Ulchi with Silver Star by the Korean government for his work with orphans during this period. Chaplain Kilcoyne also holds the Legion of Merit.

During World War II, Chaplain Kilcoyne served with the II Armored Corps, 6th Armored Division, and assisted in activation of Camp Roberts and subsequent training divisions. He was also Second Armored Division Chaplain from 1944-1945. Chaplain Kilcoyne also served in the CBI theatre during this period.

SIGNALLING TRAFFIC APPROACHING FROM
TO STOP FOR

and why not?

Pedestrians are people too and 505th MPs at Presidio intersections keep on the lookout for the safety of foot traffic as well as that of vehicles. Whenever you receive this stop signal from the MP it's safe policy to wait for his next signal, rather than proceed on your merry way as soon as pedestrians APPEAR to have crossed the street. Sitting behind your wheel, it's always possible that you may not see all pedestrians in the crosswalk—some of them are mighty small, you know. Play it cool and let the MP determine when it's safe for you to proceed. Right down the line, it's always safe to watch the MP closely and follow his signals religiously.

Secretary Wilson:

US Stronger Than Russia In Air, Military Capability

Washington (AFPS)—The U. S. is leading Russia in air power and over-all "military capability" and can maintain its lead, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has declared. Mr. Wilson gave a detailed account of new Soviet aircraft displayed over Moscow early in May.

He said U. S. intelligence sources had sighted more than 50 supersonic day fighters, more than 30 new all-weather fighters and over 40 new medium bombers, the latter known for the first time last year only as a prototype.

In addition, he told a press conference, the Soviets displayed at least nine new turbo-prop aircraft—the first turbo-props they ever have shown and 10 or more long-range heavy bombers similar to the American B-52.

However, Roger Lewis, Asst. AF Secretary, who participated in the conference, said the U. S. had a "qualitative as well as quantitative superiority" in long-range bombers and supersonic fighters—"the planes that can do the job."

Secretary Wilson said that U. S. air leaders were not surprised by the kinds of planes the Russians showed in the May display. But Mr. Lewis explained that the numbers of the planes, "while not large, were in excess of what we had expected to see, in relation to what they showed last year."

The Defense Secretary said, "It is recognized that the Soviets, through this display, demonstrated an ability to produce long-range aircraft." It would be a fair assumption, he added, that Russia is shifting to a long-range strategic bomber force similar to our Strategic Air Command.

"It is our aim to maintain a military capability superior to that of any potential enemy," Mr. Wilson said. "We can and are doing this."

Time to Purchase

A campaign to stimulate the purchase of United States savings bonds by civilian and military personnel of the Presidio is now in progress. Purchase may be made directly or through the payroll savings plan, which authorizes bond withholdings of from $3.75 to $75. Complete information is available from each unit representative.

Officers Recently Assigned

Colonel Walter O. Beets has become the deputy Judge Advocate, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has just returned from three years in Japan where he served as staff Judge Advocate with first the Headquarters and Service command and later the Central command.

Entering on active duty as a Reserve officer in August 1940, Colonel Beets joined the 26th Field Artillery battalion, 9th Division, Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and accompanied that unit to Africa where he was commander of A Battery. Staying with the Division throughout the war, the colonel served as S-3 in the Tunisian campaign, and as battalion executive officer in both the Sicilian campaign and the invasion of Normandy.

Following the Normandy invasion and Saint Lo breakthrough, Colonel Beets was assigned to Division Artillery Headquarters and then took command of the 60th FA Battalion through the balance of the war and four months' occupation duty subsequent to the Armistice.

Upon his return to this country he was assigned as commander of the First FA Battalion, school troop, Field Artillery school, Fort Sill, Oklahoma, from January to July, 1946.

Colonel Beets next attended Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and upon graduation was assigned to the office of the Judge Advocate General, the Pentagon, where he remained from August 1947 to January 1951. It was late in 1947 that he transferred his branch from Field Artillery to Judge Advocate.

From January to June 1951, the colonel was a student at the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Virginia, followed by an eight months' tour as staff Judge Advocate, 1st Armored Division, Fort Hood, Texas, prior to being assigned to the Far East.

Colonel Beets has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the ETO ribbon with eight battle stars and the Commendation Ribbon.

A member of both the Oklahoma and the Tennessee Bar associations the colonel was commissioned a second lieutenant, Reserve Corps, with an R.O.T.C. unit at the University of Oklahoma and was integrated into the Regular Army in July 1946. He received his L.L.B. from Cumberland (Tennessee) University in 1932.

Colonel and Mrs. Beets, presently residing in Stonestown, have two daughters, 20-year-old Beverly, a student at Sullins college, Bristol, Virginia, and 16-year-old Elizabeth, who attends San Francisco's Lowell High School.

Lt. Robert Emsweiler has taken over the position of Bay Area Exchange officer, Presidio of San Francisco.

In Austria for the past three years, Lt. Emsweiler served with Company B, 350th Infantry Regiment. He was graduated from the Branch and Material O.S.C. at Fort Riley, Kansas.

Entering the service in 1946, the lieutenant served from 1946 to 1948 on occupation duty in Korea with the 7th Infantry Division.

He and his wife and their two children are now residing in San Francisco.

Captain William Morgan is newly assigned to the supply division, Quartermaster section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In the Army for the past 13 years, Captain Morgan has just returned from 16 months' duty with the 8th Army in Korea, and was awarded the Commendation ribbon for his services there.

A graduate of the Infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia, and the Quartermaster basic course, Fort Lee, Virginia, the captain served in the China-Burma-India theatre for two years during World War II with MARS Task Force.

A native of New Paltz, New York, Captain Morgan is presently residing at BOQ 40.

CWO George W. Arndt has taken up duties with the supply division of G-4 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Veteran of 25 years' Army service, Mr. Arndt's most recent assignment was a three-year tour in Germany with the 27th Transportation Battalion.

During World War II, Mr. Arndt served two years with the Persian Gulf Command, and from 1948 to 1950 was stationed on Guam.

He and his wife and their four children are now residing in San Francisco.

CWO Leo L. Cheatham has completed a three-year tour as Finance officer at Letterman Army hospital and is now assigned fiscal officer, Comptroller section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

From 1949 to 1951 he was with the Finance section, Presidio of San Francisco, prior to which he served a year on Okinawa.

It was while serving with Headquarters X Corps in Texas in 1942 that Mr. Cheatham received his warrant. Next followed World War II service in the ETO with the 42nd Infantry Division during which he participated in two campaigns.

After his return to the States, he served a year each as fiscal officer at two disciplinary barracks: Fort Harrison, Indiana, and Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Veteran of 19 years' Army service, Mr. Cheatham, with his wife and son, presently resides here.

CWO Charles R. Young has been assigned as operations officer at the Post Motor Pool, Presidio of San Francisco. His last tour of duty was in Darmstadt, Germany, where for three years he was vehicle maintenance officer.

Entering World War II with the invasion of France, Mr. Young was with the 4th Armored Division and participated in the five major ETO campaigns, Normandy, Rhineland, Central Europe, Ardennes and Northern France. He was wounded during the Battle of the Bulge and recuperated in time to take part in the Rhine crossing. He has the Purple Heart and the ETO ribbon with five battle stars.

Mr. Young has been in the Army for 15 years and is a graduate of the Armored school, Fort Knox, Kentucky, and the Nebraska Motor Vehicle school.

Former residents of Detroit, Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Young and their eight-year-old daughter are now residing here.

Colonel Gardner W. Porter has arrived to become chief of the budget division, Comptroller section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

The colonel has been deputy Comptroller, Headquarters First Army, Governor's Island, New York, for the past four years.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, class of 1933, Colonel Porter served the World War II years 1943-45 with the Iceland Base command.

During the period 1950-51, the colonel was with General Headquarters in Tokyo, Japan.

Among his Army schools are the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1948 and the advanced officer's Finance course, St. Louis, Missouri, 1950.

Colonel and Mrs. Porter and their three-year-old daughter, Dianne, are now residing in San Francisco.

Major Ruth R. Gordon has been assigned as chief of the publications branch, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

She has just completed the nine-month officer's advance AG course, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. Prior to that, Major Gordon spent two years in the Far East, the first as battalion commander, Tokyo WAC detachment, and the last as WAC staff advisor, Okinawa.

In the Army for 13 years, the major served 18 months in the ETO during World War II as a unit officer with the 12th Army group. Later in her career, for her claims work at Fort Benning, Georgia, she was awarded the Commendation ribbon.

Her father, John B. Gordon, resides in Denver, Colorado.

Major Oliver N. Worley has become chief of the highway division, Transportation section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His most recent assignment was at Fort Buckner, Okinawa, where he spent the past 30 months in the highway division of the Transportation section.

Major Worley entered the service in 1942 and attended O.C.S. at Fort Lee, Virginia. He served with the Boston Port and Canada until 1945, and was awarded the Commendation ribbon for his work there.

Subsequent assignments included three years in Germany, two in Ordnance and one in Transportation work, and three years at the Kansas City Records center. He and Mrs. Worley now reside at Wherry housing.

Major Jesse W. West has just completed three years at the office of the Surgeon General, Washington, D.C.

He is now assigned to the Medical section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

During World War II he served a year in the China-Burma-India theatre with the 72nd Field hospital, and during 1950-51, was stationed at the Medical Field Service center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Major West also spent six months in Japan and Korea with a cold injury research team. He has been in the Army for 20 years.

CWO Richard P. Davies has been at Camp Zilmer, Japan, for the past three years, the last 10 months in the office of the chief of staff, AFPE.

He has been assigned to the enlisted branch, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Mr. Davies' World War II service in the ETO was with the 3rd Armored division as a warrant officer, following which he reverted to master sergeant for a five-year period. He was decorated with the Bronze Star Medal, the Belgian Fourragere, and the Commendation ribbon.

Again warrant officer since 1951, Mr Davies has been with the Army for the past 14 years. He and Mrs. Davies are the parents of two sons.

THEY ARE FIRST CLASS SCOUTS now, this group of Girl Scouts from Presidio Troop No. 187 who pose with Lieutenant General W. G. Both the invocation and benediction were given by Chaplain (Major) Henry Butt, the Post Chaplain.

CMD Civilian Lauded As He Takes Post

Mr. Oliver R. Martin, chief Comptroller management, Headquarters California Military district, Presidio of San Francisco, has received a letter of appreciation from Brigadier General Claude F. Burbach, district chief, in a brief ceremony at the headquarters.

Mr. Martin came to the headquarters in mid-November 1953 and now leaves for a new position and promotion as general supply officer and technical advisor with Post headquarters S-4 section.

A portion of the commendation said "I wish to express my appreciation for the work you have done. As you leave for a well-deserved promotion, I wish you every success in your new position."

More Flight School Applicants Needed To Expand Aviation

Emphasis on dispersion and mobility in the Army today has necessitated a large expansion in the Army Aviation program, it was disclosed by Department of the Army officials recently.

If the planned expansion is to be successfully carried out, one of the most critical obstacles to be overcome is the low application rate for flight training.

To support the planned expansion it will be necessary to increase the input to 200 officers per month into the Aviation Flight Training program during the fiscal year 1956.

Because past experience has shown that one-third of all volunteers are unacceptable under the rigid requirements, an application rate of approximately 300 volunteers each month will be required.

If the proposed program is to be accomplished, it will be necessary to attain an application rate which will provide 3600 officers or 9 per cent of all eligible lieutenants in the Army as volunteers for flight training.

To date, approximately 60 per cent of the officers entering flight training are newly commissioned officers without troop experience.

Although newly commissioned officers will continue to be accepted, emphasis will be placed on the recruitment of eligible lieutenants currently serving with troop units.

PSF Women Employees Honored for Show

A total of 10 women employees from the Presidio took part in a fashion show held recently at a downtown department store, and were lauded in a communication from the store to Presidio officials.

Winner of the competition will qualify to participate with winners from other of the city's organizations in the finals.

Those from Headquarters Sixth Army who took part were, Lorna Jackstadt, G-3 section; Johnetta Smallwood, Signal section; Connie Schilliacci, Ordnance section; Joan Barben, Betty March, Katherine Hough and Joan McCrea, Medical section; Joan Stack, G-2 section; Lee Hays, Transportation section, and Rose Bongiovani, IG section.

Hard Muscle!

Latest Armed Forces Rosters Show Strong Core In 1955

New York (AFPS)—The final days of FY '55 finds the United States cutting the fat from its military forces to develop the lean, hard muscle necessary for a long pull in either a cold or a hot war.

A year ago, the forces totaled 3,387,000 men. Today there are 3,158,141 men on active duty.

In order to keep their forces honed to razor-sharp effectiveness, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines are engaged in trying to keep their highly qualified personnel while weeding out the less capable. Policy changes within the forces themselves are aimed at keeping the best men.

The Army has its "Operation Gyroscope," which rotates troops overseas by units (with the unit returning to a home base in the U.S. when its overseas tour ends) and a new system of specialists ratings.

The Navy announced a plan to stabilize assignments for at least 12 months for re-enlistees and the Marines allow re-upping personnel below the grade of E-5 to choose the geographical area in which they want to serve. The AF also offers re-enlistees a chance to serve at bases of their own choosing.

Here is the way the forces stand today:

Army — 1,300,216 men with 19 divisions (11 of them overseas), 12 regiments or RCTs and 117 AAA battalions. Plans call for a one-million-man Army in 1956.

Navy — 688,788 men with 1,104 active ships (407 of which are warships), 10,000 aircraft in 16 carrier groups and 15 anti-sub warfare squadrons. In 1956, the Navy plans to have 650,000 men.

Air Force — 954,340 men with 22,000 aircraft (including planes in reserve units) and 121 active wings. All active fighter and fighter-bomber wings are jet-equipped and bomber units are rapidly changing over. Plans call for a 975,000-man AF in 1956.

Marine Corps — 214,797 men with three combat divisions (one in Japan) and three air wings (one overseas). Marine plans call for a 190,000-man corps in 1956.

Coast Guard — While it is now under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Coast Guard and its force of 27,768 men and 335 vessels would come under the command of the Navy in time of war.

Analysis of Russian Yugoslav Talks Set For I&E Conferences Next Week

The recent Russian-Yugoslav "harmony" talks will be the featured topic at the troop information conferences next week.

Russian Communist Party chief, Krushchev, opened the two-country meetings with a statement that past defection of Yugoslavia from the Soviet bloc "is all forgiven."

The Yugoslav government was invited to join forces with Russian and make common cause in throwing off the "capitalist yoke."

The Tito government in turn re-emphasized its policy against joining any ideological bloc, indicating that their goal is cooperation with all nations regardless of differences in the internal governmental structures.

Conclusion of the conferences saw a joint declaration signed by the two nations calling for representation of communist China in the UN, settlement of the German question, support of peaceful coexistence among nations, international disarmament and a strengthening of diplomatic and trade relations between the two countries.

News in Books

New additions to the shelves of the Sixth Army Reference library:

"THE NATION'S NATIONAL GUARD," by National Guard Association of the U. S. History, constitutional and legislative background of this important segment of American strength, with a roll call of states by units organized and ready.

"AMERICAN IN ITALY," by Herbert Kubly. A Fullbrighter reports what the various classes of Italians say and think about themselves and America.

"AMERICAN IN RUSSIA," by H. E. Salisbury. Personal narrative of the five years 1949-1954, in Russia, by a New York Times Moscow correspondent, describing the changes made by Stalin's death and life in Russia from the Caucasus to Siberia.

"TRAIN OF POWDER," by Rebecca West. Six dramatic essays on the problem of guilt and punishment in our time, as posed by the Nuremberg trials, the occupation of Germany, a Georgia lynching, a torso murder, and the case of a British youth accused of espionage.

"GUN DIGEST," by J. T. Amber. In its ninth edition, the digest covers sections on handguns, shotguns, rifles, cartridges, sights, foreign firearms, collector's items and special articles on gun engraving, gunsmithing, photography and European proof marks.

"PUBLICITY IN ACTION," by H. M. Baus. A review of visual, written and spoken media used for publicity purposes and good and bad examples of each chosen from current practice.

"DOCUMENTS ON AMERICAN FOREIGN RELATIONS," by P. V. Curl. A convenient reference form presentation of outstanding messages, documents and treaties of the year with attention given to U. S. policies, the Communist world, Europe, Korea, the Far East, Middle East and Latin America.

Western observers noted that the meetings of the two communist states did not appear to influence Yugoslavia to rejoin the communist nations as a satellite and that the Yugoslavs would continue to guard their independence and stay friendly to the West as long as the West could help them do so.

Another element noted in the meetings of the two powers is the accelerated efforts of the Soviet Union to launch a worldwide peace offensive and throw the West off balance.

PRESIDIO AERO CLUB members are shown here with their craft, a single engine monoplane which is owned by the club. The group is seeking new memberships and subsequently, it is hoped, another craft. Shown front row, l. to r.: Captain Gene R. Bartlett and M/Sgt. Roland J. Lacroix. Back row, l. to r.: Lt. Colonel Halbert Slagel, Lt. Colonel George Adair, and Colonel William James. All but Sgt. Lacroix are members of the Signal Corps; he is with CMD. Not present for the picture but also a club member is Lt. Colonel Leland D. Esh, Sixth Army Signal section.

Learn to Fly!

Presidio Aero Club Formulated; Seeks Additional Memberships

To the men of the Signal Corps, aviation has always been "one of the group."

One of the group, that is, of activities in which the myriad phase of Signal are related.

In fact, the operation of an aviation section was authorized for the Signal Corps on 18 July, 1914, and remained with them until 1918 when a separate Air Corps was established.

Nevertheless, Signal and aviation are irrevocably related.

And a group of Sixth Army and Post Signal corps men recently have established the Presidio Aero Club Inc., dedicated to stimulating an interest in flying.

Incorporated under the laws of the State of California, the club presently includes Lt. Colonel George W. Adair, president; Colonel William L. James, secretary; Lt. Colonel Leland D. Esh, maintenance officer; Lt. Colonel Halbert J. Slagel, flight control officer; all of Sixth Army Signal section, Captain Gene R. Bartlett, treasurer, Post Signal section, and M/Sgt. Roland S. Lacroix, California Military District.

And the call is out for more members.

While the by-laws call for only six members for each club-owned craft, it is hoped that a growth in membership will result in the procurement of another craft.

At present, the club's plane, a single engine land high-wing monoplane, fabric covered Aeronca model, is in use by the group and its auxiliary members which include wives and children of members.

Since it is a non-profit organization, club members pay for their own gas, oil and flying instructions, which are given by a civilian CAA instructor.

While Crissy Field on the Presidio is used as a landing field for qualified pilots only, and a tie-down area, all actual training and take off and landing practice is done on one of two civilian fields, Buchanan Field, Concord, and Half Moon Bay.

Insurance policies include two for bodily injury at $100,000 and $300,000 and property damage, $100,000, with the U.S. government registered as an additional insured.

The plane is registered with the Civil Aeronautics Association and all legal formalities and requirements have been met by the club.

Presently, two of the members, Colonel Esh and Captain Bartlett, are already private pilots, while the remainder are engaged in soloing and making cross-country flights. Upon receipt of their license, they are authorized to carry passengers.

Pilot training includes 15 hours of dual instruction time with a minimum of five hours on cross-country runs, and 25 hours of solo time in which the student is the sole occupant of the craft. While soloing, he must make at least one cross-country flight of not less than 100 miles, with one intermediate landing enroute and return.

A written examination follows in which Civil Air regulations and flight knowledge are included. This is given by a CAA inspector, and upon graduation, a license that is good for a lifetime, is issued.

Any personnel interested in becoming Presidio Aero Club members may contact Colonel Adair at Ext. 2809 or Colonel James, Ext. 2810, for full particulars.

Army Sets New Badge For Civilian Marksmen

Washington (AFPS) — Civilian marksmen who gain top honors in major Army rifle and pistol matches will be awarded a new type Excellence-in-Competition badge, the Army has announced.

The Army's badge for excellence, previously awarded to civilians in recognition of their achievements in Army-sponsored matches, will now be awarded only to Army personnel.

The new badge will be in three colors—gold, silver or bronze—depending on the civilian's standing in the meet. It will be awarded only to participants in authorized competition conducted after 1 January, 1955.

Know and Obey Traffic Laws — Will Reduce Accidents

During the current Slow Down and Live program, the Army has been emphasizing that accidents could be reduced if all military drivers made it a point to know traffic regulations and to observe them at all times. That is the basic rule for safe driving. Here are a few other simple rules which should be kept in mind at all times.

Drive at a speed that is safe for road and other conditions. Remember that speed limits are maximum speeds. A speed well under the limits may be much too fast under certain conditions, such as bad weather, congested traffic, road obstructions, etc.

Never drive after drinking. Don't drink if you intend to drive.

Never attempt to cross an intersection unless sure of the right of way. Always be ready to yield the right of way to avoid an accident.

Do not pass on hills or curves and never cut in sharply after passing a car ahead.

Do not hog the road. The way to stay safe is to stay on your own side.

Heed traffic signs—the signs of life. They are for your protection.

Check the condition of your car. The only safe car is one in good mechanical condition.

Remember this slogan — Know and Obey Traffic Laws. This is a requirement for all you who would become careful and safe drivers.

Boy Scout Court

A Court of Honor and annual presentation of Charters for Troop and Post Boy Scout Troop No. 77, Presidio will be held in the Army Y.M.C.A. building, No. 69 Monday (27 June) at 1900 hours. Two young men will become Life Scouts, five will become Star Scouts, and four, First Class Scouts. In addition, more than 40 merit badges will be presented.

2½ Million Kin In Armed Forces At End of 1954

Washington (AFPS)—Members of the Armed Forces had a total of 2,591,777 dependents at the end of 1954. The Defense Department has announced the results of a worldwide survey.

As of the same date there were 3,180,532 military personnel on active duty.

More than half the dependents, or 1,306,497, were minor children. Wives numbered 1,163,630, husbands 1,573 and parents who received more than half their annual income from a serviceman, 120,077.

A total of 2,204,316 dependents were located in the continental U.S., 118,632 were in U.S. territories and possessions and 268,829 were in foreign countries.

In 464,721 family units, or about 40 per cent, the wife was listed as the only dependent. Those with one child numbered 319,269; two children, 233,208; three, 99,011, and four or more, 47,421.

Of all the dependents, officers accounted for 650,549 and enlisted personnel for 1,941,228.

The area of the Pentagon is 50 percent greater than Chicago's Merchandise Mart.

TOP RATED TRIO who were selected to represent the Western Army Antiaircraft command and the 30th AAA Group on Armed Forces day at Colorado Springs, Colorado, include, l. to r.: Cpl. Charles E. Beavers, C Battery, 9th AAA; Pfc. Thomas E. Armer, D Battery, 740th AAA, and Cpl. James G. Jarmes, B Battery, 9th AAA. The men were selected on a competitive basis, and because of their outstanding contribution to the NIKE display at Colorado Springs, each received an individual citation from Lieutenant General S. R. Mickelsen, AAA commander, and a further indorsement from Major General Hobart Hewitt, commander of the Western Antiaircraft command.

Lauded by General!

Trio of AAA Men Cited For Armed Forces Day Performance

On the basis of their outstanding contribution in an Armed Forces Day NIKE display at Colorado Springs, Colorado, Cpl. Charles E. Beavers, "C" Battery, 9th AAA Missile Battalion, Fort Baker; Pfc. Thomas E. Armer, "D" Battery 740th AAA Missile Battalion, Fort Scott; and Cpl. James G. Jarmes, "B" Battery, 9th AAA Missile Bat-tion, Fort Baker were recently cited individually in letters from Lieutenant General S. R. Mickelsen, Commander of the Army Antiaircraft command, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Their letters of appreciation stated, "in spite of the newness and attendant classification of this equipment, you performed with alacrity, tact and a military demeanor demonstrating the rightful importance and significance you attached to this assignment."

General Mickelsen pointed out that their performances in the event brought credit not only upon themselves, but also their units and the Armed Forces.

The general's letter was further indorsed by Major General Hobart Hewitt who commands the Western Antiaircraft command. He stated, "your performance during the Armed Forces day activities in the Pikes Peak region was notable and reflected great credit upon yourselves and the United States Army. I am proud to have you as a member of this command."

The three men were selected on a competitive basis to represent Western Army Antiaircraft Command, Fort Baker, and the 30th AAA Group, Fort Barry, California.

Civilian Chief Urges Cleanliness in Area

J. N. McConaha, chief of the civilian personnel division, today urged civilian employees of the Presidio to assist in keeping the post clean and attractive.

Employees who eat lunch in various post areas are asked to place waste paper in containers and not to strew them on lawns, walks, curbs and driveways.

Further, cigarets, cigars and matches that not only are unsightly but could be the cause of fire, should be placed in the proper receptacles.

Bus facilities at the Pentagon can handle 25,000 passengers an hour.

New Portside Setup Will Speed Returnee Processing in U. S.

Washington (AFPS)—Army enlisted men in grades E-1 through E-4 returning to the U. S. from overseas will be given their new orders at one of three portside reassignment stations under a new policy that goes into effect 1 July.

This eliminates 10 Stateside and two overseas reassignment stations. After 1 July, only those at the major ports of debarkation—New York, Seattle and San Francisco—will continue in operation.

Returnees will be processed and given their leave and new assignment orders at one of these ports.

Previously, single EM below the top three grades were sent to a reassignment station for processing and leave orders. They usually were notified of their future assignment while on leave.

Top three graders, men with dependents and WACs will continue to receive notice of their next Stateside assignment before returning from overseas.

Messages describing the operation of the new policy already have been sent to the field. The regulation governing it—AR 612-60—will be published in the near future.

AAA Best Mess!

HEADQUARTERS BATTERY of the 30th Antiaircraft Artillery group, Fort Barry, was cited for having the best mess hall during the month of May, from among all the AAA defense units in the San Francisco Bay area. Here Colonel P. H. Wollaston, 30th AAA Group commander, presents the Best Mess plaque to M/Sgt. Glen M. Armstrong, Headquarters Battery mess steward. The battery is commanded by Captain Bernard C. Sanders, and this is the fifth time it has been awarded the plaque, the latest previous month being February of this year.

Film on Pottery Making Tonight At Service Club

Walter G. Treadwell, noted bay area photographer, will present his technicolor film, "Maria, the Potter of San Ildefonso," at the Presidio Service club at 2030 hours tonight. It is open to the public without charge.

The film, based on the famous Indian potter of New Mexico, took four years to complete. Each year, as he and Mrs. Treadwell, who is a potter and glazer of note, toured the Southwest, Mr. Treadwell would bring the previous year's shooting of Maria's work for her to see and approve.

When the film was first shown at the Museum of International Folk Art in Santa Fe, New Mexico, 50 members of the Pueblo Indian nation were present for the showing.

Since Maria's approval of the filming of her life's work and techniques in the field of pottery, it is being shown exclusively as an educational documentary at art schools, universities and museums.

Mr. Treadwell next plans a film on the Zuni Indian jewelers.

New Theme!
'55 Letter Writing Contest Open For All Armed Forces Personnel
Washington (AFPS)—For the third consecutive year, the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., is sponsoring a special letter contest for Armed Forces personnel. Several changes have been made in the 1955 contest to increase interest among servicemen.
The theme for this year's contest is "My Stake in the American Way." The Foundation is offering 154 awards—88 more than in 1954—for the best letters.
The top cash award for the best letter is $1,000. New cash awards include one for $500 and two for $250. Other awards include: 50 prizes of $100 (30 more than 1954); 50 George Washington Honor Medals (30 more than last year); and 50 Certificates (25 more than last year).
In addition to the Honor Medal all cash prize winners will be presented a watch.
Letters must be over 100 words and not longer than 500. They will be judged for quality rather than quantity by an awards jury. There is no limit on the number of letters any one person may submit.
Entries must be sent directly to Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Valley Forge, Pa. Closing date for the contest is Nov. 11, 1955. Letters received after the deadline will automatically be entered in the 1956 contest.
Winners of this year's contest will be announced by the Freedoms Foundation, Feb. 22, 1956, at Valley Forge, Pa. Last year's winners included 26 Army men, 15 Navy men, 23 AF men one marine.
Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard personnel on active duty anywhere in the world are eligible to enter the contest. Reservists and National Guardsmen on active duty are also eligible to submit letters. Personnel discharged after submitting letters will still be eligible for the prizes.

Retake for Ray
When scenes for the forthcoming movie "The Gentle Sergeant" were shot in Japan, Mitsuko Kimura balked at kissing Aldo Ray, who plays the title role, as called for in the script. Kissing was un-Japanese, she explained, and frowned upon in her homeland. So Columbia Pictures flew her to Hollywood just to complete the bussing scene. The publicity department swears this is all true and who is to doubt it? "The Gentle Sergeant" is a story of the 27th Infantry Regt., the "Wolfhounds" of Korean War fame.

Raiders Dump Hamilton To Lead BAAF League

Cards Hold Top Place in Presidio Little League Play

The Cards hold top standing in the Presidio Little League to date with a record of four wins and two losses. Percentage wise, the Cards stand at .666.

The Cubs hold a close second in the major leagues with three won and two losses and a flat .600. The Giants hold three wins with three losses, and the Yanks trail the Little League with one won and three lost.

The minor league schedule hasn't started yet in the Little League playoffs. However, practice games indicate, according to statements from Little League officials, that the minor league batters will be playing top-caliber ball.

The Little League Committee is at this time making application for the Presidio Little League to participate in the State Little League Tournament in the early part of August this year. Winners in the State competition will go to the National Tournament at Williamsport, Pa., late in August.

In the event that the Presidio Little League becomes eligible to compete in the State playoffs, an all-star team will be chosen from the eight local Little League teams. Top boys from each of the Presidio teams will represent the local garrison.

The Little League will still sign up boys who wish to participate in the Little League program here, which is the first Little League to be organized on an Army installation. Boys who will not have reached their thirteenth birthdays by 1 August, 1955, are eligible. For information, call M/Sgt. Ralph G. Stone at ext. 3263.

New Keg League

A new mixed bowling league is being formed to bowl on Sunday nights at the Presidio Service Club Alleys. The new league, not yet named, will have 5-man teams of three men and two women, and it will be a handicap league. Teams and individuals interested in bowling with the new league should contact the Sports Office at bldg. 122, ext. 3968. The new keg loop will begin Sunday evening, 17 July, and will roll from 1800 to 2030 hours.

Mule Train!

The Ft. Sill, Okla., grid team, winner of 11 straight games last year, will be coached next season by Lt. Leon "Mule Train" Heath, former Oklahoma All-American.

A PICTORIAL HISTORY of his career in sports, both military and civilian, is reviewed by M/Sgt. Ivan Cahoon of Sixth Army G-3 and his daughter, Barbara Ann Cahoon. Thirty-one years ago Cahoon was Gonzaga University's top lineman. During World War II he was a lieutenant colonel and athletic chief of Fort Belvoir, Virginia. Here at Presidio, M/Sgt. Cahoon was Sergeant Major of the 30th Engineer Group until his recent transfer to Sixth Army Headquarters.

31 Years! Military, Civilian Sports Light Local Master Sergeant's Career

An illustrious career in sports led Presidio's M/Sgt. Ivan Cahoon through many phases of military and civilian athletics, first as a player, then as coach. In 1924 Cahoon was All-Northwest Conference tackle. In World War II, serving as a lieutenant colonel, he was assistant commandant and athletic officer for Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

As a senior at Gonzaga University, Washington, when the undefeated Gonzaga eleven took Northwest Conference, Cahoon was named by Pop Warner for his All-Pacific Coast team. After graduation at Gonzaga, Cahoon moved up to the Green Bay Packers where he played for four of the Packers' best years in pro football.

During the late twenties, the Green Bay boys were the big power in professional football, and in 1929 they won the first World's Championship and were the only undefeated team of the year.

After four years with the Packers, Cahoon went into the coaching field. He handled football, basketball, and track for ten years at Nicolet and West Green Bay high schools in Wisconsin.

Cahoon then moved into the realm of college sports, taking over as athletic director at Monmouth College, Illinois. There he coached football, track, and swimming, in addition to carrying on the administrative duties in sports.

In 1940, Cahoon was back in pro football, working in the newly set-up American League. He organized the Milwaukee Chiefs from the ground up, beginning as far into the initial stages as hiring the first players.

When the United States entered the War in 1941, sports took the sideline, and eventually the American League was disbanded. Cahoon received a direct commission in the Army as captain and was assigned to Officers Procurement for the Seventh Service Command at Kansas City, Missouri.

As a major, Cahoon later moved into Special Services for Seventh Service Command, as athletic chief. He later became chief of special services.

At Fort Belvoir, Virginia, in 1947, Cahoon was assistant post commandant and athletic officer. He was then serving as a lieutenant colonel.

Cahoon originated the Fort Belvoir Invitational Relays where competition included 19 teams from all services east of the Mississippi. Cahoon's track team took third in the initial meet, in competition with the first place combined Army and Air Force team and the second place Navy team.

Before his assignment to the Presidio, Cahoon was in Eniwetok with the AEC. He then returned to Gonzaga University as ROTC instructor.

Shelstad's Homer Nips Airmen As Collins Pitches Six Hitter

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Writer

The Presidio Red Raiders squeaked into the top spot in the BAAF League on the strength of Tuesday's 4 to 3 victory over the previously undefeated Hamilton Air Force Base. The game played on the fliers home field, gave the local nine a five and zero record in league play for the season.

An exciting, tightly played ball game is the best description for this diamond thriller with the locals scoring all four runs in the third and the airmen countering with three in the sixth. Roger Collins went the distance for the Red Raiders, allowing but six hits and striking out 11 men.

Presidio's Jackson opened the third with a sharp single to left, followed by Shannon laying down a perfect bunt sending Jackson on to second. Two consecutive singles by Duke and Miyahara scored the initial run and set the stage for third sacker Roger Shelstad. Shelstad hit airman Klausner's second pitch into left center for a round tripper and the ball game.

The fliers came close in the sixth when airman Kronberger led off with a single to be followed by a triple by Hawk and then Thurman who scored on a misplayed throw from the outfield. This ended the scoring for the day and although both teams threatened in the last three innings they were unable to score.

Last week the Red Raiders didn't fare as well when they dropped a pair of games to the Fort Ord Warriors by the scores of 8-0 and 10-2. The power packed Warriors were unbeatable on their home field and featured a lineup consisting of all pro ball players ranging from class C to triple A.

The Ord nine will make the trip here to play a pair of return contests on the Fort Scott diamond in the near future for what appears to be a must on the sports agenda.

3 Locals To AAU!

Three Sixth Army track and field men will represent the Senior Service in the National AAU Track and Field Meet. The competition will be held today and tomorrow at Boulder, Colorado. The Sixth Army men, all from Fort MacArthur, California, are Fred Dwyer, Lang Stanley, and Charles Capazzoli.

Jim Burns Named Coach For Raider Backfield In '55 Football Season

Sergeant Jim Burns from Headquarters Company, 30th Engineers, will coach the backfield for this year's edition of the Presidio Red Raiders. He was named to the job by Lt. Gene Lynch, Post Sports Officer, because of his extensive experience as a player and coach in the art of pigskin warfare.

Asked what he would emphasize during training, Sgt. Burns commented "through my experience as coach and player, I have found that to be one of the top players on any team you have to condition yourself. During this coming season I will stress conditioning."

Coach Burns' college record consists of four years' experience as a half-back, first at Pierce Jr. college in Los Angeles followed by his last two years at Loyola U. also in the city of the Angels. Last year he coached the Camp Crawford, Japan, Special Troops to second place in the Northern Conference League and attended the far east coaches' clinic.

Davy Crockett Sparks Sales for California's Trappers and Fur Men

California fur buyers and trappers are happily singing "The Ballad of Davy Crockett" these days, with good reason, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

As the sale of the now familiar fur caps mounts, fur buyers are vatching their inventories of lower quality furs drop correspondingly. Formerly these furs were hardly saleable, and trappers often didn't bother to skin out their catches in this category.

Rabbit, gray fox, coyote, and raccoon pelts, which were a drug on the fur market for several years, are moving now, according to George Seymour, supervisor of department hunters and trappers.

He added that the boom probably will not reflect in higher prices to the trapper for several seasons, while present inventories are being moved. However, it will enable him to profitably skin and sell the type pelts which have been extremely slow lately.

Swimmer!

SYRUPPY STROKER—Norm Von Herzen is the top man in the 100 and 200 meter free style on this year's Presidio Swim Team. Norm did his pre-service swimming at UCLA where he broke the varsity record of 13 year's standing by doing the fifty yard free style in the excellent time of 23.3. Last year the swimming medic took second place in the Pacific Coast Conference finals with a 51.7 timing in the 100 yard sprint.

Presidio All-Star Team Named from Intramurals For 6th Army Tourney

Presidio's all-star softball team, formed at the conclusion of the Intramural Softball Tourney, was named today by the Post Sports Office. The team was selected by managers of the intramural teams, who were not permitted to vote for men on their own teams, the Post Sports Officer and the Post Athletic Director.

The Presidio softball team will play in the Bay Area Armed Forces Softball Tourney and the Sixth Army Softball Tourney. Winners in the Sixth Army competition will represent the Command in the initial All-Army Softball Tournament.

The first team includes Jones of Co. C, 6002 SU, at 1B, Bush of 9th AAA at 2B, Cringoli, also from 9th AAA, at SS, Kohlmeier of the Hilltoppers at 3B, Moran from 56 MRU in RF, Isais from 9th AAA in CF, Mathews of 56 MRU in LF. Catchers will be Whitfield of Hqs. Co., 6002 SU, and Kono from Hqs. Co., 6th Army. Coleman from 9th AAA, Ertel from 56 MRU, and Johnson from Hqs. Co., 505th MP will pitch.

Utility men will be Johnson from Hqs. Co., 6002 SU, Tycenski from Co. C, 6002 SU, Van Ausdall from Hqs. Co., 6002 SU, Cope from Co. C, 6002 SU, Staub from 9th AAA, Walker from Co. C, 6002 SU, and Hanley, Ispen, and Albert of the Hilltoppers.

Squaw Valley Selected; Winter Olympic Games Will Be Here in 1960

President of the California Winter Olympics Committee, Alexander C. Cushing cited the awarding of the 1960 Winter Games to Squaw Valley as "a tremendous boost to winter sports in the United States."

The little known California winter resort was awarded the 1960 winter games after Detroit lost out to Rome for the regular games. Squaw Valley will be the second United States site at which the Winter Olympics have been held. The Olympics were conducted at Lake Placid, N.Y., in 1932, the same year the summer games were held in Los Angeles.

Squaw Valley is only a few miles from Lake Tahoe with accommodations for thousands of persons. Nearby Reno is equipped to provide visitors with entertainment and sleeping accommodations. Highways to the area are open the year around and in excellent condition.

Track and Field Records Smashed In All-Army Meet

Records fell by the wayside as soldier contestants hurdled through the recent All-Army Track, Field, and Triathlon events at Kansas State College Stadium, Manhattan, Kansas. Four previous titles were smashed in the first day and the second day brought a continuation of the record-making phenomena.

Rodney Richards, Second Army, started the first day off with a record run in the 220. He scooted across the finish line in 20.9 to break the All-Army and Inter-Service marks.

Next to register was lanky Ted Wheeler, Fifth Army, in the 880. He raced across the finish in 1:50.3 to erase both All-Army and Inter-Service records.

Next assault on the records was by Bruce Drummond, Fourth Army, who ran the 2-mile steeplechase in 10:30.1. He bettered the All-Army mark of 10:40.9, set by Phil Coleman in 1954.

In the high jump, Third Army's John Hall did what was expected when he topped the bar at 6' 7½" to nullify both All-Army and Inter-Service records. The next record fell when Willie Hollie from USEUR leaped 49' 7" to take over the All-Service record.

The 100 hurdles saw Willie Stevens, Fifth Army, break his own All-Army record with the time of 14.3. He was one second off the Inter-Service record of 14.2.

Yale-Army Track Unit Ties Meet With Britons

The combined track and field team from Yale University and the U. S. Army raced to an 8 to 8 tie against an Oxford-Cambridge squad recently in an international meet at White City Stadium, London, England. The Britons led going into the final event, but the Yale-Army team tied the matches by winning the 440 yard relay. Scoring of the meet was based on winners' scores only.

TWO TIME CHAMPS—the 9th AAA softball contingent rose to the top of the Intramural ladder again this year to become softball champions of the Presidio. Captain R. L. Esacson, Battery Commander for Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA, managed and sponsored the team. Sgt. Forrest Coleman is coach and pitcher. The champs won their 1955 title by defeating Headquarters Company, 6002 SU in a tight 2-1 match. The Ack-ackers have a 12 won and no loss record. "Star-Presidian" photo by Pfc. Walt Purcell.

9th AAA Wins Championship In Intramural Softball Tourney

By Pfc. Dick Stewart
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

The Presidio Intramural Softball Tournament came to an eight-inning finish this week when Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA, smashed a narrow 2-1 victory over Headquarters Company, Det. 1, 6002 SU. The tournament win marks the second straight Post championship for the Ack-ackers.

Topping the National Division in the Post softball play-offs for '55, the 9th AAA men stood undefeated with 10 straight victories. In the National-American Division finals, the Ack-ackers came up against the American Division champs, Headquarters Company, 6002 SU.

The Headquarters Company, 6002 SU contingent lead the American Division with 7 wins and 2 losses. In the final lap of the American play-offs, Headquarters Company was tied with the Hilltoppers and had to defeat them in the final division play-off to try for Post championship against 9th AAA.

The contest for Post championship was set-up so that the champs would have to win two out of three play-offs. The Ack-ackers took the first tilt in their second 2-1 victory. However, the second was forfeited by Headquarters Company, giving 9th AAA the necessary double win for Post championship.

In the initial play-off this week, both teams were held scoreless throughout the first seven innings. The match went into the eighth to break the 0-0 tie. The Ack-ackers broke it wide open with a pair of singles and four walks. Davis, hurling for Headquarters Company, walked in both runs for 9th AAA.

Headquarters Company belted three singles in the eighth but they were good for only a single run. At the close of the inning, the score stood 2-1 to give the Intramural honors to 9th AAA.

Forrest Coleman, manager, coach, and pitcher for the 9th AAA, took the mound in the championship try. He gave seven hits, walked three, and struck out nine. Hurling for Headquarters Company, Davis gave only three hits, but walked eight and struck out three.

The 9th AAA championship nine is made up of Ryan at catcher, Coleman on the mound, White at first, Bush at second, Chase at third, and Cringoli at shortstop. Hain was in right field, Isais in center, and Staub in left.

WACs Whip Lawton

The Presidio WACs had to journey to Fort Lawton last Friday in order to upset their northern foes. The local girls got off to an early lead and were never headed as they blasted the Washington nine 16-7. Ruth Gavigan pitched superb ball and with the usual powerful batting attack clicking on all eight the issue was never in doubt.

Racket Kings!

SHAKING HANDS—after a hard fought game for doubles championship are (l. to r.) M/Sgt. Anas Velarde, Pfc. Dick Michaels, Lt. Sigmund Ketterer and Capt. John Fleming. Velarde and Michaels emerged victorious by the scores of 8-6, 7-5. The above four plus Pvt. Mat Schmutz and Cpl. C. J. Blom will represent the Presidio in the Forthcoming Sixth Army Central Division matches to be played here the 6 to the 9 of July. From here the action shifts to the Madigan Army Hospital, Washington, for the All Sixth Army Tennis Finals, the latter part of July.

Skilled Army EM Fly To Overseas Stations; Policy Now in Effect

Washington (AFPS)—Army enlisted men in 21 highly skilled MOS categories are being flown directly to overseas commands under a new policy that went into effect 20 May.

A few of these categories are communications, antiaircraft artillery, guided missiles and medical technicians.

The Army said exceptions to the new ruling, contained in Circular 612-5, will be made when concurrent dependent travel is authorized.

The circular states that these men, who have received long periods of costly training, will travel "by the most expeditious means available" when moving to a different station in the U. S.

Normally, they will be flown by plane, except when the distance to their new command is less than 500 miles or can be reached in 48 hours. This policy will not apply if an EM is traveling in his own automobile to his new duty station.

Pres. Lauds Army-AF National Guard Units With 'Job Well Done'

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower has given a "well done" to the 318,172 Army and Air National Guardsmen who participated in "Operation Minuteman" last April.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, the President said that results of the surprise nationwide alert held April 20 were "outstanding."

He declared that the response of Guard members and units to the practice alert "is deserving of special commendation . . . for a job well done."

At the same time, Gen. Erickson revealed that about 82 per cent of the strength of Guard units participated in the alert.

The General asserted that reports of "Operation Minuteman" proved conclusively that Guard units are capable of assembling rapidly and "can become operational on short notice to serve in local security or emergency travel missions."

Modern Weapons Innovations Build Armed Forces Strength

New York (AFPS) — Numerous new and some startling innovations in the weapons of war have come from the drawing boards and proving grounds of the services in the past year.

It was the year when the world's first atomic submarine, the Nautilus, went to sea and the year of the initial flight of the XFV-1, better known as the Pogo Stick, the plane that takes off on its tail. During the same time, the Army Signal Corps displayed its 100-inch focal length camera which photographs objects 20 miles distant.

Along with these spectacular developments came many advances in virtually all phases of military science. Taken together, they hold untold significance for the nation's future fighting effectiveness.

New and deadlier guided missiles were tested by all three services; among them the Navy's ground-to-air Regulus, the Army's ground-to-ground Redstone and the AF's air-to-air Falcon. The AF also disclosed development of the nation's first intercontinental missile, the supersonic Atlas.

An atomic antiaircraft missile, capable of destroying an entire formation of attacking enemy bombers, was tested at the atomic maneuvers in Nevada.

Other new weapons were non-atomic but nonetheless lethal. To name only a scant few, the Army came up with a 106-mm recoilless rifle, called BAT, which can penetrate any armor now in existence. The Navy produced the Mark 37, the deadliest naval antiaircraft gun developed. The AF tested its long range jet fighter, the F101A Voodoo.

The 12-month list far from ends there. It includes many other combat weapons and an almost infinite variety of innovations in logistics, medicine, safety and other phases of military activity.

Among the latter are the "mechanical mule," the Army's all purpose vehicle, and its plastic barge; a portable X-ray unit developed by the Army Medical Corps; the Navy's ski-like universal landing gear for aircraft landings on mud, snow or water and the AF's four-million watt radar tube.

Post Fire Marshal Department Lauds Scout Fire Safety Training

Fire safety programs of post Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops were termed an ideal field for teaching home safety from fire and accidents this week by Col. William T. Cathcart, post fire marshal.

During the past five years, hundreds of members of the local scout troops have earned firemanship and safety merit badges under a joint scouting and fire department program, which teaches the youngsters fire prevention measures.

Post Fire Inspector Arthur Le Duc, who also serves as counselor to the scout troops on safety and firemanship, stated that training of future citizens to be fire and safety conscious contributes immeasurably to the nation's defense against fires and accidents.

New Bill Would Return Jurisdiction For Military Arrest

A resolution has been introduced in the House calling for abolition of the authority of NATO countries to arrest and imprison U. S. servicemen who violate local laws.

The resolution, introduced by Rep. Frank T. Bow (R-Ohio), would direct President Eisenhower to ask NATO members to repeal Article 7 of the Status of Forces Agreement. The agreement gives member nations legal jurisdiction over military personnel of other NATO allies stationed within their boundaries.

The resolution also would affect non-NATO countries like Japan which have signed similar agreements with the U. S.

VA Rules on Training Credit After Conditional Discharge

Washington (AFPS)—The Veterans Administration has ruled that "conditional" discharges—granted to servicemen only to enable them to change military status—need not bar them from building up further entitlement to education and training under the Korea GI Bill.

Instead, they may continue to accrue GI training time up to the end of the period they originally were obligated to serve.

In its ruling, VA explained that "conditional" discharges usually are granted to permit a serviceman to accept a commission as an officer or warrant officer, or to re-enlist in the regular service. These discharges do not give him the right to leave the Armed Forces; therefore, they are "conditional" not "unconditional."

As an example of how servicemen may built up GI entitlement, VA cited the case of a man who entered the service for a two-year period on Dec. 1, 1954. This week, he received a "conditional" discharge to accept a commission.

Despite this discharge, he will continue to accrue GI training time up to Dec. 1, 1956, the end of his obligated two-year service period—even though he may stay on active duty longer.

The ruling also cleared up two other points—when men and women on active duty must begin their GI training and when training must come to an end.

Korea GI training must start, VA ruled, within three years from the date a serviceman receives his first "unconditional" discharge or release after Jan. 31, 1955.

The training benefits stop eight years from the date of his first "unconditional" release from service, or by Jan. 31, 1965, whichever date comes earlier.

A law, enacted four months ago, permits servicemen on active duty on Jan. 31, 1955, to earn GI training entitlement up to the date of their "first discharge or release from such service."

Entitlement to education and training under the Korea GI Bill, VA explained, is figured at one and one-half times the length of allowable military service up to a maximum of 36 months of training.

The serviceman who accrued entitlement during his two-year service period, then, would be entitled to three full years of training—the maximum.

Although he would stop accumulating entitlement at the end of the two-year period he originally was obligated to serve, his starting deadline—three years from discharge or release—would not be measured from this point.

Instead, it would be measured from the date he received his first "unconditional" discharge or release. Assuming he received such a discharge on May 25, 1957, his three-years-to-start would be computed from that date. Or, he would have to begin GI training by May 25, 1960, at the latest.

Two Courses Scheduled For EMs and Warrants In Meteorology Studies

Army school courses in weather equipment maintenance and artillery ballistic meteorology are now open to both warrant officers and enlisted men.

Warrant officers to qualify for either course must have, or anticipate assignment to an artillery ballistic meteorology section and must have credit for course in trigonometry or plane geometry on the high school level. Enlisted personnel qualifications for the maintenance course include rank E-4 or below, high school credit trigonometry or plane geometry normal color perception and a standard score of 100 on aptitude area IX.

For the ballistic meteorology school enlisted men must be grade E-4 or higher and qualified as ballistic meteorology specialists. Courses will be conducted at the Artillery School beginning as early as 24 June this year. More detailed qualifications and description of the course can be found in Sixth Army Memo number 101, dated 3 June, 1955.

Deadline Approaching For Former K-POWs To File Their Claims

Washington (AFPS)—With the deadline approaching, more than 800 former American prisoners of war in Korea have failed to file claims for compensation to which they are entitled.

In most cases, the final date for filing such claims under Public Law 615 is Aug. 21, 1955, according to the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission.

Former POWs are entitled to $2.50 per day for each day they were held in captivity. In event of their death, claims may be filed by surviving spouse, children or parents. Survivors of POWs who the Defense Department determines have died in prisoner camps may file not later than one year after the DOD affirms their death.

Status Changes!

New Specialists—NCO and MOS Systems Become Policy Today

The encompassing question of Specialist or NCO status will be answered for all Presidio and sub-post enlisted personnel who are affected by the Army's renovated classification system which swings into action today along with a new and streamlined MOS code.

Changes in designations from NCO to Specialist will affect a large percentage of all enlisted personnel in grades E-4 through and including E-7 who do not hold field leadership slots such as first sergeant, platoon sergeant and squad leader.

Although completed statistics listing the percentage breakdown of changeovers are not yet available, it is expected that the local rates will coincide roughly to Department of the Army estimates released earlier this year.

By far, the greatest rate of conversions are occurring in the E-4 grade in which an estimated 98 per cent are being shifted to the Specialist Third Class category. Remaining 2 per cent of the E-4's will continue in the NCO designations.

In grade E-5, 60 per cent are becoming Specialists Second Class leaving 40 per cent as Sergeants.

Master Sergeants will find the least percentage of changes in their status today since only 2 per cent will receive the scheduled reclassification to Master Specialists.

Status redesignations in the Sergeant First Class group also will be on a small scale with roughly 8 per cent of those presently holding E-6 grade moving over to the Specialist First Class category.

Department of the Army pointed out recently that the new Specialist-NCO plan has been implemented to increase the prestige of the noncom, to identify the NCO as an enlisted commander of troops, to effect the necessary distinctions between enlisted field leaders and the specialist, and also to give necessary recognition to specialist requirements.

The specialist will be easily recognized today as he begins the task of replacing his chevrons with the new distinctive arm emblem which is about half the size of the NCO markers and which features a white silk embroidered figure of the symbolic American Eagle.

Grades E-1, E-2 and E-3 will continue to be known as Privates and Privates First Class, but like all enlisted personnel in the Army, they will be given new MOS designations which will show not only their entry group but also the exact job, amount of skill and special qualifications.

The new MOS structure is set up to enable personnel workers to readily determine from the digits in the new code alone, enough data for the efficient handling of assignment and re-assignment.

Although only 383 jobs are listed in the new structure, it can be expanded to cover a thousand jobs in the service.

New Retention Bill

The Defense Department has asked Congress to enact legislation to retain on active duty certain major generals until they reach the age of 62.

The Officer Personnel Act of 1947 provides that permanent major generals in the Regular Army must be retired upon completing five years' service in the permanent two-star grade and 35 years' active duty. Retirement, however, may be deferred until such officers reach 60.

The DOD said that this act has resulted in the loss of many "highly qualified officers who by reason of ability and experience have attained the rank of major general at an earlier age."

Army to Initiate Res. ERP 1 July For Officers—EM

Washington (AFPS) — The Army will start its Emergency Reinforcement Plan in continental army areas on 1 July.

Under this plan reserve officers and EM released from active duty but having reserve obligations are assigned specific jobs they will fill in event of an emergency mobilization.

Designed to quickly fill active duty recall quotas, the plan also is intended to encourage voluntary participation in NG and reserve training programs.

Men selected for ERP positions will be those who are not participating in reserve component units.

They will be designated for three-year periods as reinforcements to active Army units or installations and to NG and reserve units located as close to their homes as possible.

The reinforcement designations can be terminated by men who enlist in the Regular Army or an NG unit, or volunteer for assignment to an active reserve unit.

Obligated reservists who have had prior NG or reserve service generally will be designated to such units. The plan, however, will not be applied to most combat veterans.

The program actually amounts to a "paper" assignment of men with obligated reserve service to jobs that they could fill quickly when mobilized.

The designations will be limited so that no unit or installation will exceed 115 per cent of its authorized strength when it receives its emergency reinforcements.

Army Plans to Appoint 600 More Warrants In Guard, Reserve

Washington (AFPS) — The Army will appoint about 600 additional warrant officers in the Army Reserve and National Guard and call them to active duty in fiscal year 1956.

All qualified enlisted personnel, regardless of grade, currently serving on active duty may apply through their commands for the WO appointments.

Also, qualified members of the Guard and Reserve, both EM and WO's are urged to apply for appointment and concurrent call to active duty under this program at the same time.

Personnel holding appointments as commissioned officers may apply for the WO jobs and concurrent active duty. If selected, they will be appointed temporary AUS warrant officers so that they can retain their reserve commission.

Warrant officer appointments will be made in the following MOS: Master or mate, marine engineer, helicopter pilots, artillery electronic fire control, and a number of guided missile maintenance and repair specialties.

Military Welcome!

General Young Takes Over Following Colorful Ceremonies

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young will assume official command of the Sixth Army today. Following military welcoming ceremonies, General Young is expected to meet with key staff officers for a briefing on problems affecting his new eight-state command.

General Young succeeds Lieutenant General Willard G. Wyman, who has departed on a short leave prior to assuming his new duties as deputy commanding general of the Continental Army Command at Fort Monroe, Va., on 1 August.

Formal farewell honors were accorded General Wyman yesterday.

General Young reports to Sixth Army from Washington, D. C., where he has served since 1953. More recent assignments have included assistant and deputy assistant chief of staff for personnel and deputy chief of staff for special projects with G-1.

It was in these capacities that General Young carried the brunt of the responsibility for streamlining the Army's personnel planning program. Coincidentally, two of the major phases of this new program, the NCO specialist program and the Ready Reserve Emergency Reinforcement Plan, will be officially initiated today.

A veteran combat commander of both Korea and WWII, General Young holds the Silver Star for gallantry in action and a Purple Heart for wounds received during the action. He also has won the DSM with Oak Leaf Cluster; Legion of Merit and Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster.

General Wyman leaves Sixth Army after serving some 17 months as Army Commander. Previous to his assignment here he had served as Commander, Allied Land Forces, Southeastern Europe, with headquarters in Izmir, Turkey. Before that assignment he commanded the IX Corps during the fighting in Korea.

In a special farewell statement to the Star-Presidian, General Wyman said:

"Taking leave, and doing it well, should be one of the social niceties at which the old soldier is the most adept, he has had so much practice. Yet for me it has always been a most difficult obligation. Difficult, because words seem inadequate when we attempt to convey appreciation for loyalty and honest and dedicated effort. These are the qualities that not only make successful leadership possible, but make it a pleasant and proudfest task to command. To the officers and enlisted men of Sixth Army I can sincerely say—It has been a pleasure to serve with you."

During WWII, General Wyman saw combat in both the Pacific and European Theatres. He was operations officer with General Stilwell's Chinese Fifth Army, and assistant commander of the First Infantry Division, participating in the Sicilian campaign and the invasion of Normandy.

General Wyman has been awarded the DSC, DSM, Silver Star, Legion of Merit and Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Presidio Hosts SF Historical Society In Birthday Fete

Deputy Post Commander Colonel Carl E. Lundquist hosted a civic luncheon at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess at noon on Wednesday, 29 June, in honor of the 179th anniversary of the founding of San Francisco.

Presiding at the affair were Dr. Alexander T. Leonard, general chairman of the founding celebration. Dr. Theodore E. Treutlein, Professor of History at San Francisco State College, spoke on "The Royal Presidio of Spain." Music was furnished by the Sixth Army Band.

Prior to the luncheon at the Presidio, Colonel Lundquist placed a wreath on the grave of Captain Jose Joaquin Moraga, cofounder of the Presidio, at the Mission Dolores.

The public was invited to attend both events.

New Tax Proposal

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) has introduced a bill to give retired members of the Armed Forces the same liberalized income tax benefits granted other retired government employees by the Internal Revenue Code Act of 1954. Sen. Humphrey said that, although exclusion of servicemen from the act was a "Congressional oversight," it is costing them about $240 a year. The IRC Act granted retired civilian employees certain credits on their pensions for income tax purposes. An identical bill is being sponsored in the House by Rep. Jere Cooper (D-Tenn.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

hit the road, ma'am . . .

This daring damsel's museum piece no doubt requires a little extra encouragement to proceed. But the 505th MP stationed at Presidio intersections remains steadfast in the performance of his traffic control duties as he makes with the standard, never-varying "GO" signal for traffic approaching from the right after it had originally been stopped. Meanwhile, with his other arm he's signalling all traffic from the left to stop. No matter what signal you receive from the MP it's the safest possible policy to obey and keep Presidio roads and byways safe and convenient.

From the Fourth of July to Labor Day, America's open road is a scene of carnage unequalled by most of the battlefields of history. July and August have become the months of the greatest number of highway auto deaths.

Summer vacationers, the family on a Sunday's outing—and the servicemen on leave—all are lambs for the slaughter.

Few Americans as a group do more traveling by car than members of the Armed Forces. Especially in the summer when most people in the Service try to arrange their leave.

It's not much use going over the traffic safety rules at this late date. Everybody knows them—not everybody applies them. It doesn't take a genius to figure out that the odds on a serious accident happening to you are shorter when you're speeding than when you're taking it easy.

So you know about safety. The important thing is, keep it in the front of your mind this summer when setting out on that trip back home or a two-hour run down to the seashore. (AFPS)

Chaplain (Captain) Ferdinand B. Demsher has become the assistant Post Chaplain at the Presidio of San Francisco.

With the 30th Infantry regiment at Fort Lewis, Washington, for the past six months, Chaplain Demsher was previously in the Far East for two years, serving in Korea with the 30th Ordnance battalion and in Japan with the Southwest Command as deputy command Chaplain. Among his decorations are the Commendation ribbon, the Korean Presidential Unit citation and the Korean theatre ribbon.

One of a family of eight children, Chaplain Demsher's home is in Pennsylvania where he was engaged in parish work at St. James Catholic church, Pittsburgh, prior to entering the Army four years ago.

Graduating from Duquesne university with a B.S. in business administration, Chaplain Demsher studied philosophy at St. Vincent's college, Latrobe, Pa., and received his M.A. in theology from St. Francis Seminary at Loretto, Pa.

Captain Warren E. Patow is now at the Dispensary, Presidio of San Francisco, where he is chief of professional services.

In Germany for the past several years, Captain Patow was with various units there, including the 130th Station hospital, Heidelberg, Germany; the 502nd Armored Medical company, Regensburg; the 98th General hospital, Munich, and the 4th Mobile Army Surgical hospital, Munich and Stuttgart.

The captain was graduated from medical school at Marquette university, interned at Detroit, and attended specialized training in general surgery at Kalamazoo, under the auspices of the University of Michigan, for three years.

In the Army for four years, Captain and Mrs. Patow have a 22-months-old son, Carl.

Captain Lynn R. Munson is newly assigned as special actions officer, Command section, office of the Secretary General staff, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Since August, 1953, Captain Munson has been at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and for the past nine months has been attending the advanced Artillery officer's course there. Prior to that he spent two years with the Alaskan command.

His World War II service was in both theatres, in the Pacific with the 9th Amphibious Task force and in the ETO with the 95th Infantry Division. He entered the Army first in 1942, attended O.C.S. at Camp Davis, North Carolina, and served until 1946 when he reverted to Reserve status. He was recalled to active duty in 1951.

Captain and Mrs. Munson and their two and one-half-year-old son reside in San Rafael.

Lieutenant Douglas P. Barker has spent the past 16 months with 8th Army Headquarters at Seoul, Korea.

He is now in the inspection division of the Ordnance section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In the Army for 11 years, Lt Barker was an enlisted man from 1943 to 1951 at which time he attended Ordnance O.C.S. at Fort Riley, Kansas, and Ordnance school at Aberdeen Proving ground, Maryland, where he remained for a time as tactical officer and instructor in Infantry tactics.

Lt. Barker's World War II service was in the Pacific for 18 months with the First Cavalry division, and earned him three battle stars. He served in Alaska for 18 months beginning in 1946 and in Germany during 1949.

Lieutenant John Heasty has been assigned to the Post Signal section, Presidio of San Francisco.

He has been with KMAG for the past 16 months.

An enlisted man in World War II, he served in the Caribbean, the Philippines and New Guinea. He received a direct commission in 1950 while serving his second tour in the Caribbean.

He and Mrs. Heasty reside here.

Lt. Colonel Walter R. Jorgenson this week became chief of the Finance services division, Finance section, Headquarters Sixth Army. He was among the 55 graduates of this spring's Finance officer's advanced course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, which he had been attending for the past 38 weeks.

In the Far East, prior to schooling, Colonel Jorgenson was assistant comptroller, Korean Communications zone, from July, 1952, to June, 1953, and Post comptroller, Eta Jima Specialist school, Japan, from June, 1953, to April, 1954.

A member of the Army for the past 18 years, the colonel attended Infantry O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1942, as well as the Infantry school. From December, 1946, to May, 1947, he was a student at the Finance officer's basis course, St. Louis, at which time he transferred from Infantry to Finance Corps.

During World War II, Colonel Jorgenson served from November, 1943, to October, 1946, with the G-1 Division, Headquarters European Theatre of Operations, in London, Paris and Frankfurt. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Commendation ribbon. He and Mrs. Jorgenson and their two children are now residing here.

Lt. Colonel James M. Enmeier has joined the Dental section of Headquarters Sixth Army, where he will become executive officer to the Dental Surgeon.

A student at the advanced officer's course, Medical Field Service school, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for the past 10 months, Colonel Enmeier spent the previous three and one-half years in Europe as dental surgeon of the Western Area command.

Receiving his degree from Indiana University, class of 1937, the colonel engaged in private dental practice in Vincennes, Indiana, for three years prior to entering the Army in 1940.

His World War II service was in the ETO with the 13th Infantry regiment from 1940-42, and in combat service from 1943-45 with the 83rd Infantry division, with which he was dental surgeon. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and five battle stars for his ETO ribbon. Colonel and Mrs. Enmeier and their two daughters are presently residing here.

Major Gains B. Hawkins has just completed three years service with Headquarters, 500th Military Intelligence group, Camp Drake, Japan, where he was executive officer of the information and dissemination section of the Headquarters.

His new assignment here is with the G-2 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, and in the fall he will enter Stanford University to pursue study of the Japanese language for a year before returning to Tokyo for further language study.

Major Hawkins received his B.S. from Delta State College, Cleveland, Mississippi, and his M.A. from the University of Mississippi. His civilian occupation was instructor in English and journalism at Greenville, Mississippi, High School. He and Mrs. Hawkins are the parents of three children.

First entering the Army in 1942, the major served three years in the ETO, with the 10th Armored Division 1943-45, and a year's occupation duty with the 2nd Cavalry group. He was released in March, 1946. Recalled to active duty in October, 1950, his first assignment was some 18 months at the Army Language school, Presidio of Monterey. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal awarded by Headquarters, 10th Armored Division, and the first Oak Leaf Cluster awarded by G-2 AFPE.

Major Arnold B. Pospichal's most recent assignment was as chief of the Ordnance supply division, U.S.A. Caribbean, Canal Zone, where he has been for the past 37 months.

His new duty here is that of assistant maintenance and supply division officer, Ordnance section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Major Pospichal was born and educated in Texas where he was engaged in farming prior to enlisting in the Army in 1936, when he served with the 1st Cavalry division. He attended Quartermaster O.C.S. at Fort Lee, Virginia, in 1942.

During World War II, the major served 33 months in the Pacific with the Far East Air Force command, visiting New Caledonia, Epiritu Santo, Guadalcanal, Munda, Biak, Morati and Okinawa, and participating in four campaigns. He now resides in San Francisco with his wife, son and two daughters.

Cheaper Means!

The Army's 280mm atomic gun was one of the first weapons to utilize cheaper alloys for the rings of its recoil system. At one time only silver was used for the recoil systems of heavy artillery pieces.

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

EXTRA EFFORTS LAUDED: Two key NCO's of the Presidio Provost Marshal's Office (L. to R.) M/Sgt. Donald S. McDowell and M/Sgt. Herman L. Green, were given verbal pats on the back this week by Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander (left), for superior ratings which they received in two Criminology courses taken at City College of San Francisco during the last 17 weeks. Knowledge of latest developments in police operations revealed in the college courses is expected to enhance military law enforcement and MP activities at the Presidio.

Learn New Techniques!

Two NCO's Earn Superior Tags In College Criminology Classes

By Cpl. Jack L. Everhart

Star-Presidian Associate Editor

A pair of combat-seasoned Military Police NCO's, M/Sgts. Donald S. McDowell and Herman L. Green, tackled a couple of advanced college-level criminology courses recently and added a host of new techniques to the storehouse of modern police technology used daily in their jobs at the Presidio Provost Marshal's Office.

The two veteran MPs earned superior ratings in the criminology courses which they studied during the past 17 weeks at City College of San Francisco.

Instructed by a traffic expert of the San Francisco Police Department, the class in traffic control and regulation featured scientific and up-to-date methods of traffic control, the application of education, engineering, and enforcement methods to traffic problems, accident investigation and an analysis of sound traffic programs.

The second subject, personal identification, was given by an international fingerprint authority, Mr. Brutis C. Bridges. This course included such studies as theory and practice in fingerprint identification, handwriting and typewriting identification, and an appraisal of laboratory techniques employed by American police departments.

Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, congratulated the two men recently and noted that it is such extra-duty activities as the studies of these NCO's which makes military law enforcement exemplary.

Lieutenant Colonel Keene Saxon, post provost marshal and 505th MP Battalion commander, indicated that the increased knowledge of modern police techniques resulting from the college courses would greatly enhance the traffic control and military law enforcement mission of the Military Police at the Presidio.

Both men are members of Headquarters Company, 505th MP Battalion. Master Sergeant McDowell is operations sergeant of the PMO and M/Sgt. Green is chief of the apprehensions branch of the PMO.

President's Ships!

The immediate construction of two atom-powered merchant marine vessels has been approved by the House Merchant Marine Committee. The group's action followed not long after President Eisenhower's proposal that the U.S. build a nuclear "peace ship."

The President's plan was for a nuclear-powered vessel that would be used for global voyages to demonstrate the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Newly Assigned S-1 Has Had Previous Service at Presidio

Lt. Colonel Archie R. Traynor is newly assigned to the Presidio of San Francisco as the S-1. He succeeds Lt. Col. Roger L. Bilewicz, who has been ordered to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

His former service on the Presidio was as assistant Sixth Army Inspector General.

In the Army for 19 years, he was with the IG section in Korea in 1946 and attended the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1947.

For the past year Colonel Traynor has been with the Korean Communication zone.

He and his wife are now residing in San Francisco.

Who Remembers?

Colonel Stewart Is Assigned New Post Comptroller

Colonel John E. Stewart, Finance Corps, has been assigned to the Presidio of San Francisco to serve as post comptroller.

His last assignment was as post comptroller, Fort George Meade, Maryland, where he has been for the past four years.

In Korea, Japan and the Philippines during 1948-50, he was first executive officer to the budget officer of the 24th Corps and later finance officer, 25th Division.

Colonel Stewart's World War II service was in New York where he was assigned as chief, casualty pay and allotment account division, which administered the "Missing Persons Act." Later he became chief of the Class E Allotment division, St. Louis, Missouri.

Enlisting in 1923, he served in the ranks and was a warrant officer prior to World War II. He was integrated into the Regular Army in February, 1947.

He has attended the Enlisted Finance Course, the Finance Officer's Advanced Course, St. Louis, and the Command Management School, Fort Belvoir, Virginia. In the course of his Army service he has been awarded the Legion of Merit.

Work Simplification!

Nine Medical Lab Personnel Complete Efficiency Training

Nine military and civilian personnel of the Sixth Army Medical Laboratory were presented certificates of training by Col. John E. Stewart, the new post comptroller, for completing a course in Work Simplification this week.

This course is a part of the Sixth Army Management Program which has set a goal to train at least 80 per cent of the supervisory personnel at all Class I installations during the fiscal year 1956.

Conducted by Mr. Walter McEvoy of the post comptroller section, the training consisted of six two-hour sessions, broken down into three classroom meetings and three practical demonstrations in the laboratory.

The five basic techniques of work simplification — work distribution chart, flow process chart, work count, motion economy and layout studies — were illustrated in this training course by the use of Department of the Army training aids.

Following the lectures, problems were assigned and their solutions were discussed and analyzed by the instructor during the next class session. A student thus learned the techniques by direct application to a specific current situation in his work area during the practical demonstrations.

By use of one or more of the work simplification techniques, the students could see solutions to problems confronted in their own section and create a more efficient operating set-up.

This work simplification program was presented to Sixth Army Medical Laboratory at the request of Lt. Col. Harold E. Shuey, commanding officer of the unit.

Colonel Stewart, in presenting the certificates, stated that "the techniques employed in Work Simplification gives us a systematic way to improve our operations from within. Work simplification is a well planned approach to solving work problems."

Those who received a certificate of training were: Capt. Edwin L. Shepherd, Sfc. George Leake, Sgt. Glenn Davis, George J. Omi, Harry W. Norman, George E. Klink, Barbara M. Grier, Beatrice L. England, and Miriam B. Beneditz.

117th Engineers Spark Bond Drive With 100% Record

If enthusiasm for the purchase of United States Savings Bonds by the 117th Engineer Detachment of the 30th Engineer Group has been carried over to other units at the Presidio and sub-posts, then the goal of 85 per cent participation may have been met.

Everyone from the Company Commander, 2nd Lt. James W. Jennings, to the newest enlisted man in the organization has jumped on the "Bond Wagon" and are now purchasing bonds through the systematic payroll deduction plan.

Present strength of the unit is one officer and 13 enlisted men. The organization was activated at Ft. Belvoir, Virginia, in March this year and became a detachment of the 30th Engineer Group in April.

Sixth Army and post accounting of the initial phase of the 1955 Bond Drive which ended yesterday has not been completed but it is expected that the participation goals will have been achieved.

Persons who declined purchase of the savings bonds through the payroll savings plan may still sign up for the deduction program.

Birthday Cake!

On the Job!

SUMMER TRAINING: The 6211th ARSU, Station Complement, is one of hundreds of reserve units which this summer is spending two weeks or longer in unit-wide full-time training. Here, Lt. Col. Keene Saxon, post provost marshal, discusses portions of the training schedule of reservists assigned to the PMO with Maj. Max Allen and M/Sgt. Frank Barbee. The 6211th will complete its on-the-job training cycle on 3 July.

Citizen-Soldiers!

6211 ARSU Reservists Nearing End Of Two-Week Training Schedule Here

If many of the desks at Post Headquarters sections and at local units seem to have been occupied by more than one person during the past ten days, chances are that the additional personnel noticed were members of the 6211th ARSU, Station Complement.

This reserve unit with home base at Ft. Ord, is presently on-post completing the final phases of a two-week on-the-job training cycle.

The 60 officers and enlisted reservists have been busy acquiring the latest slants on military operations and administration since 19 June.

Not just observers, the reservists in many cases perform the routine functions of the job assigned them and are thus placed in a position to add to their knowledge of post staff activities.

Most members of the unit, commanded by Col. Julian A. Walker, live in the Santa Clara Valley-Monterey Peninsula area and have served previously in active Army positions.

The 6211th will complete its summer training at the Presidio on 3 July.

Tack Class Q Rider On New Doctor Draft; Draft Extension Law

A Senate-House conference committee has agreed on legislation extending the draft for four years and the doctor draft for two years.

Early action on the extension of the two draft laws, both of which will expire 30 June, is expected by the Senate and House.

The conferees agreed on a Senate amendment lowering the draft liability of National Guard members from the age of 35 to 28. The House earlier had cut off the liability at 26—the same age as for other men eligible for induction.

Tacked on to the same measure is a four-year extension of Class "Q" allotments for the dependents of enlisted men and a continuation of the $100 monthly bonus for doctors.

A change in the present draft law approved by the committee reduces to 45 the maximum age at which doctors can be drafted, five years less than the existing law.

New DOD Res. Award To Honor Companies Pushing the Program

Washington (AFPS)—The Defense Department has established a Reserve Award to be given to business organizations rendering outstanding cooperation in their policies toward military reservists and reserve activities.

Any employer, company or business, regardless of size or number of reservists employed, is eligible. The award is a bronze plaque with a certificate and display pennant.

Company policy in granting leave specifically for annual reserve tours will be one factor in making the award. Another is whether full pay or differential between company and military pay is given to employees called to active duty.

Also considered will be whether a company hires and promotes reservists without discrimination.

Reservist employees can make recommendations for the award through military channels. Final review will be made by a special committee, which will report to the Secretary of Defense.

New Ruling Would Pay WW II POWs Who Justify Claims

Washington (AFPS)—The U.S. Foreign Claims Settlement Commission has announced that certain American citizens are now eligible for prisoner of war benefits.

Those eligible are U. S. citizens who served in the military or naval forces of any government allied with the U.S. during WW II, and were held as prisoners of war by an enemy nation after Dec. 7, 1941.

Compensation up to $2.50 per day may be paid for the period of imprisonment, with payment coming from seized assets of enemy governments during WW II.

In cases where the individual entitled to compensation has died, the surviving widow, husband, children or parents may claim payment.

The commission emphasized that all such claims must be filed on or before Aug. 31, 1955. Application blanks may be obtained from the U.S. Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, 7th & E Sts., N. W., Washington 25, D.C.

CARE to Continue 'Food Crusade' Plan To Overseas Needy

Washington (AFPS)—Encouraged by the response to its 1954 "Holiday Food Crusade" for distributing surplus U.S. farm produce abroad, CARE has decided to continue the program this year.

Under this arrangement, a dollar contributed to CARE—short for Cooperative for American Remittances to Everywhere, Inc.—provides for shipment of 17 and a half pounds of food to needy families overseas, and 100 pound packages for institutions. The food is supplied without charge by the Department of Agriculture. The dollar asked by CARE covers the cost of shipping.

More than 1,500,000 such packages were shipped abroad last year. CARE officials anticipate this year's total will be more than 300 million pounds.

Home Via Phone!

MARS Station Provides Voice For Alaska-Mapping Engineers

Bridging the distance between elements of the 30th Engineer Group's Task Force ALASKA and their stateside dependents is a 1000-watt MARS radio station located at Battery Godfrey, which facilitates cost free phone patches and radio messages.

Phone patches handled by the 30th's station, AA6WDG, are virtually two party telephone conversations differing from standard telephone communications in two respects. First the messages are transmitted via the radio circuits rather than telephone wires and secondly, conversation is one way.

This means that only one party can speak at a time and when finished the circuit is turned over to the operator at the other end, and the other party can then speak.

When radio contact is made by AA6WDT with a 30th Engineer in Alaska desiring to speak to a dependent in the Bay Area, station AA6WDG operator simply dials the person's number. As soon as the phone is answered the radio circuit is relayed over the phone and the phone patch begins.

Calls going to dependents living in other sections of the country are relayed to the MARS station nearest them which in turn makes the telephone contact.

The MARS station is also used by the organization as a means of administrative communication when the messages do not involve classified matters. Last month this station handled 41 phone patches and 146 standard or third party radio messages.

Another amateur radio station, K6WAS, operated by the group at the same location but not affiliated with MARS, handles nearly 100 messages and 50 phone patches each month.

Both stations were constructed entirely from surplus and salvaged materials. The MARS station is operated by Sfc. Frank Nelson and the amateur station controls are manned by Pfc. Alfred W. Schottman with Pvt. Harry Carroll on hand to assist in the operation of both stations.

Phone patches and messages, except where an emergency is involved, are on a first come first served basis. Persons wishing to contact members of the 30th Engineer Group in Alaska may reach both radio stations by dialing Extension 5597. The stations are generally open seven days per week from 0800 to 2300 hours.

Summertime Ho!

Because the theme for the month of August at the Fort Baker Service club will be, "In the Good Old Summertime," plans must get under way right now for the "Melerdrama," extravaganza and the barbershop quartet competitions which will be part of the fun. Monday night (4 July) tryouts for the melodrama will be held and everything from thespians to stage crews will be needed. Then on Friday night (8 July) prospective barbershop quartets will compete for the big August shindig. Saturday (9 July) at 1400, the initial meeting of the Fort Baker Camera club will be held and it is hoped to expand the group's activities to include field and town trips as well as lectures and exhibits. All interested camera fans may join the club Saturday.

K-Vet Enrollment Under the GI Bill Grows Fast in '55

New York (AFPS)—Korean veterans are taking advantage of the Korean GI Bill of Rights training programs in increasing numbers, the Veterans Administration has said. Enrollments in April, 1955, were almost double those of April, 1954.

According to the VA, college enrollments rose to 325,000 on April 1, an increase of 31,000 over the peak figure of 294,000 at the end of 1954.

Enrollments in schools below the college level stood at 178,000 on April 1, an increase of 14,000 over the December 1954 total.

Talent Show Set

There is no type of entertainer who won't be welcome at the tryouts to be held Monday, 11 July, at 1930 hours at the Presidio Service club. Most especially, those in charge hope to obtain the services of a combo, but singers, dancers and comedians, the works, all will find a place in the big soldier talent show which is set to open on 21 August. Under the direction of Sgt. Stan Dreyfuss, the show will be a simulated radio broadcast, and the theme will remain a big secret until opening night.

Army 'Skysweeper' To be Improved; Computer Changed

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has disclosed that it is improving the Skysweeper, its radar-controlled anti-aircraft gun.

Taking advantage of recent electronics advances, the Army said improvements on the Skysweeper's radar and computer will make the weapon "significantly more effective against hostile aircraft."

The improvements have been introduced in current production. Modification kits are being procured to make the necessary changes in weapons previously manufactured.

Brain Trust!

Red Raider Pigskin Coaches Are Named for 1955 Season

By Pfc. Dick Stewart
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Larry McInerney, former St. Mary's lineman and coach for Fort Ord, will head the Red Raider coaching staff for 1955, the Presidio Sports Office announced this week. The coaching staff will include Steve Glick, line coach; Jim Burns, backfield coach, and George Hatzis, assistant coach.

Training for the Red Raider gridiron crew will commence on 5 July at the Presidio. The local eleven will work out every afternoon and on Saturday mornings throughout the summer. The first game will be scheduled early in September.

Thirty-five pigskin hopefuls have signed the roster as of this week. Commenting on prospects for the '55 season, Head Coach McInerney said, "Since most of the men now signed up are short on experience, a good training schedule will be the most decisive factor at this time."

McInerney, a corporal assigned to the 9th AAA at Fort Baker, began playing football at Polytechnic High School in San Francisco. He went on to Menlo Park Junior College where he played guard for a year.

At St. Mary's, McInerney played guard for two years, but was sent to the hospital with an injury in the second year. The following year, his injury kept him from playing, so he coached the freshman line to an undefeated season.

Continuing in the coaching field, McInerney coached the line for his old high school, Polytechnic, in San Francisco. In the Army, he coached the line for the powerful Fort Ord Warriors.

First Lieutenant Steve Glick, assistant budget officer with the Post Comptroller Section, coached the local garrison last season. He played football for Beverly Hills High School in Beverly Hills, California, then played four years for Cal. With the Golden Bears, he lettered in guard and tackle in his last two years and was given the Bob Tessier award in 1951 for the most improved lineman.

Backfield mentor Jim Burns from Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group, played two years for Pierce Junior College in Los Angeles, California, and another two years as half-back for Loyola University. He coached Camp Crawford, Japan, to second place in the Northern Conference League.

George Hatzis was line coach for last year's Raider grid contingent. He was a three-year letterman for Balboa High School in San Francisco and played freshman ball for Cal. An injury kept him off the field as a lineman, however. He plans to return to play for Cal after his tour of duty is completed. Pfc. Hatzis is assigned to Headquarters Company, Det. 1, 6002 SU.

THE BIG SPLASH for the Presidio swimming team will be the All-Sixth Army swim meet at Fort MacArthur, 13-15 July. Top row (l. to r.) are Jim Stuart, 100- and 200-meter free styler; Ron Golden, 400- and 800-meter free styler, individual medley and butterfly; Arnold Vandenberg, 200-meter breast stroker; Dale Coleman, 100-meter free styler. Kneeling are George Marriatt, 200- and 400-meter free styler; Peggy Harris,

WAC'S Rally, Nip Alameda WAVES In Even Contest

Surging from behind in the next to last inning, the Presidio WACs overcame an early Alameda lead and went on to win a closely played contest, 5 to 3.

The "Hellkittens" jumped off to an early lead with a three run outburst in the third and seemed on their way to an upset win behind the fireball pitching of Carol Powell. But the local girls were not to be denied as they gathered one run in the fourth, three more in sixth, and added one in the seventh to clinch a hard earned win.

The contest played at the Navy's home diamond featured fine pitching by both pitchers. Ruth Gavigan went the entire route for the local nine, giving up 10 hits, striking out four and walking but one batter. Except for the second inning she shut out her opponents for the remainder of the game.

Carol Powell pitched for the Alameda squad, doing a fine job as she held the local WAC nine to one of their lowest scoring games of the year. She struck out six batters, walked three and gave up 13 hits over the seven inning contest.

Other highlights of Tuesday's softball thriller include the accidental beaming of Dolores Argue by the Naval hurler and Peggy Harris's home run in the fourth for the Presidiennes' initial run of the game.

MRU Keglers Lead Eastern; Hilltoppers Roll Second Place

Topping the Eastern Bowling League standings is the 102nd MRU contingent with 31 points won and 9 lost. The Hilltoppers, team No. 6, are second with 26 won and 14 lost, and the Pick Uppers are in for a narrow third with 25 and 15.

Bryant is high roller for the 102nd MRU with a high game of 202 and an average of 172. Willard leads the Hilltoppers with a 156 average and a 174 high roll. Top kegler for the Pick Uppers is Leonard with a 148 average.

Individual high game for the Eastern goes to Crandall with 238 and Goodnight holds average at 179. Bryant holds first high series for the Eastern League with a 593. Thirty keglers in the Eastern League have rolled games of 200 or over.

Sixth Army Signal leads the Pacific League with 20 won and 4 lost. The 505th MP Battalion holds second and third places in the Pacific with Baker Company second and Headquarters Company third.

Dawson holds high rolling record for the Sixth Army Signal group with a 223. High average goes to Adair at 171. Dickey leads the B Company MPs with a 216 high game and a smashing 184 average. Goodnight is high man for the Headquarters Company men with a high average at 159. Pfeiffer rolled high game at 222.

Individual high game for the Pacific was rolled by Thorne of the Keystone Kops with a 242. Dickey of Company B, 505th MP Battalion, holds high series at 583 and also holds individual high average with his 184.

Latest reports indicate Sixth Army Signal also leading the Presidio League with 17½ won and 6½ lost. The Fort Baker Engineers are second with 15 won and 9 lost, and the Mix-Ups are third with 14½ and 9½.

Weekly high game for Sixth Army Signal in the Presidio set went to Oakley with 187. High average went to Adair with a 173.

Touch Football!

A new intramural sport looms in sight as the Presidio Sports Office announced that a new touch football league is in the process of being formed. The new league will feature teams of six men, which makes for a wide open brand of ball. Interested companies or sections should contact the Sports Office at 3968, as play is expected to start later this month.

1st Half of Little League Slate Closes Tomorrow; Cards Hold Solid Lead

As the major leaguers of the Golden Gate Little League go into the final game of the first half tomorrow, the Cards lead the league with six wins and two losses. The Giants hold second place in the standings with four wins and three losses.

In third place, the Cubs have a record of four wins and four losses for the first half of the schedule. Trailing the major league are the Yanks with one win and six losses.

The major league schedule will go into the second half the latter part of July, with the first game coming up on 16 July, the Yanks against the Cards. The second half terminates on 13 August and playoffs will be on 20 August.

The minor league began late in the season with the first game on Monday, 27 June. Second half of the minor league schedule will commence on 11 July.

3 Musketeers!

Letterman Fencers In Sports 'First' At US National Tourney

A three-man team from Letterman Army Hospital sliced into the annals of sports history recently in the Amateur Fencing League of America's annual U.S. National competition. The LAH group was the first Army fencing team from Sixth Army ever to enter a national competition.

The three-man team, consisting of Col. Laurance Brownlee, Sgt. Herb Rhodes and Cpl. Jose Tafoya, left here the first week in June to compete in the U.S. National Fencing Championships, held this year in New York.

The Letterman trio, Pacific Coast champions, did well in team events as they took fifth place in the Sabre event, eighth in the Epee and eighth in the three-weapon contest. This is quite an accomplishment for a new team as there were approximately 230 contestants entered in this year's world series of fencing. Out of this number only 12 men entered in three-weapon competition and of these 12 three were from Letterman.

Since next year is Olympic year the local bladesmen are looking forward to a year of strong competition prior to the next National where they hope to gain a spot on the Olympic squad.

The fencing Medics were selected as judges in all of the final matches which is a distinct honor since the final decision as to winning or losing a bout rests with the judges and director.

Other armed services were well represented with Navy sending a strong team from Annapolis, headed by Capt. L. Doughty and for the Navy as a whole by Sewall Shurtz, the National Epee Champion for 1955.

Camp Lejeune, N. C., recently held its second annual spring football clinic. Indiana University's head coach, Bernie Crimmins, and two of his assistants were the tutors.

Linksmen Tee-Off Here On Tuesday In Post Tourney

More than 35 local linksmen are now signed up to tee-off in the annual Presidio Golf Tournament at the Presidio Course next Tuesday, 5 July. Golfers may enter the competition as late as 0800 hours Tuesday morning, when a meeting of contestants is scheduled in the Post sports office, building 122.

Among the golfers now signed up for the tourney are Lt. Col. Thomas Ward, last year's Sixth Army senior division champion, and Capt. Rollin Kapp and M/Sgt. Sid Domingue from the Presidio golf team. George Van Ausdall, local low carder, also appears on the roster.

The Presidio Tournament will be a medal play competition and is set up for 72 holes. The first 18 holes will be the qualifying round. Qualification scores will be announced later by the Post sports office.

The top seven linksmen in the Presidio contest will represent the home garrison in the Sixth Army Golf Tournament, 18-22 July. The Command event will be a match-play tournament on the new Fort Ord Course.

Official rules of the United States Golf Association will govern both the Presidio and Sixth Army Tournaments. The Post tourney will also be run under the Presidio Golf Club summer rules.

Collins Wiffs 21 In 19-5 Rout; Cringoli's Homer Leads Way

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Writer

Presidio chucker Roger Collins curve-balled his way to 21 strikeouts as the hapless Two Rock Ranch nine fell 19-5. The young right hander did his pre-service twirling in a New York State league.

The rout was scored over the once-potent Two Rock Ranch nine and featured heavy hitting by the Red Raiders in winning their sixth straight league game of the current season.

Collins over the nine-inning contest gave up five runs on five hits and five walks while his mates were pounding Riley and then Hitzlmen for 13 hits plus numerous errors in winning one of their most decisive victories.

The locals started with a bang as leadoff man Jackson singled, Shannon was safe on an error, center-fielder Duke singled, followed by Miyahara's long fly ball that was finally caught for the first out. By then three runs were across the plate and before the first inning was over two more had come in making it 5 to 0. The Red Raiders went on to add three tallies in the second, six in the sixth and closed out the game with a five-run burst in the eighth.

Tom Cringoli, who played on this year's championship ninth AAA softball team, started his second game at shortstop and hit the game's only circuit clout in the sixth with a pair of mates aboard.

Last Saturday the Raider squad journeyed to Treasure Island to whip a strong Navy nine 11-2. Poole pitched a cool six-hitter while the locals were gathering up 14 hits and the win off Navy hurler Shaver.

The next league game for the top running Raiders is when Hamilton AFB comes here Wednesday for what should be a thriller. The last contest between these rival nines ended with a narrow 4 to 3 win for the Raiders, so next week's clash should be a closely played affair.

22 Tennis Champs Start Tournament Here Next Week

Twenty-two top tennis players from four installations in Sixth Army's central division swing into competition next week as the central division tournament begins here on 5 July. Winners in the central division contest will go into the Sixth Army Tournament at Madigan Army Hospital, Washington, later in July.

Representing Presidio in the open division will be Lt. Col. Gerry Sage, M/Sgt. Anas Velarde, Cpl. Chris Blom, Pvt. Mat Schmutz, M/Sgt. Pasol, and Lt. Genner.

Lieutenant Colonel Victor Fox and Capt. John Fleming will compete for the local garrison in the senior division. In the women's division Maj. Elizabeth Hoisington and Sgt. Elsie Davis will play for Presidio.

Toughest competition for the Presidians will come from the Fort Ord contingent. Top man for the Warrior crew is Pfc. Wallace Vickery, Sixth Army singles champion and doubles runner-up in 1954.

Another Warrior who promises to be hard to beat is Lt. Conway Catton, former Northern California title holder who was ranked 21st in the U.S. for 1951. His teammate, Lt. Jim Cornish, was National Hardcourt doubles champion and Northern District champ.

Past Champ

SIXTH ARMY singles champ and doubles runner-up for 1954, Pfc. Wallace Vickery, is the strongest contender for the 1955 crown in the Central Division Tennis Tournament. The competition will be hosted by Presidio next week. Vickery, who represents Fort Ord, will have two western net champions as team mates in the tourney.

The pro Minneapolis Lakers have signed basketball star Bob Williams of Sheppard AFB, Texas.

At Sword's Point!

EN GUARDE! Sgt. Herb Rhodes, Col. Laurance Brownlee, and Cpl. Jose Tafoya (l to r.) fenced Letterman Army Hospital into the U. S. National blade finals for the Amateur Fencing League of America. The LAH team was the first from Sixth Army ever to fence in the Nationals. They won a fifth place in the sabre event, eighth in epee, and eighth in the three-weapon try. America's top swordsmen participated in the tournament.

Perfection Needed!

Presidio's Safety Statistics Improving
As Accident Frequency Slows Down

Although accidents are rarely planned, safety measures and the avoidance of accidents frequently produce the best results when safety planning and safety consciousness have been religiously applied.

A survey of last month's accident frequency rate at the Presidio shows that drivers of Army vehicles and locally attached personnel are doing just a little more safety planning than was done in previous months and are thus helping to reduce the incidence of accidents chargeable to the Presidio.

In all, 10 motor vehicle accidents were registered last month. A listing of the causes and contributing factors indicates that added safety consciousness and planning might have reduced the accident frequency rate to zero.

Four of these mishaps were caused by assuming the right of way while one accident in each case was caused by wrong lane or position, following too closely, failure to signal, improper turn, improper parking and an animal jumping into the roadway.

Government property damages resulting from the ten mishaps amounted to $1,416.09 with non-government damages running to a total of $1,262.00.

Twelve other type accidents also occurred during the last month. Two resulted in fatality to two military personnel, three military and four civilian personnel were disabled, one fire broke out, and three other cases involved property damages.

Over-all property damage produced by these accidents meant a loss of $1,028 to the Army and $240 to non-Army sources.

As the figures for vehicle and other type accidents reveal, accidents are as costly as they are needless. There is little consolation in the fact that a continued decrease in the accident rate will give the Presidio a favorable showing for the year when loss of life and wasteful property damage continue.

British Sub-machine Gun
Soon Becomes Standard
NATO Troop Equipment

The British Sterling sub-machine gun may soon become standard equipment for NATO forces. Weighing six pounds and firing 575 rounds of 9 mm. ammunition a minute, the Sterling has been battle tested in Korea, Malaya, and Kenya. Among its features are accuracy up to 200 yards, a self-cleaning breech block that automatically removes fouling, and a double-feed 34-round magazine.

When its butt is folded away the gun can be fired with one hand like a pistol. The Sterling has been adopted by the British Army, replacing the Sten gun. It is expected that it will soon be put into mass production in Canada, since 15 countries have already placed orders.

Airborne Fraternity
Establish New Award
Honoring Ernie Pyle

Fayetteville, N. C. (AFPS) — "Ernie" awards, honoring the famed WWII correspondent, Ernie Pyle, have been established by the Airborne Assn., national paratrooper fraternity, for outstanding accomplishments in journalism and related fields.

The first 10 winners will be named at the association's convention in Washington, D. C., July 4. Each winner will receive an 18-inch bronze statuette of Ernie Pyle.

The 10 "Ernie" awards will be given for outstanding contribution toward national security by: (1) news reporting, (2) a newspaper columnist, (3) an editorial, (4) an article in a periodical, (5) a radio broadcast, (6) a television broadcast, (7) an author of a book, (8) a cartoon, (9) a still photograph and (10) a motion picture.

Colonel's Luck!

Neophyte Prospector Strikes
Million Dollar 'Hot Rock' Lode

A uranium hunt which cost $3,000 may pay off in millions for Col. Benjamin E. Thurston, USA (Ret.), formerly assistant training inspector of the 5th Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Ark.

The colonel, a partner and a small prospecting crew carried on a 10-day search for the precious metal in the southeastern corner of New Mexico. It's a rugged and arid region where drinking water is hard to come by and sand storms are a daily hazard. The party traveled in jeeps.

Studying geologists' maps and "hot location" tips from the Atomic Energy Commission, Col. Thurston and his co-workers staked out some 500 claims on government-owned land which has been opened to prospecting. They struck pay dirt using scintillometers, instruments more sensitive to radioactivity than the Geiger counter.

So promising are their claims, the colonel and his partner have received numerous offers from mining companies—one reportedly for more than 2 million dollars. But they say they're waiting for still higher bids.

Col. Thurston has no mining or engineering background. He had never tried prospecting before except for holiday or weekend trips into the desert.

But, he admits, not every prospector is as fortunate. In fact, the odds against discovering a uranium deposit are believed to be 10,000 to 1.

To Shine or . . . ?

RIGHT FORMULA? Pfc. Robert Nation of Company A, 505th MP Battalion, ponders this question as he prepares to spit-shine his combat boots. Seems the Army has recently become a little more than concerned with color changes made in boots and shoes by its spit 'n shine soldiers. Regulations require the color of boots to russet and low quarters, tan. Dies and polishes used on the foot-gear should be as near possible to the original colors of the leather when it was first issued.

Troop Information Conference Slates
Survey of American Documents, People

"America's Greatest Asset—Its People," is slated as the featured topic at Presidio and sub-post troop information conferences next week, it was announced by the Post T.I.&E. office this week.

The conference will open with a brief survey of three documents, the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, which have safeguarded popular control of the government.

The proposition that governments exist to serve the people was emphatically stated in the revolutionary Declaration of Independence which spurred the colonials to oppose British rule.

The actual formula for the American Government was established in the Constitution which prescribed control by the people through representation. The Constitution also significantly established a system of checks and balances among the executive, legislative and judiciary branches to further secure the representative system.

Guarantees of freedom to all citizens were incorporated as the first ten amendments to the Constitution, known as the Bill of Rights.

It will be pointed out that from the revolutionary days to the present period the basic factor which has made America great is the willingness of its people of diverse racial, cultural, economic and social backgrounds to guard and protect these freedom-giving documents.

The making of America is of many nationalities of people molded together into one nation, under one flag, with one thought in mind: to make and keep our land free from the slavery of dictatorship.

Also stressed will be the idea that the danger of dividing the nation springs primarily from prejudice. With the use of common sense understanding, America will continue to break down and destroy this threat to the security of freedom and equal opportunity to all.

Membership Optional
In Open Off., NCO
Messes, DOD Rules

Washington (AFPS)—The Defense Department has issued a directive that membership in officers' and non-commissioned officers' open messes is voluntary.

According to the directive eligible personnel should continue to be encouraged to join such messes.

But it adds, that "under no circumstances will membership be placed on a mandatory basis."

DOD officials explained that the directive does not conflict with existing practices of the services, but makes explicit the principle of voluntary membership in open messes.

Note Anniversary

In observance of the 60 years which the Army and Air Force Exchange service has been serving the Armed Forces, the Presidio Main exchange will be featuring bargains all through the month of July. Actual anniversary date is 25 July. Beginning 1 July at the Post Exchange, special purchase men's sport shirts will be on sale for $1.60 and $2.60, and name brand women's slips for $2.60.

U. of Mich. Law School
Slates Special Plans
For Spring Admissions

The University of Michigan Law School has announced plans which will accommodate a substantial number of persons being discharged from military service too late to enter school in the fall semester. The school will admit a class of beginning students in the spring semester of 1956.

Persons seeking admission in this term should submit application to the Admissions Officer, University of Michigan Law School, Hutchins Hall, Ann Arbor, Michigan, not later than 1 Jan., 1956.

Applicants are required to submit a satisfactory score on the law school admission test which will be administered in August and November, 1955. This test is given by Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, New Jersey, at numerous centers around the country.

New Bill Would Force
Army, AF Payments
On Auto Shipment

Legislation to require Army and Air Force personnel to pay the cost of shipping their automobiles to and from overseas commands on MSTs ships, has been introduced in the House by Rep. Bruce R. Alger (R-Tex.). The bill makes no mention of Navy personnel.

Mr. Alger also introduced another measure which would provide for a survey of all commissaries and post exchanges by the U.S. Comptroller General.

The latter official would be required to determine "whether the intent of Congress" is being carried out with respect to operating cost, benefits derived by military personnel, and the income that would be derived from such stores if they were operated by private enterprise.

New Volume of Latest Army History
Features QM in WWII

Washington (AFPS) — "The Quartermaster Corps: Organization, Supply and Services," the second of four volumes telling the story of the QMC in WWII, has just been published by the Army.

The book relates the corps' wartime duties in connection with the health, comfort and well-being of American troops, as well as its role in supplying food, clothing and equipment.

The new history was published on the 180th birthday of the corps—June 16.

The volume can be purchased for $4.00 from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

'little' drops of nerve gas . . .

A nerve gas so potent that even a tiny "droplet" can be fatal is being produced by the Army Chemical Corps at its Rocky Mountain Arsenal.

An Army announcement said the new gas, known as "G" gas, is being stored at various Army chemical warfare installations in the U.S.

Disclosure of the deadliness of "G" gas was made in a Chemical Corps booklet issued to tell how to give first aid to laboratory workers who might be exposed to it. The booklet was published by the Army Chemical Center at Edgewood, Md.

There are several types of nerve gasses, many of them known for years. They are virtually colorless and odorless and can take the form of either liquid or vapor.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 8 July, 1955

Star Conference

NEW ARMY COMMANDER Lieutenant General Robert N. Young (right) chats informally with Deputy Commanding General Major General William F. Dean, following official welcoming ceremonies on the Presidio, last Friday. During the staff conference that followed, General Young expressed personal admiration for General Dean, his leadership and accomplishments and reemphasized General Dean's continuing responsibility as second-in-command.

Bon Voyage!

Fort Mason Launches Final Stages Of Army's 'Operation Gyroscope'

"Operation Gyroscope" became a reality at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation this week for 366 Army dependents as they embarked on the USS General A. E. Anderson for Japan.

Today the Port of Embarkation will place 365 women and children aboard the USS General J. C. Breckinridge to complete the Pacific Coast's first movement of its kind in the post-war period.

They are the families of members of the 508th Regimental Combat Team (Airborne) of Fort Campbell, Ky., which is being moved en masse under the Gyroscope unit rotation plan to replace the 187th RCT (Airborne) which is returning for permanent station at Fort Bragg, N. C. A similar movement involving transfer of the 10th and 1st Divisions between Fort Riley, Kansas, and Germany is under way on the Atlantic Coast.

On hand to see their families off on the Anderson and the Breckinridge were their husbands and fathers. After assisting the women and children through processing and embarkation, the military personnel head for Travis Air Force Base to meet the Tactical Air Command planes which are carrying 3800 military personnel of the unit to the new station.

They will be on hand to greet the families and help them get settled in their new homes when the transports arrive at the port of Moji, on the west coast of Japan. At Moji the families of the 187th will board the same transports to return through San Francisco en route to Fort Bragg in early August.

The embarkations this week climax a long period of planning and liaison between the Port of Embarkation and the 508th to assure a swift and smooth movement.

No Hits, Runs Or—

The highways' grim reaper was completely shut-out by Presidio and sub-post military personnel over the long July 4th week-end as the extensive local safety publicity program bore the rare fruit of an accident-free record on the nation's roads and turnpikes. The post safety office announced this week that not a single accident, injury or fatality involving local military personnel was reported by highway officials.

New Law Helps Vets Get Loans To Buy Farms

Washington (AFPS) — A new law makes it easier for WWII and Korean veterans to get GI Bill loans to buy or improve farms on which they intend to live.

The new law increases the Veterans Administration guaranty of GI farm loans made by banks and other private lenders to 60 per cent of the amount. The maximum guaranty is $7,500.

Three types of loans are covered by this change:

1. Purchase of a farm on which the veteran will live. The guaranty covers not only the farm and farm house but all other buildings on the property.
2. Construction of a farm house to be occupied by the veteran.
3. Repair or improvement of the veteran's farm home, if they contribute to lasting utility or livability of the dwelling.

VA guaranty of unimproved farms remains at 50 per cent of the loan to maximum of $4,000.

The VA reminded that the law only sets the maximum guarantees. The amount of the loan the veteran is able to obtain depends on the lender.

Branch Transfers!

A recent Department of the Army circular announced that Branch and Grade vacancies now exist in the Artillery and Signal corps. Qualified officers are encouraged to apply for transfer. Further information is available at Officers Branch, Post Headquarters, Room 215, Bldg. 220.

New Army Secretary

Wilber M. Brucker, General Counsel of the Defense Department, has been nominated by President Eisenhower to succeed Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens when the latter's resignation becomes effective July 31. Mr. Brucker is a one-time governor of Michigan.

Civilian Pay Raise!

The 7½ per cent pay increase for civilian personnel signed into law last week by the President will be expedited on the post and Sixth Army levels as soon as Department of the Army completes new pay charts. Current plans call for payment of the 7.5 raise from 1 March to the date the lump sum checks are issued. The increase will be reflected thereafter in the bi-weekly pay checks. The Star Presidian will announce the date the pay raise is to be expedited as soon as Department of the Army releases the information.

Connecticut to Pay K-Vet Bonus Soon; 90,000 Are Eligible

Hartford, Conn. (AFPS)—Connecticut's Korea veterans bonus will be paid in the near future, according to State Treasurer John Ottaviano.

He said that applications from veterans eligible for the bonus—which will range from $10 to $300, depending on the length of service—will be accepted after 1 July.

About 90,000 Connecticut servicemen and women are believed eligible to receive the bonus payments. To be eligible, a serviceman must have served for at least 90 days between 27 June, 1950 and 27 Oct., 1953, and have been honorably discharged.

New Doctor Limitations May Force Army Cut In Dependents' Service

Washington (AFPS)—Medical care for dependents and retired service personnel soon may be reduced as a result of new limitations on the number of doctors available to the Army.

The Army has disclosed that recent cuts in its strength have reduced the number of doctors available for patient care.

A Defense Department ceiling limits the Army to three Medical Corps officers for each 1,000 troops. As a result, the fewer troops the Army is authorized, the fewer doctors it can have.

According to Army officials, every possible reduction has been made in the use of medical officers for duties not directly related to patient care. Further economies, they add, would jeopardize the basic mission of the Army Medical Service.

But despite changes in strength, certain needs for doctors, such as in administration, training, and research, remain fairly constant.

Since the Army's strength is scheduled for further reduction during the coming fiscal year, the shortage of doctors available for patient care is expected to be accentuated.

The Army said that it must provide first for active duty personnel as patients. Dependents and retired personnel are eligible for Army medical care only on a "facilities available" basis.

The Army has called upon all active duty personnel to cooperate and eliminate unnecessary demands for medical care. Local commands have been directed to follow up abuses.

The following steps are being taken so that the maximum possible service can be provided for eligible people:

- 1—Qualified civilian doctors will be hired to the greatest extent possible.
- 2—Mutual support will be maintained with neighboring Navy and Air Force medical facilities.
- 3—Preventive medicine programs, including Army health nursing activities, will be given maximum support.
- 4—Coverage by medical officers will be expanded where feasible by the use of helicopter and other aerial transportation.
- 5—Special precautions will be taken to make sure that only eligible individuals receive medical care.

Post Siren Test Today As Warning System Is Revised

Sirens at the Presidio will be humming at 12 noon today as the alert signals undergo a series of tests.

Post headquarters also announced today that its air raid warning system is being revised to conform to the Civil Defense Action Signals which are being utilized by San Francisco and adjacent communities.

The revised air raid warning signals are:

ALERT SIGNAL (attack likely)—A steady blast of the sirens for 3 minutes' duration. This warning will be sounded upon receipt of the FLASH YELLOW air defense warning signal.

TAKE COVER SIGNAL (attack imminent)—A fluctuating or wailing of sirens for 3 minutes' duration. This warning will be sounded upon receipt of the FLASH RED air defense warning signal.

Gen. Paul I. Robinson

General Robinson Assumes Letterman Hospital Command

Brigadier General Paul I. Robinson, MC, has assumed command of Letterman Army Hospital.

He succeeds Brig. Gen. James O. Gillespie, who has departed for his new assignment as chief of Professional Services Division in the Office of the Surgeon General.

Before coming to LAH, General Robinson was commanding general of Madigan Army Hospital in Tacoma since March this year.

Prior to his Madigan command, General Robinson was Eighth Army Surgeon in Korea where he was awarded that nation's highest decoration, the Order of Military Merit Taiguk. In Korea he played a leading role in planning the Eighth Army Memorial Chest Hospital which is now being built in Seoul.

General Robinson was commissioned in the Medical Service Corps Reserve in 1928, and received his Regular Army bars in 1929.

During WWII, he served in various staff assignments in the Surgeon General's office until October, 1944 when he served in the European Theater as head of a commission established to study redeployment of medical personnel and equipment in that theater.

In January, 1945, he became deputy chief surgeon of the Armed Forces in the Pacific and senior medical member of the Pacific Welfare Board in January, 1945.

He became chief of the Curriculum Development section of the Armed Forces College in January, 1946. Later in 1946 he commanded the St. Louis Medical Depot and became chief of the Personnel Division, SGO, August, 1947.

Besides the highest Korean decoration, General Robinson wears the Legion of Merit with one Oak Leaf Cluster and the Philippine Military Medal of Merit.

LAST DAY in the Regular Army was marked by four local officers who were retired during traditional parade ceremonies recently. Colonel Julian A. Walker, troop commander and his staff (group at far left) and Brig General Claude F. Burbach, chief CMD (fifth from right), and the retiring officers stand in review.

Well Done!

Honor Four Presidio Officers In Retirement Ceremonies

Four officers were honored upon their retirement from the Army by retreat ceremonies last Friday. They were: Colonel Floyd M. Hayes, Presidio of San Francisco; Colonel William Troy, Sixth Army; Lieutenant Colonel Loral I. Mosier, Fort Mason, and Captain Richard F. Howard, Presidio.

Brigadier General Claude F. Burbach, Chief of California Military District, was the reviewing officer for the retreat parade in which two battalions of Presidio troops participated. Conducting the parade were officers of the 6211th Army Reserve Service Unit of the Monterey Peninsula area, who were completing a two weeks' summer training tour.

Colonel Hayes retires after 32 years of military service which includes a tour during World War I as a Yeoman 1st Class in the U. S. Navy. Prior to World War II he was Superintendent of Schools in Oklahoma and holds BS and MS degrees from the University of Oklahoma in Supervision and Administration. He was recalled to active duty as a captain in the Army Quartermaster Corps in 1941. His most recent assignment has been as Assistant Comptroller for the Presidio of San Francisco. Colonel and Mrs. Hayes will reside at 11732 Robert Lane, Garden Grove, Calif.

Colonel Troy retires with over 27 years of active duty. A Quartermaster officer, he was detailed for duty with the Air Force between 1941 and 1949. He has been on the staff of the Sixth Army G4 Logistics Section since August of last year, when he returned to the United States from a year of duty with Task Force 7 in the Marshall Islands. Colonel and Mrs. Troy, with their son, Robert W., age nine, plan to settle in the vicinity of Portland, Oregon.

Colonel Mosier is leaving the service on a disability retirement after 20 years of active military duty. A veteran of both World Wars, he began his career as an Infantry private and was later commissioned in the Transportation Corps. Until recently he was assigned in the Cargo Traffic Section of San Francisco Port of Embarkation at Fort Mason. Colonel and Mrs. Mosier plan to live in El Verano (Sonoma County), Calif.

A Signal Corps officer and a native of Stowmarket, England, Captain Howard has served 29 years in the U. S. Army. During World War II he served in England and France. His final assignment has been as Assistant Communications Branch Officer for the Presidio Post Signal Office. He lives with Mrs. Howard and their daughter, Marian B., age eight years, at 736 Beachwood Drive, Daly City.

The Pentagon, headquarters of the Department of Defense, contains three times the office space of the Empire State Building.

Army Re-enlistment Totals Top Other Service Quotas

Washington (AFPS)—The Army during May topped other services in the re-enlistment drive with 8,701 re-enlistments, according to recent figures released by the Defense Department. The Air Force re-enlisted 6,055, Navy 3,013, and Marines 710 during the month.

Total strength of the Armed Forces on May 31 stood at 2,967,736 based on preliminary reports. This was a decrease of 68,444 in a month.

There were an estimated 32,133 new recruits for all branches of the Armed Forces during May. Some 9,368 of these were Selective Service inductees for the Army. Among voluntary enlistees, the AF led with 9,190.

The strength figures represent full-time military personnel, both regulars and reserves on continuous active duty, and include cadets and midshipmen at the service academies.

makes no difference . . .

Even if you were riding giraffe-back or on a magic carpet, the MP stationed at Presidio intersection would give you the same clear-cut hand and arm signals. Drivers come and drivers go—sometimes in the zaniest of contraptions, but the MP always sticks to the same precise signals. Above, he's directing the man on the motor scooter approaching from the right to make a left turn. When you make your turns as stable as the signals the MP gives you, you also help make the Presidio a safer and more convenient place for driving.

Honor Guard's Burial Detail At Some 50 Military Rites Weekly

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

For the most part, what you don't know well rarely stirs you to emotion.

Yet a trip any day—morning or afternoon—to Golden Gate National cemetery at San Bruno will leave you with an unmistakable mixture of emotions.

I went, one grey day recently, a stranger to all that I was to see, and observed the simple, dignified rites with which members of the military and their dependents are laid to rest.

This is one of the tasks for the men of Company A, the Honor Guard, which is commanded by Captain Eugene J. Gasior.

Each day, Monday through Friday, 13 men of the Honor Guard don gleaming boots, white belts, scarves and helmet liners, and do their part in committing to earth others who, like themselves, once saluted the flag which is now held above them.

A rigid inspection of their appearance and quick briefing right down to a three-volley test firing of their M-1 rifles precedes the 40-minute bus trip to the acres of the dead.

A bugler from the Sixth Army band joins them and the complement is complete with six pallbearers, six riflemen and one NCO to give the firing commands.

What kind of men are elected to this daily rendezvous?

All kinds.

College men, youths just out of high school, overseas veterans and men new to Army life, married and single, they all fit into the niches.

Most of them are young—tall, slim and straight as rulers.

They are trained that way.

Every day and all day they are trained that way.

Burial detail is but one of the numerous functions which Captain Gasior and his men, by virtue of this rigid training and performance, are called upon to assume.

And they do it all well—very well.

On the bus that day the talk ranged from motorcycles to the most desirable size for a living room. And each man ventured his opinion.

But once off the bus, the mood became completely military. A Chaplain joins the group (Catholic burials are held in the morning; Protestant in the afternoon) and with a polished precision that bespeaks hours of patient training, the men move from gravesite to gravesite performing their duties.

As each funeral procession approaches its flower-bedecked gravesite, the six pallbearers bear the casket to the ramp and over it support a large American flag. The firing squad and bugler are already at their prescribed places, the riflemen to the right and the bugler to the left.

Softly and slowly the Chaplain speaks a last benediction and then salutes as three volleys from the M-1's split the air and "Taps" is played.

Otherwise there is no sound.

Over, off to one side, an aged caretaker stands with his hat across his heart.

I looked at the faces of the survivors.

Only the children seemed confused—the strange trip to the cemetery, the hushed tones demanded of them—the tears. Too new yet to the mystery of life to grasp the even greater mystery of death.

The adults, stricken with grief, held close for a few brief moments of prayer and salutation, what these men had done for them—never to forget it.

In their place, neither would you.

There were 12 funerals that day, each just like the other, yet each touchingly different.

Tomorrow more. And the next day, too.

Since December, 1952, this has been an Honor Guard function. The average is eight to 10 funerals daily but some days the schedule is so full that the men of the Honor Guard retreat only to the gates for a quick lunch before resuming their duties. They also serve at funerals held on the Presidio at Cenotaph and in outlying cities as far away as Merced.

Any present member or former member of the Armed Forces, if honorably discharged, may be buried in any National cemetery where space is available. Their spouse may be buried in the same grave or adjoining site if available. Minor children may be interred only in the same grave in which either parent has been or will be buried. In certain instances, unmarried adult children are also eligible for interment in a National cemetery.

Interment space in the cemetery and opening and closing of the grave are provided without expense to the next of kin. The Army also provides proper care and maintenance of the graves. Each gravesite is permanently marked with a regulation government headstone or marker of the type authorized for use in the National or Post cemetery.

At Golden Gate cemetery, a temporary wooden marker is erected immediately, and the permanent white marble headstone placed in approximately four months.

Floral arrangements left by the funeral party are placed upon the grave. Fresh cut flowers may be placed at any time and become the care of the groundskeepers.

'Burial Detail' Is Obligation of Local Unit

IT BEGINS EARLY in the morning, preparation by members of A Company, the Honor Guard, for the day's burial detail. Boots must be mirrors, laces snow-white; the white silk scarves adjusted just so, and when it is all done, the first sergeant makes double sure with a minute inspection of each man's uniform. The two lower photos show why. The dignity of the detail's functions preclude an immaculate, soldierly appearance. Story on page 2. (Army photos by Pfc. Purcell.)

New TI&E Chief

NEWLY ASSIGNED CHIEF of the Sixth Army Troop Information and Educational Section, Colonel Robert M. Connolly, Inf., gets an up-to-the-minute briefing from Major Andrew H. Engel, TI&E Executive Officer, on current aspects of the area information program. Colonel Connolly comes to his new assignment from the Far East Command, where he served as deputy chief of information. (Army photo by Purcell.)

Colorful Career!

FBI Man, Combat Leader, Education Information Expert Heads Army I&E

Colonel Robert M. Connolly, Inf., has been named chief of the Sixth Army Troop Information and Education Section. He succeeds Lt. Col. Harold L. Hurlbut, retired, who has been acting chief of the section since the retirement of Lt. Col. John W. Leonhardt.

Colonel Connolly comes to his new assignment from the Far East Command where he was deputy chief of information. He previously served the same command as chief of the Education Division. He has been assigned in Korea and Japan for the past three years.

Previous to his overseas assignment, Colonel Connolly was chief of the Education Branch, TI&E, Department of the Army, in Washington, D. C., from 1948 to 1952. This assignment followed a one-year tour as executive assistant to the Military Governor of Bavaria, Germany. Colonel Connolly also served as executive assistant to the Military Governor at Regensburg, Germany, from 1946 to 1947.

Commissioned in the Reserve in 1934, Colonel Connolly was called to active duty as a first lieutenant with the 1st Armored Division, Ft. Knox, Kentucky, in 1940. In 1941, he was assigned to the 4th Armored Division and served with that division during five major campaigns in the European Theatre of action, and throughout WWII. Colonel Connolly served as division G-1 for three years of this period.

Colonel Connolly's decorations include the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, French Croix de Guerre, Commendation Ribbon and Division Unit Citation.

A native of North Dakota, Colonel Connolly holds a bachelor of science degree from North Dakota State, and an LL.B. from the University of Arkansas. He served with the Federal Bureau of Investigation from 1935 to 1938.

Colonel Connolly's family, wife Shirley, and their five children, Martin, 13; Ann, 11; Michael, 8; Patrick, 6, and Elizabeth, four years old, returned with him from Japan. They are currently residing in Nevada City, California.

The Pentagon, familiar Washington landmark, is located actually in Arlington, Va., across the river from the Capital.

Officers May Use USAFI to Reach Two-Year College

To accommodate the Department of the Army's recent re-emphasis of the minimum educational standards of career officers, the post education center disclosed this week that a large number of USAFI courses not duplicating the College GED tests in D/S evaluations for officers are now in stock.

Officers applying for a two-year college evaluation from Department of the Army can obtain 24 units of college credit for the college GED tests and earn additional units toward the 2-year college goal by enrolling in some of the USAFI courses.

Courses available are in journalism, history, sociology, criminology, hygiene, human physiology, psychology, foreign languages, mathematics, business administration and political science.

Detailed information concerning the officer's college evaluation and enrollment in the USAFI courses can be obtained at the Post Education Center, Building 117, extension 2974 and 2189.

How Per Diem Rates Apply to Duty Travel Explained by Finance

Washington (AFPS) — Service finance officers are seeking to clear up a number of misconceptions that have arisen over the increase in the per diem rate from $9 to $12.

They explain that the old $9 rate will be paid for periods of actual travel. The $12 rate is payable, for the day of arrival and a maximum of 30 days thereafter, at a temporary duty station or travel delay point where government quarters are not available.

The $12 rate also is payable for a similar period to personnel pursuing courses of instruction. But this is only in the event both government quarters and mess are not available.

The $9 rate for travel outside the U. S. has not been increased. For answers to specific problems, individuals should check with their finance officer.

Highest Rewards!

Value of Honorable Service Set For Next Troop Meetings

An explanation of the concept of "honor" will introduce next week's troop information topic, "The Value of Honorable Service."

Honor will be defined as an inner sense of value by which a person distinguishes between right and wrong and proceeds to do that which he determines to be right.

Honor is also explained as the outward respect and recognition accorded men for personal worth or distinguished services.

Standards of personal and civic honor apply to every American, serviceman, servicemen and civilian alike, but the service man is expected to adhere to a specific military code of honor. In so doing servicemen reveal that they have an inner discipline not generally expected outside the services.

An honorable serviceman, the honorees will emphasize, has obedience for authority, truthfulness and courage. Servicemen are frequently confronted with choices between doing what is honorable and what is not.

Because most of us usually do the right thing as a result of our training and our habits, we don't always realize how important honor is in our lives.

Conference leaders will show that the great principles to which a serviceman must dedicate himself — Duty, Honor, Country—are as important today as they have been throughout the nation's history.

The best weapons, the best equipment, and the most highly trained commanders all add up to little unless each member of every unit performs his duties with honor. Honor is a sign of strength, a readiness to stick to the right in spite of temptations that might arise.

Discipline in the Army seeks to promote these characteristics and to make them a part of the working equipment of every serviceman and woman.

Honorable service is the best service and significantly carries the highest awards upon discharge.

Adequate service reduces a general discharge reflecting a performance record which may have the best efforts of the individual, but nevertheless, substandard. Other discharges carry the serviceman into civilian life with barriers to employment and without veterans' benefits.

Honorable military service obviously carries the highest material rewards.

Education Center Tells New USAFI Course in Calculus

Post Education Center revealed this week that it now has the second semester USAFI calculus course in stock, for Presidio and sub-post personnel who plan civilian or military careers in science, mathematics or engineering.

Coverage of the course is similar to that of second semester courses generally offered in colleges and universities at grade level 14.

Calculus II is available for self-teaching and group study as MB 441. It is available for correspondence study as CB 441. Students enrolling in this course should have completed a course in calculus similar to MB 440 or CB 440, Calculus I.

The new calculus course is only one of the many USAFI courses offered local personnel through the facilities of the Post Education Center. More detailed information concerning calculus and other USAFI courses can be obtained at the education center, Building 117, extension 2974 or 3189.

Army Urges Soldiers To Safeguard Vital DA Forms 1041

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has urged all those who have elected options under the provisions of the Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act of 1953 to safeguard their copies of DA Form 1041 as valuable personal documents.

The Army pointed out that this document, which is completed and returned to the individual at the time he elects his option, has been lost or misplaced in many cases. This often results in difficulty in the handling of claims.

To facilitate settlements, the Army said, all those possessing such forms should deposit them in safe places where they are readily available when needed.

Officers To Complete Dependency Records

Officers who are drawing the Basic Allowance for quarters are reminded that they must submit a new dependency certificate (DD Form 137) semi-annually each year.

Those officers whose records are maintained at Post Headquarters will receive the necessary forms through message center. These forms are to be completed in triplicate and returned to Officer Personnel section of Post Headquarters, Building 220, room 215.

Chronicle Photo Editor Due For Camera Club

George Baker, photo editor for the San Francisco Chronicle, will be guest speaker for the Presidio Camera Club at the Wednesday night meeting next week. He will bring the Guggenheim Fellowship Portfolio, a collection of the best photos of the year, as well as several prize-winning prints of his own.

On the same evening, the Camera Club will hold its "35 Millimeter Contest" for local personnel. Photographers may enter no more than two 35 mm slides and entries will be judged by the group in attendance. Baker will speak at the conclusion of the judging.

CASHING IN: Boy Scout Troop 77 members loaded the stake trucks recently and made a quick sale of newspapers and pop bottles collected monthly since last October. The sale netted them a fat $97.77 which, combined with $96.00 earned the same way last year, will send 20 Scouts and 7 Explorers to Boy Scout Camp

Royaneh for a week this summer. Because of the summer camping activities, Troop 77 will not make the regular collection of the paper and bottles this month and in August, but they plan to resume collections on 10 September.

Recently Assigned

New commanding officer of Company A, 505th MP Battalion, is First Lieutenant Robert N. Anderson, who was first activated into the Military Police Corps in 1951, following receipt of a reserve commission in 1950.

Lieutenant Anderson served with the 174th MP's at Ft. Sheridan, Illinois, until January, 1952, when he was assigned to the Illinois MP Detachment at Chicago. On April, 1953, he was with Land Forces, Southeast Europe, in Izmir, Turkey.

For a period in 1952 Lt. Anderson attended the associate company officer's school at the MP Center, Camp Gordon, Georgia.

A native of Anne Mountain, Michigan, Lt. Anderson, his wife and their two children, reside in quarters on the post.

Second Lieutenant Charles L. Sullivan has recently been assigned as a platoon leader with Company C of the 505th MP Battalion.

A 1954 graduate of the University of California with an AB in history, the lieutenant was first commissioned upon completion of the ROTC program last year.

He was activated in January this year and sent to Camp Gordon, Georgia, where he attended the officer's basic school of the MP Center.

A newcomer to Company A, 505th MP Battalion, is Second Lieutenant Robert B. Harbertson, who will serve the unit as platoon leader, mess officer and unit fund recorder.

Following receipt of an ROTC commission in 1954, Lt. Harbertson was activated in January of this year. At Camp Gordon, Georgia, he completed the basic MP officer's course at the MP Center.

He was graduated from Utah State University with a degree in Physical Education in August, 1954.

Lieutenant Harbertson lives on post with his wife and infant son.

Armchair Tour!

Theme of Club's Anniversary Program Next Week Is Scandinavian Countries

A vivid collection of special events is scheduled throughout the next week as a part of the Presidio Service Club's sixth anniversary celebration.

Theme of the week's activities will carry local soldiers to Denmark and the Scandinavian Peninsula.

Monday night, at 2000, a group of Nordic dancers, clad in authentic Scandinavian garb, will present a series of the traditional folk dances of Norway and Sweden.

Soldiers will be transported again to Scandinavia Tuesday night, by way of the 20th century motion picture projector. This "arm-chair" travel will take the viewers to the lands of the fjord and the tall, green forests. An exhibition of photographs of scenes in Denmark is slated for the same evening.

As a slight departure from the Scandinavian theme, but still in keeping with the sixth anniversary program, the Camera Club contest will be held Wednesday night at 2000 hours, with the prize for the best picture being a role of 35mm color film.

Scenes depicting a variety of long-familiar fairy tales will be spread throughout the ballroom for the "Hans Christian Andersen Dance" which will begin at 2030 Thursday night.

The movie projector will once again be in operation Friday night when "Shaped by Danish Hands," a film on the arts and crafts of Denmark will be shown. Music by Danish composers will also be presented the same night.

'Braden's Follies,' Awards to Feature Service Club Fete

One key feature of the Presidio Service Club's sixth anniversary celebration this Sunday night at 2000 hours will be the presentation of awards to 7 civilians who have contributed to the successful operation of the local soldier's home away from home during the past year.

The Braden's Follies troupe will also be on hand to provide the entertainment background for the gala party during which a large birthday cake and other refreshments will be served.

Slated for performances are the Mason Kahn dance line; Elsi Norwood, singer; Terrie and Penny North, yodeling duet; Lindsey Oulete, modern dancing and song stylist; the Losimae and Barbara Johnson acrobatic team; Diana Quail in modern ballet and toe dancing numbers; Sgt. Elsie Davis, popular singer; John, Dina and David Cortopassi, a marimba and accordian outfit, and the Barbara Mercer Peperelles, a champion baton-twirling team.

The 7 civilians whose assistance has enhanced various service club activities are:

Mrs. Leonard Braden—for providing a variety show at the service club each month.

Mrs. Milton Colton of the Jewish Welfare Board — supervised the JWB servicemen's monthly birthday party.

Mrs. Charles Mahon—for chaperoning the dance hostesses.

Mrs. G. Hyde—for enlisting the services of the dance hostesses.

Miss Virginia Fenton, San Francisco Symphony Association member—who obtained cost-free tickets for local servicemen.

Mr. Roy Franklin of the Play House Repertory Theater — procured free tickets to the organizations plays.

Mr. Spencer Barefoot, a San Francisco impresario — who has provided free tickets to various stage and variety shows in the city.

Batter Up!

A HIT FOR THE GIANTS—Richard P. Harms, son of Chaplain (Capt.) Harms, 505th MP Battalion, steps into the pitch for the Giants in the Little League play-offs last week. The Giants edged out the Cards, 2-1, to tie with them for first place in the first half. Final play-off for first half championship comes up tomorrow at 1530 hours, again Cards vs. Giants at Hicks Field.

Brothers Battle!

Giants Upset Cards 2-1 To Tie Little League; Playoffs Start

Saturday's favorites were upset last week at Hicks Field when the second place Giants stepped up to the plate to bat a 2-1 victory over the league-leading Cards. The Giants' eleventh hour win boosted them into position to vie with the Cards again tomorrow for top spot in the Golden Gate Little League season first half.

Final Little League standings for the first half find the Cards and Giants with six wins and three losses each to tie for first place. The Cubs are second with five wins and four losses and the Yanks trail with one win and eight losses.

Tomorrow's play-off at Hicks Field will determine whether the Cards or Giants come out on top of the first half. The first half winners will take on the second half winners at the close of the season for Little League championship.

In a unique intrafamily duel last week Giant pitcher Earl Stewart opposed his brother Tom Stewart, who took the mound for the Cards. Earl gave one hit and Tom gave four. At the plate, Earl Stewart won his own game, smashing a long double deep into center field to bring Sparks home, scoring the winning run.

Earl's brother, Tom Stewart, leads the Little League batting averages with .625. Eighteen Little Leaguers batted over three hundred in the first half. The top ten are listed below.

Name	AB	R	H	Pct.

Mizell Fans 24

Wilmer (Vinegar Ben) Mizell not only fanned 24 batters, but also singled home the deciding run when Fort McPherson defeated Fort Jackson, 2 to 1, in 13 innings recently. The Cardinal-owned southpaw allowed seven hits, walked three and hit two batters in gaining the decision over Harry Coe, who was touched for ten hits in going the route. The victory was the sixth in a row turned in by Mizell without a loss.

Record-Breakers!

Service Athletes Score High In NAAU Track Tournament

Boulder, Colo. (AFPS)—Fleet-footed Arnie Sowell, an ROTC cadet at Pittsburgh University, and 2nd Lt. Rod Richard of Ft. Lee, Va., flashed to new records in the National Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships here.

Sowell's time of 1:47.6 for the 880-yard run bettered the existing world record of 1:48.6, but 2nd Lt. Lon Spurrier of Lackland AFB, Tex., was clocked at 1:47.5 earlier this year and his mark is now awaiting certification as a world record. Spurrier finished fifth behind Sowell in the AAU event. Even so, his time was 1:48.7.

Richard, winner of the 100 and 220-yard dash in the recent All-Army championships, broke the old AAU mark of 21.1 for the 220 with a 21-second effort. He also placed second in the 100-yard dash event.

The lone serviceman to win two events was 2nd Lt. Parry O'Brien of Travis AFB, Calif. The burly Olympic champ won the shot-put and discus events with tosses of 58' 5¼" and 175' 7" respectively.

The mile turned out to be another duel between Marine 2nd Lt. Wes Santee and Pvt. Fred Dwyer of Ft. MacArthur, Calif., with Santee finishing first in the slow time of 4:11.5.

After the first three laps Santee was lost in the pack, with Dwyer holding the lead. But 300 yards from the wire both began to drive and Santee's great finishing kick carried him past Dwyer.

In the 440-yard run 2nd Lt. Jim Lea of Edwards AFB, Calif., placed second. Willie Atterbury, Fourth Army, came in second in the 440-yard hurdles and Pvt. John Bennett of Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., leaped 25' 1¼" to place second in the broad jump.

.Ord-49er Scrap

The power-promising Fort Ord Warriors will meet the San Francisco 49er rookies in a game condition scrimmage at St. Mary's College Sunday afternoon, 17 July, at 1530 hours, 49er pilot Red Strader announced recently. There will be no admission charge and the public will be welcome.

6th Army Signal Tops Pacific Set In Keg Contest

Sixth Army Signal still leads the Pacific keg league with a high record of 20 games won and four lost. Baker Company, 505th MP Battalion, holds 11 won and five lost for second place, and 102nd MRU slipped down to third with 16 won and 12 lost.

Adair holds high game record for the Signal group with 200 and rolls high average of 171. Dickey heads the 505th with a smashing 216 high game and a 184 average. Top kegler for the MRU is Rigney with a 216 high and a 167 average.

Individual high games in the Pacific set go to record-holders Thorne, D. Brown, and Reedy. Thorne of the Keystone Kops holds the high at 242, while Brown of Headquarters Company, Station Complement, is second with a 227. Hilltopper Reedy holds a 225 record.

Dickey, Johnson, and Dawson hold the individual high series marks with the 505th's Dickey on top with 583. Johnson of the Keystone Kops is second with 578, and third is Dawson of Sixth Army Signal with 567.

Pin-smasher Dickey also holds high average mark in the Pacific with 184. Adair of Sixth Army Signal holds 171 for second, while Rigney and Hoffacker from MRU and Johnson of the Keystone Kops are tied at third with 167.

The Pacific league has 12 teams rolling and following the first three the standings are as follows: Fourth, Post Dispensary, then the Hilltoppers No. 3, Headquarters Company, 505th MPs, 30th Engineers, the Keystone Kops, the Hilltoppers No. 1, Headquarters Company, Station Complement, the Hilltoppers No. 2, and the 561st Engineers.

Local Girls Blast Oakland By 28-4 For League 2nd

Zorah Christian stepped up to the plate and slapped a line drive single to left center field and the rout was on. The local girls hit the offering of Oakland's pitchers like they owned them as they rolled to a 28-4 victory.

The Presidio WAC's batted around three times in the first inning with 30 batters standing their turn. Before the dust had cleared the scoreboard read Presidio 21, Oakland 0. The girl sluggers added three more in the second and four in the third before the one-sided contest was ended.

Third sacker "Corny" Argue led the parade of Presidio batters, scoring four times and hitting the game's only home run.

Ruth Gavigan, together with Thompson, pitched for the locals, limiting the Army Base nine to one run in the third and three more in the fourth before the one-sided game was called to a halt.

Last night the locals took the short journey to Funston Park to engage the Fort Mason WAC's in what should be another victory as they blasted the Masonettes 21-7 earlier in the season. The results will appear in next week's Star-Presidian.

This Monday night the girls journey to Parks Air Force Base to take on the league leaders. The Parks' nine handed the locals their only loss of the year so revenge is in the offing. If they do edge Parks the two teams will be tied for leadership in the Bay Area Armed Forces.

who are among the early leaders in the run for the Post Title. The top seven men from this tournament will be named to the Golf Team to represent the Presidio in Sixth Army competition.

Presidio Natators Set To Dive Into All-Sixth Swim Tournament

Miss Ortlip, who last year set the women's mark over Lake Tahoe's 12½-mile width from Meeks Bay to Cave Rock, Nev., will go after Tahoe's 22-mile length later this summer.

The miniature course lacks fairways, traps and softly clipped putting greens but has a hitting-machine which estimates the distance of a player's drive. The course also has simulated putting cups. A player marks his progress by placing pins on a large diagram after every shot.

Today the Raiders journey up to Fairfield to engage the Fairfield Braves in a non-league game. This ends the action for this week with two games against Beale Air Force Base at Beale headlining next week's action.

A new record was set in the 45-cal. pistol national match course when 1st Lt. David Miller of Ft. Benning, Ga., fired a 288 to erase the old national mark of 287 held by Marine Corps Sgt. Jewell Palmer. Lt. Miller was recently awarded the first Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., Triathlon Trophy for winning the 1954 All-Army Triathlon championship.

Cash in Barrel!

Incentive Awards Committee Seeks Suggestions by Civilians

A civilian incentive awards program, established by Department of the Army, is presently in effect on the Presidio of San Francisco.

Purpose of the program is to improve government operations by providing greater incentive for increased participation in the solution of management problems, make maximum and most effective use of manpower, money and materials, and provide monetary and other incentives with which to recognize individual effort.

New Ord Commander

Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens has announced the assignment of Major General Gilman C. Mudgett to command the Sixth Infantry Division at Ft. Ord, Calif. A successor to General Mudgett as chief of Department of the Army Information and Education has not been named. General Mudgett will succeed Major General E. K. Wright, who is expected to retire shortly.

Slocum Building Named In Honor of Deceased Army Information Editor

Military and civic leaders attended ceremonies at Fort Slocum, N. Y., recently to dedicate the headquarters building to the memory of Lieut. Col. Myron K. Barrett, a past editor of the Army Information Digest who died last year.

He was editor of the Army publication from 1949 to 1954, former military governor of Bavaria, a veteran of both World Wars, a Princeton graduate and a former public relations executive in New York.

The building, to be known as Barrett Hall, is the largest at the installation and now bears a bronze plaque commemorating the colonel's service to the Army information program and the Army as a whole.

Soldier's Own!

Since its inception in February, 1942, Army Emergency Relief, organized to supplement efforts of the American Red Cross in assisting members of the Army and their families in financial emergencies, has disbursed more than $22,000,000 in loans and grants.

Incentive awards may be either cash, honorary or both. Cash is awarded for suggestions or inventions, sustained superior work performance, or a special act or service.

Generally speaking, amount of the award is based on the expected amount of saving to the government as follows: $100 to $200, $19 award; $201 to $1,000, $10 award for the first $200 plus $5.00 for each additional $100; $1,001 to $10,000, $50 for first $1,000 and $5.00 for each additional $1,000; $10,001 to $100,000, $275 for first $10,000 and $5.00 for each additional $1,000, and $100,001 or more, $725 for first $100,000 and $5.00 for each additional $5,000.

Honorary awards in certificates or medal form are granted in recognition of service determined to be meritorious or exceptional such as the Exceptional Civilian Service award, conferred by the Secretary of the Army, the Meritorious Civilian award, conferred by the Army commander, length of service awards, certificates of achievement, letters of appreciation, the Presidential award, the Secretary of Defense award, and interdepartmental awards.

A local incentive awards committee has been established to receive suggestions and recommendations for awards.

Both supervisory recommendations and employee suggestions are to be made in writing and forwarded to the Incentive Awards committee.

Going Up!

The Spanish-American War saw 381,000 men in the service, World War I, 4,613,000, World War II, 16,500,000.

Weekly Parade Winners

PARADE EXPERTS winning the Honor Unit plaque at the weekly retreat parade last Friday were the members of the 561st Engineer Company. Colonel Julian Walker, CO of the 6211th ARSU, presents the Honor Unit plaque to 1/Lt. Alvin McDowell, 561st Engineer Company Commander.

AT MISSION DOLORES: Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, stands by the grave of Father Junipero Serra with Mrs. Roger Dakin, a direct descendant of the Arguello family, and Rev. David Temple, OFM, who delivered an address recently commemorating Father Serra's founding of San Francisco 179 years ago. Colonel Lundquist also placed a wreath on the tomb of Capt. Jose Moraga, first commandant of the Presidio from 1776 to 1795.

30th Engineers Soar Above June Bond Drive Mark

Systematic payroll purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds by 30th Engineer Group members, which rested at a low 8.5 per cent level on the last day of May, doubled, tripled, and finally soared well above the June 65 per cent participation goals set by Sixth Army and post bond drive leaders.

In the process, three units of the 30th Engineers reached one hundred per cent participation by 30 June.

They were: the 99th Engineer Company (Repro Base), whose eighty-eight eligible participants had only 19.3 per cent participation on 31 May; the 171st Engineer Detachment (Relief Map), whose sixteen members had only six and two-tenths per cent participation on the last day of May; and the 521st Engineer Company (Topo Aviation), whose fifty-one eligibles had only one and nine-tenths per cent participation 31 May.

First to reach the one hundred per cent mark was the 171st Engineer Detachment. Then the 99th Engineer Company and 521st Engineer Company pushed their way up to full participation level.

"Bird dogging" the operation for the group were Major Paul L. Hudson, Group S-1 Officer, and CWO-2 Gerald F. Willoughby, Group Personnel Officer and Bond Officer.

Army Transfers Unit To Centralize Function

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has transferred all civil affairs and military government functions previously performed by the Provost Marshal General to the Office of Civil Affairs and Military Government.

This shift centralizes all civil affairs and military government activities of the Army in the office of Maj. Gen. William F. Marquat. He has served as the chief of Civil Affairs and Military Government since June, 1952.

The Provost Marshal's Military Government Division has been abolished.

Testing!

Army Checks New Pay System; Reduced Forms Will Ease Paperwork

Ft. Dix, N. J. (AFPS)—The Army has begun testing a new pay system here that is designed to iron out kinks in the present method of paying the troops.

The test is a "dry run," involving no actual payments. Based on the records of the 364th Regt. of the 69th Inf. Div., the test will continue through September.

The experiment is trying out two new forms, the Military Pay Voucher and the Request for Pay Action, to replace a number of forms presently being used.

The voucher is given to a man each time he is paid. It shows him exactly how his pay was figured, what deductions were made and whether anything remains in his pay account.

Finance officials said that the voucher would eliminate one of the major complaints about the existing system, the lack of information the individual has about his pay status.

The Request for Pay Action enables a man to elect any of the following procedures: payment of less than the amount due with the remainder credited to his account; partial or advance pay; payment by check, if he will be away on pay day. It also provides for the withdrawal of Soldiers' Deposits.

Unit commanders are given the authority, under this system, to approve or disapprove requests for emergency withdrawals of Soldiers' Deposits and for payments of less than the amount due.

The proposed changes also are expected to eliminate much of the mechanical equipment now in use and reduce the number of finance personnel. Less equipment will need to be transported in order to pay troops during field operations.

After evaluation of the initial experiment, a full-scale try out of the new system, lasting six months, will be held. The units for this test have not yet been designated.

The new pay system has been under study for more than 20 months. In developing it, Army personnel of all ranks have been interviewed, with particular emphasis on actual pay experience in the field.

New Pilots' Manual!

Army pilots began using this month a new Aviation Flight Manual that consolidates the nine separate publications which they previously used. The single volume contains detailed information on more than 1360 civil and military airports in the U. S. In commercial aviation the book is known as the Airway Manual, but it is officially designated as TM-11-2557.

Army Announces Far East Officer Shortage

★★★ Reduced Stateside Tours Expected To Fill Quotas

Washington (AFPS) — A possible shortage of officers available for duty in the Far East has caused the Army to revise and put into effect new overseas assignment policies.

The new policies, which apply only to officers scheduled for the Far East, include reducing stateside tours to as little as 14 months, lowering stabilized tours to 18 months and the substitution of officers in branches different from those requested.

Because a large number of officers served in the Korean conflict the changes in assignment policies are necessary to avoid returning personnel to Korea for a second consecutive overseas tour, Army officials explained.

As a "last resort" some officers who served in the Far East Command on their last overseas tour may be returned there, the Army said, if the last tour was in a "favorable" area of the theater. A favorable area is considered to be one where dependents are permitted.

The Army expects the new assignment procedures to remain in effect for six months.

branch needs !!

The Army has reported that it is understrength in several commissioned grades in the Artillery and Signal Corps and has asked qualified officers to apply for transfers to the two branches.

Experience and educational requirements and age limits are contained in Army Circular 614-1, dated 13 June.

Applications for transfer will be processed under the provisions of AR 605-145.

Stenos, Typists In Urgent Demand On Presidio Now

Serious shortage of qualified stenographers and typists in the San Francisco Bay area is responsible for the large number of vacant positions in these fields at the Presidio, according to an announcement today by Mr. J. N. McConaha, chief of the Civilian Personnel division here.

For this reason an urgent appeal is being made to all military and civilian personnel to contact their relatives, friends, and acquaintances who might be potential employees.

Positions with the various organizations at the Presidio are more attractive as a result of the recent pay increase granted by Congress, it was pointed out.

Beginning salaries for typist jobs at the GS-2 level are $2,960 a year, with $85 annual increase each year, and typing and stenographic positions at the GS-3 level now start at $3,175 a year, with $85 yearly increases. Some 40 vacancies in the two grades need to be filled at the present time.

Interested personnel should be referred directly to the placement office of the Civilian Personnel division on the second floor of Bldg. 36. Applicants will be required to pass the civil service typing or stenographic examination.

Famed Combat Jump Unit Hits Travis; Veterans Praise 'Gyroscope' Planning

More than 3,000 members of the Army's famed 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team arrived at Travis Air Force Base aboard giant Air Force C-124 Globemasters this week, en route to Fort Bragg, N. C.

On hand to meet the first plane-load of returning members of the unit was Rodolfo P. Hernandez, 2712 Cornell St., Fresno, Calif., who won the Congressional Medal of Honor while serving as a rifleman with the unit in Korea in 1951.

This was the second U.S. homecoming since World War II for the "Rakkasans," whose nickname, given them by the Japanese, means "falling down umbrella." They came home the first time in 1949 after participating in some of the bitterest fighting in the Philippines. Now behind them are two combat jumps in Korea, months on the front lines and the nasty job of quelling prisoner of war riots on Koje-do Island.

The movement is part of a two-phase operation that saw the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment leave its home station at Fort Campbell, Ky., last week in the same planes to relieve the 187th, which has been in the Far East since the early days of the Korean conflict. Part of the Army's "Operation Gyroscope," the transfer of whole units with their dependents rather than individual soldiers, it is the biggest mass movement of Army personnel by air in history.

The actual airlift of the troops from Japan to the United States will involve 43 Globemasters, with an additional 10 planes being kept in reserve and three others flying in advance, carrying relief crews and equipment. The planes will leave Japan at approximately two-hour intervals.

Wives and children of the returning men are scheduled to arrive at Fort Mason, the San Francisco Port of Embarkation, aboard the transports General Anderson and General Breckenridge, on 3-5 August.

The 187th, only airborne unit to make a combat jump since World War II, also served in the Far East during that war, participating in some of the hardest fighting on Leyte and Luzon islands in the Philippines prior to taking over occupation duty in Japan after the war.

Part of the 11th Airborne Division during World War II, the 187th returned to the United States from Japan in 1949, but on 31 August, 1950, left Fort Campbell for combat in Korea. The unit was committed to action on the Kimp'o Peninsula immediately on its arrival in Korea, fighting alongside the Army's 7th Infantry Division and the 1st Marine Division.

On 19 October, 1950, the 187th jumped at Sukchon and Sunchon, on the main escape route of the North Korean Army retreating from U.N. forces heading for the North Korean capital of Pyongyang. This was the first combat jump of the Korean conflict. The assault was successful and in addition to accomplishing its primary

New Bill Tacks 3-Year Limit On K-Vet Payments

The House has passed a bill placing a three-year limit on a Korea veteran's eligibility for GI unemployment compensation of $26 a week for a maximum of 26 weeks.

The three-year period would begin with the serviceman's date of discharge or after the bill becomes law, whichever is later. The whole program would end 31 Jan., 1960.

In another measure affecting veterans, the House authorized an increase from $3,000 to $10,000 a year of the combined income a retired military officer can receive from a civilian government job and his retirement pay and continue eligible for the retirement stipend.

Sixth Army Greets NATO General From French Army

A formal military ceremony was held by the Sixth Army Headquarters for Lieutenant General Jean Valluy of the French Army on his arrival at the Presidio of San Francisco at Sixth Army Headquarters, this week.

General Valluy, French representative with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Standing Group in Washington, D.C., received a 15-gun artillery salute upon entering the Presidio where he was greeted by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander.

After being met by General Young, General Valluy inspected a guard composed of the Sixth Army Band, Sixth Army Pipe Band and the Presidio honor guard detachment.

General Valluy, who was French Commander-in-Chief in Indo-China in 1947-48, is scheduled to leave San Francisco today for Monterey to visit the Army Language School at the Presidio of Monterey, returning to San Francisco the same day. He leaves the Bay Area for Los Angeles tomorrow.

to armor . . .

The Defense Department has announced that the 48th Inf. Div., a combined Georgia and Florida National Guard unit, will be converted into an armored division this year.

The conversion of the 48th will be the fourth such change-over this year and will bring to six the number of armored divisions in the NG.

Maj. Gen. Joseph B. Frazer will continue as commander of the 48th with headquarters at Macon, Ga.

promotions

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has authorized 36,200 enlisted promotions for July. This figure, although much lower than the 117,250 allocated for June, is higher than for any other month since last September.

The quotas are: E-3, 16,950; E-4, 14,250; E-5, 4,500; E-6, 500. No promotions to E-7 were authorized. Before May there had been no E-7 advancements for 15 months. However, 350 were allocated during May and June.

Exams for Academy Taken by 31 EMs Hopefuls This Week

Thirty-one young West Point hopefuls from the enlisted ranks of Presidio and sub-post units burned the midnight oil over the past week-end while boning-up for the U. S. Military Academy Designating Examination which they took at post headquarters this week.

Requiring the bulk of a four-hour period, the tests consisted of high school algebra, vocabulary and reading, and the ability to recognize 3-dimensional figures from flat drawings.

Results of the test which was administered by Capt. John H. Mason, post unit personnel officer, will be sent to the applicants by the AGO. Those who passed the test will be sent to the Military Academy Preparatory School at Stewart Air Force Base, New York, to get ready for still another examination, the West Point entrance, in March.

If they clear this last hurdle they will be eligible to attend the U. S. Military Academy beginning 1 July, 1956.

YOU COULDN'T hardly tell the paratroopers without a program, this week, as Operation Gyroscope kept busy runways at Travis humming with giant Globemasters. Here members of the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment leave the plane for a brief respite before taking off again for points Far East. They relieved the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, which returned stateside this week.

military wire service

Scratch the surface of any leading daily newspaper in the world today and you will find that the backbone of its national and international coverage is the use of wire services—AP-UP-INS-Reuters and many others. That a major portion of front page banner-line stories are of wire service origin isn't the slightest exaggeration.

That any one newspaper could possibly furnish, or even find, let alone afford, enough reporters to cover all potential local news sources is out of the question. As for foreign and national coverage—right back to the wire services.

What are we getting at is neither a testimonial to nor a eulogy of these giants of the daily press. Rather, it is a simple plea for a belated grass roots acceptance of our own wire service—AFPS (Armed Forces Press Service).

One of the more common lay criticisms aimed at service newspapers is that of using AFPS. The "old newspaper man at heart" feels that his lazy editor just won't get out and dig for that good local stuff. Besides he's already read all this high level poop in a popular civilian enterprise paper. One that specializes in "hot guesses" straight from the Pentagon. That these "scoops" are many times incomplete, and seldom official, is beside the point.

Yet any "old editor in fact" could cite him many burning memories of those unofficial or borrowed scoops that went awry. Of irate G-1s, G-2s, ad infinitum.

Outside of direct releases from various defense agencies and services, and these seldom reach your local editor's desk, AFPS offers the service newspaper the only legal source for high level policy news stories. These are usually detailed, accurate and always official.

As for the way these AFPS stories are played, that is strictly up to the local editor. AFPS officials encourage the use of local slants when this is possible. Yet a service newspaper editor would not be faithful to his calling if he simply tagged all AFPS releases as second rate and buried them in a blaze of local inanities. He must base his selection and subsequent play on impact and value to the greatest number of readers. His decision to play it straight or tie-in local color must be gauged by the same yardstick.

AFPS represents quite an investment in defense dollars and talent. It was created solely for the purpose of backstopping your local editor with accurate, official top level information.

So the next time you pick up your favorite civilian daily check the number of wire service credit lines that dominate the front page. Count them. You'll be surprised at the way the big city editor plays and depends on these key news sources.

Then when your local service paper hits your desk, day room or mess hall look for the AFPS credit line. Read the body type under it with confidence. Confidence that a first class staff of military journalists have gathered, written and officially cleared a news story that you can depend on.

By now you've no doubt noted some changes in the old Star-Presidian you loved (we hope) so well. In the weeks to come, if you read us regularly, you will notice a great many more changes. For like houses, a newspaper must be lived in or it will fall apart. Living in a newspaper means the constant and unrelenting search for improvement. Improvement not only in content, but also for brighter and more appealing display cases in which to house this content. Many of these changes have been tested and proven and will become a permanent part of our new dress. Others are innovations that must meet the rigors of practical usage, mechanical limitations and budget ceilings. Our aim, of course, is better service and increased reader interest. We hope you'll join us in refurbishing our newspaper house, for your continued support is our major incentive. Your likes and dislikes are the key to a successful format. Write us, call us or just holler. We'll welcome your suggestions.

Congress has passed and sent to the White House a bill granting the Army and Air Force the privilege of paying their personnel twice a month if they see fit. An old law restricted the two Services to monthly pay calls. However, with the special permission of the Comptroller General, the AF began a semi-monthly pay system last year and made it permanent after a six months trial. The Army is not actively considering twice-a-month pay days. The Navy and Marine Corps already pay twice a month.

An opening for a security specialist, GS-7, for the Oakland Security Field office, 1515 Clay street in Oakland, is announced by the Civilian Personnel division on the Presidio. Four years of experience, three general and one specialized, is needed to qualify. Form 58 should be filed in the personnel office by 6 July. Also on tap is an opening for a male administrative assistant, GS-7, in the Post Ordinance section, Presidio of San Francisco.

mission the 187th also rescued a large number of American prisoners of war from a North Korean prison train.

Then followed several more months of fighting, against North Koreans and Red Chinese on the front lines and against guerillas in the rear. On 23 March, 1951, the unit made its second jump in Korea—this time against Munsan. After landing, the paratroopers linked up with an armored force driving north from Seoul, then set out on foot to knife 26 miles behind the Communist lines and cut their main supply route north of Uijongbu. All missions were successful.

After more bitter fighting the 187th returned to Japan but was soon ordered back to Korea, this time to quell riots among Communist prisoners of war in compounds on Koje-do Island. Then followed several more months of front-line combat, another return to Japan for more training, another trip to Korea and combat until hostilities ceased. The unit went back to Japan and waited and trained for any emergency that might arise until the announcement was made that it would be replaced by the 508th and return to the United States.

During its periods of combat in Korea, three members of the 187th were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor—Corporal Lester Hammond, Jr., Private First Class Richard G. Wilson, and Corporal Rodolfo P. Hernandez, of Fresno, Calif. Corporal Hammond and Private First Class Wilson were both killed in action.

Among the 634 other individual decorations received by men of the unit were 20 Distinguished Service Crosses for extraordinary heroism in action, one Distinguished Service Medal, 164 Silver Stars for gallantry, five Legions of Merit, two Distinguished Flying Crosses, 12 Soldier's Medals, 259 Bronze Stars, 19 Air Medals and 50 Army Commendation Ribbons.

The 187th has also been awarded the Army's Distinguished Unit Citation, the Navy's Presidential Unit Citation, the Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation, the Korean Service Medal with invasion arrowhead and six battle stars, and the United Nations Medal.

Presently commanding the regiment is Brigadier General Roy E. Lindquist, former commander of Camp Stoneman. Other commanders in Korea included Brigadier General Frank S. Boven, Major General Thomas J. H. Trapnell, and Brigadier General William C. Westmoreland.

officers - - -

—RECENTLY ASSIGNED—

Major WALTER J. SYMCZYK has been named commanding officer of Detachment 1 and 2, 6000 SU, Presidio of San Francisco.

In the Army for the past 15 years, Major Symczyk has been a member of the Base section, European Communication zone in France for the past three years.

During World War II, the major was with D Company, 15th Infantry in Italy from December, 1943 to July, 1945.

Major Symczyk attended O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia, in late 1942 and has also attended the officer's course in Tank, Artillery and Infantry coordination at Fort Knox, Kentucky, in April, 1952. He, his wife, son and daughter are now residing here.

Captain DONAL C. WELLS has just completed the officer's advanced Artillery course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and is presently assigned in the enlisted branch, military personnel division, G-1 section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In England for the past three and one-half years with the 32nd AAA Brigade, Captain Wells now resides with his wife and six-year-old son at Terra Linda, San Rafael.

An enlisted man from 1942 to 1945, he served in Iran with the Persian Gulf command. He was commissioned Transportation Corps after attending O.C.S. at New Orleans Army Air Base, and served at the Los Angeles Port of Embarkation.

During 1946-48, Captain Wells was out of the service attending school and received his B.A. in business administration from the University of Portland. Returning to active duty, he served at the New York POE, was commissioned Regular Army and transferred to Artillery Corps.

Captain THOMAS M. MADDEN returned recently from a six-month tour with MAAG in Thailand, prior to which he served nine months as Headquarters company commander and battalion adjutant, Fort Ord, California.

His new assignment is as executive officer, Headquarters company 6000 SU.

Entering the Army 10½ years ago, Captain Madden attended the Infantry O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia, from December, 1944 to March, 1945, prior to which he served with the 201st Infantry in the Aleutian Islands and with the 89th Division at Camp Buckner, North Carolina. He was separated as a Reserve officer.

Recalled to active duty 1 January, 1951, the captain served in Korea with the 2nd Division from November, 1951 to September, 1952. He and his wife and child are presently residing here.

Captain JOHN L. CECIL has been with KMAG for the past 16 months, serving the chief of staff of the Korean Army as pilot. He is now assigned as an aviator with the Sixth Army Flight detachment.

In the Army for 15 years, Captain Cecil was an Artillery pilot with the 35th Infantry Division in the ETO for 18 months of World War II. He has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Air Medal with seven Oak Leaf Clusters and the French Croix de Guerre.

The captain has attended all of the flight schools including helicopter, fixed wing, multi-engine, instrument and Artillery service school.

Captain WALTER P. LUKENS has been attending the Stanford law school for the past three years and is now assigned to the Judge Advocate section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Captain Lukens served with the Air Force for a year during World War II, before entering the U. S. Military Academy at West Point from which he was graduated with the class of 1947.

He served from 1948 to August, 1950 with the 33rd Infantry Regiment in the Caribbean theater, going from there directly to Korea where he served with the 3rd Division until May, 1951.

The captain's decorations include two battle stars for his Korean ribbon as well as the Combat Infantry Badge.

First Lieutenant ROBERT W. BROWNLEE has served the past three years in Europe, 18 months each in Trieste, and, most recently, with the 5th Infantry Division in Germany.

His new Presidio assignment is that of assistant S-2. An enlisted man during World War II, he served a year in Japan with the 11th Airborne division and while there attended the Airborne jump school at Yamato.

Lt. Brownlee attended Ripon college in Wisconsin and was graduated and commissioned from R.O. T.C. ranks there. He also attended the basic officer's Infantry course at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Lt. and Mrs. Brownlee and family now reside in San Francisco.

CWO EVERETT L. BRAZEALE recently became officer-in-charge of the addressograph branch of the S-4 section, Presidio of San Francisco.

In Korea the past 16 months he served in the G-4 section of the Korean Communication zone, and was awarded the first Oak Leaf Cluster to his Commendation ribbon while there.

Veteran of 17½ years of Army service, Mr. Brazeale spent 35 months in the European theater with the 3rd Division during World War II, beginning with the African Campaign on through Italy, Southern France and Germany.

This is Mr. Brazeale's third tour on the Presidio, having served here two previous times, each with Headquarters company, the first, 1946-49 and the second, 1952 to 1954. He now resides here with his wife, son, six years, and daughter, four years.

First Lieutenant JOSEPH N. JAGGERS has joined Company A, Honor Guard, Station Complement, where he will serve as a platoon leader.

He has been in the Far East for the past two years, the first in Korea with G Company, 223rd Infantry, and the last on Okinawa with G Company, 75th Regimental Combat Team.

Entering the Air Force as an enlisted man in 1946, Lt. Jagers served two years and then entered the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, graduating with the class of 1952. His decorations include the Combat Infantry Ladge, the Bronze Star Medal, the Commendation ribbon with Oak Leaf Cluster and Jump Wings.

Lt. Jagers' wife, and son, 20 months, and daughter, four months, are presently in Alabama, but will join him when housing is arranged.

Mess Champ!

HUNGRY SOLDIERS are hard to please, but M/Sgt. Kurt G. Bollinger, mess steward for Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, has a ready formula . . . "just give them the best!" This happy approach paid off for the sergeant this week when Colonel John E.

Geiser, post executive officer, awarded his mess the monthly best mess plaque. M/Sgt. Harry A. Kellman and Major Walter J. Smyczyk, unit CO, look on. (Army Photo by Pvt. Staknis.)

Food Tyros!

Biggest Mess Hall Here Wins Monthly Dinner Plate Plaque

The staff of the largest mess hall on post proved that size is not a deterrent to the efficient preparation of nearly 900 meals daily as Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, walked off with the monthly "Best Mess" award last week.

Led by a veteran culinary virtuoso, M/Sgt. Kurt Bollinger, the unit's two mess halls and one bakery were determined the best of 19 mess halls currently in operation at local units.

This contest is based on food preparation, mess hall administration, and sanitation. It's judged by Capt. Carl E. Gardner, post food advisor, members of his staff, and a medical officer.

Colonel John E. Geiser, post executive officer, presented the dinner plate with "PSF Monthly Best Mess" painted on it, and a letter of commendation from Col. Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, to M/Sgt. Bollinger and the new CO of Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, Maj. Walter J. Symczyk.

Holder of the European Theatre Ribbon with five Battle Stars, M/Sgt. Bollinger began cooking nearly 20 years ago in his native Chicago, Ill.

He was mess steward in officer's clubs in Berlin, Bremmerhaven, and Heidelberg, Germany, and came to the Presidio from the Fort Meyer, Virginia, Officer's Club in May, 1954.

In addition to the mess steward, the Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, mess hall is staffed with an assistant mess steward, a baker and 12 cooks.

Sergeant James Britton is the assistant mess steward with Sgts. Jay Hicks, William Schroyer, M. Quinney, Harold Mulliken, and Harry Drew serving as first cooks.

Holding down the baking chores is Cpl. James Holstein. Second cooks are Cpl. K. Muller, Pfc. Gordon Sterns, Pfc. Dominic Antenucci, Privates Charles Forde and Robert Miner and Pfc. D. Moon.

New Per Diem Starts

The new increase in per diem rates began this month. Ranging from $1 to $4, the new rates are in addition to the boost of maximum rates (to $12) under the new pay law.

parade!

The regular weekly retreat parade will be held at 1630 hours today on the Presidio's Main Parade ground. Those not participating may attend as spectators. Units will include the Sixth Army Band, 6000 SU, 561st Engineer company, 30th Engineers and Companies A, D, and Headquarters, Station Complement.

B Company MPs Return With Citation For Month Duty Tour At Cp. Roberts

Back home this week following a month tour of special duty at Camp Roberts, 75 EM and four officers of Company B, 505th MP Battalion, brought with them a letter from Northern California's National Guard Division, the 49th, which praised the local MPs for their skillful operations there.

At Roberts, Company B was responsible for Military Police activities throughout the summer training of many California National Guard and Sixth Army Area reserve units.

Security patrol, traffic control, range security and town patrol at San Miguel, Paso Robles and San Luis Obispo were included in their operations.

The unit frequently provided escort services for VIPs and additionally gave a hand to some of the reserve training programs in military and MP subjects.

With them at Roberts were 30 vehicles—22 jeeps, four motorcycles, two 2½-ton trucks and two ¾-ton trucks. The company traveled convoy with these vehicles to and from the central California training camp.

6215th SU Reserves Here For Summer Training Duties

The 6215th Station Complement Unit, U. S. Army Reserve, from Fort Rosecrans, at San Diego, has arrived at the Presidio this week for its annual two weeks of summer training.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Sidney J. Colvin, the unit is made up of 63 officers, one warrant officer, 55 enlisted men and two enlisted WACs. Three additional officers and one enlisted man, from other San Diego reserve units are attached to this unit for training.

The reservists will receive their training here by working alongside their counterparts in the Presidio Station Complement Unit, carrying out special assignments, and observing operation of the various sections.

Chicago Police Official Terms Presidio Traffic Control 'Best'

By SP/3 Jack L. Everhart
Star-Presidian Associate Editor

Presidio traffic control operations by the 505th MP Battalion and the post PMO so impressed a ranking traffic officer with the Chicago Police Force that he had a letter sent here calling local traffic policing "the best he has ever seen."

Captain John Sherping, in charge of the Windy City's traffic control in the busy "Loop," also had a request made for a detailed sketch of the local traffic control operating procedures.

Contacted this week, M/Sgt. Donald S. McDowell, PMO operations sergeant who's the noncom in charge of the Presidio traffic control program, indicated that the system devised by 505th Battalion Commander and Post Provost Marshal, Lt. Col. Keene Saxon was probably the most significant factor to smooth handling of the rush-hour traffic problem here.

Elaborating, he added that the establishment early this year of a specially-trained squad of traffic police, combined with constant survey of traffic flow patterns during the busiest hours, has produced the results lauded by the Chicago Police official.

One five-cornered Presidio intersection (at Presidio and Lincoln Boulevards) he believe is "as busy as some in the 'Loop'" since more than 1,500 vehicles pass through it during morning and afternoon rush-hours.

All members of the traffic police squad mentioned were trained at the 505th MP Battalion school at Ft. Baker and selected on a competitive basis for their ability to direct traffic at busy intersections.

On this special squad are Sgt. Chester H. Watkins, Cpls. Morris R. May, Odis C. Moon, Jr., Richard M. Tanski and Raymond C. Wright and Pfc. Donald I. Applebaum, Ronald A. Deer, Curtis S. Isbell, Jr., Thomas R. Martin, Hal S. Rutland and Harvey D. Murphy. All are members of Company B.

hostesses

For serving as dance hostesses at the Presidio Service club Thursday night dances during the past year, 16 girls were presented certificates of appreciation last night. Receiving awards were Marlene Adams, Alice Anderson, Shirley Bennett, Beverly Black, Elaine Bradshaw, Marylou Galvan, Mira Kermet, Carol Leach, Donna Utterback, Lillian Murphy, Julia Thomas, Clara Tiferis, Eva Virgin, Marian Soule and Claudette Engstrom.

New JAG

Col. J. H. Derrick

Colonel Derrick Named Sixth Army Judge Advocate

Colonel John H. Derrick this week became the Sixth Army Judge Advocate.

He comes to Headquarters Sixth Army from approximately 20 months' duty as chief of the litigation division, office of the Judge Advocate General, Washington, D. C.

Prior to his Washington assignment, Colonel Derrick was deputy Judge Advocate, Headquarters U. S. Forces Europe, Heidelberg, Germany, for three years and before that he spent three years as Judge Advocate and executive officer JA, Headquarters Fifth Army, Chicago, Illinois.

Colonel Derrick's service dates back to 1918, when as a 16-year-old youth, he enlisted in the Minnesota National Guard, 151st Field Artillery. He served continuously with that unit until called to federal service in 1940 with the rank of major.

He entered World War II with the 34th Infantry division, and, following Louisiana maneuvers, accompanied that unit through the North Africa and Italy campaigns, returning to the states in January, 1944.

Following graduation from the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, the colonel was for 14 months a member of the school's staff and faculty.

In June, 1945, Colonel Derrick became assistant commandant of the Judge Advocate General school, Ann Arbor, Michigan, and remained at that post until 1 April, 1946. He was integrated into the Regular Army in July, 1947, and has been awarded the Commendation ribbon.

Prior to entering on active duty, Colonel Derrick was engaged in the practice of law for 17 years in Minneapolis, Minnesota. He was graduated from the law school of the University of Minnesota, class of 1925.

Promoted!

GOLD BARS were given some very special attention by members of the Army's intelligence branch, this week. Shown pinning a brand new set on ex-master sergeant Edward Fauquier is Sixth Army G-2, Colonel Joseph H. Gilbreth. The new reserve lieutenant is here for two weeks' summer training as a member of the 867th CIC detachment from Los Angeles. (Army Photo by Hilmer.)

Keeping Informed!

Information Unit of Post TI&E Section Plays Important Role

The Information department of the Post Troop Information and Education section has a clear-cut mission to perform. In addition to keeping the troops informed on national and international news and events, information of interest to Army personnel only is also given minute attention.

The long-range objectives of the program are far-reaching. A well informed Army is a better fighting Army since knowledge of what one is fighting for adds to incentive and assures high troop morale.

Tuesday afternoon the various unit TI&E men from about the post are assembled in building 122 to hear the week's briefing by either a guest speaker or one of the post information NCO's. The week's news, if first discussed with an eye to what our allies attitude and present position is, and then a discussion of the next troop topic is held on such subjects as the strength of the Soviets, the Moslem world, our Air Force, safety and cost consciousness.

The unit TI&E enlisted men then return to their companies and begin work on their own conference.

Posters, briefing outlines, field I&E pamphlets and maps are sent by Post TI&E to the 60 units both here in the Bay Area and to the many air bases in the surrounding districts.

To keep abreast of world affairs, the post information men subscribe to 12 national magazines. In addition, films are reviewed and suggestions made as to their usage in the company level.

Inspections are held of the many unit bulletin boards and suggestions are made to help improve them to better accomplish their desired mission.

The yearly 40 hour discussion leader course was successfully completed recently. Purpose of the course is to make better I&E speakers out of the unit information men who cannot attend the TI&E School at Fort Slocum, New York.

Included in this course are such subjects as organization of the company information program, how to conduct the program, how to keep bulletin boards in proper condition along with a thorough familiarization with the libraries on post and the advantages of enrolling in the many education courses and schools the Army offers.

New Civilian Pay Raise Retroactive; Dates Clarified

Payroll division of the Civilian Personnel Office announced this week a clarification of the 7½ per cent civilian pay raise effecting 1740 Sixth Army and Presidio civilian employees.

It was originally reported that the raise would be retroactive to 1 March, 1955. However, a detailed perusal of the legislation shows the law to contain no such stipulation.

Instead, the statute proscribes that the increase will be retroactive to the beginning of the first pay period following 28 February.

Sixth Army employees will receive their first checks showing the pay hikes on 26 July covering the pay period ending 16 July. The retroactive pay checks will cover the period from 13 March to 2 July.

First pay checks with the 7.5 per cent raise will be issued Presidio civilian employees for the pay period ending 23 July on 2 August. Their lump sum checks will be for the period of 6 March to 9 July.

No announcement of the exact dates when the retroactive checks has been issued, although it has been disclosed by civilian payroll officials that the checks will be expedited as soon as the "go ahead" signal is received from the Department of the Army.

Former Sixth Army Engineer Has Big Week In News

Colonel A. A. G. Kirchhoff, until recently, Sixth Army Engineer, has assumed the position of chief of staff at the Engineer center, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, where he was once a student.

At the same time, it was announced that Colonel and Mrs. Kirchhoff's son, Curtis, 18 years, was sworn in as an enlisted man of the Army on 29 June at Headquarters First Army, Governor's Island, New York.

Curtis expects to compete for an appointment to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, from which his father was graduated with the class of 1926. He is a graduate of Drew school, San Francisco, and has two brothers, Robert, 20, and David, 13.

DCG Checks ROTC Training

CLOSE TO 1200 ROTC cadets, now encamped at Fort Lewis, Washington, had an opportunity this week to meet and converse with Major General William F. Dean, Sixth Army deputy commanding general, who paid the camp an inspection-visit. Also visiting the camp was Brigadier General Claude F. Burbach, chief, California Military district. Here General Dean meets, l. to r.: Cadet Duane R. Riggs, Kanab, Utah; Cadet Donald S. Reid, Orinda, California, and Cadet David J. Robinson, Los Angeles, California. General Dean found that 71 of the cadets have completed their college courses and will be commissioned Reserve second lieutenants at the completion of the camp. Of the total cadets attending, 63 are from the University of San Francisco, 86 from the University of Santa Clara, 61 from Stanford and 70 from the University of California, Berkeley. In addition to men from the eight western states of the Sixth Army area that are attending, there are also seven from the University of Alaska and 59 from the University of Hawaii. General Dean was greeted by Major General Thomas S. Timberman, Commanding General, Fort Lewis, and Colonel George R. Carey, PMS&T, University of San Francisco, deputy camp commander.

Old Timer!

The Medical Officers Reserve Corps, established in 1908, is the oldest organized reserve element of the U.S. Army. It was the forerunner of the reserve program instituted by the National Defense in 1916.

Airborne Group Honors Millionth Paratrooper Grad

Ft. Bragg, N. C. (AFPS)—The 1,000,000th man to qualify as a U. S. paratrooper was honored recently at the first annual Airborne Assn. convention in Washington, D.C. Pvt. Leo Palmer, stationed here with the 505th Airborne Inf. Regt., was given his paratrooper's wings at a special ceremony.

The association looks back on 15 years of airborne history. The Army's first "parachute platoon" was formed at Fort Benning, Ga., in 1940.

Five airborne divisions participated in WWII. They made seven combat jumps in Europe and two in the Pacific. During the Korean War, the 187th Airborne RCT made two drops into enemy territory.

Seek Top Talent For Soldier Show Set for August

Rehearsals have begun and are in seething proportions already, planning for the big soldier extravaganza slated to open at the Presidio Service club on 21 August.

The big thing now is, where are there at least five more persons who want to get into the combo act, and, of all things, on a talent-laden post such as this, where is there a pops accompanist! One is needed desperately—you MUST be it!

Tonight at 2000 hours, all you timid souls, both military and civilian, who have been thinking, "I'd like to get into the act but—" had better choke down those butterflies and appear at the door. The rest will be simple and once you get started, you'll love every minute of it. The call is especially out for more WACs to join the fun.

After tonight, rehearsals will regularly be scheduled at 1930 hours each Wednesday, but anytime throughout the week during duty hours, further information on the show can be obtained by calling Ext. 3607.

Those master-minding the show include Sgt. Jay Brinkmeyer, Specialist 2/C Stan Dreyfuss, Pvt. Al Cunningham and Miss Rosalind Reinstra.

Cue Ace!
THAT OLD BLACK eight ball turned pure white, figuratively at least, when Honor Guard Pfc. Alfred Lafayette chalked-up for the Service Club Pool Championships recently. Sure enough, the sure-sticking ivory ace ran the table and walked off with the top local laurels.

For Service!

THREE STAR THANKS went to the numerous volunteer workers who during the past year have so generously given of time and effort to troop entertainment at the Presidio Service Club. Sixth Army Commander Lieutenant General Robert N. Young presents an outstanding service award to Mrs. Charles Mahon, a junior hostess chaperon, while Miss Eileen Pierce, assistant club director, looks on. Mrs. Mahon is the wife of M/Sgt. Charles D. Mahon, 505th MP Battalion. Awards were given during sixth anniversary celebration, last Sunday. (Army Photo by Pfc. Tyenski.)

6 Years Old!

Presidio Service Club SRO During Sixth Anniversary Celebration

The vast facilities of the Presidio's beautiful Service club were taxed to the ceiling Sunday night when more than 500 persons sought to sit, stand, kneel and blend into the wood-work in order to be a part of the club's sixth anniversary celebration.

Among the distinguished guests who attended the affair were Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander and Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, Presidio of San Francisco.

During the past six years since the club has opened its doors, it has grown both in popularity and in diverse recreations offered.

And always, in addition to the regularly scheduled features such as pool, ping pong, cards, music rooms and all the things that are a part of the club daily, there are the special features and the people who make them so.

A highlight of the celebration was to honor those persons who have, in large measure, contributed of their time and effort to make the club the outstanding operation that it is.

Through the medium of weekly dancing parties and stage shows, and monthly birthday parties, service personnel of the Presidio and its sub-posts are able to find something "doing" every night of the week at the club, and may choose from among many activities, those which interest them most.

Among those honored for contributing to this recreation was Mrs. Leonard Braden who provides the monthly variety show, Braden's Follies; Mrs. Milton Colton, Jewish Welfare board whose group gives the servicemen's monthly birthday party, and Mrs. Charles Mahon and Mrs. G. Hyde who respectively chaperone and enlist the junior hostesses for the Thursday night dancing parties.

Mrs. Braden and Mrs. Colton were doubly honored with the presentation to each of them of gold pins for their continous service each month throughout the entire six years of the club's operation.

Additional tributes went to Miss Virginia Fenton, San Francisco Symphony association; Mr. Roy Franklin, Play House Repertory theatre, and Mr. Spencer Barefoot, San Francisco impresario, each for procuring free tickets to their particular ventures.

General Young presented the awards previous to the stage show by the Braden Follies and the Mason Kahn dancers.

Cutting of an appropriately decorated birthday cake and the serving of other refreshments closed the evening's festivities.

add local flavor!!

A dash of local color will flavor the troop conferences next week when the post T.I.&E. section initiates a new survey series designed to explain the missions of Presidio sections and units. First of these activities to be spotlighted is Post Special Services whose mission and operations will be discussed at the troop information meetings next week. Special Services' mission, which is to stimulate, develop, and maintain mental and physical well-being of military personnel through voluntary participation in planned recreation programs, will be presented. It will be shown how Special Services, through clubs, libraries, athletic programs, art and crafts facilities and theaters is actively fulfilling that mission at the Presidio.

CONWAY CATTON (r.) receives congratulations from fellow Fort Ord teammate Jim Cornish. Catton defeated Cornish 6-2, 6-2 to win the men's singles play in the Central Division playoffs. Winners will go on to the All-Sixth Army Tennis Championships in Washington.

Eye All-Sixth

Catton, Vickery Lead Ord Win In Net Tournament

Lt. Conway Catton led the powerful Fort Ord Warriors to a clean sweep of the open singles and doubles finals in the recently completed Central Division playoffs.

Catton, a former Northern California title holder, was also ranked 21st in the United States prior to entering the service. His booming serve proved the margin as he swept past fellow teammate Jim Cornish in the open singles finals 6-2, 6-2.

Among the top seeded players to fall before the new titleholder were defending Sixth Army Champion Wally Vickery, also of Fort Ord, by the scores of 6-2, 6-2 and Lowell Pasol, Letterman Army Hospital, 6-1, 6-1.

Jim Cornish reached the final round by disposing of the two top seeded Presidio players, Anas Velarde and Mat Schmutz. M/Sgt. Velarde, who recently won the Presidio singles crown, dropped a two-set struggle 6-2, 6-2.

Catton joined with his teammate Vickery to down Velarde and Schmutz of the Presidio 6-2, 6-2 in the open doubles finals. They had previously beaten Sage and Cornish 6-1, 6-2 in the semi-finals.

The women's open singles turned into an all-Letterman Army Hospital show as Joan Archer trounced teammate Lindholm six-love, six-one. Archer and Lindholm joined forces in the women's doubles but were edged in the finals by the Ford Ord twosome of Allen and Byrd 6-3, 6-3.

Alex Rosario of Fort Ord walked off with the senior men's singles title, but not without a struggle from Victor Fox, Presidio, 7-5, 7-5. In the doubles it was a different story as Fox teamed with John Fleming to defeat the Oakland Army Base's Ayers and Cunningham 6-0, 6-1 for the crown.

The winners and runners-up in all events except the Senior Division will go on to the All-Sixth Army Tennis Tournament at the Madigan Army Hospital, Washington.

In senior competition only the winners will represent the Central Division in the 18-22 July tourney.

twins win

The sports famous Rickson twins of Fort MacArthur, California won the open doubles event in the just concluded Southern Division Tennis Championships.

The former National Collegiate Tennis Champions from the University of California at Berkeley defeated the Yuma Test Station pair of Montgomery and Preusker, 6-1, 6-3.

Singles went to Cpl. Bill Montgomery, Yuma, Arizona, as he whipped team-mate Werner Preusker in three sets 8-6, 4-6, 6-3.

Net King!

Reds Win Three Tilts Edge Navy

Displaying solid pitching and hitting the Presidio softball squad trounced three non-league foes in their first games of the season.

The Ton-Jos, a city league team, were the first to fall, 6-0, as Forrest Coleman pitched scoreless ball for the locals. Concentrating their scoring punch in two three-run innings the Post team held complete control of the game. Harry Mathews was the big stick with two singles, one double and five runs batted in.

Scoring their second shutout within two days the local softball whizzes defeated the Fort Mason Wheels by the score of 1-0. Centerfielder George Kono scored the only tally of the game in the bottom of the third. Presidio hurler Ed Johnson threw a three-hitter against the neighborhood garrison plus striking out five batters.

Journeying to Alameda on Tuesday, the Raiders dumped the Navy "Hellecats" 6 to 4 behind the four-hit pitching of big Forrest Coleman. The contest was tied at the end of the regulation seven innings forcing a playoff. Coleman led off the eighth with a single, advancing to second on a wild pitch. Tychenski pushed Coleman on to third with an infield single, where they both scored on pinch hitter Ed Johnson's Texas leaguer into right field.

Besides being credited with the win Forrest Coleman struck out five, and led the batting attack as he gathered in two singles and a double in the eight-inning contest.

Ward Second

Whyte Wins Golf Crown Shoots Two Under Par 70

By Pvt. Bob Malane
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Twenty-four-year-old Dennis Whyte shot his way to the Presidio Golf championship this week with a sizzling two under par 70 in an 18-hole playoff. He defeated Tom Ward by five strokes in the playoffs made necessary by the two players turning in identical score cards of 311 for the 72-hole tournament.

Whyte, attached to the 16th Base Post Office, was out in a great 33 which is three strokes under par for the front nine. On the back side he faltered somewhat from his hot pace coming in with a 37 for a grand total 70 big blows and the win.

Dennis had four birdies, four pars and only one boggy for the front side. He birdied the first, the second with a fine six iron dead to the pin for an easy putt and the seventh and ninth. His only over regulation hole on the first side was the tough 447-yard third hole when he hooked an iron into the rough.

Tom Ward, an old hand on the Presidio links, had a better than average 75 in the sudden death playoff. His rounds of 75-77-79-80 put him in second spot of a starting field of over 35 linksmen.

Third place in the divot tourney went to Captain Leon Thomas with rounds of 80-78-77-80 for a 315 total just four strokes off the winning pace.

Making up the squad journeying to the All-Sixth Golf Meet at Fort Ord 18-22 July will be Whyte, Sid Dimingue, Rollin Kapp, Charles Post, Harold Frankhauser and John Harrigan. Not making the trip due to military duties are second winner Ward and third placer Thomas. It is expected that Ward and Thomas will be on the Presidio Golf team for action in the Bay Area Armed Forces league.

Fish and Game Officials Remind State Sportsmen Of Abalone Regulations

The Department of Fish and Game today reminded sportsmen that four definite species of abalones are covered by size limits, and that all other species not named specifically have a limit of six inches.

Size limits spelled out in the regulations are:

Red abalone, 7 inches; green abalone, 6 1/4 inches; pink abalone, 6 inches; and black abalone, 5 inches.

The Department pointed out that those species not named are generally found in southern California waters, and are quite rare north of Pt. Conception.

It is very rare to find other than a red or black abalone along the central coast.

Red abalone can readily be identified by a red band around the edge of the shell. The black has a dark gray shell and is smoother than the red. Pinks and greens are rarely taken by sports fishermen.

Measurements can be taken at the widest point of the shell, across the flat side.

Skin Divers Are Told Of Dangers From Sharks In Waters of Pacific

With the rapid growth in popularity of skin diving in ocean areas which bathers ordinarily do not frequent, the danger from sharks also is increasing, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

J. B. Phillips, marine biologist with the Department, said that ordinarily sharks pose no threat to bathers on crowded beaches, but that off rocky portions of the shore the danger is real.

About 25 species of sharks are found off the California coastline but most of them are not dangerous to humans. But there are several varieties, topped by the man-eater or great white shark, which are dangerous.

Phillips warned skin divers and spear fishermen that the shark has a highly developed sense of smell, and can detect blood in the water immediately. Thus if the fisherman has speared a fish, he should get himself to safety as soon as possible. If ordinary precautions are exercised, the sport is no more dangerous than driving a car.

Other ocean inhabitants apt to be dangerous to humans include the moray, wolf-eel, and the stingray. The sculpin can inflict painful wounds by spines in its fins.

skeetmeet

The Presidio Gun Club announced that a 100-bird skeet shoot at the Presidio Skeet Club, 16 July at 1300 hours.

Non club members may participate but will be required to pay an entry fee of $2.50 which includes a three month membership in the gun club.

The five top contestants will form the team that enters the California State Skeet Championships 17 July, 1955.

The Presidio Skeet range is located at the west end of Crissy Field and entries may be made by calling M/Sgt. Stewart at 2187.

Pendleton Marine Captures All-Service Triathlon Title

Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. (AFPS) — A 36-year-old marine master sergeant outlasted a 12-man field to score 2,689 points and win the 1955 Inter-Service triathlon championship here. The winner, M/Sgt. William Knupple of Camp Pendleton, Calif., tallied 880 points in the pistol shoot, 905 points in the 220-yard free style swimming event and 904 points in the two-mile run. He was clocked at 2:49 in the swimming event and 10:47 in the two-mile race.

M/Sgt. Knupple has announced that he will try for a berth on the U.S. modern pentathlon team which will compete in world championships in Switzerland next October.

Placing a close second in the two-day competition with 2,683 points was Pfc. George Lambert of the 417th Engineer Aviation Brigade at Ashiya AB, Japan, who represented the AF in the meet. In the third position with 2,676 points was 1st Lt. Jerome Furey of Ft. Devens, Mass. He led the field for the first two events.

Here's how the other nine competitors finished: Pvt. Hector Proventud, Ft. Bragg, N. C., 2,527 points; 1st Lt. James Loedding, V Corps Hq., Europe, 2,300 points; Pfc. Maurice Wagner, Ft. Lee, Va., 2,279; Ens. Bill Vendl, Coast Guard cutter Mackinac, 2,253; 1st Lt. Patrick Foley, Third Marine Div., 2,201.

Aviation Electronics Technician Third Class Albert Ray, Air Anti-Submarine Sq. 15, San Diego, Calif., 1,951 points; Lt. Walter Boehn, 316th Air Div., French Morocco, 1,830; Sgt. John Tibbets Camp Lejeune, N. C., 1,810; and Aviation Electronics Technician Second Class Samuel Gilbert, San Diego NAS, Calif., 1,542.

Little-Noted Shad Gives Fly Angler More Action Than Steelhead Trout

Fish which will give the fly angler more action than a steelhead on a fly rod, and are harder to land than most species, are running in tributaries of the Sacramento River, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

This much maligned fighter is the shad, which receives little attention from most fishermen, probably because they are unaware of its game qualities.

Two best spots currently are the Feather River just below the Sutter-Butte Dam, and the mouth of Butte Creek at Ward's Landing.

Veteran anglers have been using light tackle, and light streamer flies to hook the shad, which jump more often than a trout and are harder to land.

Army Major Sparks U.S. Equestrian Group Now On Tour of Continent

New York (AFPS)—Army Maj. John Russell, a veteran horseman, is currently competing as a member of the U.S. equestrian team in Europe.

The tour—which includes England, Ireland, Belgium and the Netherlands—is expected to improve the U.S. team's chances in the 1956 Olympic equestrian events.

Maj. Russell, the sole military member of the team, has gained considerable recognition in European shows since the end of WWII, including a victory in the 1952 Hamburg Jumping Derby. He is stationed at Frankfurt, Germany.

$200 Jackpot For Catfish Tags

Through the cooperation of the Sutter County Board of Supervisors and the Twin Cities Rod and Gun Club, $200 has been made available as prize money for anglers returning catfish tags to the Department of Fish and Game.

Eight hundred catfish have been tagged in the Sacramento River, at the mouth of Sacramento Slough, mouth of Butte Creek, and in the Feather River near Marysville, and in Sutter Bypass.

The fish were tagged in April and May as part of a survey, and to date 33 tags have been returned. Top prize is $50, with 34 other prizes ranging down to one dollar.

The fund was made available from Sutter County's share of fish and game violation fine money.

fishing

Deep sea fishing is now available at half price for military personnel based on the Presidio. Persons interested should contact the Post Special Services Office, Bldg. 122, on a "first come, first served basis." Personnel will be subsidized one-half of the prevailing party boat fee for fishing by the Central Post Fund.

Raiders Win Wallop S.F. Marines

In their only contest last week end the Red Raiders poured on the coal to blast a San Francisco Marine team 14-2 in a non-league contest. The Marines are scheduled to make a return trip to the Fort Scott diamond tomorrow for what seems to be another Presidio win.

Next Tuesday's contest with the Parks Air Force nine will tell the story of whether the 1955 Presidio Red Raiders take the Bay Area Armed Forces League.

It is expected that Roger Collins, local mound ace, will take the hill against the air men in the final league contest of the season. Collins, a member of the New York Giants Olean, N. Y., farm club, has firmly entrenched the locals as the team to beat with his shutout pitching.

The local garrison nine have rolled to eleven straight league wins in the current season and need only one more to put them over the top.

Late this week the red-hot Presidio crew journeyed to Beale Air Force Base for a pair of non-league contests, and the results will appear in next week's Star-Presidian.

Air Force 'Babe Ruth' Bats Homer Over Fence For Matsushima Cats

Matsushima AB, Japan (AFPS) —Shades of Babe Ruth! It was the sixth inning and the Matsushima Cats were hopelessly behind their Division Artillery opponents. The playing manager of the Cats, Capt. "Big John" Richardson, stepped up to the plate.

After a swinging strike, Capt. Richardson doffed his cap to the fans in the bleachers and calmly pointed to the left field fence 350 feet away.

Artillery fans began to yell and jeer, but the captain remained calm. He fouled off a few pitches then got hold of one and blasted it over the left field fence—exactly where he had pointed.

WACs Lose Protested Game; Blast Fort Mason

Add a two-hour delay because of no umpires plus no lights on the playing field and you will have the story of the latest WAC softball contest.

The Presidio WACs arrived at Parks Air Force Base this Monday at 1730 for a scheduled 1800 game with the current league leaders. Everyone was there but the three men in blue, who did not put in an appearance till 1930. Five innings were then played before darkness halted play as the field's lighting system proved to be out of order.

The unofficial score, as the locals played under protest, was 4 to 3 in favor of the Air Force girls.

The locals got off to a two-run lead in their half of the first inning only to have the host squad come right back with two runs in their half to tie up the game. The Parks crew got two more runs in the second while the locals were held scoreless. The third inning proved to be for naught as neither team was able to cross the plate. Presidio threatened in both innings, however, the threats were wiped out by two fine double plays.

In the first half of the fourth Presidio left-fielder Peggy Harris caught hold of one of Betty Simms' low curve balls for the game's only round tripper.

This brought the score up to the final 4-3 count. Ruth Gavigan pitched for the Presidio team and after a shaky start held the Parks crew to two hits in the last three scoreless innings.

Earlier in the week the locals journeyed to the Funston playground and walloped the hapless Fort Mason nine 22-7. Ruth Gavigan did the honors for the locals while Jane Hampton was spending a long afternoon on the mound for the losers.

The Mason crew got all their runs in the first inning and were out in front 7 to 6 but the local garrison had a big ten-run burst in the second to put the game on ice. Four more tallies were added in the third and two in the fifth to close out the day's scoring.

California's Duck Shooting Is Tops In Nation Survey

Quality of hunting on California's public waterfowl shooting areas was the best of any public areas maintained throughout the United States, according to a nation-wide survey conducted by the Department of Fish and Game.

This was reflected in the average daily bag of 2.5 birds per hunter, or the highest of any of the 40 states reporting in the survey.

Nevada had the next highest daily average bag with 2.4 birds per hunter, and North Carolina had 2.2 per hunter-day. The California total was compiled by actually checking all hunters out of the area. Nevada's figure was compiled through a postcard questionnaire.

Hunter success on public shooting areas ranged all the way down to 0.22 of a bird per hunter-day on Michigan areas, where the number of hunters nearly equalled California.

Florida showed the largest acreage of public shooting ground, with 2,843,000, but only a small part of this was for waterfowl.

Leaflet Available Now For Game Meat Care

With trout season in full swing, and hunting season not far away, the Department of Fish and Game has made available a free leaflet describing proper care of deer meat, game birds and trout to prevent spoilage.

The leaflets can be obtained at the Sacramento headquarters, or at any of the Department's regional offices in Los Angeles, Fresno, San Francisco, Sacramento and Redding.

Friendly Nations World Over Send Military Students to US Army Schools

Washington — Soldiers from friendly nations the world over are attending Army schools in the United States to learn how to defend their freedom against possible aggression.

This year more than 2,000 foreign military students from 29 countries are training in United States Army service schools under the Mutual Defense Assistance Program. Between 450 and 600 foreign students from non-MDAP countries also will be trained by the Army this year.

Countries represented are Belgium, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Denmark, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Nationalist China, France, Great Britain, Greece, Indo-China, Iran, Iraq, Italy, Japan, Korea, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, the Philippines, Portugal, Spain, Thailand, Turkey, Uruguay and Yugoslavia.

It is through MDAP that the United States provides military materiel and training to these allied nations. Of the two, training is given first priority, since without trained personnel to receive, maintain, and utilize it, materiel would be of little use to the recipient nation.

Since inception of MDAP in 1950, thousands of tons of military equipment have been shipped abroad to allied nations by the United States. In order to provide trained personnel for the proper use of this equipment, more than 12,000 foreign military students have trained at United States Army schools and returned to their homelands to teach what they learned to their comrades in arms.

This year foreign military students are studying at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and in 20 branch and specialist schools located throughout the United States. Attendance is heaviest at the Infantry, Artillery, Engineer, Signal, Armored and Quartermaster schools.

Foreign military students also are in attendance in lesser numbers at the Transportation, Chemical, Finance, Provost Marshal

General, Adjutant General, Judge Advocate General, Chaplain, Language, Information, and Psychological Warfare schools as well as certain medical and aviation schools in the United States.

Students for MDAP training generally are chosen on the basis of their expected ability—upon completing their training—to instruct other training personnel of their own forces. They in turn conduct courses of instruction in their own units so that the beneficial results of the program are multiplied many times over.

In addition to the school training in the United States, hundreds of additional foreign military students are trained at U.S. military establishments and with units overseas. The three main training areas overseas include the U.S. Zone of Germany, the Canal Zone and Japan.

Field training within their own countries by means of U.S. training teams and technical representatives is another method of training used by the United States Army to teach friendly foreign troops. As part of the Military Assistance Advisory Groups, United States field training teams now are operating in Greece, Turkey, Nationalist China, Japan, Thailand, and Ethiopia. (ANF)

USAFI Stationary Engineering Course Now Available Here

The availability of a new USAFI course in Power Plant Engineering was announced this week by the Post Education Center.

Primarily a vocational course, it is designed to assist the practical man in acquiring a working knowledge of the fundamental principles of stationary engineering.

Emphasis is placed on the equipment and the techniques of operation and maintenance required for safe, efficient steam plant operation.

Coverage in this technical study is similar to that of training offered in apprentice classes and technical schools.

Completion of physics courses or experience in steam plant operation is not required as a prerequisite for this course. It is available for self-teaching and group methods of study as MP 799 and as a correspondence study as CB 799. Detailed information regarding this USAFI course can be obtained at the education center, Bldg. 117, telephone extension 2974 or 3189.

Former Daily Editor, Combat Leader Named Chief of Information Section

Colonel Arthur C. Timboe has been named chief of the Sixth Army Information Section, it was announced this week by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander. Colonel Timboe replaces Lieutenant Colonel Stephen C. Monroe, who is leaving for a temporary assignment in Washington, D.C.

A native of Devils Lake, N. D., Colonel Timboe enlisted in the 164th Infantry Regiment, North Dakota National Guard, as a private in 1925 and in 1927 was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry in that unit. Prior to entering active duty with his unit in February, 1941, he was affiliated for 15 years with the Devils Lake Daily Journal as a sports and news writer and later as editor of the paper.

Called to active Federal service as a company commander of the 164th Infantry, he served at Camp Claiborne, La., until March, 1942, when the regiment was ordered to the Southwest Pacific as part of the Americal Division.

As regimental S-3, Colonel Timboe served in Australia and New Caledonia, then commanded a battalion of the regiment during its landing on Guadalcanal in October, 1942, and in subsequent fighting there. He returned to the United States in 1943 and was assigned to Camp Roberts as a battalion commander until October, 1945.

He was Public Information Officer of the Los Angeles Port of Embarkation (at Wilmington, Calif.) from October, 1945, to March, 1946, then served for a brief period as a regimental commander at the overseas replacement depot at Camp Stoneman, Calif. From August, 1946, to August, 1949, he was Public Information Officer of the Munich (Germany) Military Post and Officer-in-Charge of the Munich Press Center. Upon his return to the U.S. in August, 1949, he was assigned to Fort Riley, Kans., as a leadership officer with the Army's Ground General School.

From Fort Riley he was ordered to Fifth Army Headquarters in Chicago where he spent three years in the Public Information Office and as Fifth Army Information Officer until he went to Korea in December, 1953.

While in Korea Colonel Timboe was successively Public Information Officer of the United Nations Command Military Armistice Commission at Munsan-ni and Panmunjon and Public Information Officer of the Korean Communications Zone. He returned to the United States in April, 1955, for assignment to Sixth Army Headquarters, Presidio of San Francisco.

Among Colonel Timboe's decorations are the Legion of Merit, battle stars for combat on Guadalcanal-Solomon Islands, the

Wacs' Sink Local Nine Christian Blasts Homers

The Presidio WAC nine swept to two more victories while dropping one game to highlight the week's girl softball action.

First to fall were the visiting San Diego Waves, champions of the 11th Naval District, who succumbed 13 to 10 in a real slugfest. The Naval champs got off to a good start and led at the start of the third inning.

Seven to one. However, the local girls solved in part the tricky pitching of Paula Roberts and pounded out 12 runs in the next three frames to put the game away.

Zorah Christian led the batting parade with two round trippers followed by Thompson with one. Lillian Vieira sparked the girls afire by turning three sure hits into easy outs from her shortstop position.

The second non-league contest saw the Presidio girls drop a close three to two ball game to the Alameda Semi-Pros at the Washington Park playground. Ruth Gavigan hurled for the locals against Gloria Mijares in a thriller that went two extra innings. Alameda won in the last of the ninth when Knipse dropped a pop fly Texas leaguer into short right field with two mates aboard for the game's winning tally.

Facing the Alameda Navy Waves on Wednesday the Presidiennes gathered in 13 runs to edge the sailor girls by three tallies in a regulation seven inning contest.

The third inning proved to be the winning margin as nine WAC batters came to the plate of whom six scored. Christian's triple along with Gavigan's double proved to be the big blows that iced the contest.

Archers Start Hunt Sunday On Deer, Bear

California archery enthusiasts have their innings starting Saturday, 23 July, when the special archery deer and bear season opens for a ten-day run in the coastal area of the state.

Territory open to archers consists of the regular coastal deer season area ranging from southwestern Humboldt County to a small portion of northern San Diego County.

Bag limit for the archers in this area is two bucks, forked horn or better, and two bears. There is no closed season and no bag limit for bears in Humboldt County.

Archers were reminded by the Department of Fish and Game that they may not carry firearms of any kind during the special archery seasons.

In addition to the regular archery season, the special Los Angeles County archery season opens on 23 July and extends to 31 December. The area generally covers the northeastern part of the county. Detailed information as to the area is included in the 1955 Digest of Hunting Regulations, available at license agents of the Department. The bag limit there is two deer of either sex.

Last year archers set a record deer bag, taking 148 deer, of which 63 were bagged in Los Angeles County.

Natators Win Sixth Army Swim Crown

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Winning but one first place and tying for another the Presidio Swim squad captured first place in the All-Sixth Army Swimming and Diving Meet at Fort MacArthur, California.

The winning margin was made possible by the local swimmers gathering in five second places to edge out second place Fort Lewis by four points in a thriller that went down to the final event.

Behind the clever coaching of Major Ken Meyer, the Presidians gathered in a total of 35½ points with Fort Lewis, Washington, earning 31½ points and third place Two Rock Ranch pushing closely with 31 points.

Pfc. Pete Cole nearly won the meet single-handed for his Two Rock Ranch team as he took six first places to win 30 out of the 31 points his squad managed to roll up. Cole, a former swim star from Stanford University, was clearly the outstanding swimmer of the three day meet.

Named to go on the All-Army Meet at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, 28-29 July, from the local garrison are Norm Von Herzen, 100 and 200 meter sprints, Ron Golden an All-Army performer from last year in the 400 and 800 meter distance events, and Arnold Vandenberg for the 200 meter breast-stroke.

Although women's events were not scored in the team events, Peggy Ann Harris and Betty Cope of the Presidio were selected for the All-Army meet at Fort Sill.

100 Meter Free Style—1, Cole, Two Rock Ranch; 2, Von Herzen, Presidio of San Francisco; 3, Craig, Fort Huachuca; 4, (tie) Stuart, Presidio of San Francisco and Palmer, Fort Lewis, 1:12:10.

200 Meter Free Style—1, Cole, Two Rock Ranch; 2, Von Herzen, Presidio of San Francisco; 3, Mowat, Fort Huachuca; 4, Stuart, Presidio of San Francisco.

400 Meter Free Style—1, Cole, Two Rock Ranch; 2, Golden, Presidio; 3, Mowat, Fort Huachuca; 4, Marriatt, Presidio of San Francisco, 5:12:45.

Local Golf Tennis Aces Home Soon

Two All-Sixth Army tournaments are due to wind up today with the golfers at Fort Ord and the tennis matches being played at the Madigan Army Hospital, Tacoma, Washington.

The new Fort Ord course is the scene of the golf action with the cream of the western golfers in action.

Making up the local divot squad in the order that they finished in the recent Presidio golf tourney are: 1, Dennis Whyte; 2, Thomas Ward; 3, Leon Thomas; 4, Rollin Kapp; 5, Harold Frankhouser; 6, John Harrigan.

Representing the Presidio in the open doubles competition are Anas Velarde and Mat Schmutz, who were recent finalists in the Central Division playoffs played here.

In the Senior Men's Doubles, the winners in the Central Division playoffs, Victor Fox and John Fleming, loom as early favorites.

Five Dolly Varden trout, quite rare for California, have been acquired for the Department of Fish and Game's Mt. Shasta Hatchery display aquarium. They were taken from the McCloud River, where they are natives.

MRU Leads Eastern Set Bryant High

The 102nd MRU men continue their bulldog-like grip on first place in the Eastern League with the Sky Busters trailing closely behind. The league leaders with a 39 win and 13 loss record have a grand total of 36,177 pins smashed in official play so far this season.

Bryant tops the 102nd kegsters with a 173 average followed closely by Muleskin in for a 168 average for his 15 games of play this year.

A three way tie for third place exists between the 6513 SU, the Hilltoppers No. 6 and the Occoquians, each squad boasting a 34 win 18 loss record.

In the Pacific League, the Sixth Army Signal crew roll right along with a 29½ to 10½ win-loss record. Adair continues to be the mainstay of the first placers with 5076 pins smashed for a 169 average in his 30 games played.

The Keystone Kops pulled the upset of the week when they dumped the Sixth Army Signalers four games to zero. Johnson's individual high of 207 led to his 558 combined total for the series.

The week's only make-up game saw the Company B team from the 505th MPs defeat Headquarters Company, Station Complement, three to one as Dealey's 487 total paced the victory.

A five-man skeet team from the Fitzsimons Army Hospital won the team title and 23 of 50 trophies in the Colorado State skeet tourney at Lowry AFB.

Bataan Survivor Receives High Korean Medal Raising His Ribbon Total to 26

A survivor of the Bataan Death March, Sgt. Kenneth J. Bonine, Company B, 505th MP Battalion, was presented the Wharang Distinguished Service Medal, one of the highest military medals of the Republic of Korea, this week.

Signed by the Korean Minister of National Defense, the Honorable Sohn Won Yil, and presented by Lt. Col. Keene Saxon, 505th Battalion commander and post provost marshal, the newly awarded medal brings the total of ribbons on the young sergeant's uniform to 26.

An English translation accompanying the original citation written in the Korean language, read in part, "For Gallantry in action against an armed enemy in Korea, on 9 April, 1953."

At that time, Sgt. Bonine was a platoon sergeant with the 5th Regimental Combat Team. He previously received a Commendation for Meritorious Service during this period.

Upon receiving the decoration this week, Sgt. Bonine said that he plans to visit the Korean Consulate in San Francisco in order to receive an exact translation of the citation. He added that he hopes also to learn something of the background of the Wharang medal since he's heard unofficially that its origin dates back over 400 years ago among a group of Korean warriors called the "Tigers."

A veteran of 14 years Army service, Sgt. Bonine was taken prisoner by the Japanese on Bataan and remained a captive in Japan until early 1946.

He served in Japan and Korea from 1949 to 1951, returning to Korea with the 5th RCT in 1953. Among the 26 decorations and awards which he wears is the Bronze Star for Valor, three Presidential Unit citations, the Bataan ribbon, the Commendation for Meritorious Service, the Purple Heart, the Good Conduct Medal, the Pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon with one battle star and the Korean Service ribbon with three battle stars.

With the 505th MP's since October 1954, Sgt. Bonine works in the liaison section of the PMO.

During the Communist invasion of South Korea, some 10,000 classrooms were destroyed and another 19,000 damaged. An Army rehabilitation program has provided materials to repair or construct more than 1000 classrooms in a single year.

Bonus Law Ruling Upheld...but...

Washington (AFPS)—The Comptroller General has upheld his decision of last April that many servicemen who re-enlisted under the 1954 bonus law were overpaid.

However, the Government's chief auditing officer is not going to ask servicemen to refund any money in the near future.

He has agreed to defer action while the Services seek Congressional action to allow overpaid servicemen to keep their entire bonus. A bill to forgive the overpayments is now being considered by the Bureau of the Budget.

In his April action, the comptroller overruled an earlier decision by the Defense Department's Military Pay and Allowance Committee.

Some servicemen who re-enlisted for the first time after October, 1949, accepted allowances based on past service rather than re-enlistment bonuses. They were allowed to do that under the Career Compensation Act of 1949.

When they re-enlisted again under the new law, after July, 1954, their bonus was calculated on the basis of a first rather than second re-enlistment. Thus many apparently were overpaid as much as one-third of their total bonus.

In its previous ruling on the new bonus law, the committee had said that such allowances were paid for past service and should not be counted in determining a man's bonus under the new law.

Army Still Seeking New Lyrics For Old Caisson Song

The Army's still in hot pursuit of writers, poets and lyricists, whose aid is being sought to provide a set of new lyrics for the Field Artillery's old, old "Caisson Song."

By combining new words with the old music, the Army has hopes of coming up with an official march which would capture some of the historic spirit of the nation's oldest military service.

All Army personnel who have a knack for turning catchy phrases which can be set to the music of the "Caisson Song" are urged to submit lyrics to the Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C., Attn: AGMD, not later than 15 October 1955.

The lyrics should be written about the Army as a whole without reference to any specific unit. In other words, the lyrics should "capture and glorify in song the proud traditions and spirit of the entire Army."

As a guide to the potential lyric writer, the Army has indicated that verses of the song should describe key battles and campaigns in which the Army has participated.

It's suggested that the first and second verses might depict battles of the Revolutionary and Civil Wars and be followed by a chorus of the march. Other wars and campaigns could be dealt with in succeeding verses.

safety council

The establishment of a post Safety Council was announced recently by post headquarters. Purpose of the new council, which meets once a month, is to provide advice and propose policies concerning the Presidio accident prevention program.

Under the chairmanship of the post S-1, Lt. Col. Archie R. Traynor, the Safety Council is composed of safety officers from all Presidio sections and post and sub-post units of battalion size or larger. The post safety director will serve as secretary of the new group.

Fort Scott Reception Honors Retiring DC Of 6th AA Reg. Com.

Colonel Pierre B. Denson, since 1951, deputy commander, Western Army Antiaircraft Command, Fort Baker, (now redesignated 6th AA Regional Command) will retire from active Army duty on 31 July.

A reception in his honor was given Wednesday, at the Fort Scott Officer's mess and was attended by members of the command including Major General and Mrs. Hobart Hewitt, commanding general, 6th AA Regional Command.

Graduating from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point with the class of 1925, Colonel Denson, in World War II, served with AAA forces in the Mediterranean theater and was awarded the Silver Star Medal for gallantry in action during assault landings on Sicily.

During the period 1946-48, the colonel was in the Far East, serving first with the War Crimes Commission and later as senior military government officer at Hokkaido, Japan.

Following retirement, Colonel and Mrs. Denson and their two daughters, Jane Gay, 18, and Velma Joan, 16, will reside in the San Francisco area where the colonel will be in the investment business.

officers recently assigned

Lt Col. FRANK B. WILSON has been assigned as Comptroller at Headquarters California Military District, Presidio of San Francisco.

Colonel Wilson entered the Army in 1941 after receiving a Bachelor of Science degree from Alabama Polytechnic Institute and a Master of Business Administration degree from the Harvard Business School.

He served with the Comptroller Section of the Artillery Center, and the Department of Non-Resident Instruction of the Marine School at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. From 1952 to 1955 he held various comptroller assignments at Camp Gifu, Southwestern Command, in Japan.

The colonel was with the Third Army in Europe during World War II and participated in four campaigns. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with V, the Purple Heart, and the Presidential Unit Citation for action during the relief of Bastogne. During the Occupation of Germany, he served with the Military Government in Berlin and with the Division Artillery of the First Infantry Division. He, his wife and their three children now reside in San Francisco.

First Lieutenant RULO MADSEN has become assistant the officer in charge of the Marine Repair shop, Post Transportation section, Presidio of San Francisco. For the past seven months, Lt. Madsen has been stationed at Deseret Chemical Depot, Tooele, Utah, prior to which he spent a year in Korea with the 712th Transportation Battalion.

Enlisted during World War II, the lieutenant served a year in Japan with the 19th Infantry, 24th Division, and was released in 1947. Entering R.O.T.C. at the University of Utah where he majored in education, Lt. Madsen was called to active duty in 1951 and attended the AAA and guided missile school at Fort Bliss, Texas, and was commissioned Artillery. He transferred to Transportation Corps in 1952.

Mrs. Madsen and the couple's three children will join him when quarters are obtained here.

In his first duty assignment Second Lieutenant EUGENE L. HUDSON, who entered the Army approximately six months ago. He has been named assistant Bay Area Exchange officer, with station at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Upon entering the service, Lt. Hudson attended the associate officer's course and the Post Exchange school, both at Fort Lee, Virginia.

Commissioned from R.O.T.C. ranks, the lieutenant attended Dartmouth college and Stanford law school, and was graduated with the class of 1954. He practiced law briefly in his native Los Angeles prior to entering the service.

Lt. Colonel JAMES C. HAMILTON only recently completed four years of duty in the office of the Judge Advocate General, Washington, D.C.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE by the Honor Guard spelled another victory for this unit, which for the second straight week won the "Honor Unit" plaque at Friday's retreat parade. Here, Lt. Col. Carl J. Hunsinger, Sixth Army G-3, presents the plaque and a hand-shake to 1st Lt. Carl J. Bur who served as CO of the unit at the Parade.

TAKING IN THE SIGHTS: These young San Francisco cub scouts from Cub Pack 42, Saints Peter and Paul church, are among 5,000 teachers and children who have toured the many points of historical interest on the Presidio grounds in the past year and a half. Headquarters, Sixth Army Public Information Office conducts the tours for more than 250 people each month. To date more than 80 Bay Area schools and scout groups have been given a first hand introduction to famous historical sites as well as many highlights of various military operations.

Number Given Guided Tour Of Presidio Tops 5000 Mark

Major Andrew Bretz, Jr., chief of the special events section of the Sixth Army Public Information Office, announced this week that more than 5000 Bay Area school children, scouts and other groups from 80 activities have been conducted on tours of the Presidio since the tour program was initiated in March 1954.

The groups vary in size from 10 to 150 and a monthly average of more than 250 make the tours.

The tour groups are shown the Officer's club which stands at the site of the original Spanish Presidio and is the oldest building in San Francisco. They also see Fort Point at the Golden Gate, which is a partial replica of Fort Sumter and the only brick fort West of the Mississippi. The seawall of the fort still stands after 100 years, undamaged by rough waters.

At Crissey Field, the tourists are provided a first-hand introduction to Army aviation by observing some of the activities of Headquarters Sixth Army aviation detachment. Here they see a small group of helicopters and light transport aircraft.

They are also shown one of the newest buildings at the Presidio, which has already made its mark in history. The Presidio Enlisted Men's Club was the site of the signing of the Japanese Peace Treaty in 1951. It is among the most beautiful and best equipped service clubs in the Armed Forces today.

At Fort Scott, the schoolchildren get a view of some of the anti-aircraft installations which stood ready to protect San Francisco during World War II.

Typical of the groups which are given a tour of the Presidio was the 110 delegates to the 4-H All-Star Conference at the University of California last April. Like some of the other touring groups, the young agrarians were treated to a short band concert at the Service club and a precision drill exhibition by the Presidians, a special marching unit of the Honor Guard.

To better facilitate the tours, the PIO arranges for Army buses to pick up the children and other groups nearly any place in San Francisco, the East Bay, Marin County and the peninsula. Sometimes the groups are further accommodated at Presidio mess halls.

Main purpose of the PIO tours is to provide an on-the-spot supplement to classroom studies of local history and also to provide the children with an accurate notion of many interesting operations within the military community.

Presently serving as tour guide is WAC Pfc. Patricia Storey. Groups interested in making arrangements for a tour may contact the Sixth Army Public Information Office, Building 87, telephone extension 2470.

The Army Hour, an Army produced radio program presented by the Mutual Broadcasting system, will feature a salute to the Second Armored Division on this Saturday's program over radio station KFRC (610 on your dial). The program starts at 1630 hours.

reserve first

For the first time in Reserve history, a logistical command, the 311th, is giving full support to a combat division, the 63rd, in the field, as these Reserve units undergo their annual two weeks of summer training at Camp Roberts, California.

The Southern California unit, which includes attached units of several hundred San Francisco Bay area personnel, is commanded by Colonel F. C. Menacacy. It trains at Fort MacArthur throughout the year.

Though now operating at reduced strength, the 311th has an authorized strength which makes it the largest type logistical organization in history. The 311th itself is the largest headquarters Reserve unit in the country at present.

The grade of General of the Armies of the United States was created by federal statute March, 1799, and ceased to exist after March, 1802. However, by Public Law 49, approved September, 1919, General John J. Pershing was appointed to this grade and no other officer has held this title.

Touch of Home!

Army, Air Force Exchange Operations Mark 60th Year of Twofold Service

The 60th year of providing men and women in uniform with a touch of home wherever they are stationed will be marked by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service next Monday, 25 July.

Speaking of this anniversary, Major General H. L. Peckham, Chief of Army, Air Force Exchange, said: "Sixty years ago this month, exchanges were established to provide service personnel with items of convenience and necessity where they wanted them, when they wanted them, and at prices they could afford to pay."

General Peckham observed that exchanges are continuing to do a good job. He cited a recent customer survey in which enlisted men of the Army and the Air Force listed the exchange as the number one benefit to be considered in deciding whether or not to remain in military service.

The mission of the first exchange, established in 1895, read: "... its primary purpose is to supply the troops at reasonable prices with articles of ordinary use, wear, and consumption not supplied by the Government and to afford them means of rational recreation and amusement." This is basically the mission of exchanges today.

Not only does the exchange provide the soldier and airman with a convenient place to shop, but the earnings of the exchange are returned to the serviceman as recreational and welfare benefits in the form of sports equipment, hobby shops, day rooms, and the other facilities for off-duty, on-post, leisure time activities.

false front

The Defense Department has asked Congress to enact legislation that would prohibit commercial firms from using names common to various armed forces exchange activities. The DOD said such legislation is necessary so that servicemen and the public will not be misled into believing that post exchanges and ships stores are catering to the general public and competing with private enterprise.

Since World War II, more than $100,000,000 in exchange earnings have provided for these activities, saving the taxpayer that amount.

As a nonappropriated fund activity, the exchange service is operated with almost no appropriated fund support. The small profit generated on sales covers the cost of merchandise, the salaries of civilian employees, and all the normal expenses of doing business.

Local evidence of the exchange's extensive services can be found at the new Presidio Main PX located opposite the post theatre as well as in day rooms, special services activities and post newspaper operations, which are partially supported by non-appropriated funds derived from PX profits.

Collector's Item

Philatelists Please Note!

A small, but determined, crew of local stamp collectors will face the task of acquiring first-day cancellation issues of the new "Atoms-for-Peace" commemorative stamp which will be issued by the San Francisco post office and other post offices throughout the nation on 28 July.

The central design of the stamp is composed of two spheres showing each side of the world, the whole encircled by the three linked circles emblem which has become the symbol of atomic energy.

Across the two spheres is placed the words, "Atoms for Peace." On both sides and the top of the stamp are the words spoken by President Eisenhower before the United Nations General Assembly on 8 December 1953: "To find the way—by which—the inventiveness of man shall be—consecrated to his life."

Printed in blue and the size of a standard special delivery stamp, the printing of 120 million of the stamps has been authorized.

Stamp collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the new stamp may send a reasonable number of addressed envelopes, with money order remittance to cover the cost of the stamps, enclosed in an outer envelope endorsed FIRST DAY COVERS and addressed to the postmaster, Washington, D.C. Postage stamps and personal checks will not be accepted in payment.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S GROUP of the Fort Baker daily vacation Bible school are shown here with their instructors, following completion of the annual summer school which was held from 20 June to 1 July. Children of service personnel stationed at Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkhite were in attendance, and each day approximately 78 pupils were present. Chaplain (First Lieutenant) Wayne F. Kildall, Fort Baker Chaplain, gave the youngsters an overall theme of "Sailing With Christ," and awards were made to outstanding pupils.

Chaplain Kildall Reports:

Baker Bible School Attendance Broken As Dependents Pack Classes

Among the yearly events in the religious education program of the Fort Baker Chaplain section is the Daily Vacation Bible School, which this year was held from 20 June to 1 July.

Most gratifying to those conducting the school this year was the outstanding daily attendance record of 78.9 students and 17 teachers, as compared to a total teacher-pupil average of 49.9 in 1954. This year, there were 49 pupils with a perfect attendance record.

Held daily from 0830 to 1130 in the Fort Baker chapel, the Bible school was headed by Mrs. Audavee Gaston, who along with the following persons, received letters of commendation for their work: Mrs. Francis Marchand, primary classes; Mrs. Howard Grant, junior boy's class; Mrs. George Milligan, intermediate class; SP 3/c Don Francisco, Chaplain's assistant; Mrs. Samuel Liles, nursery department; Mrs. Thomas Marlatt, junior girl's class, and Mrs. Percy Crimmins, kindergarten class.

Letters of appreciation went to the following: Mrs. Hollis Gates, Mrs. Harry Newhall, Mrs. Henry Paine, Mrs. John Ellis, Mrs. Robert Strong, Mrs. Warren Hurst, Mrs. Richard Taylor, Mrs. Daniel King, Mrs. Emereld Taylor, Mrs. Henry Cooper, Mrs. Darrell Stewart, Mrs. Harold Neill, Mrs. Jose Reyes, Mrs. Richard Temple, Mrs. Lowell Chandler, Mrs. Joseph Curtis, Robert Maxon, Leuland Gaston, Virginia Maxon and Jackie Maxon.

Theme of the Bible school was "Sailing With Christ," and hand-work made by the classes included book-ends, place mats, waste paper baskets and tie racks.

Outstanding pupils who received awards for the 10-day school were Linda Chandler, kindergarten; Diana Johnson, primary; Shiela Liles, junior girls; Buri Johnson, junior boys; Peggy Cranford, activity award, and Ray Harpster, leadership award, both intermediate students.

Chaplain (First Lieutenant) Wayne F. Kildall, Fort Baker Chaplain, was in charge of the school.

The Army Map Service printed nearly 33 million sheets and distributed nearly 17 million maps during FY 1954.

Original Songs Will Highlight Coming Soldier Talent Show

Among the numerous surprises which await those who will see the colossal all-soldier talent show now in rehearsal here, are the two original song compositions by two members of the cast.

Though the titles of the songs, along with the overall theme of the whole production, will remain a dark secret until opening night, one was composed by Pvt. Al Cunningham of the 56th MRU, and the other, which will be a production number, by Miss Rosalind Reinstra.

A mambo team consisting of Miss Marilyn Harner and Cpl. Luis Jimenez, also of the 56th MRU, is in rehearsal each Wednesday and Friday at 1930 hours at the Presidio Service club, along with the rest of the troop.

The call is still out for more men to join the combo group; bass, trumpet, electric guitar, and others are urgently needed. In addition, many more Wac's could also be utilized in the chorus numbers. Further information may be had by calling the Service club at Ext. 2000.

Set to open on 21 August, the show is being directed by Specialist 2/c Stan Dreyfus, 102nd MRU.

Noted Caricaturist Slated For Service Club Appearance

More than eight drawings an hour, and each one different, is the record of caricaturist artist, Paul Swartz, who will present his work at the Presidio Service club Sunday night beginning at 2000 hours. A caricature, defined as, "a cartoon likeness of a person which emphasizes his outstanding features," is Mr. Swartz' career undertaking.

Native of Los Angeles, California, he began drawing at an early age and has the remarkable ability of being able to produce a full color cartoon in six minutes.

He has toured throughout Germany and Austria, entertaining service personnel at numerous gatherings as well as in hospital wards.

Drawings produced by Mr. Swartz at the Service club Sunday night will be presented to the individuals which they represent.

Win Slugfest

Wacs' Sink Local Nine Christian Blasts Homers

The Presidio WAC nine swept to two more victories while dropping one game to highlight the week's girl softball action.

First to fall were the visiting San Diego Waves, champions of the 11th Naval District, who succumbed 13 to 10 in a real slugfest. The Naval champs got off to a good start and led at the start of the third inning seven to one. However, the local girls solved in part the tricky pitching of Paula Roberts and pounded out 12 runs in the next three frames to put the game away.

Zorah Christian led the batting parade with two round trippers followed by Thompson with one. Lillian Vieira sparked the girls afled by turning three sure hits into easy outs from her shortstop position.

The second non-league contest saw the Presidio girls drop a close three to two ball game to the Alameda Semi-Pros at the Washington Park playground. Ruth Gavigan hurled for the locals against Gloria Mijares in a thriller that went two extra innings. Alameda won in the last of the ninth when Kimpse dropped a pop fly Texas leaguer into short right field with two mates aboard for the game's winning tally.

Facing the Alameda Navy Waves on Wednesday the Presidians gathered in 13 runs to edge the sailor girls by three tallies in a regulation seven inning contest.

The third inning proved to be the winning margin as nine WAC batters came to the plate of whom six scored. Christian's triple along with Gavigan's double proved to be the big blows that iced the contest.

Archers Start Hunt Sunday On Deer, Bear

California archery enthusiasts have their innings starting Saturday, 23 July, when the special archery deer and bear season opens for a ten-day run in the coastal area of the state.

Territory open to archers consists of the regular coastal deer season area ranging from southwestern Humboldt County to a small portion of northern San Diego County.

Bag limit for the archers in this area is two bucks, forked horn or better, and two bears. There is no closed season and no bag limit for bears in Humboldt County.

Archers were reminded by the Department of Fish and Game that they may not carry firearms of any kind during the special archery seasons.

In addition to the regular archery season, the special Los Angeles County archery season opens on 23 July and extends to 31 December. The area generally covers the northeastern part of the county.

Detailed information as to the area is included in the 1955 Digest of Hunting Regulations, available at license agents of the Department. The bag limit there is two deer of either sex.

Last year archers set a record deer bag, taking 148 deer, of which 63 were bagged in Los Angeles County.

PROUD SPONSORS posed with this beautiful trophy, emblematic of Presidio's first All-Sixth Army Swimming Championship, this week. Major K. L. Meyer, (left), of the California Military District, team coach, presents the trophy to Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander.

Natators Win Sixth Army Swim Crown

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Winning but one first place and tying for another the Presidio Swim squad captured first place in the All-Sixth Army Swimming and Diving Meet at Fort MacArthur, California.

The winning margin was made possible by the local swimmers gathering in five second places to edge out second place Fort Lewis by four points in a thriller that went down to the final event.

Behind the clever coaching of Major Ken Meyer, the Presidians gathered in a total of 35½ points with Fort Lewis, Washington, earning 31½ points and third place Two Rock Ranch pushing closely with 31 points.

Pfc. Pete Cole nearly won the meet single-handed for his Two Rock Ranch team as he took six first places to win 30 out of the 31 points his squad managed to roll up. Cole, a former swim star from Stanford University, was clearly the outstanding swimmer of the three day meet.

Named to go on the All-Army Meet at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, 28-29 July, from the local garrison are Norm Von Herzen, 100 and 200 meter sprints, Ron Golden an All-Army performer from last year in the 400 and 800 meter distance events, and Arnold Vandenberg for the 200 meter breast-stroke.

Although women's events were not scored in the team events, Peggy Ann Harris and Betty Cope of the Presidio were selected for the All-Army meet at Fort Sill.

100 Meter Free Style—1, Cole, Two Rock Ranch; 2, Von Herzen, Presidio of San Francisco; 3, Craig, Fort Huachuca; 4, (tie) Stuart, Presidio of San Francisco and Palmer, Fort Lewis, 1:12/10.

Local Golf Tennis Aces Home Soon

Two All-Sixth Army tournaments are due to wind up today with the golfers at Fort Ord and the tennis matches being played at the Madigan Army Hospital, Tacoma, Washington.

The new Fort Ord course is the scene of the golf action with the cream of the western golfers in action.

Making up the local divot squad in the order that they finished in the recent Presidio golf tourney are: 1, Dennis Whyte; 2, Thomas Ward; 3, Leon Thomas; 4, Rollin Kapp; 5, Harold Frankhouser; 6, John Harrigan.

Representing the Presidio in the open doubles competition are Anas Velarde and Mat Schmutz, who were recent finalists in the Central Division playoffs played here.

In the Senior Men's Doubles, the winners in the Central Division playoffs, Victor Fox and John Fleming, loom as early favorites.

Five Dolly Varden trout, quite rare for California, have been acquired for the Department of Fish and Game's Mt. Shasta Hatchery display aquarium. They were taken from the McCloud River, where they are natives.

MRU Leads Eastern Set Bryant High

The 102nd MRU men continue their bulldog-like grip on first place in the Eastern League with the Sky Busters trailing closely behind. The league leaders with a 39 win and 13 loss record have a grand total of 36,177 pins smashed in official play so far this season.

Bryant tops the 102nd kegsters with a 173 average followed closely by Mulesky in for a 168 average for his 15 games of play this year.

A three way tie for third place exists between the 6513 SU, the Hilltoppers No. 6 and the Occoquians, each squad boasting a 34 win 18 loss record.

In the Pacific League, the Sixth Army Signal crew roll right along with a 29½ to 10½ win-loss record. Adair continues to be the mainstay of the first placers with 5076 pins smashed for a 169 average in his 30 games played.

The Keystone Kops pulled the upset of the week when they dumped the Sixth Army Signalers four games to zero. Johnson's individual high of 207 led to his 558 combined total for the series.

The week's only make-up game saw the Company B team from the 505th MPs defeat Headquarters Company, Station Complement, three to one as Dealey's 487 total paced the victory.

A five-man skeet team from the Fitzsimons Army Hospital won the team title and 23 of 50 trophies in the Colorado State skeet tourney at Lowry AFB.

Army Still Seeking New Lyrics For Old Caisson Song

The Army's still in hot pursuit of writers, poets and lyricists, whose aid is being sought to provide a set of new lyrics for the Field Artillery's old, old "Caisson Song."

By combining new words with the old music, the Army has hopes of coming up with an official march which would capture some of the historic spirit of the nation's oldest military service.

All Army personnel who have a knack for turning catchy phrases which can be set to the music of the "Caisson Song" are urged to submit lyrics to the Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C., Attn: AGMD, not later than 15 October 1955.

The lyrics should be written about the Army as a whole without reference to any specific unit. In other words, the lyrics should "capture and glorify in song the proud traditions and spirit of the entire Army."

As a guide to the potential lyric writer, the Army has indicated that verses of the song should describe key battles and campaigns in which the Army has participated.

It's suggested that the first and second verses might depict battles of the Revolutionary and Civil Wars and be followed by a chorus of the march. Other wars and campaigns could be dealt with in succeeding verses.

safety council

The establishment of a post Safety Council was announced recently by post headquarters. Purpose of the new council, which meets once a month, is to provide advice and propose policies concerning the Presidio accident prevention program.

Under the chairmanship of the post S-1, Lt. Col. Archie R. Traynor, the Safety Council is composed of safety officers from all Presidio sections and post and sub-post units of battalion size or larger. The post safety director will serve as secretary of the new group.

Fort Scott Reception Honors Retiring DC Of 6th AA Reg. Com.

Colonel Pierre B. Denson, since 1951, deputy commander, Western Army Antiaircraft Command, Fort Baker, (now redesignated 6th AA Regional Command) will retire from active Army duty on 31 July.

A reception in his honor was given Wednesday, at the Fort Scott Officer's mess and was attended by members of the command including Major General and Mrs. Hobart Hewitt, commanding general, 6th AA Regional Command.

Graduating from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point with the class of 1925, Colonel Denson, in World War II, served with AAA forces in the Mediterranean theater and was awarded the Silver Star Medal for gallantry in action during assault landings on Sicily.

During the period 1946-48, the colonel was in the Far East, serving first with the War Crimes Commission and later as senior military government officer at Hokkaido, Japan.

Following retirement, Colonel and Mrs. Denson and their two daughters, Jane Gay, 18, and Velma Joan, 16, will reside in the San Francisco area where the colonel will be in the investment business.

officers recently assigned

Lt Col. FRANK B. WILSON has been assigned as Comptroller at Headquarters California Military District, Presidio of San Francisco.

Colonel Wilson entered the Army in 1941 after receiving a Bachelor of Science degree from Alabama Polytechnic Institute and a Master of Business Administration degree from the Harvard Business School.

He served with the Comptroller Section of the Artillery Center, and the Department of Non-Resident Instruction of the Artillery School at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. From 1952 to 1955 he held various comptroller assignments at Camp Gifu, Southwestern Command, in Japan.

The colonel was with the Third Army in Europe during World War II and participated in four campaigns. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with V, the Purple Heart, and the Presidential Unit Citation for action during the relief of Bastogne. During the Occupation of Germany, he served with the Military Government in Berlin and with the Division Artillery of the First Infantry Division. He, his wife and their three children now reside in San Francisco.

Lt. Colonel ROY J. BURKE is the newly assigned chief of the inspection division, Ordnance section, Headquarters Sixth Army. His last duty station was Formosa where he spent 18 months with MAAG. Colonel Burke's wife and their son have accompanied him to his new post here.

The colonel's World War II service was in the European theater where he served as commanding officer of various ammunition units and depots throughout 1942-46.

Veteran of 20 years' service, he has been decorated with the Soldier's Medal, the Bronze Star Medal and the French Croix de Guerre.

Lt. Colonel JAMES C. HAMILTON only recently completed four years of duty in the office of the Judge Advocate General, Washington, D.C.

His new assignment here is with the Judge Advocate section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

On active duty for the past 15 years, Colonel Hamilton was with the Air Force at Scott Field, Illinois, during World War II, in 1946 served a year with the military government of Korea, and from 1943 to 1951 was with occupation forces in Japan. He was awarded the Commendation Ribbon for his Korean service.

In 1945, the colonel attended the Navy's school of military government which was at Princeton University. He and Mrs. Hamilton and their two sons, James, 12 years, and George, 11 years, now reside in San Francisco.

First Lieutenant RULON MADSEN has become assistant the officer in charge of the Marine Repair shop, Post Transportation section, Presidio of San Francisco.

For the past seven months, Lt. Madsen has been stationed at Deseret Chemical Depot, Tooele, Utah, prior to which he spent a year in Korea with the 712th Transportation Battalion.

Enlisted during World War II, the lieutenant served a year in Japan with the 19th Infantry, 24th Division, and was released in 1947. Entering R.O.T.C. at the University of Utah where he majored in education, Lt. Madsen was called to active duty in 1951 and attended the AAA and guided missile school at Fort Bliss, Texas, and was commissioned Artillery. He transferred to Transportation Corps in 1952.

Mrs. Madsen and the couple's three children will join him when quarters are obtained here.

In his first duty assignment as Second Lieutenant EUGENE I. HUDSON, who entered the Army approximately six months ago. He has been named assistant Bay Area Exchange officer, with station of the Presidio of San Francisco.

Upon entering the service, Lt. Hudson attended the associate officer's course and the Post Exchange school, both at Fort Lee, Virginia.

Commissioned from R.O.T.C. ranks, the lieutenant attended Dartmouth college and Stanford law school, and was graduate with the class of 1954. He practiced law briefly in his native Los Angeles prior to entering the service.

Lt. Hudson's wife has accompanied him to his assignment here.

buddies!

Army musicians have accompanied Army fighting men since the Army marched to the fire and drum during the Revolutionary War but the military band was not formalized as part of the Army until 1861.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE by the Honor Guard spelled another victory for this unit, which for the second straight week won the "Honor Unit" plaque at Friday's retreat parade. Here, Lt. Col. Carl J. Hunsinger, Sixth Army G-3, presents the plaque and a hand-shake to 1st Lt. Carl J. Bur who served as CO of the unit at the Parade.

TAKING IN THE SIGHTS: These young San Francisco cub scouts from Cub Pack 42, Saints Peter and Paul church, are among 5,000 teachers and children who have toured the many points of historical interest on the Presidio grounds in the past year and a half. Headquarters, Sixth Army Public Information Office conducts the tours for more than 250 people each month. To date more than 80 Bay Area schools and scout groups have been given a first hand introduction to famous historical sites as well as many highlights of various military operations.

Number Given Guided Tour Of Presidio Tops 5000 Mark

Major Andrew Bretz, Jr., chief of the special events section of the Sixth Army Public Information Office, announced this week that more than 5000 Bay Area school children, scouts and other groups from 80 activities have been conducted on tours of the Presidio since the tour program was initiated in March 1954.

The groups vary in size from 10 to 150 and a monthly average of more than 250 make the tours.

The tour groups are shown the Officer's club which stands at the site of the original Spanish Presidio and is the oldest building in San Francisco. They also see Fort Point at the Golden Gate, which is a partial replica of Fort Sumter and the only brick fort West of the Mississippi. The seawall of the fort still stands after 100 years, undamaged by rough waters.

At Crissey Field, the tourists are provided a first-hand introduction to Army aviation by observing some of the activities of Headquarters Sixth Army aviation detachment. Here they see a small group of helicopters and light transport aircraft.

They are also shown one of the newest buildings at the Presidio, which has already made its mark in history. The Presidio Enlisted Men's Club was the site of the signing of the Japanese Peace Treaty in 1951. It is among the most beautiful and best equipped service clubs in the Armed Forces today.

At Fort Scott, the schoolchildren get a view of some of the anti-aircraft installations which stood ready to protect San Francisco during World War II.

Typical of the groups which are given a tour of the Presidio was the 110 delegates to the 4-H All-Star Conference at the University of California last April. Like some of the other touring groups, the young agrarians were treated to a short band concert at the Service club and a precision drill exhibition by the Presidians, a special marching unit of the Honor Guard.

To better facilitate the tours, the PIO arranges for Army buses to pick up the children and other groups nearly any place in San Francisco, the East Bay, Marin County and the peninsula. Sometimes the groups are further accommodated at Presidio mess halls.

Main purpose of the PIO tours is to provide an on-the-spot supplement to classroom studies of local history and also to provide the children with an accurate notion of many interesting operations within the military community.

Presently serving as tour guide is WAC Pfc. Patricia Storey. Groups interested in making arrangements for a tour may contact the Sixth Army Public Information Office, Building 87, telephone extension 2470.

salute

The Army Hour, an Army produced radio program presented by the Mutual Broadcasting system, will feature a salute to the Second Armored Division on this Saturday's program over radio station KFRC (610 on your dial). The program starts at 1630 hours.

reserve first

For the first time in Reserve history, a logistical command, the 311th, is giving full support to a combat division, the 63rd, in the field, as these Reserve units undergo their annual two weeks of summer training at Camp Roberts, California.

The Southern California unit, which includes attached units of several hundred San Francisco Bay area personnel, is commanded by Colonel F. C. Menecay. It trains at Fort MacArthur throughout the year.

Though now operating at reduced strength, the 311th has an authorized strength which makes it the largest type logistical organization in history. The 311th itself is the largest headquarters Reserve unit in the country at present.

history!

The grade of General of the Armies of the United States was created by federal statute March, 1799, and ceased to exist after March, 1802. However, by Public Law 45, approved September, 1919, General John J. Pershing was appointed to this grade and no other officer has held this title.

Touch of Home!

Army, Air Force Exchange Operations Mark 60th Year of Twofold Service

The 60th year of providing men and women in uniform with a touch of home wherever they are stationed will be marked by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service next Monday, 25 July.

Speaking of this anniversary, Major General H. L. Peckham, Chief of Army, Air Force Exchange, said: "Sixty years ago this month, exchanges were established to provide service personnel with items of convenience and necessity where they wanted them, when they wanted them, and at prices they could afford to pay."

General Peckham observed that exchanges are continuing to do a good job. He cited a recent customer survey in which enlisted men of the Army and the Air Force listed the exchange as the number one benefit to be considered in deciding whether or not to remain in military service.

The mission of the first exchange, established in 1895, read: "... its primary purpose is to supply the troops at reasonable prices with articles of ordinary use, wear, and consumption not supplied by the Government and to afford them means of rational recreation and amusement." This is basically the mission of exchanges today.

Not only does the exchange provide the soldier and airman with a convenient place to shop, but the earnings of the exchange are returned to the serviceman as recreational and welfare benefits in the form of sports equipment, hobby shops, day rooms, and the other facilities for off-duty, on-post, leisure time activities.

Local evidence of the exchange's extensive services can be found at the new Presidio Main PX located opposite the post theatre as well as in day rooms, special services activities and post newspaper operations, which are partially supported by non-appropriated funds derived from PX profits.

Collector's Item

Philatelists Please Note!

A small, but determined, crew of local stamp collectors will face the task of acquiring first-day cancellation issues of the new "Atoms-for-Peace" commemorative stamp which will be issued by the San Francisco post office and other post offices throughout the nation on 28 July. The central design of the stamp is composed of two spheres showing each side of the world, the whole encircled by the three linked circles emblem which has become the symbol of atomic energy.

Across the two spheres is placed the words, "Atoms for Peace." On both sides and the top of the stamp are the words spoken by President Eisenhower before the United Nations General Assembly on 8 December 1953: "—To find the way—by which the inventiveness of man shall be—consecrated to his life."

Printed in blue and the size of a standard special delivery stamp, the printing of 120 million of the stamps has been authorized.

Stamp collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the new stamp may send a reasonable number of addressed envelopes, with money under remittance to cover the cost of the stamps, enclosed in an outer envelope endorsed FIRST DAY COVERS and addressed to the postmaster, Washington, D.C. Postage stamps and personal checks will not be accepted in payment.

false front

The Defense Department has asked Congress to enact legislation that would prohibit commercial firms from using names common to various armed forces exchange activities. The DOD said such legislation is necessary so that servicemen and the public will not be misled into believing that post exchanges and ships stores are catering to the general public and competing with private enterprise.

Since World War II, more than $100,000,000 in exchange earnings have provided for these activities, saving the taxpayer that amount.

As a nonappropriated fund activity, the exchange service is operated with almost no appropriated fund support. The small profit generated on sales covers the cost of merchandise, the salaries of civilian employees, and all the normal expenses of doing business.

Local evidence of the exchange's extensive services can be found at the new Presidio Main PX located opposite the post theatre as well as in day rooms, special services activities and post newspaper operations, which are partially supported by non-appropriated funds derived from PX profits.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S GROUP of the Fort Baker daily vacation Bible school are shown here with their instructors, following completion of the annual summer school which was held from 20 June to 1 July. Children of service personnel stationed at Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkhite were in attendance, and each day approximately 78 pupils were present. Chaplain (First Lieutenant) Wayne F. Kildall, Fort Baker Chaplain, gave the youngsters an overall theme of "Sailing With Christ," and awards were made to outstanding pupils.

Chaplain Kildall Reports:

Baker Bible School Attendance Broken As Dependents Pack Classes

Among the yearly events in the religious education program of the Fort Baker Chaplain section is the Daily Vacation Bible School, which this year was held from 20 June to 1 July.

Most gratifying to those conducting the school this year was the outstanding daily attendance record of 78.9 students and 17 teachers, as compared to a total teacher-pupil average of 49.9 in 1954. This year, there were 49 pupils with a perfect attendance record.

Held daily from 0830 to 1130 in the Fort Baker chapel, the Bible school was headed by Mrs. Audavee Gaston, who along with the following persons, received letters of commendation for their work: Mrs. Francis Marchand, primary classes; Mrs. Howard Grant, junior boy's class; Mrs. George Milligan, intermediate class; SP 3/c Don Francisco, Chaplain's assistant; Mrs. Samuel Liles, nursery department; Mrs. Thomas Marlatt, junior girl's class, and Mrs. Percy Crimmins, kindergarten class.

Letters of appreciation went to the following: Mrs. Hollis Gates, Mrs. Harry Newhall, Mrs. Henry Paine, Mrs. John Ellis, Mrs. Robert Strong, Mrs. Warren Hurst, Mrs. Richard Taylor, Mrs. Daniel King, Mrs. Emereld Taylor, Mrs. Henry Cooper, Mrs. Darrell Stewart, Mrs. Harold Neill, Mrs. Jose Reyes, Mrs. Richard Temple, Mrs. Lewell Chandler, Mrs. Joseph Curtis, Robert Maxon, Leuland Gaston, Virginia Maxon and Jackie Maxon.

Theme of the Bible school was "Sailing With Christ," and handwork made by the classes included book-ends, place mats, waste paper baskets and tie racks.

Outstanding pupils who received awards for the 10-day school were Linda Chandler, kindergarten; Diana Johnson, primary; Shiela Liles, junior girls; Burl Johnson, junior boys; Peggy Cranford, activity award, and Ray Harpster, leadership award, both intermediate students.

Chaplain (First Lieutenant) Wayne F. Kildall, Fort Baker Chaplain, was in charge of the school.

The Army Map Service printed nearly 33 million sheets and distributed nearly 17 million maps during FY 1954.

Original Songs Will Highlight Coming Soldier Talent Show

Among the numerous surprises which await those who will see the colossal all-soldier talent show now in rehearsal here, are the two original song compositions by two members of the cast.

Though the titles of the songs, along with the overall theme of the whole production, will remain a dark secret until opening night, one was composed by Pvt. A Cunningham of the 56th MRU, and the other, which will be a production number, by Miss Rosalind Reinstra.

A mambo team consisting of Miss Marilyn Harner and Cpl. Luis Jimenez, also of the 56th MRU, is in rehearsal each Wednesday and Friday at 1930 hours at the Presidio Service club, along with the rest of the troop.

The call is still out for more men to join the combo group; bass, trumpet, electric guitar, and others are urgently needed. In addition, many more Wacs could also be utilized in the chorus numbers. Further information may be had by calling the Service club at Ext. 2000.

Set to open on 21 August, the show is being directed by Specialist 2/c Stan Dreyfus, 102nd MRU.

Fabulous!

AMONG THE CARICATURES produced by Mr. Paul Swartz, caricature artist appearing at the Presidio Service club Sunday at 2000, is one of himself at his work. Mr. Swartz, native of Los Angeles, has traveled extensively in Europe entertaining troops by giving them a birds-eye view of themselves as the caricaturist seems them. Personnel at the Service club Sunday night will have a chance to be penned and penciled in like manner and to keep the results.

Noted Caricaturist Slated For Service Club Appearance

More than eight drawings an hour, and each one different, is the record of caricaturist artist, Paul Swartz, who will present his work at the Presidio Service club Sunday night beginning at 2000 hours. A caricature, defined as, "a cartoon likeness of a person which emphasizes his outstanding features," is Mr. Swartz' career undertaking.

Native of Los Angeles, California, he began drawing at an early age and has the remarkable ability of being able to produce a full color cartoon in six minutes.

He has toured throughout Germany and Austria, entertaining service personnel at numerous gatherings as well as in hospital wards.

Drawings produced by Mr. Swartz at the Service club Sunday night will be presented to the individuals which they represent.

Full Colonel!

IT'S COLONEL BLACKER now as Sixth Army Chief of Staff, Brig. Gen. Louis J. Rumaggi pins the eagles on the blouse of former Lt. Col. Kemuel K. Blacker, secretary general staff. Colonel Blacker received his promotion to full colonel last week.

New Eagles

Busy Secretary of the General Staff Wins Promotion to Full Colonel

At an informal ceremony at Sixth Army Headquarters last week the eagles of an Army colonel were pinned on the blouse of former Lieutenant Colonel Kemuel K. Blacker, secretary of the general staff of sixth army, by Brigadier General Louis J. Rumaggi, Sixth Army Chief of Staff.

Born in Afton, Wyo., 20 March, 1916, Colonel Blacker attended Oregon State College and received a Bachelor of Science degree in technical forestry in June, 1938. He returned to his alma mater in 1939 to work toward a master's degree in the same field but was called to active duty as a second lieutenant of artillery in December, 1939.

Ordered overseas in July, 1940, as a second lieutenant, he was assigned to the 52nd Field Artillery Battalion of the 24th Infantry Division in Hawaii. He remained with this unit during his entire World War II service, eventually rising to command of the battalion. He was in Hawaii with his unit during the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Following movement of the 24th Division to the Southwest Pacific, he participated in five campaigns in New Guinea and in the Philippines and was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action, the Soldier's Medal for heroism, and the Purple Heart for wounds received in action, all on Leyte Island.

In January, 1946, he was assigned to the general staff of the Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla. While at Fort Sill he also qualified as an Army pilot and in December, 1947, was assigned to the Air Training Department of The Artillery School.

He left Fort Sill in August, 1951, to attend The Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and upon completion of his studies there was ordered to Turkey in August, 1952, as a member of the U. S. Army field training team with the Turkish Army.

Upon his return to the United States in September, 1953, he was assigned to the Presidio of San Francisco for duty with the G-3 Section (Plans, Training and Operations) of Sixth Army Headquarters and in March, 1954, was named Secretary of the General Staff.

President Eisenhower has signed a measure renewing for three years the serviceman's privilege of bringing certain personal gifts and household goods into the U. S. duty-free after serving overseas.

All-Hawaiian Unit Will Take Basic Training Together

A group of 179 Army enlistees formed into a special "All Hawaiian Company," will arrive at Fort Mason at 9:30 a. m. today, en route to Fort Ord and basic training.

The Department of the Army approved the plan to allow the men to remain together as a unit during their basic training at Fort Ord.

The trainees will arrive at Fort Mason aboard the U.S.N.S. David C. Shanks and following welcoming ceremonies will be processed on the pier prior to departure for Fort Ord by bus.

Dockside ceremonies will include music by the Fort Mason Band and Sixth Army Pipe Band, songs by Miss Virginia Donnell of the Port of Embarkation, and a brief welcoming address by Colonel Wilber M. Gaine, Chief of Staff and Deputy Port Commander at Fort Mason.

Also on hand to greet the men will be Hawaiian members of the Fort Mason Women's Army Corps Detachment.

DOD Asks Congress For Adjustment Pay To Reserve Force-Outs

The Defense Department has asked Congress to provide readjustment payments for reserve officers involuntarily released from active duty. Any reserve officer or warrant officer who had completed five years of continuous service and was not being released because of moral or professional dereliction would be entitled to receive the lump sum payment.

Officers with more than five and less than 10 years' service would receive one half of one month's pay for each year of active commissioned or warrant duty.

Those with more than 10 and less than 20 years' service would receive half of a month's pay for each of the first 10 years and a full month's pay for each year thereafter.

Reservists with 20 or more years of active duty would not be eligible for the readjustment pay because they can retire.

The Defense Department also provides that a Reserve officer on active duty who is within two years of qualifying for retired or retirement pay could not be involuntarily separated without the approval of the appropriate service secretary.

Noted Civic Leader Will Address QM Meeting at Presidio

"Is It Worth Defending," is the title of the address to be delivered by Mr. Rilea W. Doe, vice-president of Safeway stores, at the dinner meeting of the Northern California Chapter, Quartermaster Association, Thursday (28 July) at the Presidio Officer's Open Mess. Chapter president is Colonel Louis G. Bumen, Sixth Army Quartermaster.

Among the invited guests are Brigadier General and Mrs. Louis G. Rumaggi. General Rumaggi is Sixth Army Chief of Staff.

Mr. Doe has been with Safeway since 1919 and is graduate of Iowa Wesleyan college, class of 1918, and a veteran of World War I, serving with the Coast Artillery. His son, Theodore, died in England in September 1943, while serving with the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Following various store managerships, Mr. Doe became director of public relations, headquarters Safeway, Oakland, in 1930.

The Quartermaster Association, with headquarters in Washington, D.C., is composed of officers of the Regular Army, the National Guard, the Organized Reserves, key civilians in the Federal government and leaders in industry.

Army Places Order For 14 100-Ton Amphibious BARCs

Additions to the Army's fleet amphibious vehicles will be made soon when delivery of 14 new BARCs ordered recently begins. Weighing-in at 100 tons, it can carry a 60-ton payload from ship to shore and then move it inland.

The BARC has undergone extensive testing since the fall of 1952, when it was first developed. It was during one of these early tests in March, 1953 that one of the first units built was sunk 40 miles south of the Golden Gate while being towed from Monterey to the Presidio for a local demonstration.

Operating on principles similar to those of the well-known DUKW of WWII, the BARC can perform tasks ashore and afloat far outranging present amphibious vehicles. Its name is derived from the nomenclature—Barge, Amphibious, Resupply, Cargo.

The amphibious BARC can take heavy loads from shipside in deep water, across a beach and over rough terrain to an inland supply point for direct discharge, or for transfer to truck or rail, largely eliminating the necessity for difficult and inefficient rehandling of cargo at the waterline.

It is designed primarily to carry heavy and bulky items of equipment, such as cranes, tanks, trucks and artillery pieces.

The craft has an over-all length of 61 feet, width of 27½ feet and a height of 17 feet. Despite its size, it requires only a single operator on both land and in the water and requires a basic crew of only three for all operations.

Each of the BARC's four wheels is separately powered by an individually 165 horsepower industrial diesel engine driving through a torque converter and to torqmatic transmission. Maximum land speed is 15 miles per hour.

Steering on land is accomplished by hydraulic control and

Other features include a hydraulic bow ramp; a stern winch with a line-pull capacity of 50,000 pounds; a Flooding-type fire extinguisher system, and a removable canopy over the operating cab to reduce the over-all height three feet to facilitate shipment.

There have been but eight Generals of the Army — Ulysses S. Grant, William T. Sherman, Philip H. Sheridan, George C. Marshall, Douglas MacArthur, Henry H. Arnold, Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Omar N. Bradley.

Secretary Higgins Visits Sixth Army Prior to SF Meet

The Honorable Frank H. Higgins, Assistant Secretary of the Army for Logistics, Research and Development, visited Sixth Army Headquarters yesterday.

Upon his arrival at the Presidio, a 17-gun salute was fired in his honor. After being greeted by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, he inspected a guard of honor composed of the Sixth Army Band, Sixth Army Pipe Band and Sixth Army Honor Guard unit.

Following the inspection, Mr. Higgins toured the Presidio with General Young and was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess.

Today he will conduct a procurement conference in the Marines' Memorial Building at 609 Sutter Street, San Francisco. He will head a panel including members of his Washington staff to discuss informally Army procurement matters.

Colonel George A. Harvey, commander of the Oakland Quartermaster Market Center, will be host at the meeting which will be attended by approximately 100 representatives of the Army's Ordnance, Quartermaster, Signal, Transportation, Medical Service and Chemical Corps, and Corps of Engineers who are engaged in procurement activities.

Qualified W-1s Given Green Light for 1 Sept. Promotions

Washington (AFPS) — Army warrant officers, W-1, with 18 or more months active service in grade who have "clearly demonstrated they are qualified for advancement" may be given temporary promotions to chief warrant officer, W-2, starting Sept. 1, the Army has announced.

Major commanders will be given authority to make such promotions under AR 624-155, which is being revised.

They may further delegate this authority, the Army said, to commanders of regiments, groups and similar organizations, including SCARWAF units.

SMALL WORLD is an old saying especially true in the Army where combat acquaintances made half-way around the globe are frequently renewed stateside. On his first visit to Fort Lewis since assuming Sixth Army command, Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young (left) encountered M/Sgt. Arne Stenslie ("Mr. Second Division") whom he first met in Korea when the General was commanding the 2nd Infantry Division during bitter 1951-1952 fighting and the NCO was a member of the special Ivanhoe Security group. Major General Thomas Timberman, post and division commander, (center) conducted General Young on the Ft. Lewis tour.

MANNING A 90 MM GUN as part of their Reserve training at Camp Irwin, California, are these members of the 319th Antiaircraft Battalion, USAR, who are a Bay Area unit which meets for its regular weekly sessions at California Military District. The battalion, which is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Ramon F.

Cayot, received a rating of "Excellent," from the Sixth Army inspecting team. In addition to 90 MM training, the battalion also fired the .50 calibre machine gun, and took part in surface gunnery, night problems and a full field inspection.

rockefeller award

Civilian employees engaged in high level supply procurement and staff personnel, as well as those engaged in research and engineering phases, are being urged to consider applying for the fourth annual Rockefeller Public Service Awards program in which Department of the Army has been invited to participate. The program permits award recipients to receive six to 12 months' leave, at no financial sacrifice, for the purpose of study or research at a college or university of the recipient's choice either in this country or abroad. Applications are to be in by 15 August and interested personnel may obtain application blanks as well as full information on the program from the Civilian Personnel Division in Building 36.

Kickoff Meeting Held To Spark Local Drive Next Month For Relief Funds

Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, opened the kick-off meeting yesterday afternoon of local unit and activity representatives for the Joint Army Emergency Relief-Army Relief Society fund campaign which is slated for 1-31 August, this year.

The Army's own fund-raising campaign is conducted each year to permit a voluntary contribution from every member of the Army in order to raise in a single campaign the funds needed for both organizations.

The twofold purpose of the campaign is to raise ample funds to cover the net annual disbursements for assistance by the Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society and to inform military personnel of the financial assistance which they and their dependents may receive from AER and of the assistance which the Army Relief Society provides for needy widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel.

Traditionally, we of the Army have always been concerned with one another's welfare. This tradition has grown and been maintained in the Army largely because of the splendid work of the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society. It is especially important for each of us to do our share to make possible the service these two organizations are prepared to administer.

The 1955 Joint Fund Campaign offers an opportunity for all military personnel to contribute toward our common welfare.

I sincerely urge you to give your earnest support to these two organizations.

C. E. LUNDQUIST
Colonel, Infantry
Deputy Post Commander

Held at the post theatre, the meeting was designed to integrate and develop plans for the 1955 campaign which will be under the direction of Maj. Elsie L. Weible, post funds custodian.

Informational data distributed to the representative indicated that although $4,740 was netted in the 1954 campaign, a total of $11,426 was lent to local military personnel for emergency purposes.

This means that the interest-free loans were repaid quickly enough to permit loading of the money several times.

Bay Area Civilian Hourly Employees Win Wage Increase

The Army-Air Force Wage Board has approved a wage increase for over 5,000 wage board (blue collar) Army employees in the San Francisco Bay Area. Regular Wage Board employees will receive an increase of approximately seven cents per hour. Wage Board Supervisors will receive an increase of approximately 9.6¢ per hour. The new rates are to become effective at the beginning of the first pay period after 5 August, 1955.

Army Wage Board employees at the following installations and activities in the San Francisco Bay Area are affected:

Hq. Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.
Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.
Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno, Calif.
San Francisco National Cemetery, Calif.

San Francisco Ordnance District employees at Gilroy, Calif.; San Jose, Calif.; Redwood City, Calif.; Emeryville, Calif.; Benicia, Calif.; Berkeley, Calif.; Richmond, Calif.; San Francisco, Calif.
Signal Corps Supply Agency, Los Angeles Regional Office employees at San Bruno, Calif.; San Francisco, Calif.; Redwood City, Calif.; San Carlos, Calif.; San Leandro, Calif.; Oakland, Calif.; Emeryville, Calif.; Los Gatos, Calif.; Palo Alto, Calif.; Berkeley, Calif.
6002 SU PSF Employees at Presidio of San Francisco; Travis AFB; Angel Island; Two Rock Ranch; Oakland Army Base; San Bruno; and Ft. Baker.

New Law Would Allow Permanent Household Storage

The House has passed and sent to the Senate legislation that would permit permanent storage of servicemen's household goods in commercial warehouses. Under the existing law, the services are not allowed to store such goods commercially for more than six months.

After the six-month period, the goods must be transported to a military warehouse at government expense. The Defense Department believes this legislation will result in a saving of many millions of dollars to the government.

President Selects Ohio Paper Exec. For Anderson's Job

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower has named Reuben B. Robertson, Jr., an Ohio paper company executive, to succeed Robert B. Anderson as deputy secretary of defense.

The President earlier had accepted, "with the greatest reluctance," Mr. Anderson's resignation effective Aug. 15.

Mr. Robertson, a 47-year-old former WWII army officer, has served the government in a number of capacities, including a recent stint as a member of a Hoover Commission task force that studied the Defense Department.

In accepting Mr. Anderson's resignation, the President praised him for a selfless devotion to duty, keen judgment and exceptional ability in carrying projects through to completion.

Coming

NEXT WEEK a full length special feature will spotlight unusual operations of one of the most unique organizations in the Army. Don't miss a visit in pictures and prose with Presidio's own "odd job Charles."

General Ridgway:

On Air Transportability!

“The ability of the U.S. Army to move its units by air for delivery into combat depends upon (a) the characteristics and performance of available air transports, and (b) the weight and size of the weapons, vehicles and equipment of Army units to be moved. Considerable progress has been made in the development of several types of aircraft suitable for Army use. The state of technology of aircraft design and production will now allow us to predict, with reasonable certainty, what may be obtainable for Army use in the foreseeable future. Likewise our experience of the past ten years, coupled with our most recent experience in testing our infantry and armored divisions for atomic combat, has given us sufficient basis on which to estimate the requirements for divisions to enable them to conduct sustained land combat in the future.

“An analysis of both the aircraft problem and the future requirements of Army divisions, and the inter-relationship of these two, makes it apparent that a re-examination of our present policy on air transportability is in order.

“The present policy of the U.S. Army is to achieve a maximum degree of air transportability of all elements of the Army consistent with the primary needs of our units for the weapons, vehicles and equipment to enable them to conduct sustained combat on land. This policy in turn is reflected in our Research and Development Program. As stated in AR 705-30, 7 November, 1952:

“Air transportability of Army material is a continuing requirement. Success in future operations will increasingly depend upon the extent to which our forces may be readily airlifted. These regulations are issued to insure that all equipment is as light and compact as possible, subject to the condition that this requirement does not impair essential operational characteristics materially or increase overall costs disproportionately.

“This policy has been derived from our experience gained in World War II and the several senior boards and study groups that have analyzed the subject in the past ten years. In this period of time we have endeavored to provide the Army with the weapons, vehicles and equipment that it would need for sustained combat and, at the same time, achieve a high degree of air transportability. It is apparent that we have not been successful to date in making an optimum use of available aircraft. Our equipment has become heavier and now it is becoming apparent that the equipment necessary to fight successfully in an atomic war, in general, will be heavier than that now presently employed. It is also becoming equally apparent that in an atomic war there will be an increasing need for a maximum exploitation of the many types of airlift that will be available: the helicopter, the convertiplane, the light utility plane, and new types of Troop Carrier aircraft.

“The mission of the U.S. Army is to conduct sustained combat on land, and to win such combat. This mission is derived from national laws, approved national policy, and approved roles and missions. National policy, however, must change to meet the requirements of a changing world, as well as the evolution in the development of new weapons systems. Current policy emphasizes the need for highly mobile elements of our armed forces ready and able to cope with peripheral wars. The U.S. Army must be prepared to deter or defeat local aggression as well as be prepared to discharge its task in a general war. It must have highly mobile, versatile forces possessing an atomic capability ready to move on short notice to any overseas land area in which aggression may occur.

“It is strikingly apparent that the time has come for the Army to recognize the need for achieving a maximum degree of air transportability for those components of the Army developed to perform this function; via: movement by air into an objective area for combat. The achievement of this capability must not be inhibited by the requirements of those divisions that must achieve a capability for sustained land combat. Our airborne divisions and those reconnaissance units required to move by air must be provided with such light weight weapons, vehicles and equipment as to enable them to make the most efficient use of present and projected airlift in all categories. After assuring the achievement of the air mobility capability, consideration then will be given to the achievement of the maximum feasible capability for sustained combat.

“All planning, research and development, and combat development agencies will note the guidance contained herein and take positive steps toward implementation in both present and future development programs.

“To assure that the air transportability policy stated herein receives the emphasis it deserves, I desire the contents of this letter be given the widest dissemination in the Army.”

Burial Plans Studied For 'Unknown American'

Washington (AFPS)—Plans for the burial of an “Unknown American” of WWII in Arlington National Cemetery alongside the Unknown Soldier of WWI again are under study by the Defense Department.

The outbreak of the Korean conflict postponed arrangements that had been made to honor an unknown fighting man of WWII.

It had been planned to select him at a ceremony in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, in May 1951, from among six bodies brought back from military cemeteries in each WWII theater of operations.

He was to be called the “Unknown American” because he might have been a member of any of the armed forces, and would represent all the U.S. fighting men who died in the world struggle.

Since the postponement was announced in November 1950, no action has been taken on the selection or the plans for the memorial that were drawn up by the Army.

The new study was initiated after Rufus H. Wilson, national commander of AMVETS, wrote to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, asking that the project be started.

Mr. Wilson has passed on the request to the Army and is awaiting its report.

Military May Play Key Role During Next Defense Drill

Washington (AFPS)—Military personnel may participate in a nation-wide civil defense drill to be held sometime in 1956, according to Director of Defense Mobilization Arthur S. Flemming.

Mr. Flemming made the disclosure in a recent report to President Eisenhower evaluating the government's relocation activities during “Operation Alert 1955” held in June.

He expressed the hope that the 1956 drill “will not only be tied in with a civilian defense test, but will also be an integral part of military war-gaming exercises.

Military personnel did not participate in the June defense drill that hypothetically resulted in the destruction of 61 U.S. cities and 8,200,000 deaths.

Mr. Flemming said the recent test proved “it is possible to develop operating plans under which essential wartime functions of the executive branch could be effectively performed at relocation sites.”

MY STAKE IN THE AMERICAN WAY

UP AND AWAY goes this Army XV-1 Convertiplane in Flight. The convertiplane takes off like a helicopter and when it develops sufficient air speed for its short wings to keep aloft and gliding, the pilot turns on the pusher props at the rear of the fuselage and the aircraft then flies like a normal plane.

Dream Come True!

Army's New Convertiplane Successful; Could Prove Answer to Tactical Needs

St. Louis (AFPS)—One of the long cherished dreams of men of flight came true here when a radically different kind of aircraft, Army's XV-1 Convertiplane in Flight, recently made the first successful transition from helicopter to conventional flying.

The XV-1 convertiplane takes off like a helicopter. When it develops sufficient air speed for its short wings to keep it aloft and gliding, the pilot switches on the pusher propeller at the rear of the fuselage.

To provide some additional lift and reduce drag, the rotors continue to spin at slackened speed, but the XV-1 flies forward in the conventional way. Landing, the process is reversed. The XV-1 uses skis as landing gear.

The pickle-shaped aircraft is being developed for the Army under a contract administered by the Air Force. The Wright Air Development Center at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, and the McDonnell Aircraft Corp. share credit for it.

Its exact performance capabilities are classified, but it is far speedier than ordinary helicopters and possesses greater range.

The prototype is designed to carry three passengers or two litter patients and a medical attendant along with the pilot. But it boasts obvious potentialities for other military uses—reconnaissance, observation, liaison, search

Local Raiders Cop BAAF Baseball Championship

Twelve Straight
Reds Clinch Pennant
Defeat Parks AFB

The Presidio Red Raiders clinched the championship in the Bay Area Armed Forces league this week when they edged the Parks Air Force nine, 8 to 7. The victory put the locals over the top with 12 league wins without a loss for an unblemished record in official competition.

The “Blue-Devils,” as the Parks squad is named, went down fighting in the nine-inning contest which saw Presidio chucker Roger Collins out-dual Pete Cipriano in a close ball game.

Rubicic opened the second inning by singling, was moved to second by Coleman's bunt. His presence on second unnerved the Parks hurler so that he walked the next three batters to face him, forcing in Rubicic for a lead that was never relinquished.

The local garrison added one run in the fourth when Miyahara singled, advanced to second on an outfield fly, to third on Coleman's single and was brought home by Shelstad's infield out. In the fifth, Shannon tallied the seventh run on Don Duke's booming triple into left center field.

The winning run was made in the seventh when Roger Collins singled and was brought home when Jackson caught hold of a low fast ball and smashed it into far center field for a three-bagger that clinched the win.

Yesterday the new champs took on the sailors from the U.S. Wasp with big Bob Poole of the 505th MPs doing the hurling. Results will appear in next week's Star-Presidian.

Sunday the squad journeys to Stockton for a return engagement with the Stockton Braves with either Jackson or Duke getting the nod from Coach Hal Fischer for the mound duties. Monday a return meeting with the Wasp and Collins is expected to take the hill for the inter-service game.

The new king of the welterweights, Carmen Basilio, saw action with the Marines in the Pacific during WWII. He began fighting as a pro in 1948.

The 1955 edition of the football Red Raiders is beginning to take shape with fundamentals being emphasized during early practice sessions.

Head Coach Larry McNery urged that positions are still open on the squad and that anyone with playing experience should contact the Post Sports Office.

Cards Blast Yanks, Still In Top Spot

The Cards continued their winning ways Saturday by blasting the fourth-place Yanks 15-5 to extend their hold on first place in Presidio Little League play.

Jim Sommers took the hill for the winning Cards and allowed but seven hits, walked three and struck out 11 Yankee batters. Ronnie Fish and then Jose Salgado pitched for the Yanks and while giving up 11 hits allowed 14 walks, ten of these coming in the first inning as Fish was unable to find the range with his offerings.

Fielding gem of the contest was pitcher Jim Sommers' catch of a line drive and toss to second baseman Tommy Stewart for the game's only double play.

The second half of the twin bill saw the third-place Cubs lose a close 4-2 ball game to the second-place Giants.

Giant hurler Earl Stewart pitched a masterpiece as he allowed but three hits while 11 Cubs went down swinging at his offerings. His rival on the mound, Quinton Brown, struck out nine batters in a losing cause as he also gave up eight hits that proved to be the old ball game.

Highlight of the diamond play was a fourth inning double play started by Cub shortstop George Leonard to second baseman Dick Heller and on to first baseman Pat O'Conner for the twin killing.

Seven-One Record

Reds Win Seven Straight Then Drop Close Thriller

Rolling to their seventh win before dropping a close one to nothing thriller to the Alameda Navy, the Presidio softball whizzes stamp themselves as definite contenders for Sixth Army laurels.

Tomorrow the local garrison play a double header, facing the San Quentin Prison nine in the morning and journeying on to meet the Hamilton Field squad in the afternoon.

Last week end the local garrison defeated their on-post neighbors the Letterman Lions by the score of 13-6, for their fourth straight win of the season.

Grabbing a seven to three lead in the bottom of the third, the softball aces added four runs in the fifth and ended their scoring with a final two tallies in the eighth. Whitfield and Moran led the batting attack, each gathering in a round tripper with a mate aboard.

Early this week the Red Raiders edged the Hamilton Tigers, a top-notch civilian team 7-2. Pacing the victory was big Forrest Coleman's four innings of no-hit no-run relief pitching.

Coleman entered the game in the fourth and retired all 12 batters to face him, eight via the strikeout route. Left fielder John Staub led the hitting with two for four and driving in two runs.

In a nine-inning thriller, the Red Raiders fell victim to one unearned run that resulted in their first loss of the season. The Alameda Hellcats were the opposition in a 1-0 contest that went two extra innings.

The only score of the game came in the top of the ninth when Alameda's Clements led off with a single. Presidio chucker Ed Johnson fielded Quinlan's sacrifice bunt and made a fast throw to first base resulting in an error that enabled the runner to score.

Hurler Johnson threw a three-hit performance at the Hellcats making it a tough game to lose. Three fine double plays started by Lee Dluginsky and Harry Matthews sparked the local garrison in the field.

Meyerson Wins Northern Golf, Beats Ex-Champ

Pvt. Ed Meyerson of the Second Infantry Division shot a one under par 71 over the Fort Lewis golf course this week to finish with a 147 total and the championship in the 36-hole Northern Division preliminaries of the Sixth Army tournament.

Meyerson, three strokes off the pace of the first day, overtook the lead on the 32nd hole, and held the lead the rest of the way to win by one stroke.

Fort Lewis golfers made virtually a clean sweep of the tourney by capturing the first five places. Ransom and Symons of the Second Division tied for second place with 36 hole totals of 148. Whisman, last year's Sixth Army champion wound up in the fourth slot with a 151 total.

Full Colonel!

IT'S COLONEL BLACKER now as Sixth Army Chief of Staff, Brig. Gen. Louis J. Rumaggi, pins the eagles on the blouse of former Lt. Col. Kemuel K. Blacker, secretary general staff. Colonel Blacker received his promotion to full colonel last week.

New Eagles

Busy Secretary of the General Staff Wins Promotion to Full Colonel

At an informal ceremony at Sixth Army Headquarters last week the eagles of an Army colonel were pinned on the blouse of former Lieutenant Colonel Kemuel K. Blacker, secretary of the general staff of sixth army, by Brigadier General Louis J. Rumaggi, Sixth Army Chief of Staff.

Born in Afton, Wyo., 20 March, 1916, Colonel Blacker attended Oregon State College and received a Bachelor of Science degree in technical forestry in June, 1938. He returned to his alma mater in 1939 to work toward a master's degree in the same field but was called to active duty as a second lieutenant of artillery in December, 1939.

Ordered overseas in July, 1940, as a second lieutenant, he was assigned to the 52nd Field Artillery Battalion of the 24th Infantry Division in Hawaii. He remained with this unit during his entire World War II service, eventually rising to command of the battalion. He was in Hawaii with his unit during the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Following movement of the 24th Division to the Southwest Pacific, he participated in five campaigns in New Guinea and in the Philippines and was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action, the Soldier's Medal for heroism, and the Purple Heart for wounds received in action, all on Leyte Island.

In January, 1946, he was assigned to the general staff of The Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla. While at Fort Sill he also qualified as an Army pilot and in December, 1947, was assigned to the Air Training Department of The Artillery School.

He left Fort Sill in August, 1951, to attend The Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and upon completion of his studies there was ordered to Turkey in August, 1952, as a member of the U. S. Army field training team with the Turkish Army.

Upon his return to the United States in September, 1953, he was assigned to the Presidio of San Francisco for duty with the G-3 Section (Plans, Training and Operations) of Sixth Army Headquarters and in March, 1954, was named Secretary of the General Staff.

All-Hawaiian Unit Will Take Basic Training Together

A group of 179 Army enlistees formed into a special "All Hawaiian Company," will arrive at Fort Mason at 9:30 a. m. today, en route to Fort Ord and basic training.

The Department of the Army approved the plan to allow the men to remain together as a unit during their basic training at Fort Ord.

The trainees will arrive at Fort Mason aboard the U.S.N.S. David C. Shanks and following welcoming ceremonies will be processed on the pier prior to departure for Fort Ord by bus.

Dockside ceremonies will include music by the Fort Mason Band and Sixth Army Pipe Band, songs by Miss Virginia Donnell of the Port of Embarkation, and a brief welcoming address by Colonel Wilber M. Gaine, Chief of Staff and Deputy Port Commander at Fort Mason.

Also on hand to greet the men will be Hawaiian members of the Fort Mason Women's Army Corps Detachment.

DOD Asks Congress For Adjustment Pay To Reserve Force-Outs

The Defense Department has asked Congress to provide readjustment payments for reserve officers involuntarily released from active duty. Any reserve officer or warrant officer who has completed five years of continuous service and was not being released because of moral or professional dereliction would be entitled to receive the lump sum payment.

Officers with more than five and less than 10 years' service would receive one half of one month's pay for each year of active commissioned or warrant duty.

Those with more than 10 and less than 20 years' service would receive half of a month's pay for each of the first 10 years and a full month's pay for each year thereafter.

Reservists with 20 or more years of active duty would not be eligible for the readjustment pay because they can retire.

The Defense proposal also provides that a Reserve officer on active duty who is within two years of qualifying for retired or retirement pay could not be involuntarily separated without the approval of the appropriate service secretary.

Quest For Flag Maker Ends As 505th MPs Give Banner to Chapel

The 505th MP Battalion's quest for a flag maker to accurately duplicate the predominant green and yellow colors of its flag finally came to a halt recently when a modern-day Betsy Ross turned up right in the MPs backyard—San Francisco.

The MPs wanted an exact reproduction of their flag made so it could be presented to the Post Protestant Chapel to be hung among other unit flags there.

Last week the new flag was signed, sealed and delivered to the Battalion and on Sunday morning during regular church services, Lt. Col. Keene Saxon, 505th MP Battalion commander, and M/Sgt. Luther DeShazo, battalion sergeant major, presented it to Post Chaplain, Maj. Henry C. Butts.

Army Places Order For 14 100-Ton Amphibious BARCs

Additions to the Army's fleet amphibious vehicles will be made soon when delivery of 14 new BARCs ordered recently begins. Weighing-in at 100 tons, it can carry a 60-ton payload from ship to shore and then move it inland.

The BARC has undergone extensive testing since the fall of 1952, when it was first developed. It was during one of these early tests in March, 1953 that one of the first units built was sunk 40 miles south of the Golden Gate while being towed from Monterey to the Presidio for a local demonstration.

Operating on principles similar to those of the well-known DUKW of WWII, the BARC can perform tasks ashore and afloat far outranging present amphibious vehicles. Its name is derived from the nomenclature—Barge, Amphibious, Resupply, Cargo.

The amphibious BARC can take heavy loads from shipside in deep water, across a beach and over rough terrain to an inland supply point for direct discharge, or by transfer to truck or rail, largely eliminating the necessity for difficult and inefficient rehandling of cargo at the waterline.

It is designed primarily to carry heavy and bulky items of equipment, such as cranes, tanks, trucks and artillery pieces.

The craft has an over-all length of 61 feet, width of 27½ feet and a height of 17 feet. Despite its size, it requires only a single operator on both land and in the water and requires a basic crew of only three for all operations.

Each of the BARC's four wheels is separately powered by an individually 165 horsepower industrial diesel engine driving through a torque converter and to torqmatic transmission. Maximum land speed is 15 miles per hour.

Steering on land is accomplished by hydraulic control and power, which is used extensively through the vehicles. In the cab, the driver may steer by front wheels only, leaving the rear wheels locked in a straight position, or use front and rear wheel action simultaneously for sharp turns. Afloat, the BARC can be steered by its engines if the rudder fails.

In water, the BARC is propelled by twin screw propellers, each powered by two of the four engines which supply power to the wheels when it moves on land.

Huge 36 by 41 tires standing 9½ feet high, distribute the weight sufficiently to permit the vehicle to travel over difficult terrain. Tire pressure may be varied from the cab to meet changing ground surface conditions and to maximize traction.

Two 30-ton hydraulic rams mounted on vertical king posts which are attached to the steering wheel provide the steering mechanism.

Other features include a hydraulic bow ramp; a stern winch with a line-pull capacity of 50,000 pounds; a Flooding-type fire extinguisher system, and a removable canopy over the operating cab to reduce the over-all height three feet to facilitate shipment.

There have been but eight Generals of the Army — Ulysses S. Grant, William T. Sherman, Philip H. Sheridan, George C. Marshall, Douglas MacArthur, Henry H. Arnold, Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Omar N. Bradley.

Secretary Higgins Visits Sixth Army Prior to SF Meet

The Honorable Frank H. Higgins, Assistant Secretary of the Army for Logistics, Research and Development, visited Sixth Army Headquarters yesterday.

Upon his arrival at the Presidio, a 17-gun salute was fired in his honor. After being greeted by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, he inspected a guard of honor composed of the Sixth Army Band, Sixth Army Pipe Band and Sixth Army Honor Guard unit.

Following the inspection, Mr. Higgins toured the Presidio with General Young and was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess.

Today he will conduct a procurement conference in the Marines' Memorial Building at 609 Sutter Street, San Francisco. He will head a panel including members of his Washington staff to discuss informally Army procurement matters.

Colonel George A. Harvey, commander of the Oakland Quartermaster Market Center, will be host at the meeting which will be attended by approximately 100 representatives of the Army's Ordnance, Quartermaster, Signal, Transportation, Medical Service and Chemical Corps, and Corps of Engineers who are engaged in procurement activities.

Qualified W-1s Given Green Light for 1 Sept. Promotions

Washington (AFPS) — Army warrant officers, W-1, with 18 or more months active service in grade who have "clearly demonstrated they are qualified for advancement" may be given temporary promotions to chief warrant officer, W-2, starting Sept. 1, the Army has announced.

Major commanders will be given authority to make such promotions under AR 624-155, which is being revised.

They may further delegate this authority, the Army said, to commanders of regiments, groups and similar organizations, including SCARWAF units.

Meet Again!

SMALL WORLD is an old saying especially true in the Army where combat acquaintances made half-way around the globe are frequently renewed stateside. On his first visit to Fort Lewis since assuming Sixth Army command, Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young (left) encountered M/Sgt. Arne Stenslie ("Mr. Second Division") whom he first met in Korea when the General was commanding the 2nd Infantry Division during bitter 1951-1952 fighting and the NCO was a member of the special Ivanhoe Security group. Major General Thomas Timberman, post and division commander, (center) conducted General Young on the Ft. Lewis tour.

Refresher!

MANNING A 90 MM GUN as part of their Reserve training at Camp Irwin, California, are these members of the 319th Antiaircraft Battalion, USAR, who are a Bay Area unit which meets for its regular weekly sessions at California Military District. The battalion, which is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Ramon F.

Cayot, received a rating of "Excellent," from the Sixth Army inspecting team. In addition to 90 MM training, the battalion also fired the .50 calibre machine gun, and took part in surface gunnery, night problems and a full field inspection.

rockefeller award

Civilian employees engaged in high level supply procurement and staff personnel, as well as those engaged in research and engineering phases, are being urged to consider applying for the fourth annual Rockefeller Public Service Awards program in which Department of the Army has been invited to participate. The program permits award recipients to receive six to 12 months' leave, at no financial sacrifice, for the purpose of study or research at a college or university of the recipient's choice either in this country or abroad. Applications are to be in by 15 August and interested personnel may obtain application blanks as well as full information on the program from the Civilian Personnel Division in Building 36.

Kickoff Meeting Held To Spark Local Drive Next Month For Relief Funds

Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, opened the kick-off meeting yesterday afternoon of local unit and activity representatives for the Joint Army Emergency Relief-Army Relief Society fund campaign which is slated for 1-31 August, this year.

The annual joint Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society Fund Campaign will be conducted from 1 August to 31 August 1955.

In 1954 the Presidio Army Emergency Relief made loans and grants totaling $11,426.00 to military personnel and their dependents.

Traditionally, we of the Army have always been concerned with one another's welfare. This tradition has grown and been maintained in the Army largely because of the splendid work of the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society. It is especially important for each of us to do our share to make possible the service these two organizations are prepared to administer.

The 1955 Joint Fund Campaign offers an opportunity for all military personnel to contribute toward our common welfare.

I sincerely urge you to give your earnest support to these two organizations.

C. E. LUNDQUIST
Colonel, Infantry
Deputy Post Commander

Held at the post theatre, the meeting was designed to integrate and develop plans for the 1955 campaign which will be under the direction of Maj. Elsie L. Weible, post funds custodian.

Informational data distributed to the representative indicated that although $4,740 was netted in the 1954 campaign, a total of $11,426 was lent to local military personnel for emergency purposes.

This means that the interest-free loans were repaid quickly enough to permit lending of the money several times.

New Law Would Allow Permanent Household Storage

The House has passed and sent to the Senate legislation that would permit permanent storage of servicemen's household goods in commercial warehouses. Under the existing law, the services are not allowed to store such goods commercially for more than six months.

After the six-month period, the goods must be transported to a military warehouse at government expense. The Defense Department believes this legislation will result in a saving of many millions of dollars to the government.

President Selects Ohio Paper Exec. For Anderson's Job

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower has named Reuben B. Robertson, Jr., an Ohio paper company executive, to succeed Robert B. Anderson as deputy secretary of defense.

The President earlier had accepted, "with the greatest reluctance," Mr. Anderson's resignation effective Aug. 15.

Mr. Robertson, a 47-year-old former WWII army officer, has served the government in a number of capacities, including a recent stint as a member of a Hoover Commission task force that studied the Defense Department.

In accepting Mr. Anderson's resignation, the President praised him for a selfless devotion to duty, keen judgment and exceptional ability in carrying projects through to completion.

Bay Area Civilian Hourly Employees Win Wage Increase

The Army-Air Force Wage Board has approved a wage increase for over 5,000 wage board (blue collar) Army employees in the San Francisco Bay Area. Regular Wage Board employees will receive an increase of approximately seven cents per hour. Wage Board Supervisors will receive an increase of approximately 9.6¢ per hour. The new rates are to become effective at the beginning of the first pay period after 5 August, 1955.

Army Wage Board employees at the following installations and activities in the San Francisco Bay Area are affected:

Hq. Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.
Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.
Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno, Calif.

NEXT WEEK a full length special feature will spotlight unusual operations of one of the most unique organizations in the Army. Don't miss a visit in pictures and prose with Presidio's own "odd job Charles."

General Ridgway: On Air Transportability!

■ "The ability of the U.S. Army to move its units by air for delivery into combat depends upon (a) the characteristics and performance of available air transports, and (b) the weight and size of the weapons, vehicles and equipment of Army units to be moved. Considerable progress has been made in the development of several types of aircraft suitable for Army use. The state of technology of aircraft design and production will now allow us to predict, with reasonable certainty, what may be obtainable for Army use in the foreseeable future. Likewise our experience of the past ten years, coupled with our most recent experience in testing our infantry and armored divisions for atomic combat, has given us sufficient basis on which to estimate the requirements for divisions to enable them to conduct sustained land combat in the future.

■ "An analysis of both the aircraft problem and the future requirements of Army divisions, and the inter-relationship of these two, makes it apparent that a re-examination of our present policy on air transportability is in order.

■ "The present policy of the U.S. Army is to achieve a maximum degree of air transportability of all elements of the Army consistent with the primary needs of our units for the weapons, vehicles and equipment to enable them to conduct sustained combat on land. This policy in turn is reflected in our Research and Development Program. As stated in AR 705-20, 7 November, 1952:

"Air transportability of Army material is a continuing requirement. Success in future operations will increasingly depend upon the extent to which our forces may be readily airlifted. These regulations are issued to insure that all equipment is as light and compact as possible, subject to the condition that this requirement does not impair essential operational characteristics materially or increase over-all costs disproportionately.

■ "This policy has been derived from our experience gained in World War II and the several senior boards and study groups that have analyzed the subject in the past ten years. In this period of time we have endeavored to provide the Army with the weapons, vehicles and equipment that it would need for sustained combat and, at the same time, achieve a high degree of air transportability. It is apparent that we have not been successful to date in making an optimum use of available aircraft. Our equipment has become heavier and now it is becoming apparent that the equipment necessary to fight successfully in an atomic war, in general, will be heavier than that now presently employed. It is also becoming equally apparent that in an atomic war there will be an increasing need for a maximum exploitation of the many types of airlift that will be available: the helicopter, the convertiplane, the light utility plane, and new types of Troop Carrier aircraft.

■ "The mission of the U.S. Army is to conduct sustained combat on land, and to win such combat. This mission is derived from national laws, approved national policy, and approved roles and missions. National policy, however, must change to meet the requirements of a changing world, as well as the evolution in the development of new weapons systems. Current policy emphasizes the need for highly mobile elements of our armed forces ready and able to cope with peripheral wars. The U.S. Army must be prepared to deter or defeat local aggression as well as be prepared to discharge its task in a general war. It must have highly mobile, versatile forces possessing an atomic capability ready to move on short notice to any overseas land area in which aggression may occur.

■ "It is strikingly apparent that the time has come for the Army to recognize the need for achieving a maximum degree of air transportability for those components of the Army developed to perform this function; via: movement by air into an objective area for combat. The achievement of this capability must not be inhibited by the requirements of those divisions that must achieve a capability for sustained land combat. Our airborne divisions and those reconnaissance units required to move by air must be provided with such light weight weapons, vehicles and equipment as to enable them to make the most efficient use of present and projected airlift in all categories. After assuring the achievement of the air mobility capability, consideration then will be given to the achievement of the maximum feasible capability for sustained combat.

■ "All planning, research and development, and combat development agencies will note the guidance contained herein and take positive steps toward implementation in both present and future development programs.

■ "To assure that the air transportability policy stated herein receives the emphasis it deserves, I desire the contents of this letter be given the widest dissemination in the Army."

Burial Plans Studied For 'Unknown American'

Washington (AFPS)—Plans for the burial of an "Unknown American" of WWII in Arlington National Cemetery alongside the Unknown Soldier of WWI again are under study by the Defense Department.

The outbreak of the Korean conflict postponed arrangements that had been made to honor an unknown fighting man of WWII.

It had been planned to select him at a ceremony in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, in May 1951, from among six bodies brought back from military cemeteries in each WWII theater of operations.

He was to be called the "Unknown American" because he might have been a member of any of the armed forces, and would represent all the U.S. fighting men who died in the world struggle.

Since the postponement was announced in November 1950, no action has been taken on the selection or the plans for the memorial that were drawn up by the Army.

The new study was initiated after Rufus H. Wilson, national commander of AMVETS, wrote to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, asking that the project be started.

Mr. Wilson has passed on the request to the Army and is awaiting its report.

Military May Play Key Role During Next Defense Drill

Washington (AFPS)—Military personnel may participate in a nation-wide civil defense drill to be held sometime in 1956, according to Director of Defense Mobilization Arthur S. Flemming.

Mr. Flemming made the disclosure in a recent report to President Eisenhower evaluating the government's relocation activities during "Operation Alert 1955" held in June.

He expressed the hope that the 1956 drill "will not only be tied in with a civilian defense test, but will also be an integral part of military war-gaming exercises.

Military personnel did not participate in the June defense drill that hypothetically resulted in the destruction of 61 U.S. cities and 8,200,000 deaths.

Mr. Flemming said the recent test proved "it is possible to develop operating plans under which essential wartime functions of the executive branch could be effectively performed at relocation sites."

MY STAKE IN THE AMERICAN WAY

UP AND AWAY goes this Army XV-1 Convertiplane in Flight. The convertiplane takes off like a helicopter and when it develops sufficient air speed for its short wings to keep aloft and gliding, the pilot turns on the pusher props at the rear of the fuselage and the aircraft then flies like a normal plane.

Dream Come True!

Army's New Convertiplane Successful; Could Prove Answer to Tactical Needs

St. Louis (AFPS)—One of the long cherished dreams of men of flight came true here when a radically different kind of aircraft, Army's XV-1 Convertiplane in Flight, recently made the first successful transition from helicopter to conventional flying.

The XV-1 convertiplane takes off like a helicopter. When it develops sufficient air speed for its short wings to keep it aloft and gliding, the pilot switches on the pusher propeller at the rear of the fuselage.

To provide some additional lift and reduce drag, the rotors continue to spin at slackened speed, but the XV-1 flies forward in the conventional way. Landing, the process is reversed. The XV-1 uses skis as landing gear.

The pickle-shaped aircraft is being developed for the Army under a contract administered by the Air Force. The Wright Air Development Center at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, and the McDonnell Aircraft Corp. share credit for it.

Its exact performance capabilities are classified, but it is far speedier than ordinary helicopters and possesses greater range.

The prototype is designed to carry three passengers or two litter patients and a medical attendant along with the pilot. But it boasts obvious potentialities for other military uses—reconnaissance, observation, liaison, search

Local Raiders Cop BAAF Baseball Championship

Twelve Straight

Reds Clinch Pennant Defeat Parks AFB

The Presidio Red Raiders clinched the championship in the Bay Area Armed Forces league this week when they edged the Parks Air Force nine, 8 to 7. The victory put the locals over the top with 12 league wins without a loss for an unblemished record in official competition.

Cards Blast Yanks, Still In Top Spot

The Cards continued their winning ways Saturday by blasting the fourth-place Yanks 15-5 to extend their hold on first place in Presidio Little League play.

Jim Sommers took the hill for the winning Cards and allowed but seven hits, walked three and struck out 11 Yankee batters. Ronnie Fish and then Jose Salgado pitched for the Yanks and while giving up 11 hits allowed 14 walks, ten of these coming in the first inning as Fish was unable to find the range with his offerings.

Fielding gem of the contest was pitcher Jim Sommers' catch of a line drive and toss to second baseman Tommy Stewart for the game's only double play.

The second half of the twin bill saw the third-place Cubs lose a close 4-2 ball game to the second-place Giants.

Giant hurler Earl Stewart pitched a masterpiece as he allowed but three hits while 11 Cubs went down swinging at his offerings. His rival on the mound, Quinton Brown, struck out nine batters in a losing cause as he also gave up eight hits that proved to be the old ball game.

Highlight of the diamond play was a fourth inning double play started by Cub shortstop George Leonard to second baseman Dick Heller and on to first baseman Pat O'Conner for the twin killing.

Ffc. Charles Erdman Jr., of Fort Huachuca, Arizona won the recently played Southern Division Golf Title.

Firing a pair of 73s over the par 71 Fort MacArthur course, Erdman edged M/Sgt. Jack Berry, of the host MacArthur team for first place.

Sample of MacArthur finished six strokes back for the third slot edging out Mynott of Ft. Huachuca by one stroke with a 152.

football

The 1955 edition of the football Red Raiders is beginning to take shape with fundamentals being emphasized during early practice sessions.

Head Coach Larry McNery urged that positions are still open on the squad and that anyone with playing experience should contact the Post Sports Office.

The T formation will be used this year making for a fast and interesting brand of ball. The 1955 schedule will be released early next week and will appear in next week's Star-Presidian.

Los Alamitos, Calif., won the Armed Forces division of the National volleyball championships this year.

BATTING TIPS are shown to (l. to r.) Rex Willis, Emmett, Idaho, Don Duke, Stigler, Oklahoma and Roger Sheldstad of Doran, Minnesota, by Yukio Miyahara, Hawaii, in recent pre-game drills. All hail from Headquarters Company Station Complement, and played an important role in bringing the Raiders in for the league title.

Seven-One Record

Reds Win Seven Straight Then Drop Close Thriller

Rolling to their seventh win before dropping a close one to nothing thriller to the Alameda Navy, the Presidio softball whizzes stamp themselves as definite contenders for Sixth Army laurels.

Tomorrow the local garrison play a double header, facing the San Quentin Prison nine in the morning and journeying on to meet the Hamilton Field squad in the afternoon.

Last week end the local garrison defeated their on-post neighbors the Letterman Lions by the score of 13-6, for their fourth straight win of the season.

Grabbing a seven to three lead in the bottom of the third, the softball aces added four runs in the fifth and ended their scoring with a final two tallies in the eighth. Whitfield and Moran led the batting attack, each gathering in a round tripper with a mate aboard.

Early this week the Red Raiders edged the Hamilton Tigers, a top-notch civilian team 7-2. Pacing the victory was big Forrest Coleman's four innings of no-hit no-run relief pitching.

Coleman entered the game in the fourth and retired all 12 batters to face him, eight via the strikeout route. Left fielder John Staub led the hitting with two for four and driving in two runs.

In a nine-inning thriller, the Red Raiders fell victim to one unearned run that resulted in their first loss of the season. The Alameda Helcats were the opposition in a 1-0 contest that went two extra innings.

The only score of the game came in the top of the ninth when Alameda's Clements led off with a single. Presidio chucker Ed John son fielded Quinlan's sacrifice bunt and made a fast throw to first base resulting in an error that enabled the runner to score.

Hurler Johnson threw a three-hit performance at the Helcats making it a tough game to lose. Three fine double plays started by Lee Dluginsky and Harry Matthews sparked the local garrison in the field.

Meyerson Wins Northern Golf, Beats Ex-Champ

Pvt. Ed Meyerson of the Second Infantry Division shot a one under par 71 over the Fort Lewis golf course this week to finish with a 147 total and the championship in the 36-hole Northern Division preliminaries of the Sixth Army tournament.

Meyerson, three strokes off the pace of the first day, overtook the field on the 32nd hole, and held the lead the rest of the way to win by the stroke.

Fort Lewis golfers made virtually a clean sweep of the tourney by capturing the first five places. Ransom and Symonds of the Second Division tied for second place with 36 hole totals of 148. Whisman, last year's Sixth Army champion wound up in the fourth slot with a 151 total.

Stars!

Twenty-First Engineers are well represented on the championship Red Raider Baseball Squad. Above are Roger Collins (center), number one man on the Presidio mound staff, George Jackson (l.), currently leading the hitters with a league record mark of 500 per cent, and Lloyd Weis (r.), ex-chucker and now manager for the flag winning Raiders.

First Star! A new star for the shoulders, and especially the first one, always seems to evoke broad smiles of achievement and satisfaction from the persons involved. Here, Sixth Army Commander, Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, and Mrs. Henry J. Hoeffler match the smile of former Colonel Henry J. Hoeffler, Sixth Army Engineer, on whose blouse they are pinning the coveted emblems of a Brigadier General. Accompanying General Hoeffler's first star was a new assignment in September as South Atlantic Division Engineer with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga.

Colonel Hoeffler Gets BG Promotion; Presidians To Uphold Tradition In Contribution To AER Fund

Promotion to the rank of brigadier general in the Army for Colonel Henry J. Hoeffler, Sixth Army Engineer, and his new assignment as South Atlantic Division Engineer, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., were announced this week by the Department of the Army. He is scheduled to assume his new duties in Atlanta in mid-September.

A native of Denver, Colo., General Hoeffler was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1927. He was commissioned in the Coast Artillery but transferred to the Corps of Engineers in 1931.

Among his assignments prior to World War II was a tour of duty from 1939 to 1941 as Assistant Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Oregon State College, Corvallis, Ore.

During World War II, he served with the Army Air Corps as engineer in charge of construction of airfields in North Africa and the Mediterranean area. He was overseas from July, 1942, to April, 1945.

His next assignment was at the Pentagon, where he was Deputy Air Engineer for 15 months. He then attended the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington for a year and following completion of his course there remained at the college for two years as an instructor.

General Hoeffler next became District Engineer for the Omaha, Nebr., District, a post he held for three years. From there he went to Fort Lewis, Wash., where he served as commanding officer of the 354th Engineer Group.

From Fort Lewis he was ordered to Japan where he served as commanding officer of the Yokohama Engineer Depot for 19 months prior to reporting to the Presidio of San Francisco, in March, 1955. He was named Sixth Army Engineer on April 1, 1955.

Care of Our Own!

To uphold the historic Army tradition of taking care of its own, Presidio soldiers will be asked Monday morning to contribute to the Army Emergency Relief-Army Relief Society Fund.

Both Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society are supported through voluntary contributions from members of the United States Army. Both organizations exclusively serve the members of the Army and their dependents.

Army Emergency Relief is organized for the purpose of rendering emergency financial assistance to members of the Army of the United States and their dependents. Since its inception, AER has disbursed over $30 million in assisting approximately 300,000 members of the Army.

AER has a working agreement with the Red Cross to reduce duplication and to utilize insofar as practicable the much greater resources of the Red Cross with its chapters in nearly every civilian community.

There are, however, many times when assistance by the Red Cross is either not available or is not adequate because of policy or other reasons. It is under these circumstances that AER insures adequate and timely assistance to soldiers and their families.

Assistance is provided either in the form of a loan without interest, or as an outright grant, if repayment of the loan would cause undue hardship. Loans may be repaid in such small monthly amounts as not to cause hardship or privation to the borrower.

The Army Relief Society is closely affiliated with AER through agreements which are renewed every three years. It was founded specifically for the purpose of assisting needy widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel.

Defense Personnel Assist President At Geneva Meet

Washington (AFPS)—U. S. military men played significant roles in assisting President Eisenhower during the historic Geneva meeting of the "Big Four."

On hand as President Eisenhower's personal aide was his son, Maj. John S. D. Eisenhower.

As his personal interpreter at the conference, President Eisenhower chose Lt. Col. Vernon Walters, USA, who has command of six languages.

President Eisenhower was flown to the Swiss conference site, along with Mrs. Eisenhower and other top officials, in his official plane, Columbine III, by Lt. Col. William Draper.

Other military personnel included in the President's entourage were his personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, USA, (ret.); Col. Robert L. Schulz, his army aide; Col. Andrew J. Goodpaster, a staff secretary, and Maj. Walter Tkach, assistant medical officer.

One AF officer even gave an assist to the Russians. Capt. Clifford McConnel took over the navigator chores on a Russian plane at Berlin and directed it to Geneva. The plane's top-level passengers included Russian Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Two Passed!

Conference Committee Weighs Compromise of Reserve Bills

Washington (AFPS)—Conflicting versions of President Eisenhower's national reserve plan are being studied by a joint congressional conference committee following the passage of separate bills by both the House and the Senate.

The Senate approved by an 80-1 vote a modified reserve program that differs from an earlier House plan in several key provisions.

The House had approved compulsory reserve training for all men who entered the service since July 27, 1953, the date of the Korean truce.

The Senate, however, rejected this provision and voted that reserve training would be mandatory only for those men who entered the armed forces 30 days after the bill becomes law.

In addition, the Senate tacked on a plan, sponsored by Senator Richard Russell (D.-Ga.) that would offer a bonus to veterans who volunteer for training in the army or marine reserves before 1 July, 1957.

Vets who volunteered for three years' training in combat-type unit would be given two months' pay in the grade they held on active duty.

The Senate retained other key provisions of the House bill, including the six-month trainee plan for men between 17½ and 20 years of age.

The Senate struck out a House provision that reduced the total obligation of servicemen to six years, and restored it to eight years.

President Eisenhower has termed the national reserve plan "must legislation" if the nation is to have adequate mobilization strength in the event of future wars.

3rd anniversary—

Officers and enlisted men of Company A, Honor Guard, 6002 SU, will celebrate the third anniversary of their organization day Tuesday (2 August) with an open house for the public from 1100 to 1130. At 1130, there will be a demonstration by the Honor Guard's firing squad, color guard and a 10-minute precision show by the drill team, the "Presidians." Activities will center around Building 1207 at Fort Scott. Invited guests will gather for dinner and cake-cutting ceremonies at noon to complete the day's festivities.

Academy Entry Exams Altered To Increase Number of Applicants

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has announced that the U. S. Military Academy is going to discard its special mental examination for prospective cadets.

In the past, special qualifying academic tests for candidates to the academy have been prepared by the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J.

As a substitute the Army has approved the adoption of college entrance exams for men aspiring to enter West Point as cadets in July, 1956.

The exams will be available at more than 500 testing centers in the U. S. Applicants will not have to travel more than 75 miles to take them.

The Army said that the new examination system should increase the number of applicants because "the resulting scores would also be available for entry to civilian colleges should a candidate fail to pass the medical or physical aptitude tests."

General Dean Asks Greater Integration Of Army, Reserves

Deputy Sixth Army Commander, Major General William F. Dean urged the development of "one Army" instead of several "cliquish" establishments in the nation's defense in a recent speech to the annual officers' dinner of the 311th Logistical Command, a reserve unit which had just completed two weeks summer training at Camp Roberts.

"The reserve," observed General Dean, "have a heritage which requires no apologies." He emphasized that the great need in solidifying our Armed Forces is to erase the boundaries between the regular Army, the National Guard and the Reserves.

"There should be no difference," he said, "It is wrong for the reserve to regard itself as a stepchild. The active Army needs the reserves and regards it as an equal."

General Dean intimated that the reserve bill would not give all that was needed by the reservists to supply personnel to fill their reduced ranks but he called on the modern minute man to "take what you have and make it twice as effective."

The General concluded his remarks with a direct tribute to the civilians who sacrifice time and comforts all year to carry on their self-imposed obligation to the nation.

Benefits Bill Goes To Senate After House Approval

Washington (AFPS) — The House has passed and sent to the Senate a measure that would revise the present system of survivor benefits and bring servicemen into the social security program on a contributory basis.

One of the main provisions of the bill would do away with the $10,000 free insurance now granted servicemen, and increase benefits paid widows through the Veterans Administration from $87 to amounts ranging from $112 to $242. These payments would be based on the grade or rank of the deceased serviceman.

The added VA benefits, coupled with those that would be derived from the social security program, increase the over-all amount that most widows of servicemen would receive, despite the loss of the $10,000 free insurance.

It also increases the minimum death gratuity paid widows from $469 to $800 but limits this amount to $3,000 instead of the present maximum of $6,857.

The measure also equalizes benefits for reservists called to active duty with those of regular personnel and does away with the federal employment compensation benefits which the reservists now receive.

Army Abroad!

U.S. Overseas Commitments Global In Significance, Common In Goals

United States military commitments abroad are global in significance and complex in their provisions. All have a common purpose: mutual defense against armed aggression. The next Troop Information Topic will discuss the various aspects of the treaties embodying US military commitments overseas.

The primary objective of NATO is to preserve the security of its members. Its purpose is peace, through unity, strength, and being prepared.

NATO members include the ten nations of Western Europe, Canada, and the United States. Greece and Turkey are also participating in NATO for the defense of the Mediterranean.

Popularly known as the Manila Pact, the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty is aimed primarily at preventing further Communist aggression in Southeast Asia. Signers are Australia, France, Great Britain, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand, and the United States.

The Philippine Treaty gives formal expression to the historical and military realities of Philippine-United States relations. It provides for close collaboration at policy-making levels as well as for mutual defense against armed attack.

The ANZUS Treaty, signed by the United States, Australia and New Zealand, is a mutual defense security pact. It formally recognizes that an armed attack in the Pacific area on any of the parties would be dangerous to the peace and security of all.

The American-Japanese Defense Pact was signed in September, 1951, immediately after the signing of the Treaty of Peace with Japan. It is a mutual defense treaty which provides, however, that Japan will increasingly assume responsibility for its own defense against direct and indirect aggression.

The Republic of Korea Treaty constitutes another step in the development of a Pacific security system. It is a defense treaty dedicated to peace and to deter aggression.

The Republic of China Treaty follows the pattern of other security pacts which the United States has concluded in the Western Pacific. It forges another link in the system of collective defense in that area.

The Rio Treaty was signed in 1947 and provides that an armed attack against any American State "shall be considered as an attack against all the American states, and each one undertakes to assist in meeting the attack."

Army Plans to Erect Mathematics Center

Washington (AFPS)—The Army plans to establish its own mathematics center to solve technical problems beyond the capabilities of normal Army facilities.

A committee of scientists, led by Dr. Ivan R. Hershner Jr., of the University of Vermont, is now studying possible sites for the location of the center.

Its organization will be set up through a contract with an educational or research institution and its main objective "will be the creation of a high quality mathematical group."

Among the many highly technical subjects scheduled for the center's program are numerical analysis, engineering physics of high speed computers, statistics and probability, applied mathematics, analysis, and linear and non-linear programming.

Two Sixth Army Officers Assigned To Sage Brush Unit

Two Sixth Army officers have been assigned to key positions on the staff of the Ninth Field Army (Provisional) the senior Army ground forces unit participating in Exercise SAGE BRUSH, scheduled for November and December of this year in the Camp Polk, Louisiana area.

Colonel C.A.L. Dickey, former executive, G-2 Section, has been named as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2 for the provisional Army. Col. Dickey, who commanded the 8th FA Observation Bn., in Europe during World War II, came to Sixth Army in 1951 following a counterintelligence assignment in Japan.

Adjutant General for the new command is Col. Garland R. Bryant, formerly assigned to the Sixth Army G-1 Section. Col. Bryant came to the Presidio from a Korean assignment and served with the 4th Infantry Division in World War II.

Exercise SAGE BRUSH, expected to be the largest joint Army-Air Force maneuver scheduled since the end of World War II, will employ 110,000 Army troops and 30,500 Air Force personnel.

College Requirement For Degree In State To Be Given On Post

The Post Education Center announced this week that a college course which is a basic California State requirement for a degree will be offered during a five-week summer session beginning 8 August.

This course, Government 10-110, American Political Institutions and California State Laws, will be given on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Detailed information concerning enrollment in this class can be obtained at the Post Education Center, Bldg. 117, telephone extension 3189 or 2974.

Some Cooking!

TOP HONORS went to 21st Engineer Sgt. HONORS R. Randolph recently when he completed the eight-week cooking course at the Sixth Army Food Service School, Ft. Ord. For scoring 930 points out of a possible 1000, Sgt. Randolph was presented a new cigarette lighter and a letter of commendation from the school's commandant.

Credit Pay Raise With Increase In Army Re-ups

Washington (AFPS) — The recent military pay raise appears to have helped spur the rate of Army re-enlistments by nearly ten per cent between March and May. The Army has announced that May re-ups of eligible regulars totaled almost 64 per cent compared to 54 per cent in March, before Congress passed the pay increase.

Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott credited a jump in AF re-enlistments to the pay raise. He said AF re-enlistments have increased each week since the pay bill became law.

Nearly one-third of some 13,000 airmen eligible for release in May re-enlisted. In addition, a number of men during the same month took advantage of a program which permits airmen to re-enlist even though their time is not yet up. In March, the AF's rate of re-enlistment was only 26 per cent.

officers recently assigned

Colonel ELWOOD M. WRIGHT has taken up duties as executive officer, Medical section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

For both the 1955 and 1954 programs, Colonel Wright has been with the planning staff of LOGEX, this year at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and last year at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. Prior to that he served a year with the ORC Instructor Group, Massachusetts Military District.

From January 1950 to June 1952, the colonel was in the Far East, serving first in Korea with a Medical Battalion of the First Cavalry Division, and later in Japan with the Medical Technicians' School at Osaka.

In the Army for the past 14 years, Colonel Wright was with the Field Artillery during World War II, and spent two years in the South Pacific with the 11th Corps, and was with the first units who occupied Japan. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for his Pacific service. In 1946, he transferred from Field Artillery to Medical Service Corps upon receipt of a Regular Army commission.

Service schools which he has attended include both the Basic and Advanced Field Artillery schools, Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Prior to entering the Army, Colonel Wright was a pharmacist and retail druggist, having received both his B.S. and M.S. in pharmacy from Oklahoma University. He and Mrs. Wright now reside in San Francisco.

Lt. Colonel MICHAEL KANE, who has been assigned as military attaché, American embassy, Tel Aviv, Israel, for the past three years, is now assigned to the training division of the G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Entering the service in March 1941, Colonel Kane served with the 3rd Infantry Regiment, Fort Snelling, Minnesota, until he entered Infantry O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia, the following year. Upon graduation, he joined the 6th Infantry Division and spent the period 1942-45 with them in the South Pacific theatre.

The colonel has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart, the Combat Infantry Badge, and the Pacific theatre ribbon with two battle stars and the amphibious landing leaf.

Among the schools which he has attended are the Advanced Infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1947, following which he served three years as an Infantry instructor at Fort Knox, Kentucky; the Advanced Armored school, Fort Knox, 1950; Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, 1951; Army Language school, Presidio of Monterey, California, 1951, and the Strategic Intelligence school, Washington, D. C., 1952. Colonel and Mrs. Kane and their three children are residing in San Anselmo.

Major WILLIAM C. MURPHY recently joined the staff of the G-2 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. For the past 16 months he has been in Korea with the 8078th AU.

His World War II service was in the Pacific theatre and included Australia, New Guinea and the Philippine Islands. He was there for 21 months, serving with the 168th AAA Gun Battalion. During the period 1946-49, Major Murphy was with GHQ, SCAP, in Tokyo.

Entering the Army 15 years ago, the major attended O.C.S. at Camp Davis, North Carolina, and, in 1951, the six-month radar and electronics school at Fort Bliss, Texas, followed by the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1953.

During the period 1952-53, Major Murphy served as S-4 of the AAA and Guided Missile school at Fort Bliss, a branch of the Artillery school. He and Mrs. Murphy are now residing here.

CWO FRANKLIN D. PARKER, a member of the Army for the past 13 years, has been assigned as legal administrative assistant with the Judge Advocate section of Headquarters Sixth Army.

For the past three years, Mr. Parker has been in the JA Section of the 2nd Armored Division in Germany.

In World War II, he was with the forward echelon of the China theatre Headquarters from March 1943 to April 1945, as a warrant officer, and was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for his services.

Following the war he reverted to master sergeant, and, following three years' service, at 1949-51, as an R.O.T.C. instructor at Texas Tech, again received his warrant in April 1951. He and Mrs. Parker and their daughter are now residing here.

Another Army aviator has joined the ranks of the 521st Engineer Company (Topographic Aviation). He is First Lt. JIMMIE D. WISCHMEIER, who obtained his new assignment after receiving his wings at Camp Rucker, Alabama, in early July.

Lt. Wischmeier applied for and received a direct commission in the USAR after graduating from Iowa Wesleyan College in Pleasanton, Louisiana, in 1950 with a B.S. degree in Physical Education.

After attending the Engineer Officer's basic course at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, the lieutenant was assigned to the 25th Division in Korea, where for one year he served as a platoon leader in the 65th Engineer Combat Battalion and was awarded the Purple Heart.

Upon his return to the United States in November 1953, the lieutenant was assigned to the 682nd Engineer Combat Battalion, Fort Benning, Georgia, where he remained until entering Army Flight School, Gary Air Force Base, Texas, in November 1954. Lt. Wischmeier now resides in San Mateo with his wife, Joyce, and their six-year-old daughter, Jody Ann.

Transportation Corps Marks 13th Anniversary

Master Movers!

Transportation Corps Created To Accelerate WWII Mobility

The statement that an army travels on its stomach may hold some water as far as food is concerned, but when it comes to travel, the Army has its own corps of experts, the Transportation Corps, which on 31 July will mark the 13th year of mastering the techniques of transporting troops and equipment.

The Army gave birth to its Transportation branch at a time when rapid mobility troop movements of one of the world's largest military forces was being planned shortly after Pearl Harbor.

On 9 March, 1942, the need for a corps of specialists in the field of transportation was resolved by the merging of the transportation functions of the War Department G-4 and Quartermaster General into what was at first called the Transportation Division (soon renamed Transportation Service) of the newly created Army Service Forces.

As an additional responsibility, the chief of this new and inexperienced organization was charged with the operation of our fast growing Ports of Embarkation and the Holding and Reconsignment Points which were being built.

The growing pains that plagued this war-born infant organization of the Army Service Forces were many. But despite the urgency of those hectic days, none of the difficulties proved insurmountable and on 31 July, 1942, the Transportation Corps as we know it today, was created by the War Department.

Spectacular logistical operations became commonplace. A railroad was built, maintained and operated in the mountain vastness of Iran to carry millions of tons of vital supplies for our Allies in Europe.

An amphibious assault that drove the enemy out of Western Europe was mounted and supported across the English Channel. Transportation Port Company longshoremen unloaded thousands of tons of ammunition and rations in south sea island inlets that had never before seen a vessel larger than a carved canoe.

Wherever and whenever supplies were needed during those critical days, the Transportation Corps DID furnish the Transportation.

On 28 June, 1950, President Truman signed into law the Army Organization bill, which made the Transportation Corps one of the basic branches of the Regular Army.

This Sunday as the Transportation Corps observes its 13th year of existence, new techniques of moving legions of troops and thousands of tons of modern military equipment are being developed and tested to continue to provide the Army with the means and know-how of rapid transportation and mobility.

30th Engineer Group Sets 2nd Highest Mark In Mess Hall Sanitation

Under the supervision of Sfc. James Heath, mess steward, Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group, last week registered the second highest score ever recorded at the Presidio on the monthly Post Mess Sanitation Inspection. Only 20 points were dropped as they posted a score of 980 out of a possible 1000.

This was achieved in spite of the fact that the mess hall is preparing meals for an additional 75 reservists who are receiving summer training here.

The all-time high record is held by another unit of the 30th Engineers. In March of this year the Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 660th Engineer Battalion, set the record with a perfect 1000 points.

Big Job!

Area-Wide Transportation Supervision Provided By Key Sixth Army Section

Coordination, supervision and inspection of Area-wide transportation facilities is the primary function of the Sixth Army Transportation section which is headed by Colonel Calvin L. Whittle.

As traffic managers of Class I installations in the 8 Western states this section completed a total of 3,350 inspections at motor pools, the operations of which covered more than 50,000,000 vehicle miles.

Inspection of 398 pieces of railway equipment at all Sixth Army Class I, II and III installations and at all Air Force installations was another large job completed by this section during fiscal year 1955.

Field maintenance facilities are provided by this section for all Army and National Guard aircraft, including helicopters and fixed wing craft. The total number of aircraft equipment which the section services runs to about 305 pieces each year.

Floating equipment also comes under the supervision and scrutiny of the Sixth Army Transportation section. Harbor craft operations and equipment at Seattle, Monterey, and Ft. Baker are supervised and maintained.

The skills of administrative coordination are employed by this section in supervising port calls to Sixth Army personnel and dependents going overseas. In the last fiscal year 9,640 of these calls were handled.

The Sixth Army transportation section is composed of 55 civilians, ten officers and seven enlisted men in addition to the transportation officer.

Drydocked! As this Harbor Craft LCM undergoes organizational maintenance at the Marine Maintenance repair docks at Horseshoe Cove, Col. Calvin L. Whittle, Sixth Army Transportation officer (with pointer), and Maj. Joseph P. O'Connor, post transportation officer, give a few hints to the men who are mounting a propeller on the barge-type craft. The Transportation Corps has held major responsibility for Army water-borne craft since the TC was first established 13 years ago, 31 July, 1942.

Wheels, Wings, Sails!

Post Transportation Facilities Keep Men and Gear Moving

A glance at the operations of the Post Transportation Section shows an extensive variety of programs being developed, administered, coordinated and carried out at the Presidio every day of the year.

Divided according to function and specific mission into five basic divisions, (movement service, supply, highway, harbor craft, and marine repair) this section is commanded by Major Joseph P. O'Connor.

Each month between 500 and 700 requests are received by the movement service division for the transportation of military personnel, their families and household goods to other installations. Of this number, between 20 and 25 personnel and dependents are moved overseas each week and 55-60 are transferred within the U. S.

This section not only arranges for personnel transportation and shipment of household items, it also expedites the storage of personal goods in commercial warehouses. Additionally, the movement services division handles the shipment of supplies and equipment to and from locally-based units and activities.

The supply division of the transportation section maintains an active inventory of more than 35,000 items excluding land transportation gear. Most of these items fall into the category of marine and aviation equipment.

Operating the post motor pool of 296 vehicles is the principal job of the highway division. This division gives 24-hour per day transportation support to Presidio and sub-post units and activities.

Twenty-two motor pool school buses carried more than 1,000 children to classes each day during the last school year without mishap, thus illustrating the safe-driving habits of the civilian and military bus drivers.

Motor pool vehicles and drivers also support the Bay Area Armed Forces Radio Sedan Service. This service, which is similar to civilian taxi service, results in more extensive and more thrifty utilization of Army cars.

The mission of the Harbor Craft

The Emblem—

Of the Transportation Corps, which observes its 13th Anniversary Sunday, illustrates all known types of modern transportation facilities, air, water, highway and rail.

Division located at Ft. Baker is to provide water-borne transportation facilities for the technical service units engaged in various activities at Angel Island. More than 4,000 military personnel are supported by Harbor Craft's Angel Island ferry service each month.

This transportation facility also carries supplies and equipment to Angel Island. Fire-watch and sea rescue round out the Harbor Craft Division's mission.

The Marine Maintenance Division provides organizational maintenance services for Sixth Army vessels which are beyond the capabilities of the boat's crew. The marine maintenance shop is one of the best equipped small boat maintenance shops on the West Coast.

The Post Transportation Section continues today fulfill locally the mission given the Transportation Corps when it was established 13 years ago, providing and arranging for the wheels, wings and the sails for the efficient moving of Army personnel supplies, and equipment.

birthday party—

Major General Paul F. Yount, chief of Army Transportation, will be the special guest at the San Francisco Chapter, National Defense Transportation Association's observance 28 July of the 13th anniversary of the Transportation Corps. Colonel Alvin L. Whittle, Sixth Army Transportation officer, and other high ranking Armed Services transportation and traffic officers will attend the birthday party.

Stenos and Typists Still in Urgent Need In Presidio Offices

New starting salaries of $3,175 a year for stenographers and $2,960 and $3,175 a year for typists make the positions for which the Presidio is presently recruiting most attractive, according to J. N. McConaha, chief of the Civilian Personnel Division here.

In addition to the more attractive pay, a number of the jobs are in exceptionally interesting fields where new employees can learn many new skills, thus qualifying themselves for higher level jobs.

Both military and civilian personnel are being urged to carry this message to friends and relatives who might be interested in the good pay, security, and opportunities involved in going to work at the Presidio.

Applicants should be directed to the Civilian Personnel Division on the second floor of Bldg. 36, where they may obtain further information, application blanks, and direction to the testing service.

Reds Nudge U.S.S. Wasp; Poole Spins Five Hitter

The league winning Red Raider hardball nine squeezed through with a narrow 4 to 3 victory over the sailors of the U. S. S. Wasp early this week on the Fort Scott diamond.

The flying sailors broke the scoring ice with a single run in the bottom of the fourth when third sacker Boggs singled, advanced to second on Duffy's sacrifice bunt and scored on Hendison's sharp single to right field. The Navy team added two tallies in the fifth on two singles, and a double by left-fielder Davison driving in the runs.

Presidio broke into the scoring column in the top of the sixth when leadoff man Miyahara singled, advanced to second on Coleman's one-bagger and scored on Rex Willis' hard single down the left field foul line.

The locals tied the contest in the seventh when Jackson singled, Shelstad walked, and both tallied on Hendrickson's sharp double into right center field.

The winning run came in the top of the eighth as Cringoli led off with a single and went to second on Poole's sacrifice bunt. Jackson singled, putting men on first and third and setting the stage for Roger Shelstad's infield out that sent Cringoli home with the winning run for the ball game.

Big Bob Poole of the 505th MPs went the nine-inning route, allowing but five hits while his opponent on the mound, Pete Stapp, was giving up 14 blows.

This week end features a Saturday-Sunday double header here against the Beale Air Force nine. Both games start at 1230 hours and will be played on the Fort Scott diamond. Roger Collins is expected to start the first game with Bob Poole coming back Sunday for the second contest.

Wac Nine Ties For Top Spot In BAAF Play

The girl's division of the Bay Area Armed Forces Softball League closed this week in a three-way tie for first place. Tied for the top spot are the Presidio WACs, the Hamilton Air Force Base girls and the Parks Air Force crew. Each of these teams finished with an identical six win two loss record in league competition.

The next two teams are out of contention, as fourth place Fort Mason has a two won six loss record and the Oakland Army Base nine has lost eight out of their eight games played.

There will be a playoff in the near future between these three teams but as yet details haven't been announced by the BAAF officials.

Tomorrow Ruth Gavigan will take the mound in an inter-service clash with the Treasure Island Waves. The Waves pulled down second place in the Bay Area Navy League and should put up a good game with the local girl sluggers. The time is 1330 hours and the place is the Fort Scott softball diamond.

Although no games were played this week, the girl nine broke even in two contests played the latter part of last week. The WACs edged the San Francisco Marines 12-11 in a real slugfest. Thompson and Argue paced the victory by blasting first inning homers. The other game went to the Hamilton Field Flyers by a 9 to 3 margin as the locals had a rare off day both afield and at the plate.

Softball Nine Is Still Hot With 3 Wins and 1 Defeat

By Pvt. Bob Malone

Presidio's soldier Post softball team continued its winning streak this week taking three out of the four games played. This Saturday the local softball wheels meet the up-and-coming Parks Air Force Base nine on the Fort Scott diamond at 1000 hours.

Featuring a 14-run sixth inning, the Presidio softball whizzes defeated a civilian team, the St. Francis hospital nine, by the score of 24-2.

Outclassing their opponents badly, the Raiders connected for 17 base hits paced by Bob Moran's single, triple and home run. Lee Dluginsky also legged out a solid blow to right center for a homer. The locals backed up the combined hurling of Jim Marlor and Forrest Coleman with errorless play.

Nicolls Throws Three Hitter, Cardinals Win

The league-leading Cardinals took the game of the week away from the Yanks by blasting the latter 10 to 4, in Presidio Little League play.

Pete Nicolls took the mound for the front-running Cards and threw a three-hitter to win one of the most impressive victories of the year. The Cards jumped off to a four-run lead in the top of the first and were never headed as they added three more in the second and two in the fourth. They closed out their scoring with one run in the sixth to put the game on ice.

Gene Hall led the batting parade with two booming doubles followed by Terry Waite with one two-bagger.

Tommy Stewart hit the game's only triple when he blasted one of losing pitcher Earl Pegram's curve balls into left center field in the second.

The losing Yanks threatened in the bottom of the sixth when they crossed the plate four times on one hit and two errors but Nicolls struck out the last batter to end the inning and the ball game.

Scoring single runs in the fifth and seventh innings, the Red Raiders edged San Quentin Prison 2-0. Bob Ertel and Ed Johnson combined their pitching talents to turn in a sparkling no-hit no-run game.

The Raiders were able to collect but three hits with the big blow being Ed Johnson's hard smash to left field good for an RBI single. John Staub contributed two fine defensive catches in the outfield to pace the defensive action.

Suffering their second loss in 11 games, the Presidio softballers dropped a game to the Hamilton AFB Defenders 11-3. The combination of three home runs over a short left field fence and the sensational defensive play of third sacker LaViage proved to be more than the Red's could overcome.

Ed Johnson struck the mightiest blow of the game when he clouted a tremendous drive over the center field barrier to lead off the sixth inning. John Staub also homered for the Post team. Harry Mathews continued to spark the infield with his aggressive play at short-stop ably assisted by the fine defensive performance of second sacker Ken Bush.

Scoring their 10th non-league win of the season, the softball aces shut out Two Rock Ranch Station 4-0. Presidio hurler Ed Johnson pitched two-hit ball to gain credit for the win. Johnson struck out 7 and walked 4 to take complete command of the 7-inning contest.

The outstanding fielding play of the game came in the fifth inning with a runner on second. Second sacker Frank Young fielded a hard hit grounder, held the runner on second and then tossed out the batter at first. The base runner then broke for third and was thrown out on a perfect peg from first baseman Earle Conners to Bob Moran for a double play.

The game's only home run went to hustling Lee Dluginsky, when he parked one down the right foul line in the fifth inning.

Trojans Travel

Los Angeles, Calif. (AFPS)—A 20-player University of Southern California baseball team, coached by Rod Dedeaux, has left for a tour of the Far East to play service teams in Japan and Korea.

The Trojan squad, Pacific Coast champion, is making the trip at the invitation of the Far East Command.

The trip will last about five weeks during which time the Trojans will play about 30 ball games.

Ninth Triple AAA stars Tom Cringoli and Forrest Coleman are essentials to the success of the 1955 Presidio Red Raider hardball squad. Both played on the 9th AAA softball nine that captured the post championship this year.

Army-Marine Marksmen Set Records at Benning

Ft. Benning, Ga. (AFPS)—Army and marine rifle marksmen came up with "red-hot" performances to shatter existing national records in the 1955 southeastern high power rifle matches here.

The top three places in the team matches went to army team No. 2, with 984 points and 108 V-ring shots; army team No. 1, 981 points and 113 V-ring shots; and the marine "gold" squad, 981 points and 111 V-ring shots. The previous mark of 980 points was set by a marine team in 1953.

Coaching army team No. 2 was Capt. John W. Kolb, USARPAC, who recently won the all-army individual rifle championship.

Members of the winning team were: Capt. Richard Conley, Third Army; 1st Lt. Lawrence Takahashi, Ft. Riley, Kan.; Sfc. Lloyd Crow, Jr., Third Army, and M/Sgt. Oscar Gailman of West Point, N. Y.

Members of the runner-up army team were: Capt. Murvale Belson, Second Army; 1st Lt. Thomas Atwood, USAREUR and Capt. C. J. North, Third Army. Captain of the team was Maj. Carl Byas of Ft. Benning and Maj. Frank Palmer of Ft. Monroe, Va., was team coach.

The marine "gold" team, coached by CWO Earl Whitaker of the Third Marine Div., included Capt. Lemoin Cox, San Diego MCRD, Calif.; S/Sgt. Orion Hingst, Camp Lejeune, N. C.; Sgt. Albert Hauser, Jr., Albett MCSC, Ga., and Sgt. Emmett Duncan of Camp Pendleton, Calif.

In the individual competition, Lt. Atwood captured first place honors in the open category and M/Sgt. Francis Conway, Third Army, took first place in the master class.

Other individual match winners were M/Sgt. Francis Redfern, Third Army; Pfc. James Bowen, Parris Island, S. C.; 1st Lt. Clifford Tryon, Camp Pendleton; Pfc. James Emery, El Toro, Calif., and Sgt. Emmett Duncan.

According to Col. Perry D. Swindler, USA (ret.), an official of the National Rifle Assn., every winning score, except for match No. 9 from the 1,000-yard line, equalled or bettered the existing national record.

Eleven teams, plus 17 civilians firing individually, competed in this year's event which was sponsored by the Ft. Benning rifle and pistol club.

Catton Wins Sixth Army Singles Title

First Lieutenant Conway Catton led Fort Ord to a clean sweep of the open singles and doubles events in the recently completed All-Sixth Army Tennis Tournament at Madigan Army Hospital, Washington.

Catton defeated defending champion Vickery of Fort Ord for the singles crown by the scores of 6-2, 6-0, 7-5. The two finalists joined forces in the doubles to edge out the Fort Lewis pair of Bratton and Self in four sets, 6-0, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

The men's senior singles title went to Fort Lawton's Rogers when he blasted teammate Wilson, 6-1, 6-0. Rogers and Wilson teamed up to win the senior doubles crown, 6-3, 6-1, over Mainar of Fort MacArthur and Del Rosario of Fort Ord.

Archer, of nearby Letterman Hospital, captured the women's singles by blasting Byrd of Fort Ord, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4. The Letterman pair lost out in the doubles finals to the Ord team of Byrd and Allen, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5.

Fort Ord walked off with the number one spot in men's competition followed by runner-up Fort Lawton. Letterman Army Hospital and Fort Ord tied for the top position in women's play. Winners journey on to Fort Meade, Md., for the All-Army meet, 1-5 August.

sports quiz . . .

Q. Can I take three trout or salmon, regardless of weight, under the new Sacramento River year-around fishing regulations?

A. Yes. The regulations specify 10 trout or salmon, or 10 pounds and one fish, but also provide that irrespective of weight, three trout or salmon may be taken from April 30 to October 31. From November 1 to April 29, the limit is three trout or salmon of any weight.

Q. Does the special $1 three-day Pacific Ocean angling license apply to clam diggers?

A. Yes, if they are digging on an ocean beach.

Q. If I have a gun in my car with shells in the magazine but none in the chamber, am I violating the law against carrying a loaded gun in a vehicle?

A. No. The law applies only to shells in the chamber.

Q. How do I enroll in a hunter safety class?

A. Your local license agent, and your game warden, have a list of qualified instructors in your locality for you to contact.

Baker MPs Take Over Pacific Set

Company B of the 505th MPs climbed into first place in Pacific Bowling League action as they edged past the Sixth Army Signal crew this week.

Dickey's 225 single and 596 net contributed to the Baker MP's clean sweep over the Hilltoppers No. 3 despite Ishihara's 171 single and 471 net.

Thorne of the Keystone Kops rolled the high game with a smashing 242 pursued by Brown from Hq. Co. Station Complement with 227 pins split. The high team game with handicap goes to Hq. Co. Station Complement with 1084, followed by the 102nd MRU with 1055.

CMD and the Strugglers continue their battle for first place in the Special Services Mixed League. The CMD crew is currently on top with a .750 percentage, followed closely by the Strugglers with a .719 percentage.

Reams holds the top spot for the CMD set with a 160 average and a 218 high game. The Strugglers are paced by Yoshino with a 171 average and a 197 high game.

Men's high game of the week went to Hiel with a 259 and King captured the high series with a 599. For the girls, Matossian rolled the high game with a 184 and Youngdahl walked off with a high series total of 448.

The 1955 Presidio Hole-in-One Tournament will run three days, it was announced today. The tourney starts at 1100 hours to 1300 hours on both the 11th and 12th of August. On Saturday the 13th hours will be from 1100 to 1400 hours. The scene will be the first tee of the Presidio Pitch and Putt course. The cost will be 50 cents for three balls with all proceeds going to the Army Emergency Relief drive here. Prizes will be awarded to the winner and runner-up.

steelhead catch

Tags returned to the Department of Fish and Game indicate that sportsmen caught about 10,000 steelhead in the Sacramento River system between June, 1954, and April, 1955.

This number is about one-third of the total run of fish over 12.5 inches in length, Department fisheries biologists say.

The ratio was determined by the number of tags returned to the total number tagged at Fremont Weir.

McCallister Leads Ord To Sixth Army Golf Title

The powerful Fort Ord Warriors captured the All-Sixth Army Golf Tournament over runner-up Fort Lewis at the end of the four-day play over the wind-swept Ord links.

Former University of Southern California ace Bob McCallister led his Ord teammates to the win by capturing the individual championship with a four-round total of 291 for a 72.7 average. McCallister shot rounds of 75, 71, 73, 72 over the 7115-yard course.

Second place also went to Fort Ord when Dick Runkle came in with a 297 total for the par 72 course. Eddie Myerson of Fort Lewis grabbed the third slot with a 299, just two strokes out of second place.

Myerson had the tourney's best round when he turned in a fine two under par 70 on his last round of play. Seven strokes back was Ord's Joe Torres with a grand total of 306 for fourth position.

The Senior division went to Lt. Col. James Hingate of Fort Lawton with a closing day 81 for a 319 total. Lt. Col. Tom Ward of the Presidio finished second with a 335 total which included a final round of 85.

Fort Ord captured the top two positions in women's play when Lt. Wealthy Swab and Lt. Elaine McNeil finished one-two over the long Ord course.

Named to represent the Sixth Army in the All-Army meet (1-5 August) at Fort Meade, Md., were McCallister, Runkle, Myerson and Torres. Seniors making the trip are Hingate and Ward, and Swab and McNeil will represent the women's division.

Final standing: Fort Ord, first place, 1543; Fort Lewis, second place, 1566; Presidio, third place, 1659; Fort Lawton, fourth place, 1682; Fort MacArthur, fifth place, 1759; Fort Mason sixth place, 1905; and Fort Huachuca in for seventh with 1910.

swims strait

Victoria, B.C. (AFPS)—A 29-year-old former marine corps frogman became the first swimmer to conquer the Juan de Fuca Strait.

Bert Thomas, a 270-lb. logger from Tacoma, Wash., swam the 18.3 miles from Port Angeles, Wash., to Victoria in 11 hours, 10 minutes. It was his fifth attempt.

Noted channel swimmer Florence Chadwick was the first to try the strait, but lasted only five miles last August. She termed Juan de Fuca the meanest body of water she'd ever attempted to swim.

Archie Moore's third round KO over Bobo Olson was his 120th win in 19 years and his 21st straight win since December, 1951.

Third Place

Pvt. Eddie Myerson finished third in the recent All-Sixth Army Golf Tournament. The Fort Lewis pivot star hails from Los Angeles, Calif., and recently won the Northern Division golf title over the Fort Lewis links.

Fry from 30,000 Splake trout eggs from Quebec, Canada, are being held in hatchery ponds at Mt. Shasta pending their planting later this summer in Lower Salmon Lake, Sierra County. The Splake is a cross between Eastern Brook and Mackinaw trout, and are being planted experimentally by the Department.

Sixty creel checks made on 10 major roadside lakes of the Inyo-Mono area showed greatly improved angling in June. Larger catchables became available for planting during the month. Good to excellent fishing was reported in Mary, June, and Twin Lakes in Mono County.

By use of traps for the first time, 415,000 steelhead fingerlings have been rescued from drying up pools in Uvas Creek, Santa Clara County, during May and June. This is more than twice the number ever rescued previously. These fingerlings were planted in live streams.

Ventra, Raymond Wright, Herbert Cuevas, Company Commander Capt. Francis Hoskin. Presenting the trophies is Lt. Col. George Adair, Sixth Army Signal section, followed by Howard Dickey and Ronald Deer.

Gain of $5 Million!

Fiscal Year QM Sales of Surplus Property High in Sixth Army Area

Proceeds derived from sales within the Sixth Army area of property no longer required for government use as of the close of the fiscal year, reached the astounding sum of $13,244,074. Such sales are conducted at 16 installations within the area, and represent a gain of more than $5,450,000 over last fiscal year's total sales.

Of this year's amount, $10,072,350 represents receipts from property with acquisition value of $100,525,484. A total of $3,171,722 was derived from sale of scrap and waste material such as scrap metals, scrap paper, and kitchen waste.

In addition, acquisition cost-value of property which was returned for further Army use, donated to eligible institutions and organizations (schools, Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations, Civil Air Patrol) and Government agencies outside the Department of Defense, from property held in property disposal accounts during fiscal year 1955, amounted to $16,839,042.

Comparison of these figures with fiscal year 1954 shows total proceeds of $7,785,334 and property with $10,667,547 acquisition cost value redistributed, transferred, or donated.

The greatest portion of property disposed of by sale is sold by solicitation of sealed bids. Auction sales are held when large accumulations of property having a wide commercial application are on hand at one or more locations in the same market area. Two such sales, conducted by auctioneering firms, were held during the second quarter of the current fiscal year. The following are pertinent statistics concerning these sales:

On 25 to 27 October, 1954, a sale was held at Sharpe General Depot at which property with total acquisition cost of $24,463,640 was sold. Installations participating were Oakland Army Base, Benicia Arsenal, Sacramento Signal Depot and Sharpe General Depot. A net return of $1,730,770 was realized which is 7.07 per cent of acquisition cost. Four hundred and seventeen buyers from 17 states were purchasers.

On 13 to 16 December, 1954 property with total acquisition cost of $13,003,130 was sold at Fort Lawton, Washington. Installations participating in this sale were Fort Lawton, Fort Lewis and Mount Rainier Ordnance Depot. A net return of $1,144,995 was realized which is 8.79 per cent of acquisition cost. There were 539 buyers from nine states at this sale.

new colonel

Department of the Army has announced the promotion of James C. Hamilton to the rank of colonel. Colonel Hamilton is currently assigned to the Judge Advocate Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Colonel Hamilton is a veteran of almost 15 years' service. He served with the Army Air Corps in World War II, was assigned to Military Government Section in Korea during the mid-forties. One of the highlights of Colonel Hamilton's career was his duty in connection with the war crimes trial of Admiral Toyoda, Chief of Naval Operations in the Japanese Navy.

Career Employees with the Bay Area Exchange were honored in a ceremony held this week in the office of Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, who presented awards to a group of workers whose service with the PX system totaled 90 years. Shown here with Colonel Lundquist following presentation of their 10-year gold pin awards are Beth C. Kron, Henry L. Schutt, Mary

G. Hart, and Maude L. Spencer. At right is Lt. Robert J. Emswiler, Presidio Exchange officer. Absent from the picture but also receiving 10-year pins were Lora E. Crandall and Henderson Roberson, while two other employees, Ruth L. McCormick and Wiley Parker, received 15-year service awards. These were part of a nationwide group of 6,000 PX employees who are being honored at present.

Six Career Officers Mark Completion Of Long Service at Parade Ceremony

Six career Army officers, all veterans of extensive combat military service, had their last day of active duty highlighted yesterday with a colorful retirement ceremony.

Heading the list was Brigadier General John L. Whitelaw. General Whitelaw, a graduate of the United States Military Academy in 1918, ended almost 37 years of service in the Army.

During World War II, General Whitelaw was Assistant Division Commander of the 17th Airborne Division. He made the combat jump across the Rhine River at Wesel, Germany, in the closing weeks of the war. From 1951 to 1952, General Whitelaw served as Director General of Civil Affairs in Trieste, Italy. His last assignment was Inspector General, Army Forces Far East.

Colonels John W. Gaddis and William E. Long, who entered active military service together at the U. S. Military Academy, graduating in the class of 1925, completed 30 years' active service.

Colonel Gaddis was the Assistant Chief of Staff for Logistics (G-4), Headquarters Sixth Army. In World War II, he served as Regimental Executive Officer and Regimental Commander and as Chief of Staff in the 94th Infantry Division. Following the war, Colonel Gaddis was engaged in Military Government in Europe, and later was Chief of the Field Training Command of the U. S. Military Advisory Group in Korea.

From 1947 to 1949, Colonel Gaddis was a unit instructor at Santa Barbara, Calif., at which city he will retire.

Colonel Long, an Infantry officer, served in normal infantry troop and staff positions until 1937. In 1942, Colonel Long was assigned to Camp Roberts, Calif., and after a school tour at Fort Benning, he accompanied the 83rd Infantry Division to Europe, serving with the division throughout the European war.

In 1945 and 1946, Colonel Long was assigned duties in Brussels and Antwerp with the Base Section and Major Port, respectively.

After a tour of duty in Virginia with the National Guard as unit instructor and senior Army advisor, Colonel Long served three years in Japan.

He was assigned as Commanding Officer, 101st Airborne Artillery, for almost a year and then came to the California Military District serving in the capacities as Chief of District and Chief of Staff.

Lt. Col. Milton B. Herr retired after more than 26 years' active duty. He is a veteran of World War I and II and the Korean conflict. A good share of Colonel Herr's service has been in the public relations field. After several years in Washington in the Office of the Chief of Information and Education, Department of the Army, he represented the Army in the Armed Forces Public Information Office in San Francisco prior to its closing in July, 1952. He then served as Chief of the News Division, Sixth Army Information Service, until ordered overseas in 1953.

In Korea, Colonel Herr served as Public Information Officer for the United Nations Truce Delegation. Following his retirement, Colonel Herr will enter public relations and sales promotion fields in the Bay Area.

Lt. Colonel George W. Allyn, an Ordnance officer, concluded more than 27 years' service in the Army. Colonel Allyn, formerly an enlisted man, served in the European Theatre during World War II.

He served in Japan and Korea as Assistant Ordnance Officer with the 24th Division during the period 1947 to 1951. Colonel Allyn has been serving at Yuma Test Station since 1951.

Captain Jacob Ehni completed more than 21 years' service. A native of Russia, he served as an enlisted man with the 3d Infantry Regiment from 1933 until 1940. In World War II, Captain Ehni accompanied the 7th Infantry Division to the European Theatre and earned a battlefield commission.

He was hospitalized in 1945 and 1946 as a result of wounds received in action. After a year's service in Korea with the 24th Corps and the 7th Infantry Division, Captain Ehni was assigned to Fort Ord, Calif., for two years.

In 1951, he again returned to the Far East and was assigned to the 24th Infantry Division in Korea until July 1953. He returned to the Presidio in August 1953 and has been serving with Post Headquarters since that date.

Four Times the Presidio WACs, Company D, Station Complement, have won honors for being the top-marching unit in the weekly retreat parade here. Lieutenant Colonel Sidney J. Colvin, unit commander, 6215 Station Complement, presents the Honor Unit Plaque to Captain Virginia Engels, Company D commander.

AER Drive Progresses As Soldiers Dig Deep

Making the second stop in their pay lines this week, Presidio military personnel dug into their monthly folding money to open up the annual fund campaign for the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society.

The Army's own fund-raising campaign is conducted each year to permit a voluntary contribution from every member of the Army and raise in a single campaign the funds for both organizations.

In last year's campaign Presidio soldiers contributed more than $4,700. Contributions to AER by individuals and organizations, in excess of the campaign, totaled over $2,100.

However, a total of $11,426 was loaned to local military personnel last year for emergency purposes. This means that the interest-free loans were repaid quickly enough to permit lending of the money several times.

Loans were made in 1954 to the amount of $10,626 with 69 loans comprising the total. Two grants were made, totaling $800. Five uncollectable loans came to $440.

In the period 1 January to 30 June, 1955, 23 loans were made, totaling $4,115. Two grants were made to total $375 and 5 uncollectable loans totaling $335 were recorded.

The Army-wide expenditure of AER in 1954 was $3,648,000, covering more than 33,000 members of the Army and their dependents. A steady increase is evident in the expenditure total since 1950 when the total was $690,000.

Despite the great increase each year since 1950 which is attributed to the world-wide expansion of AER, the more widespread knowledge of AER by Army personnel everywhere, and the greater utilization of AER funds by commanders as an instrument of morale, the net worth increased over the five-year period by $537,000.

AER is administered by six overseas AER branches and 189 AER sections. Of the 189 sections, 75 are located overseas and 114 are located in the Continental U. S.

The great volume of assistance being rendered by AER is made possible by its sound financial position. Members of the Army have been and are responsible for maintaining this sound financial status.

Presidio military personnel are urged to continue their strong support of AER by backing up their dollars with continued contribution. The AER is the reality in the Army's historic tradition of taking care of its own.

Ranking Recognition came to Miss Margaret A. Downs, civilian employee of Sixth Army G-3, recently when she was presented a $200 incentive award by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander. Miss Downs' award was for sustained superior performance from 1 April, 1954 to 31 March, 1955.

New Stipulations!

Congress Approves Reserve Plan; Affects Men in Service

Washington (AFPS)—Congress has passed a modified version of President Eisenhower's national reserve plan that exempts all men now on active duty from compulsory reserve training.

The reserve plan in its final form was a compromise measure drafted by a joint congressional committee after the House and Senate passed separate bills.

Men now in the service and veterans who were in the armed forces after June 19, 1951, will continue to have an eight-year military obligation. This includes the normal ready reserve time, but they will not have to participate in any reserve training programs.

Their ready reserve obligation can be cut to one year, however, if they voluntarily enlist in the reserves for 12 months training. They would then be placed in the standby reserves and could not be called to active duty except in a national emergency. Some 200,000 veterans would be eligible for this program annually.

The act contains another inducement to obtain veterans for the reserves. Service secretaries could release men now in the armed forces after completion of 12 months active duty provided they agree to serve in the ready reserves. Their combined active duty and ready reserve service would have to total a minimum of four years.

New Council Named To Secure Health Of Armed Services

Washington (AFPS)—The Defense Department has established a four-man Health and Medical Planning Council aimed at eliminating overlapping and duplication in health and medical services to the Armed Forces.

The council will plan, develop and implement joint policies. It consists of Dr. Frank B. Berry, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Medical), who is chairman, and the assistant secretaries of each service who are responsible for manpower and personnel problems.

The council will consider, among other subjects, the coordination of medical services and assignment to a single department of responsibility for hospital services in particular areas; joint staffing of regular and specialized hospitals; provision of medical care for dependents and the training of doctors in the services.

Decorations For Meritorious Duty Set For Parade Today

A special feature of the parade this afternoon will be the presentation of the Army's Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant by Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, to four veterans of distinguished service in Europe and the Far East.

Sergeant First Class Ruth A. Welzmueller, 33 Ridge Ave., Parkridge, N. J., will receive an Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second award of the Commendation Ribbon for meritorious service with the 8110th Army Unit in Japan from April, 1953, to July, 1954. She is presently assigned to Company D, Station Complement, Presidio of San Francisco.

Corporal Lawrence Parrish will receive the Commendation Ribbon for meritorious service with the 163rd Medical Battalion in Korea from December, 1953, to July, 1954. A native of Laurel Hill, Fla., he is now assigned to Sixth Army Headquarters.

The meritorious service of Specialist Second Class Earl G. Christensen, Headquarters Base Section, U.S. Army Europe Communications Zone from June, 1952, to April, 1955, earned him his award of the Commendation Ribbon. Now assigned to the Station Complement, he lives at 954 Lincoln Blvd., Presidio.

Alvin C. Richards, 3551 Joaquin Miller Rd., Oakland, Calif., will receive the Commendation Ribbon for meritorious service with the 8075th Army Unit in Korea from July, 1954, to May, 1955. Mr. Richards entered the Army as a member of the Reserve in July, 1953, and was separated from the service last June.

Participating in the parade will be approximately 600 troops from Headquarters Company, Presidio Station Complement; the 561st Engineer Company; Company A, Presidio Station Complement; Sixth Army Headquarters Company; 30th Engineer Group, and Presidio WAC Detachment. Music will be furnished by the Sixth Army Band.

Col. Joseph B. Coolidge

Colonel Coolidge Becomes New G-4; Col. Gaddis Retires

Colonel Joseph B. Coolidge has assumed the duties of assistant chief of staff, G-4, Headquarters Sixth Army, as of 1 August. He succeeds Colonel John W. Gaddis, who retired in July from 30 years' Army service which followed his graduation from West Point with the class of 1925.

Colonel Coolidge is a West Point graduate with the class of 1931, and has subsequently been graduated from the Army War college, the Command and General Staff college, the Armed Forces Staff college and the Infantry school.

His most recent assignment prior to coming to this headquarters in May, was that of G-3, KMAG, and commanding officer, 14th Regiment, 25th Infantry Division in Korea.

During World War II, the colonel commanded regiments and battalions of the 77th Division in the Pacific theatre from 1944 until the close of the war at which time he became G-3 of the 24th Corps, serving on Okinawa and in Korea.

His decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart, and the Combat Infantry Badge.

Record Breakers- the Presidio WACs, Company D, Station Complement, won the weekly parade competition for the second consecutive week last Friday, to mark their fifth award of the Honor Unit plaque. Captain Virginia D. Engels, Company D commander, receives the plaque from Lieutenant Colonel Harry Nelson, Sixth Army Medical Corps.

That's It! says PIO staffer, Miss Lillian Batti to SP/3c Farror Griffin of the post dispensary as she peers into the Ortho Rater to have her vision performance tested during the current survey program of 2600 post and Headquarters, Sixth Army civilian employees. Purpose of the test is to determine whether a person's vision performance meets the vision standards of the job he's doing.

Ortho-Rater! Special Device Aids Local Job Vision Tests of Civil Employees

By the time 2600 civilian employees of the post and Headquarters, Sixth Army, have undergone the vision performance tests being given here now, each person will know if his eyes meet the vision standard of the job he's doing.

Called the Occupational Vision Survey Program, these tests are being handled by the Post surgeon's preventative medicine section and are sponsored by the Army Occupational Health Environment Laboratory.

To date approximately 1100 civilian employees have been tested since the survey program began last March.

The tests are being facilitated by a portable instrument which measures 12 of the visual skills that are most important on most commercial and industrial jobs and which contribute greatly to the comfort, safety and ease with which these jobs can be performed.

Called the "Ortho-Rater," this instrument determines only how the eyes perform. It cannot be used for actual diagnosis of visual conditions; only an ophthalmologist or an optometrist can perform this function.

Upon the completion of the tests and evaluation by the post-surgeon each employee will be notified of the results so that he will know how his visual performance compares with standards found to be most desired for his type of work.

All civilian jobs fall within certain vision standards. For example in the clerk-typist occupation, emphasis is placed on what is commonly called "near vision." Truck drivers on the other hand require "far vision."

Employees whose tests indicate that their visual performance does not match the vision standards required for their job will be advised to consult an eye doctor for possible correction of the deficiency.

The tests are being given by Sp/3c Farror Griffin, Detachment 2, Station Complement. Since the testing device is portable, the tests are given right on the job.

Roughly one-fourth of all Army Posts activities and installations are presently undergoing the vision survey. Summing up the value of the test Specialist Griffin said, "... when your eyes are right for your work, you will be more comfortable and efficient on the job and less liable to accident and injury."

The ability to read small print with or without glasses is not sufficient to assure visual accuracy in depth perception and visual coordination with action.

Major Honek Also In Veteran Group Recently Retired

A veteran of more than 20 years' Army service was retired from active duty last week, when Major Mike S. Honek joined the group of Sixth Army officers who were honored at a retreat parade and review of troops held July 28 at the Presidio of San Francisco. Major Honek is the former Master Sergeant Honek who has been assigned to the Sixth Army Transportation Section for the past 19 months.

A resident of San Francisco, Major Honek first joined the service as an enlisted man in 1934.

In 1943 Major Honek was commissioned in the Transportation Corps, and served two successive overseas assignments, the first to the U.S. Army Port at Bremerhaven, Germany, and the second to the port in Guam.

With the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, Major Honek went to Moji, Japan, where he was superintendent of the Army ammunition piers throughout the Korean action. Upon his return to the U.S. in October, 1952, he was assigned to the staff of the Seattle (Wash.) Port of Embarkation where he remained until January, 1954, when he came to Sixth Army headquarters for his final military assignment.

Major Honek and his wife, Martha, have three children who attend San Francisco schools.

Services Drop 33,091 During Month of June; Stand at 2,936,003

Washington (AFPS)—Total manpower strength of the armed forces stood at 2,936,003 on June 30, based on preliminary figures released recently by the Department of Defense. This was a drop of 33,091 personnel from the May 31 total.

The Navy and Air Force each registered slight gains in manpower figures for the month, with the Navy picking up 477 and the Air Force 792. The Army and Marine Corps dropped 34,193 and 167 respectively.

Re-enlistment figures show a total of 19,733 re-ups during the month.

commander's aer message ...

TO ALL MEMBERS OF SIXTH ARMY AND THEIR FAMILIES:

The joint Army Emergency Relief-Army Relief Society fund campaign will be held at the Presidio of San Francisco during the period 1 August to 31 August 1955.

It has always been the Army's proud boast, frequently proven, that "The Army takes care of its own." Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society are agencies through which this spirit has been demonstrated and through which Army personnel and their dependents are provided financial assistance in cases of emergency. In 1954 $3,648,000 was expended in assisting approximately 33,000 members of the Army or their dependents in many varying types of emergencies, conditions, and circumstances, as compared to $2,259,000 similarly expended in 1953 in approximately 21,500 cases.

Your wholehearted support of this fund campaign will be a great contribution to the common welfare of the Army, and will enable the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society to continue their operations during this period of greatly increased demands. I urge each of you to help in making this campaign a success.

officers recently assigned

Colonel WILLIAM W. ROE, JR., recently joined the Sixth Army Medical section as deputy surgeon.

For the past four years, Colonel Roe has been staff assistant to the assistant secretary of defense (Health and Medicine), Washington, D. C.

Veteran of 21 years of Army service, the colonel received his B.A. from UCLA with the class of 1928, and was graduated from the College of Medical Evangelists in Los Angeles in 1933. In 1948, he received his MPH (Master Public Health) from the University of California.

During World War II, Colonel Roe was first chief medical instructor at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, 1942-43; and then served with the Medical section, Allied Forces Headquarters, Mediterranean, 1943-44, and, upon his return to the states, became Fourth Army Surgeon 1944-45, with station at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

At the outbreak of the Korean conflict, Colonel Roe served there as surgeon of I Corps during 1950-51.

A graduate of the Medical Field Service school basic course and the National War college, the colonel has been decorated with the Legion of Merit and the Commendation Ribbon with Oak Leaf Cluster.

The colonel's wife and family will join him here as soon as quarters are available.

First Lt. SEAMON J. MOLKENBUHR, JR., an Army aviator, fixed wing single engine qualified, has been assigned to the 521st Engineer Company (Topographic Aviation).

Lt. Molkenbuhr graduated from the University of San Francisco in 1947, after completing a course in general business and entered the Army in 1949, receiving his commission at O.C.S., Fort Riley, Kansas, in 1951.

Following completion of Engineer Officer's basic course, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, he spent three years with the 18th Engineer Combat Battalion in Germany.

In October 1955, Lt. Molkenbuhr was assigned to Army flight training school at Gary Air Force Base, Texas, and then to Tactics flight training school, Camp Rucker, Alabama, where he received his wings.

Second Lt. DONALD H. KUENNING is a new arrival at the 521st

Engineer Company (Topographic Aviation).

Lt. Kuennig graduated from the University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1953 with a B.S. degree in Civil Engineering. At the same time he received his reserve commission through the university's ROTC unit.

He was immediately called to active duty and attended the Engineer officer's basic course at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

The lieutenant was next assigned to the Army flight training school, San Marcus Air Force Base, Texas, and then to Tactics flight training school, Camp Rucker, Alabama, where he received his wings.

impressive!

The Pentagon, Arlington, Va., headquarters for the Department of Defense and all military branches, is three times the size of the Empire State Building, covers 34 acres, has 17 and one-half miles of corridors, contains more than 28,000 miles of telephone wire, maintains the largest single food serving operation in the world and yet cost little more than half as much as a single, first-class battleship, or $63,645,-954 (M).

The Pentagon, world's largest office building, was built in 16 months at a total cost of $83,000,-000 (M).

Education Center Advises Men To Take GED Tests This Summer

The summer slack season experienced by most educational institutions has not affected many facets of the extensive program available to local military personnel at the Post Education Center.

The education center advisors emphasized this week that this is a particularly good time for men to complete high school and college GED (General Educational Development) tests in preparation for classroom studies on and off post this fall, or to fulfill basic requirements for attendance at Army schools.

The GED tests are designed to determine whether or not the person has the equivalent of a general high school or a one-year college education. More than anything else, these GED tests are an indication of the ability to read carefully and the ability to interpret what has been read.

Tests are available on the high school and the one-year college level. The high school tests are composed of five parts: English composition, the social studies, the natural sciences, literature and mathematics. The college test covers the first four categories.

The Army considers a man a high school graduate when he passes the High School GED tests. This is helpful to the soldier who wants to qualify for certain service schools, assignments or promotions that require high school education.

The Army also considers a man as having had one year of college when he passes the College GED Test. Passing scores on this test, as well as on the High School Test, are entered on the serviceman's record. Upon enrollment some colleges grant twenty-four college credit hours to a person who has passed the College GED test.

There is no time limit on these tests, but each separate part usually requires about two hours. Once a single part of the test is begun it must be completed in one sitting.

Answer sheets are sent to US AFI, Madison, Wisconsin, for scoring and after approximately three to four weeks copies of test scores are mailed to the individuals.

Governors Would Fill Vacancies in Congress In Event of Disaster

Washington (AFPS)—The Senate has passed an amendment to the Constitution authorizing state governors to fill vacancies in the House of Representatives resulting from an atomic bomb attack or other major disasters.

The Senate proposal was approved by a 76 to 3 vote, far more than the required two-thirds. It provides that the governors may take such action only if the House vacancies total more than half of its authorized membership.

The amendment, introduced by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), will become part of the Constitution if passed by a two-thirds majority of the House and ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states within seven years.

As the Constitution now stands, the House is the only government body which could not be reconstituted on an emergency basis. Members of the House can only be named by voters at the polls. Senators, on the other hand, can be appointed by governors, and there is a specified line of succession to the presidency.

free classes!

Registration for tuition free evening classes given by City College of San Francisco for Fall, 1955 is slated for Tuesday and Wednesday, 6-7 September from 1900 to 2200 hours. Classes will commence Monday, 12 September. Courses in the Fall evening schedule include business, commerce, English, French, Spanish, humanities, mathematics, philosophy, painting, and other subjects. Detailed information may be obtained from the Post Education Center, bldg. 117.

World News is kept current on this TI&E board at Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA Missile Battalion. Captain Richard L. Esaacson (l. to r.) explains the Troop Information program to Specialist Donald B. Crawley and Corporal J. M. Fussel. The captain is commanding officer of the battery and also serves as TI&E officer for his unit.

Quest For Knowledge

CO Sparks TI&E Enthusiasm In Fort Baker 9th AAA Unit

Men of Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA Missile Battalion, NIKE, Continental, located at Fort Baker, are displaying a keen interest in learning. Taking advantage of the Presidio's Troop Information and Education program, these soldier-students are studying everything they can lay their hands on, from grade-school courses to college-level studies.

Responsible for the almost 100 per cent participation in the Army TI&E program within his unit is Capt. Richard L. Esaacson, battery commander, aided by his first sergeant, M/Sgt. Bernard V. Dargan.

"We have one man," Capt. Esaacson said, "who really became enthusiastic. He finished his eighth grade education right here in Headquarters Battery. Now he's working on his high school education. He even uses his three-day passes for boning up on his studies for his exams toward a high school diploma."

Capt. Esaacson, a man of many responsibilities, finds time to supervise personally the layout of the Battery's attractive TI&E display center. Located in the outfit's spacious day room, the display center is a near-perfect example of a TI&E board.

Troop Information and Education plays an important part in the daily lives of the men of this isolated unit. Current events items are clipped from newspapers and magazines every morning by both Capt. Esaacson and M/Sgt. Dargan. The clippings are placed on a board below a world map in the middle of the display center.

At one end of the TI&E board is a complete list of courses offered through the Army Education Center, operated by the Presidio's TI&E Division. This list is neatly labeled by the clever use of cardboard covers arranged in ladder fashion from grammar school subjects on up to college courses.

The presentation of the troop information topics by Headquarters Battery TI&E personnel is acclaimed by the men. The employment of audio-visual materials by the TI&E officer and NCO's to keep interest alive while conducting the weekly TI hour has paid off in this outfit.

The TI&E attendance roster of Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA, reads like a morning report. All EM for duty attend—and participate.

attache jobs

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has published a list of 49 anticipated vacancies for military attaches with the ranks of captain through colonel.

Details of the vacancies, including language requirements and tentative dates for the start of training for the assignments, are contained in Army Circular 611-4.

Among the countries to which new attaches may be assigned are Czechoslovakia, India, Iraq, Pakistan, Poland and Russia.

Summer Training!

Machine Records Reservists Exposed To Latest Methods During Stint Here

A two-weeks' brushing up on the latest Army machine records techniques is the current job of two California reserve units training with the Sixth Army Adjutant General's machine records division.

Like other Army reserve units the 335th MRU from San Francisco and the 338th from Los Angeles, hold 48 evening drills each year and then take their classroom lessons into the field each summer for a two-week period of actual field training.

The reservists on-the-job training here is in full swing at building M-11, the year-round home of the 56th and 102nd MRU, which is helping to give the reservists a practical, clear-cut idea of its operations.

The mission of a machine records unit is basically to collect, audit and maintain personnel, organizational and equipment data from personnel sections, administrative centers and units, both active and reserve, and to furnish timely administrative information which is required by the Department of the Army and local commands.

As reserve units go, both of the two MRU organizations training here are small and compact.

The 335th, commanded by Capt. Harold F. Gannon is composed of five officers and seven enlisted reserve personnel, and the 338th, commanded by 1st Lt. Robert I. Evans, is composed of one officer and three enlisted personnel.

High Rated performance of duty for the period of 31 January, 1954 to 19 June, 1955, resulted in the award recently presented to Mrs. Ethel Lauret, of Sixth Army Transportation by Colonel Calvin L. Whittle, Sixth Army Transportation officer.

Automation! This automatic card sorting machine is old hat to this group of Machine Records personnel from two California Reserve units. Here, M/Sgt. Merle E. Brown (left) of the Presidio's 53th MRU discusses some of the technical points of the sorting machine with (l. to r.) Sfc. Dorothy Nichols, 335th MRU; Sgt. Morton Davis, 338th MRU and Sgt. Richard Kennedy, 335th MRU. Both reserve units are currently in the midst of two weeks summer training here.

Honor Guard Third Anniversary!

International Relations

"Big Four" Geneva Conference To Be Next TIC Topic Here

The Geneva Conference, the first meeting of the "Big Four" since the conference at Potsdam ten years ago, will be discussed in the next Troop Information Conference.

Factors leading up to the conference will be highlighted in order to make clear the understanding of the full significance of the Geneva Conference.

Since Sir Winston Churchill, former Prime Minister of England, two years ago suggested a meeting of the "Big Four," tension has mounted, then subsided in Europe and the Far East between Communism and Western Democracy.

Russia's recent action in Yugoslavia and the abrupt ending of the impasse in Austria could be interpreted as an indication of her willingness to cooperate with the Western powers, although Western leaders eye this with suspicion.

The West did not go into Geneva with the expectation of solving all the problems which have caused world tension in the past ten years. In the words of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, " * * * this is designed to be not an end—but a beginning. It (the Conference) is designed to open up new paths, new ways, in which to solve some of these problems."

Representatives to the Geneva meeting were President Eisenhower, and Secretary of State Dulles from the United States, Prime Minister Anthony Eden and Foreign Secretary Macmillan from Great Britain, and Premier Faure, and Minister of Foreign Affairs Piney of France.

From Russia were Premier Bulganin, Foreign Minister Molotov, Nikita Khrushchev, and Marshall Zhukov.

In President Eisenhower's report to the nation on the Conference, he said, " * * * each side assured the other earnestly and often that it intended to pursue a new spirit of conciliation and cooperation in its contacts with the others."

Cake Cutting Ceremonies

were part of the salute to the Honor Guard's third anniversary observance of Organization day on Tuesday. Here, Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, prepares to cut the anniversary cake for Honor Guard members and guests who gathered for dinner following ceremonies in front of the company building at Fort Scott. Others pictured are (l. to r.), Cpl. Manual Echon, first cook and baker of the cake, and Captain Eugene J. Gasior, commanding officer of the Honor Guard. (Army photos by Pvt. Staknis)

Honor Guard Holds 3rd Anniversary Observance; Reviews Unit's History

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

Guests who attended the third anniversary observance of Organization day, by Company A, Honor Guard on Tuesday, were treated to a display of precision drilling by their drill team, "The Presidians," and a dinner complete with birthday cake.

Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, was on hand to cut the cake and offer greetings to the Honor Guard, as was Colonel Charles N. Hunter, deputy chief of staff, administration and management, who represented the Sixth Army commander, Lieutenant General Robert N. Young.

Also present among the invited guests was a former commanding officer of the Honor Guard, Major (then Captain) Chester B. Searls, who lighted the birthday cake candles.

Captain Eugene J. Gasior, present commanding officer, speaking in assembly to his men prior to the public ceremony, stated, "the efficient manner in which each of you has performed indicates a state of perfection and outstanding performance of duty which is in keeping with the highest traditions and standards of the Army."

In addition to "The Presidians" drill demonstration, the outdoor ceremony included presentation of the colors and a three-volley salute by members of the firing squad.

Surprise demonstration was staged by a group of Filipino Boy Scouts, quartered temporarily at Fort Scott on their way to the International Scout meet in Canada. Their leader expressed his thanks for the many courtesies accorded them during their stay here and the Scouts joined him in a yell complimenting the Sixth Army Headquarters.

The Honor Guard, which was organized on the Presidio on 2 August 1952, was established along the lines of an Infantry regiment rifle company and was designated as Detachment A, Station Complement. It consisted of a company headquarters and four rifle platoons. Captain Malcolm E. MacDonald, West Point graduate, class of 1946, was named its first commanding officer.

On 8 September of that year, Major James A. Pendergrast was named commanding officer for a two-month period for purposes of preparing the detachment for its formal presentation to the Sixth Army commander, a ceremony held on 30 October.

Captain MacDonald then resumed command and when he was ordered to further duty on 18 November 1953, Major (then Captain) Chester B. Searls, Korean veteran, was named to succeed him.

Captain Gasior, the present commanding officer, West Point, class of 1945, assumed command on 26 August 1954.

On 1 March of this year, the detachment was reorganized as Company A, Detachment 1, 6002 SU, and on 3 May, strength was reduced to a company headquarters and three rifle platoons.

Mission of the Honor Guard has remained primarily the same throughout its career, being that of tactical security of Army Headquarters, riot control, training parades and ceremonies and other functions such as burial details, which require Guard presentations.

It is likewise called upon to give appropriate salutes and honors to visiting dignitaries upon their arrival at Sixth Army Headquarters. It provides the color guard as well as the color company at all parades held on the Presidio, and in addition travels to perform at numerous parades and functions throughout California. Its trophy case, lined with dozens of distinctive awards, speaks legions for the performance of the men of the Honor Guard.

Part of the Honor Guard's distinctiveness lies in the prescribed uniform in which the olive drab is supplemented by white scarves, white aiguillette and a white web pistol belt complete with large brass buckle on which is affixed the unit insignia—a shield-shaped company crest with gold and red border on which is embossed a knight's helmet of red and gold on a white background. In parade functions, the guidon bearer carries a white guidon bearing this unit insignia.

The insignia is also worn on

the shoulder loops of the jackets and on the left sleeve is the crest, a scroll with the words "Honor Guard," in red, embroidered on a white background.

Among the personnel responsible for the Honor Guard in addition to its commanding officer, are First Lt. Monroe G. Thomas, executive officer, First Lt. Joseph N. Jagers, Jr., training officer; First Lt. Robert A. Liday, First Lt. George Burt and First Lt. Richard S. Peterson, platoon leaders; M/Sgt. George S. Van Kirk, first sergeant, and Sfc. Henry L. Carpenter, field first sergeant.

There are three men still with the Guard who were members of the group at the time of its organization. These include Sfc. Felipe Tabera, Sfc. Gordon L. Proffitt and Sfc. Henry L. Carpenter.

Mess personnel who were responsible for the Organization day dinner in addition to Sgt. Barron and Cpl. Echon, include Cpl. James Calloway, Cpl. James Hanna, Pfc. Darrold Davis, Pvt. Donald Faciano and Pvt. Solomon Dominguez.

Reserve Plan

The main provision of the new act states that all men who enlist or are drafted after the reserve plan is enacted will have a six-year military obligation. A total of five years must be spent on active duty and in the ready reserves. The final year would be spent in a non-training unit.

Ready reservists will be required to participate in 48 scheduled drills or training periods and not more than 17 days of active duty training yearly. As an alternative they could spend a maximum of 30 days on active duty during each year of their ready reserve obligation.

Other key provisions of the Act authorize the President to:

Call as many as 1,000,000 ready reservists to active duty in an emergency without congressional approval.

Permit annually up to 250,000 men under 18 and one-half years of age to enlist in any of the services for eight years. This would include six months on active duty and seven and one-half years in the ready reserve.

bay cruise

A cruise on San Francisco Bay topped off by a spaghetti dinner is being held Sunday for interested military personnel, sponsored by the NCCS-USO, 70 Oak Street. Servicemen and junior hostesses will gather at the club at 1400 and the charge for both the cruise and the dinner will be $1.75 a person. Reservations are to be made by calling HE 1-1575.

cinema previews

"SOLDIER OF FORTUNE." Set against the flaming background of tension-ridden Hong Kong, this is a story of an American in exile who has learned to plunder and profit, by smuggling munitions to the Chinese Reds.

"THE SHRIKE." A Pulitzer prize play, this is the story of a wife who all but destroys her husband through her over-possessiveness.

"THE SCARLET COAT." Dramatized version of one of history's most treacherous plots, that of traitor Benedict Arnold.

"THE NIGHT HOLDS TERROR." Three killers invade the home of a young American family and transform it into a house of horror.

"THE GUN THAT WON THE WEST." Another good 'ole rootin'-tootin' shoot-'em-up western complete with Indians, guns, arrows and final victory for the pioneers.

19 Boy Scouts of Presidio Earn 62 Camp Merit Badges

Some 19 young men of Presidio Boy Scout Troop No. 77 returned this week, tanned, elated and with an amassed earning of 62 merit badges, all results in their two weeks of summer camp at Camp Royaneh, 85 miles north of San Francisco and adjacent to the Redwood empire.

The group, in charge of Pfc. Jack L. Winitzer, scoutmaster, included Lester W. Krause, Sidney Glover, Michael Baum, John Kemble, James Psaki, Peter Jegers, Michael Kitchen, Tom Coddington, Michael Dickey, Earl Pegram, David Parsell, James Werfs, James Miller, Dean Phelan, James Hicks, Douglas Campbell, Blair Blacker, James Caldwell and John Depenbrock.

Six of these young men completed the requirements necessary to become First Class Scouts, and three of them, Peter Jegers, Sidney Glover and Lester Krause, were elected to candidacy for membership in the Order of the Arrow, the National Brotherhood of Scout Honor Campers.

Good Neighbors!

30th Engineer Group Hosts Visiting Philippine Boy Scouts

An unusual chance to spread good will came to the 30th Engineer Group this week when the Group hosted 21 Philippine Boy Scouts who stopped here on their way to the 8th World Scout Jamboree at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario, Canada, 18 through 28 August.

The 21 members of the Boy Scouts of the Philippine Islands arrived in the United States last Friday aboard the steamship General Cleveland. The ship docked at pier 50 in San Francisco after what the Scouts said was an enjoyable 4,000 mile trip.

The Scouts were taken from pier 50 in an Army bus furnished by the 30th Engineer Group Motor Pool to Hq. Det. 660th Engineer Battalion, Fort Scott, where they were quartered during the one week they visited California.

During their stay with the 30th Engineers they had their meals in the 21st Engineer Company (Base Photomapping) mess hall.

Monday, a luncheon was served for the 21 Philippine Scouts at the Asian Foundation, 555 Post St., San Francisco. Major Richard G. Bohn, 30th Engineer Group's Executive Officer represented the Group Commanding Officer, Colonel Wayne E. Downing, at the luncheon. Others present were Harry H. Pierson, acting Director of the Asia Foundation; Christopher C. Eberts, Consul General of Canada; Oscar C. Alverson, San Francisco Scout Executive; Mrs. Clare Decker and Mrs. Joan Phelan.

At another special luncheon on Tuesday, held at the 21st Engineer Company's mess hall, Colonel Willet Ware, Jr., Committee Chairman for the Boy Scouts on the Presidio welcomed the Philippine Boy Scouts.

Other activities and programs for the visiting scouts included a sight seeing tour of San Francisco and a meeting of the Philippine Scouts and the Scouts of BSA Troop 178. The inter troop meeting was conducted by the troop scout master Pfc. Charles Holliday.

Nightly Campfire was part of the festivities in which the boys from Presidio Boy Scout Troop No. 77 took part during their two weeks' summer camp trip from which they have just returned. Here they are enjoying story time and one of their group is busily engaged in popping popcorn. The group was under the supervision of their Scoutmaster, Pfc. Jack L. Winitzer, during their two-week jaunt.

Softball Squad Rolls On With Three For Three

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Smashing out three victories in three starts the Post Red Raider Softball nine roared on this week seeking new prey. The red-hot diamond crew beat Parks AFB, Letterman AH and a topnotch civilian squad in preparation for the Bay Area Armed Forces Softball Tournament which begins on the 15th at Oakland Army Base for a four-day stand.

Overcoming a one run deficit in the bottom of the fifth inning, the Red Raider softball squad defeated the Parks Air Force Base Blue Devils 5 to 3 for their 12th non-league win of the season.

The Post team gathered but four singles from opposing hurler Lear but they were all delivered with runners in scoring position.

The Raiders jumped off to a two run lead in the bottom of the first, which held up 'till the third when the Blue Devils pushed across three runs to take a one run lead.

The bottom fell out for the Parks crew in the bottom of the fifth when the local softballers tallied three times for a two run lead they never relinquished.

Bob Ertel and Roger Kindy shared mound duties for the Presidio squad, limiting the visiting team to four hits. The strong showing of newly assigned Kindy adds another formidable chucker to the Post mound staff.

Third sacker Bob Moran paced the defensive play by taking part in two double plays. Moran came up with the fielding gem of the game in the first inning when he charged in from his third base position to catch an attempted sacrifice bunt. He then rifled a throw to first sacker Whitfield to double the runner off first base for the twin killing.

In their second meeting of the year, the Red Raider softball aces again defeated the Letterman Army Hospital Lions 11 to 3. Jim Marlor started on the hill for the locals but had to be relieved in the third by Ed Johnson who kept the Lions well in check for the remainder of the game.

Letterman had gone ahead by a close two to one score by the end of the third inning when big Ed Tycenski powered a line-drive home run over the left fielder's head with a mate aboard to send the Presidio out in front to stay.

Tycenski is currently leading the local batting attack with a mark of around 500 per cent. Second sacker Ken Bush had three singles for his four turns at the plate to walk off with the hitting honors for the seven inning contest.

Playing in their third night game of the season, the Red Raiders defeated a class A civilian team, the C & H Upholstery squad, by the count of 8 to 5.

The contest was terminated at the end of the sixth inning due to an imposed curfew because of the late starting time.

Scoring four runs on four hits in the top of the third inning, the Post team was never headed thereafter. Ed Tycenski provided the big blow of the inning when he propelled a booming drive to deep center-field for his second homer of the season.

Bob Moran and Roger Kindy also sparked the batting with a pair of hits each. Hurler Ed Johnson struck out six and walked six in recording his fifth win of the season.

Solid action awaits the softball stars as the Sixth Army Central Division playoffs begin 9-12 August at the Oakland Army Base. Teams participating include the defending champion Fort Ord Warriors, Fort Lewis and other top Army teams.

The winner goes to the All-Sixth Army tournament at Dugway, Utah. The All-Army Tourney is to be at Fort Dix, N. J., 5-10 September.

Fourth Army Takes All-Army Swim Title

Wayne Moore of Camp Chaffee, Ark., captured three first places in the 1955 All-Army Swimming and Diving Championships at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Moore took first in the two hundred, four hundred and eight hundred meter freestyle races. Moore came in second in the one hundred meter freestyle event, only four-tenths of a second behind Nick Karpinchit of Fort Campbell, who placed first with a time of 59.7.

Best race of the tournament was the one hundred meter freestyle which Karpinchit won by two-tenths of a second ahead of Moore and Cole (Two Rock Ranch). Finishing fourth was the Presidio's Norm Van Herzen, just three-tenths of a second behind the winner. The two hundred meter freestyle went to Moore with Pete Cole second, Pete Van Disk third and Norm Van Herzen fourth.

Lt. Betty Mullen, who swims for the Military District of Washington, took first place in all four women's events. She captured first places in the one hundred meter freestyle, the two meter backstroke, the two hundred meter breaststroke and the four hundred meter individual medley.

Peggy Harris of the Presidio took second place in the women's one hundred meter freestyle and Betty Cope, also of the Presidio, a second in the two hundred meter breaststroke.

Lt. Bob Clotworthy, 1952 Olympic diver formerly of Ohio State, took an easy victory in the open diving contest. This was the second year that Clotworthy, who dives for the First Army, has won the All-Army crown.

Following are unofficial tabulations of team scoring. No team award was made because all the teams did not enter all the events.

1. Third Army	95 points
2. Fourth Army	62 points
3. First Army	51 points
4. Sixth Army	34 points
5. Fifth Army	24 points
6. Second Army	15 points
7. Alaska	14 points
8. AFCE	11 points
9. (Tie) Hawaii	9 points

Hole-In-One Test Here, $$ to AER

The 1955 Presidio Hole-in-One tournament will run for three days, instead of the regular one day stand this year, the Post Sports Office announced this week.

All military personnel, their dependents and both civilian men and women working at the Presidio are eligible to enter the tourney. Four trophies will be given to the winners in each of the above divisions.

The scene will be the first hole of the Presidio Pitch and Putt Course and the tourney starts at 1100 to 1300 hours on the 11th and 12th of August. On the 13th, Saturday, the time will be from 1100 to 1400 hours.

The cost will be fifty cents for each of three balls played with no limit as to the number of sets of balls for any one person.

All proceeds go to the Army Emergency Relief-Army Relief Society Fund. These organizations are supported through voluntary contributions from members of the United States Army. Both organizations exclusively serve the members of the Army and their dependents.

rams roll

Quarterbacks Norm Van Brocklin and Bill Wade tossed three touchdown passes to lead the Los Angeles Rams to an overwhelming 44-17 win over the Fort Ord Warriors.

A crowd of 10,333 watched the contest at the Long Beach, California, stadium.

On the opening play, Van Brocklin uncorked a 62-yard scoring toss to Skeet Quinlan. Wade, in the second period, nailed Quinlan for 61 yards and Woodley Lewis for 32, each for a touchdown.

The Rams amassed 464 yards, 261 in the air and 203 aground. Fort Ord was held to a net of 186 yards.

MRU Tops Eastern Roll, Bryant and Mulesky Tops

The Eastern Summer League rolled to a halt this week with the MRU crew coming out on top with a 46 win-14 loss slate. Just behind them came the Hilltoppers, No. 6, with a 41-19 record.

Bryant and Mulesky tied for the top average, both emerging with 174. The former edged out in total pins with 7845 to Mulesky's 3655 pins split. Third place went to Rigney with a 168 average and the fourth spot to Palomares with 148.

The Sixth Army Signal pin-splitters shot ahead of the pack to lead the standing in the Pacific Bowling League for the week with their 4-0 forfeit win over the 561st Engineers.

Top Signal kegster was Adair who rolled a 212 single to bring his year's average up to 172. Right on his heels is Morgan with a 232 single high game for a 159 average.

The second place Company B MP's drew a bye in regular play but split with the first place Signal crew in the week's only make-up contest. Dealey led the police with a 188 high and a 497 net in the evenly played two-two tie.

The Keystone Kops continued in third place with a 4 to 0 forfeit win over the Hilltoppers two rollers. Head Kop of the evening was Johnson with a 540 net and a 215 single high.

High individual score for the league this week went to Thorne of the Keystone Kops (242). High individual series was taken by Dickey (596).

Over in the National League, the Asps retained their narrow lead on the top rung with a 24.5-11.5 win, loss slate. Breathing right down their backs are the Flashers with a 23-13 record.

Johnson of the Flashers rolled the high game of the week with a smashing 234. Just one pin behind was teammate Goodnight with a 233. High average of the week fell to Hoffacker of the King Pins (184) followed by Owens of the Hooks (177).

The CMD kegsters rolled on to lead the Mixed Bowling League again this week sporting a 667 percentage. Right on their heels are the Lofters with a 639 percentage.

Men's high game of the week went to Hiel for a smashing 259. Regan walked off with the high series—577, high average to Okley with 172.

Matossian sparked women's play with a 184 high, followed by Youngdahl with 448 for high series and 139 for high average.

Vickery Out In All-Army Net Scrap

Court action goes into the final day of play today in the All-Army Tennis Tournament at Fort Meade, Maryland.

Pfc. Wally Vickery, last year's Sixth Army champion from Fort Ord, got off to a fast start by blasting Lt. Ed Bennett, First Army, 6-1, 6-0. However on the second day Vickery lost to Steve Potts, MDW, 7-5, 6-2. Specialist-two Bill Montgomery, Sixth Army, dropped a close 7-5, 6-4 loss to Ken Wagstaff, Third Army.

Feature match of second round play was between SP3 Grant Golden representing Eighth Army and Pvt. Don Flye of USAREUR in which SP3 Golden defeated Flye 6-4, 7-5.

The Sixth Army team of Vickery and Montgomery beat the Fifth Army pair of Eyck and Magerdeur in a three set thriller 2-6, 6-2, 6-1. Catton and Self, Sixth Army, won over the Eighth Army team of Shibley and Contapay 6-4, 6-3. Lt. Jewell Allen of the Sixth Army edged by Lt. Mary Just, 6-0, 6-3, in the opening match of the women's division.

In team play, the Third Army rolled up 11 points to lead the field at the end of two days' play. Right behind with nine tallies is the Eighth Army team. Sixth Army holds down the third slot with seven points won so far. USAREUR and the Military District of Washington are currently tied for fourth with six points apiece. Fourth Army and Army Pacific tied for fifth place with five points each. With four points apiece, Second Army and the Fifth Army come next in order. First Army with two points rests in seventh place and Army Caribbean with no points so far rests on the bottom.

DICK SHANNON of Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, is one of the sparkplugs on this year's championship post baseball squad. Hailing from Watertown, Mass., the young slugger is currently belting the apple at a brisk .330 clip.

Herb Rhodes Takes Fifth In Sabre Tilt

Letterman Army Hospital's Herb Rhodes, after two days of solid sabre fencing won fifth place in the recent Halberstadt Sabre championships, July 30-31, here in San Francisco.

Rhodes dropped only one bout in the qualifying rounds and but three bouts in the finals to win his silver medal. Awards were given to the first six places due to the nature of the competition, which is twice as long as a regular sabre competition.

In regular sabre competition the first five out of nine touches by one of the two contestants wins the bout—however in this competition the scoring is the winning of an excess margin of two touches after one or the other opponent passes the ten touch mark.

First place in the tournament was won by Danny De Lao, Pacific Coast Fencing Champion, after a fence-off from a four-way tie. Other entries were Col. Laurance Brownlee, SP 3, Jose Tafuya, Mr. George Kester of Letterman Army Hospital, and Brookner Brady, son of Col. B. W. Brady, of Sixth Army Headquarters.

Wac's Prepare For Top Clash With Parks!

The Presidio WAC Softball squad enjoyed a week of rest this week in preparation for their impending clash next Monday evening with the Parks Air Force Base nine.

The contest is a re-play of an earlier loss by the locals that was successfully protested and will be played here at 1700 hours on the Fort Scott diamond.

If the local girls win the struggle, the Women's Softball league will be thrown into a three way tie for first place between Hamilton AFB, Parks and the Presidio. If this occurs a play-off will be arranged to determine the winner of the 1955 Bay Area Armed Forces League.

On August 22, the Presidio plays host to the All-Sixth Army Women's Softball Tournament. The five day tourney is being held at the Presidio as the local girls are the defending champions for the Sixth Army. Teams from Army installations from Washington to Arizona will be represented in the double-elimination tournament.

Tom Ward Still Ahead In Army Golf

The All-Army Golf Tournament went into its third day of play over the par 72 course at Fort George Meade, Md.

In Senior Division play, Lt. Col. Tom Ward from Presidio won over M/Sgt. Peter Lee of Fourth Army, three up and one to go. Lt. Col. James Hungate of Fort Lawton lost to Co. R. Chord, Second Army, two up at the end of 17 holes.

Sixth Army divot stars were paced by the Fort Ord pair of Sfc. Joe Torres and Pfc. Dick Runkle with two over par 74's. One stroke back was Pvt. Ed Myerson from Fort Lewis who was in for a 75. At 82 was Fort Ord's Pfc. Bob McCallister, the Sixth Army champion.

For the Women's Division, Lt. Swab of Sixth Army lost to Capt. Amizich of Fourth Army nine up on the 11th hole. Capt. Carlson of Second Army defeated Sfc. McNiel, Sixth Army, seven up on the 13th hole.

Pfc. Richard E. Goerlich of Fourth Army shot a three under par 69 to lead all golfers at the end of two days of play. Three players were grouped together with one under par, 71's. First was Sp3 Bill Williamson of Third Army, from Second Army Pfc. Dan Sikes, and Cpl. Gay Brewer represented USARAL.

Raiders Drop Doubleheader To Beale AFB

The league champion Red Raiders suffered a brief let-down last week-end as they dropped a Saturday-Sunday doubleheader to the Beale Air Force Base nine, 6 to 4 and 7 to 3.

The opening game saw ace chucker Roger Collins suffer one of his few defeats of the current season as the Beale crew made six hits count for six runs. The Post team got off to a three run lead by the end of the third, featuring Miyahara's round tripper in the first inning with teammate Jackson aboard.

Beale came right back in the top of the third with four big runs on two hits to take a one run lead. In the bottom of the third, hustling Rex Willis was safe on an error and was driven in by Shelstad's sharp single to left center. However, Beale added two more runs in the eighth to clinch the win for their pitching star, Stan Baker.

Behind the six hit chucking of Beale's Dick Rentzel the locals dropped the second game 7 to 3. Bob Poole went to the hill for the Presidio and gave up ten hits to suffer his fourth loss of the year.

Late this week the hardballers journeyed to Ukiah, California, to engage the local semi-pro team, with results appearing in next week's Star-Presidian. The All-Sixth Army tournament will be held at Fort Lewis, Washington, from the sixth to the tenth of September. The winner goes to the All-Army tournament at Fort Belvoir, Va., 19-24 September, representing Sixth Army.

Outfielder Edward Lavin, who was recently discharged from the Army at Ft. Dix, N. J., has been signed by the Washington Senators and is currently playing for Fulton (Ky.) in the Class D Kitty League.

LEAGUE LEADING Giants shown just prior to their four to three win over the third place Cardinals Tuesday night. The combination of pitcher Earl Stewart and catcher Jim Doerner proved very effective as the Giants extended their record to 5-0. Doerner's triple

Army Chief of Staff Praises Successful Gyroscope Air Lift

General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, placed sharp emphasis on the interdependence of land and air power in a special message lauding the recent Gyroscope air lift.

General Taylor stated: "The successful completion of the Tactical Air Lift of the 508th and 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Teams reflects great credit upon all concerned in this phase of Operation Gyroscope.

"The movement by air of 7,000 troops across nearly 10,000 miles of land and sea," he said, "demonstrates the interdependence of land and air power, and the high degree of mobility which Army combat units are capable of achieving."

"The splendid support rendered by the United States Air Force," General Taylor said, "demonstrates the inter-service teamwork and cooperation which global mobility requires."

General Taylor elaborated, "Our Army seeks an ever-increasing combat effectiveness. Operation Gyroscope, by enhancing the morale and esprit de corps of our combat units contributes greatly in this regard. The detailed plans prepared by the staffs at all echelons of the Army for such large scale unit developments and the implementation of these plans by the participating units provide realistic training for similar troop movements if Army units are called upon for commitment in any part of the globe."

General Taylor pointed out "Our Army's world-wide commitments and responsibilities emphasize the importance of mobility. Our combat units at home and abroad maintain the highest degree of combat readiness and must be prepared to move into action on short notice. The advent of atomic weapons places a premium upon the Army's ability to concentrate from dispersed positions."

"Mobility on the battlefield and mobility in moving to the battlefield," said the Army's chief of staff, "are equally important. As an exercise in rapid and large scale troop movements, the Pacific air lift has been a valuable tactical exercise. The Airborne troops participating in the Pacific troop lifts have reflected great credit upon the United States Army."

In closing his message, General Taylor congratulated the planning staffs and the participating units for "a job well done."

Job Well Done! An outstanding performance rating was presented to Mrs. Mary A. Wentworth recently by Maj. George A. Leonard, assistant area veterinarian, in recognition of her work in the veterinarian section of the post.

Businessman Urges Civil Understanding Of Army Objectives

A California business executive, Mr. Rilea W. Doe, called for deeper understanding of Army methods and goals by civilians at a dinner meeting of the Northern California chapter of the Quartermaster Association at the Presidio Officers' Club recently.

In 1954, Mr. Doe participated in the Joint Conference sponsored by the Department of Defense. A vice-president of Safeway Stores, Incorporated, he was briefed on Department of Defense policies in Washington, D.C., and, with civilian leaders selected from other parts of the nation, toured military and naval installations throughout the country.

In his address entitled "Is It Worth Defending?" Mr. Doe praised the administration for reducing the budget but pointed out the need for continued heavy investment in the nation's defense.

He said: "If we are to be safe, we must spend dollars—millions of them—but in the final analysis, if we are to lose only money but by that loss be granted the blessings of safety at home, then the dollar loss becomes trivial."

doctors' pay

A bill to extend the present law which provides physicians, dentists and veterinarians in the Armed Forces with an additional $100 monthly above their regular pay is now under consideration by the Senate Armed Services Committee. The present law expires 30 June. The action to extend it was introduced by Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Under the legislation's provisions, the extra pay would not be computed in figuring disability, retirement or severance pay. It also excludes interns from eligibility for the payments.

President Believes October Conference Will Be Acid Test

Washington (AFPS)—In his report to the nation on the results of the "Big Four" conference, President Eisenhower said he knew the "people of the world want peace" and urged everyone to "keep alive the spark ignited at Geneva."

He declared that the U.S. "will go to any length," consistent with its principles, to co-operate with the Soviet Union and any other people in maintaining peace.

Referring to the Soviet intentions, the President said the "acid test" will come in October. At that time the foreign ministers of the "Big Four" will meet at Geneva to iron out problems handed over to them as a result of the meeting at the summit.

The foreign ministers will tackle problems dealing with the re-unification of Germany, European security, disarmament and the spread of contacts between the East and West.

Although the President did not specify that the "cold war" had come to an end as a result of the "Big Four" conference, he did suggest that this bleak struggle, if by no means concluded, had been eased and made more bearable.

The President's speech assured the American people that there were no secret agreements made at Geneva, "understood or written."

"Everything is put before you on the record," he told his vast radio and television audience.

The President stressed the fact that long and exhaustive work lies ahead before the groundwork of the Geneva conference can be developed into a situation in which a secure and just peace can be assured.

Visits Here! Chief of Exchange Services Pleased With Presidio's Streamlined Facilities

Visiting the Presidio this week, Major General H. L. Peckham, Chief of Army and Air Force Services, toured the new Bay Area Exchange. On his tour he commented on the modern and efficient layout of the exchange, and the attractive contemporary modern architectural style of the building.

While visiting the Presidio, the Army and Air Force Exchange Services Chief conferred with Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commanding general.

Accompanying General Peckham on his tour of the Presidio was Brigadier General E. B. Gallant, Deputy Chief of Army and Air Force Services. Both General Peckham's and General Gallant's offices are in New York.

Touring the new Presidio Bay Area Exchange, General Peckham commented on the display arranged by the Exchange to commemorate the 60th anniversary of the Exchange.

Presidio's new Bay Area Exchange was completed this spring and more than $50,000 in modern, functionally designed showcases were installed. Landscaping was effected to carry out the general landscape pattern of the Presidio.

In all merchandise lines, mostly nationally - advertised items are stocked at prices commensurate to the soldier's income.

Army to Confine Lengthy Courses To Regular EM

Washington (AFPS)—Only regular Army enlisted personnel are eligible to attend school courses of 16 weeks or more, the Army has ordered.

The Army specified that time-in-service requirements for all EM attending such courses will be strictly complied with.

Enlistments, extensions of enlistments and re-enlistments to qualify for time-remaining-in-service requirements will be accomplished prior to entry into classes.

The only exception to the restriction on long-term schooling for non-RA personnel is for specialists with previous training or experience in the field.

Commandants of Army service schools were directed to consider carefully the possibility of waiving requirements for RA enlisted personnel who do not meet course prerequisites. It was emphasized, however, that the prerequisites themselves are not to be lowered.

Commandants also were asked to supervise closely the dismissal of RA personnel and to give them additional instruction whenever possible, if they think it will enable the students to complete courses successfully.

retired officers

The President of the Retired Officers' Association, Lt. General Willard S. Paul, USA (Ret.), will speak on matters concerning retired officers, their dependents and survivors at Harmon Armory tonight at 2000 hours. Officers of all of the armed forces, members of the Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service and their guests are invited to attend.

Age Limits Lifted On Civil Service; Late Filing Extended

The Civil Service Commission has lifted age restrictions on civil service positions.

A recent congressional measure prohibits establishment of maximum age limitations for any position in the competitive service in 1956.

Individuals without civil service status, who, because of age requirements, were unable to use a "late-filing" ticket for reopening a closed examination now have until 31 Aug. to do so.

Colonel Arthur Bivins Named Sixth Army Quartermaster

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, has announced the assignment of Colonel Arthur L. Bivins as Sixth Army Quartermaster. Colonel Bivins comes to his new assignment from Washington, D. C., where he has been serving for the past year as chief of Procurement Division, Office of the Quartermaster General. He succeeds Colonel Louis G. Bumen, who has been reassigned to the Quartermaster Depot at Nahnollenbach, Germany.

Colonel Bivins was born in Oklahoma in 1907. He graduated from the University of California in 1933 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration.

Commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Organized Reserve Corps in May of 1933, he went on active duty in July of 1940, serving with the 7th Quartermaster Battalion, 7th Infantry Division. In December, 1941, he was assigned to the Quartermaster Staff, GHQ, in Washington and later to Headquarters Army Ground Forces.

In 1944 he was assigned as Division Quartermaster with Headquarters, 75th Infantry Division, in the European Theater of Operations. He participated in the Ardennes, Rhineland, and Central Europe campaigns.

Immediately following World War II, he served in the Office of Chief of Staff, Office Military Government U. S., as Deputy Director of Administration in Berlin, Germany, until 1947. Upon his return to the United States he was assigned to the Chicago Quartermaster Procurement Office and became Commanding Officer of the Western Branch, Chicago QMPO, Oakland, California, in 1947.

After attending the Army Language School in 1949, he became Chief of the Quartermaster Unit of the United States Army Section of the Joint Brazil-United States Military Commission in Rio de Janeiro. He returned to the United States in 1952 and assumed command of Headquarters, Quartermaster Market Center System, Chicago, until 1954 when he became Chief of the Procurement Division, Office of Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C.

He has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Ribbon, American Theater Ribbon, World War II Victory Medal, American Defense Service Medal, Army of Occupation Medal — Germany, and the European-African-Middle Eastern Campaign Medal.

Colonel Bivins and wife Dorothy, along with sons Standley, 16, and Rodger, 14, will reside on post as soon as quarters are available.

Insurance Gyp Under Scrutiny By House Group

Washington (AFPS) — A House armed services subcommittee studying alleged improper practices in selling insurance to servicemen has launched a "comprehensive investigation" into the sale of automobile insurance on military posts in the U.S.

Meanwhile, the sub-committee has wound up hearings on life insurance selling and is writing a report which is expected to be issued shortly.

During this inquiry, the House group heard testimony from defense department officials and leading insurance executives. The witnesses explained efforts to raise ethical standards in selling insurance at U.S. military installations throughout the world.

Rudolph Walter, chairman of the DOD committee on insurance, reported that 38 life insurance agents had been banned from Army installations for improper practices. He said action against others would be forthcoming.

He also said that his committee was considering changes in existing DOD regulations involving the sale of both life and auto insurance.

new job

Brigadier General James P. Cooney has been sworn in recently as deputy Surgeon General of the Army. General Cooney succeeds Major General Silas B. Hays who is now the Army Surgeon General.

Praises for services in the Sixth Army secretariat came to M/Sgt. Albert P. St. Amand recently in the form of a letter of appreciation and a congenial handshake from Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander. The sergeant has been with Headquarters Sixth Army since December, 1954, and he is now en route to Ft. Monroe, Va., for a new assignment.

Application Open For 'Gyroscope' Airborne Duty

Procedures for applying for service with the 11th Airborne Division which is slated for Gyroscope service in Europe were announced this week by Sixth Army Headquarters.

Acceptance of applicants for enlistment or reenlistment for the 11th Airborne Division will depend upon the existence of vacancies in appropriate grade and MOS and meeting the criteria governing selection of Army personnel for Airborne training.

Current DA regulations and directives concerning procedure and processing personnel will apply in filling the 11th Airborne Division with the exception that the new Gyroscope directives will prevail where there is a difference.

Interested enlisted men are encouraged to enlist or reenlist for four or more years in order that they may receive the full benefits of assignment and rotation with the unit both to and from overseas. Three year enlistments and reenlistments will be accepted, however.

Because housing in USAREUR for 11th Airborne Division is highly limited, only officers, warrant officers and top three graders will be considered for housing.

Applicants must also volunteer to perform frequent aircraft flights, glider flights and parachute jumps and to participate in realistic combat training while securing airborne training and performing airborne duty.

Personnel interested in obtaining more detailed information concerning application for service with the 11th Airborne Division under operation Gyroscope may contact Sfc. William R. Daniels, Bldg. 220, Room 213, telephone extension 3594.

Services Support Space Satellite

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower has given American scientists the go-ahead to build a small, globe-girdling satellite to be fired from rockets into outer space.

The unmanned satellite will be about the size of a basketball and travel at a speed of 18,000 mph in a fixed path 200 to 300 miles above the earth. This means it will circle the globe approximately every 90 minutes.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has announced that Defense Department scientists will give technical assistance to the project, including launching facilities. But the project as a whole will be a civilian undertaking sponsored by the National Academy of Science and the National Science Foundation. It is part of the U.S. program for the 1957-58 International Geophysical Year.

The satellite project is not regarded as having any practical military application.

However DOD scientists have been conducting related research for a number of years and in 1949 launched the Bumper-WAC, a two-stage rocket vehicle that penetrated 250 miles into the atmosphere.

A single-stage rocket, the Viking, reached a height of 158 miles in May, 1954.

The proposed satellite could provide answers to many scientific puzzles presently impossible to investigate.

Scientists have declared that the satellite will have a life expectancy of days, possibly weeks.

Once launched by rockets into outer space, it will need no further propelling power since its initial velocity will be enough to create a temporary balance in outer space between the satellite's centrifugal force and the gravitational pull of the earth.

But, as it continues to circle, the earth's pull will gradually draw the ball closer until it finally enters denser atmosphere and disintegrates in much the same fashion as a meteor does.

The Defense Department said the military contribution to the project, strictly a supporting role to the civilian agencies, will be a joint undertaking of the Army, Navy and AF.

Vet Must Now Pay 2% Down As Home Loans Grow Tight

Washington (AFPS)—Veterans buying homes with the help of government-insured GI loans now are required to make at least a two per cent down payment.

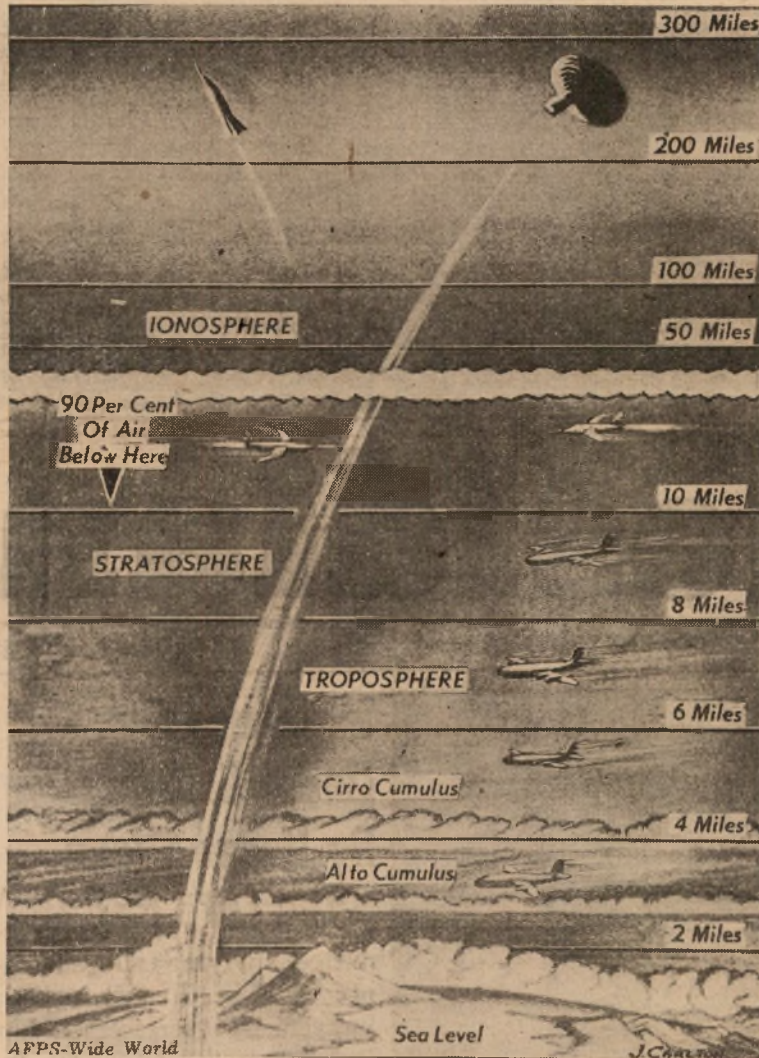

The new VA regulation aims to curb inflationary trends.

The VA also announced that the time in which a veteran can repay his government insured mortgage has been reduced from 30 to 25 years.

Since April 23, 1953, the VA has not required down payments from veterans purchasing a home. A VA spokesman said that the average price of GI homes has been about $10,500. Under the new ruling, they will have to make a down payment of $210 on such a home.

The new 25-year limit on loans does not apply to veterans who have already purchased homes.

Since the end of WWII, when home-building with the aid of GI loans went into full swing, more than 4,000,000 homes have been purchased by veterans under the program.

Satellites' Path

is shown in this artist's sketch of the journey into space which will be taken by the man-made, earth girdling spheres, plans for which were recently announced by President Eisenhower. The basketball-sized satellites, launched by rockets, would reach a height of 200 or 300 miles and then begin circling the earth at 18,000 mph. First satellite is expected to be launched in 1957 as part of the U. S. participation in the International Geophysical Year.

No Moonshine! AF Will Try Homemade Moonlight This Fall

Washington (AFPS)—The Air Force will attempt to create artificial moonlight this fall by releasing sodium vapor at a height of 60 miles above the earth.

An Aerobee rocket, to be fired sometime in October or November at Holloman AFB, N.M., will carry the vaporized metallic sodium to the ionosphere, where AF scientists believe there is a layer of sodium.

Experts hope that the man-made sodium flash will glow, at least for a while, with a brilliance comparable to that of the moon at twilight. If it does so, they say, the existence of the sodium layer will be confirmed.

The natural layer of sodium, which is believed to occur at a height of about 60 miles, is thought to come from the surface of the sea. The sodium molecules give off an orange light at dawn and twilight, when the sun's rays are at an angle to the earth's surface.

AF researchers believe that by recreating this phenomenon artificially they will be able to obtain more precise knowledge about it which might prove of value in the improvement of flight and design of aircraft.

A similar experiment was tried last winter, AF officials reported, but the results were inconclusive.

The project will be conducted by the Research and Development Command as part of the AF's basic research in the upper air. The experiment is also expected to provide information that might prove useful in launching the earth satellite recently announced by the White House.

President Eisenhower signed a bill this year giving Korean veterans until 16 July, 1956, to apply for mustering out pay.

2 Field Artillery Units With Atomic, Rocket Power Go to Far East

Washington (AFPS)—Two field artillery units equipped with two of the Army's most modern weapons, the Honest John rocket and the 280 mm atomic cannon, shortly will be assigned to the Far East, the Army has announced.

The Honest John unit, which will go to Japan, is the 5th FA Battery. It recently finished training at Fort Sill, Okla. The 633rd FA Bn., armed with the 280 mm cannon, the Army's largest artillery piece, will go to Okinawa. It trained at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The Army said that assignment of the two units to the Far East Command was "part of established U. S. policy to make available to its forces overseas the most modern developments in military weapons."

officers recently assigned

Colonel THOMAS N. SIBLEY, presently acting G-1, will shortly return to his new assignment here as executive officer, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Just graduated from the Army War college, Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, Colonel Sibley previously served as chief, plans division, G-3 Section, Headquarters Fourth Army, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for 18 months.

Graduating from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, class of 1938, the colonel is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, class of 1948, and following graduation there he remained on the staff until 1952. A year's tour with Headquarters 7th Army in Germany followed.

During World War II, Colonel Sibley was a regimental executive officer, and with the 86th Infantry division was rotated from Europe to the Philippine Islands, where he served for a two-year period.

Among the colonel's decorations are the Bronze Star Medal and the French Croix de Guerre.

Colonel and Mrs. Sibley and their three children are now residing in San Francisco.

Lt. Col. MORRIS C. STOUT has joined the staff of the USAR branch, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

A student at the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for the past 10 months, the colonel formerly served 30 months as assistant PMS & T at the University of Utah, Salt Lake City.

In the Army for the past 15 years, Colonel Stout was in Korea with the 7th Infantry from September 1950 to November 1951, and during World War II was in the ETO and Japan's occupation with the 97th Division. He has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation ribbon.

Graduate of both the Armored officer's advanced course, Fort Knox, Kentucky, and the Artillery officer's basic and advanced courses, Fort Still, Oklahoma, Colonel Stout presently resides at Presidio Park with his wife, Marilyn L., and their two children, 12-year-old James E., and seven-months-old Catherine L.

Lt. Colonel HARLEY N. MILLER, a recent graduate of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, is now with the Reserve Components Division, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Prior to school, Colonel Miller spent 30 months in the office of the G-3, the Pentagon, Washington, D. C., and was also assistant PMS&T at the University of Idaho for 30 months.

A graduate of both the Infantry officer's basic course, Fort Benning, Georgia, and the Armored school, Fort Knox, Kentucky, the colonel, during World War II, served in the ETO with the 899th T. D. Battalion, 9th Infantry Division, participating in seven major campaigns.

Member of the Army for the past 14 years, Colonel Miller has received the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart, the Belgian Fourragere, seven battle stars and one Bronze Arrowhead. He and his wife, Jeanne B., reside with their five children in Mill Valley.

Captain ANDREW H. LUEKER has just returned from the Far East, where he served in two assignments, the first in Korea for 10 months with the 425th TTRG, followed by 30 months at Osaka, Japan, with their TTRG.

His new assignment here is with the movements branch, Transportation Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Enlisting in 1942, Captain Lueker attended Transportation O.C.S. at New Orleans, and was released a first lieutenant in 1945, after having served in the South Pacific during World War II with the American Division. A member of the Reserve, he was recalled to active duty in 1951, and has attended the TC officer's course at Fort Eustis, Virginia.

The captain's decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and a Korean award, Chung Ju Distinguished Service Medal with Silver Star. His wife and their two sons, ages 10 and 8, will join him here in the near future.

Captain ORVILLE H. JONES is newly assigned to the G-2 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army.

At Garmisch, Germany, for the past three years, Captain Jones was supply officer, USAREUR Rest and Leave center.

Enlisted for a portion of his 18-year service, the captain attended O.C.S. at Camp Davis, North Carolina in 1943, was discharged as an officer in December 1945, returned to duty as a master sergeant in March 1946 and was recalled to active duty as a captain in July 1951.

During World War II, he served as platoon leader with the 271st Regiment, 69th Division in the ETO, from November 1944 to September 1945, and has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal and the Combat Infantry Badge. He and his wife and their four-and-one-half-year-old daughter are now residing here.

CWO CARL E. SABO has just returned from three years of duty with the Adjutant General section, U. S. Army, Heidelberg, Germany.

He is now with the printing control division of the publications branch, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. Enlisted for part of his 14-year service CWO Sabo received his warrant in 1949 while serving as a master sergeant.

Overseas, he served 18 months in Italy during World War II with the 88th Division, and at the outbreak of the Korean conflict, entered that country with the 5th Regimental Combat Team in July 1950, where he remained for six months.

Decorated with the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantry Badge with Star, Mr. Sabo is married and the father of three daughters, all of whom reside here with him.

First Lieutenant GENE R. MOORE has become operations officer of the 561st Engineer Company (Port Construction), Fort Baker, Presidio of San Francisco.

He has been in Korea the past 16 months, a member of KMAG, and for his service there, received the Commendation Ribbon as well as three theatre awards.

Enlisting in the Army in 1950, Lt. Moore spent two years as an enlisted man and then entered Engineer O.C.S. at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, graduating in April 1952. He then spent a year there as operations and training officer, G-3 Section.

Prior to entering the service, the lieutenant attended Chaffee Junior College, Ontario, California, for two years, and received the degree of Associate in Arts.

Hard Core Plus!

505th MP Battalion's Roster Shows 72% Career Soldiers

Combat-seasoned Regular Army personnel frequently make up the hard core of most units in today's Army, but in the Presidio's 505th MP Battalion the percentage of Regular Army personnel extends well beyond the "hard core" category.

According to latest personnel figures disclosed by Battalion Commander Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, 72 per cent of the organization's 451 enlisted men are career soldiers with 126 of the MP's having the U.S. serial number.

The battalion's 451 enlisted men and 25 officers boast a whopping total of 3,122 years of Army service, an average of 6 1/4 years' service for each MP.

While going over these figures, Colonel Saxon said that the nature of day-by-day Military Police duties is such that it is necessary to have a large number of experienced and mature soldiers who seem to have the diplomacy and know-how required for their MP jobs. He added that the experienced soldier tends to impart some of this knowledge and know-how to their younger associates, thus making a better all around performance rate for an organization as a whole.

Leading the list of career Regular Army soldiers in the 505th is M/Sgt. George Dickie who first became an American soldier at Vancouver Barracks, Wash., in 1922. He had previously served four years with the Canadian Army from 1914 to 1918.

A veteran of considerable combat service during WWII and the Korean conflict, M/Sgt. Dickie has been with the 505th since June, 1954. He has been an MP for ten years and presently is labor supervisor with post police.

Just a year behind M/Sgt. Dickie's record is M/Sgt. Seth T. Rogers, who first saw the light of a military day in August, 1925, at Detroit, Michigan. He will complete a full 30 years' service one week from today.

During WWII M/Sgt. Rogers served in Iran, Ceylon, Australia, and France. He has been an MP, or the preWWII equivalent, for nearly 16 years. With Headquarters Company since August, 1953, M/Sgt. Rogers is noncom in charge of post police operations.

Now in the midst of his 28th year in the Army, Sgt. John W. Leader of Company C signed his first enlistment papers in Oklahoma City in March, 1928. The Second World War found the sergeant in Africa, Sicily, Italy, Corsica, France, Germany, and Czechoslovakia.

In 1947 he was a member of the Army's honor guard to the UN at Paris, France. He's been an MP since 1946 and has served with Company C as a patrol supervisor since 1 July, 1954.

falling rate

Injury rate in training airborne troops continued to decline last year to .12 per cent. Of 7,150 students enrolled for airborne training, 5,586 completed the course successfully. The students made 34,882 practice jumps.

Headquarters Unit Of 30th Engineers Best Mess Winners

Holding top honors in the most recent Presidio Best Mess Competition is Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group, which beat the monthly records of 18 local mess halls.

A major obstacle which the mess staff had to overcome in order to win the contest was the additional feeding of a group of 60 reservists who were receiving on-the-job training with the 30th Engineer Group during the period of the competition.

Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander presented the units' mess steward, Sfc. James C. Heath, with the large china plate with "Monthly Best Mess Award, PSFC" painted on it.

Also present at the ceremony were Capt. William A. Moulden, the company commander, and 2nd Lt. Thomas L. Snowden, the mess officer.

The monthly best mess contest is based on food preparation, sanitation and mess hall administration. Judging the food handling and mess hall management phase of the competition was Capt. Carl E. Gardner, post food advisor and member of the food advisors' staff.

The sanitation inspection is made by a medical officer.

Mess hall personnel, in addition to the mess steward, who pooled their culinary resources to win the contest include first cooks Sp1 Ardelle C. Hasty, Sp1 Joseph O. Bailey and Pfc. Oscar D. Brown; and second cooks Sp3 Quincy Hill, Jr., Sp3 James E. Cox and Pfc. James Petrelli.

Baker Sp2 Lawrence A. Simon-eau serves also as assistant mess steward.

photo bug

Mr. George Baker, photography editor of the San Francisco "Chronicle," will be at the Presidio Service club Tuesday (23 August) to present a program on how to take that prize-winning picture. He will bring his model and lights and shutter bugs are being invited to bring their cameras, any make or model, and photograph the set-up as they see it. A word to those who wish to use color film is that it should be of the fast color variety. There will be two valuable prizes awarded to the pair who come up with the best photographs.

Army Reserve Officers Can Finish Out Term After Two Pass Overs

Washington (AFPS)—Army reserve officers who are passed over twice for promotion will be permitted to serve out their existing term categories.

The Army announced this policy because of its new extended active duty system and possible congressional action on readjustment pay legislation.

A message to all major commands instructed that reserve officers originally scheduled to be released under paragraph 5d, SR 135-175-4 would be retained on active duty.

They will not be eligible for extended active duty after their existing term categories expire, except for those who will be within two years of qualifying for retirement under present laws.

Officers twice passed over may be released from active duty before their categories expire at their request.

Dollars and more dollars pass through the capable hands of Pfc. Deryle Enright, purchasing agent for the Purchasing and Contracting Office here. He pays the bills for all petroleum, oil, and lubricant products used at the Presidio, sub-posts, and NIKI sites. The Purchasing and Contracting Office is a division of the Post S-4 section. (Army photo by Staknis.)

Presidio's Headaches

Bills On First Of The Month Mean Thousands Of Dollars To Pfc Enright

When the bills roll in on the first of the month, Pfc. Deryle Enright wades into them to pay for the Presidio's gasoline and fuel oil. The gallonage figures run into more than 300,000 gallons per month, and many thousands of dollars go through Pfc. Enright's hands to pay for it.

As purchasing agent for petroleum, oil and lubricants in the Presidio's Purchasing and Contracting Office, Pfc. Enright is officially under Post S-4. Lt. Col. Floyd W. Goates, Post S-4, has over-all supervision of the Purchasing and Contracting Office, and Capt. Robert F. Meiser is Purchasing and Contracting Officer.

Pfc. Enright's job entails delivery guarantee of petroleum, oil and lubricants to the Presidio, sub-posts, and NIKI sites. He arranges for procurement of these products and carries through in paying the bills.

Individual units place their requisitions with the Purchasing and Contracting Office, which forwards them to S-4 for approval. Upon approval of the requisitions, Pfc. Enright buys the materials.

Payment of credit card statements for gasoline, oil, parts, and repairs for vehicles is also Pfc. Enright's responsibility. He handles accounts for units in Sixth Army which have vehicles too far removed from Army installations to utilize Quartermaster and Ordnance facilities.

A native of Long Beach, California, Pfc. Enright received his Bachelor of Science degree in personnel management from UCLA in 1953. He is presently assigned to Headquarters Company, Station Complement.

When the Women's Army Corps Center at Fort McClellan, Ala., was dedicated in September, 1954, it marked the WAC's seventh home since it was established by Congress May 14, 1942. Previous homes were at Fort Des Moines, Iowa; Daytona Beach, Fla.; Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; Fort Devens, Mass.; Camp Ruston, La., and Fort Lee, Va.

Local Major Ponders Rugged Problem; Need $$ to Make Vital Soldier Loans

By M/Sgt. Merle S. Harrison
Sixth Army PIO Staff

She's loaded with dough and she lets it loose. During 1954, for example, she bent a sympathetic ear to 71 hard luck tales. These 71 men got loans and grants (two of the latter) to the tune of $11,426. During the first six months of this year she doled out nearly $5,000 to 30 more soldiers who were hurting where it hurts most.

She's Major Elsie Weible, the post funds custodian. But to the man who's down on his luck, who needs help in a hurry—cash money—she's the one to see for a loan with no interest, no service charge and no carrying fee. She's the Presidio's Army Emergency Relief Officer.

Like most everybody else, she's got a problem—a big, fat juicy financial problem. She needs dough, the long green kind. And she can't go to the Army Emergency Relief. The only place she can go is to the soldiers at the Presidio. Here's her hard luck story:

During 1956 at least 100 soldiers at the Presidio are going to need some financial help which they are entitled to receive from Army Emergency Relief. They'll need anywhere from $50 to $500.

Unfortunately, Major Weible doesn't carry that kind of money around in her pockets. She's got to get it someplace and the only place she can get it is from the soldiers at the Presidio.

Oh, she can get it if the coffers here run dry. She can get it from Washington—or someplace.

But the soldiers at the Presidio have a tradition, like all other Americans, of helping each other when help is needed. They give their blood to their buddies; they give to the March of Dimes; to the United Crusade. (Come to think of it, they're only asked to give to the March of Dimes, United Crusade and Army Emergency Relief.)

But in the long run, the one agency of the Army that's set up for the sole purpose of helping the man or woman in the Army is Army Emergency Relief. That's why Major Weible is asking every man on the Presidio to give his contribution now, or at pay call the end of this month. Then she won't hit you again for another year for this, the Soldier's Cause.

Let's take a look at three specific

AER Director at the Presidio is Maj. Elsie Weible, post funds custodian, who is not only the campaign leader for the current fund-raising drive but also the person who is available nearly every day of the year to lend AER money to soldiers who have hit the hard-luck trail. (Army photo by Staknis.)

cases and see where some of the AER funds go.

Soldier A. His infant son died and he and his wife wanted to have the baby buried in the wife's family burial plot. Soldier A needed $250 for travel and burial expenses. He got the $250. The cost to him? Only $15 a month until the loan is repaid.

Soldier B. He was buying a home that he could afford to pay until two of his children became seriously ill. His savings went for extraordinary bills and the note for the house was due, a note that he couldn't meet. He was in danger of losing his home. He needed nearly $500. He got it. He's paying the loan off without much trouble, at $50 a month—no interest or carrying charges.

Soldier C. His wife came down with a serious illness that required civilian hospitalization. So, he had to pay for boarding out his children. He needed a new drug, one not provided by the hospital, a very expensive drug he would have to purchase himself. His expenses for medical care and the care of his children went sky-high while his pay remained the same. To cap it all, his pay was fouled up because of a change in station. He estimated that by careful economizing he could solve his financial problems with a loan of $175. He got it. He's now paying it back at $10 a month.

Well, you say, those are three exceptional cases. Something like that would never happen to me. Those three men never thought something like that would happen to them. But it did. And that's why there's an Army Emergency Relief. Because something like that is always happening to someone in the Army.

Army Emergency Relief is not a charitable institution. It's an agency of the soldiers to help their fellow soldiers. And the only way it can help them is with your help. Your contribution this month might come back to you some day when you need it, along with a lot of other dollars.

Chain of Command Will be Topic at Next TI Conference Here

The Chain of Command will be the subject of discussion in the coming Troop Information Conference here with accent on the recent changes in higher echelon posts.

In the last few months, W. M. Brucker has been named as Secretary of the Army, General Maxwell D. Taylor has become Army Chief of Staff and Lieutenant General Robert N. Young has assumed command of Sixth Army.

Biographical background sketches on all commanders in the chain of command from the Commander in Chief through Sixth Army and the Presidio will be presented.

Accompanying the Chain of Command discussion will be a review of the organization of the Army and an explanation of the relationship between Army Anti-aircraft Command and Continental Air Defense Command.

The mission of the Army in peace and wartime will also be included in the Conference discussion, with emphasis upon the variety of roles the Army must play during peacetime.

The Army has received its first delivery of the Sikorsky H-34, a helicopter that can carry from 12 to 14 fully equipped men or 3,000 pounds of cargo. It is powered by a Lycoming-built Wright R-1820 engine of 1425 horsepower.

Stark Warning

'Slow Down and Live' Campaign Climaxed On Labor Day Holiday

"Slow Down and Live" is the stark phrase which keynotes the accident prevention campaign winding up here next month. The campaign will be climaxed by the hazardous, traffic-laden, Labor Day week-end. Presidio soldiers will be urged to maintain the accident-free record set on the last three-day week-end over the Fourth of July.

This program has been vigorously publicized and implemented throughout the Sixth Army area. There has been a reduction in the number of highway accidents involving military personnel and a reduction in the number of deaths resulting from such accidents.

For the period 1 January to 30 June 1954 there were 33 traffic deaths among Sixth Army personnel. For the comparable period in 1955 there were 22 such deaths.

Although the record indicates that the emphasis given to safe driving through the "Slow Down and Live" campaign is having results, the number of fatalities is still deplorably high. It points to the fact that soldier motorists, like other drivers, still need to fix the rules of safe driving so firmly in mind that safety becomes a way of thinking and acting.

One basic safe-driving rule requires that all motorists thoroughly know and understand the significance of traffic signs and road markings. To know them and obey them are "musts" for all who drive cars.

There are six basic sign shapes which every driver should know. The octagonal stop sign means the driver must come to a full stop and be sure the way is clear before proceeding. The triangular Yield Right of Way sign requires the driver to slow down or stop to give the right of way to cross traffic at intersections.

The diamond warning sign indicates dangerous or unusual conditions ahead, such as bumps, curves, or school zones. The rectangular signs state the law, such as speed limits, parking restrictions, or turning and parking regulations.

The round Railroad Crossing Ahead sign is yellow with the X and RR markings. It indicates a railroad crossing 300 to 500 feet ahead. The crossbuck Railroad Crossing sign is the traditional symbol at highway-railroad intersections. It is erected within 15 feet of the intersection and usually contains black lettering, with or without a bell, flashing lights, gates, or other protection.

Such pavement markings as center lines, lane lines, no passing lines, and pedestrian crossing lines indicate immediate road and traffic conditions.

The loss of human life is immeasurable, and traffic deaths are a needless and avoidable loss. Heeding a warning can save lives: "Slow Down and Live!"

6th AAA Command Names Virginia Pvt. Soldier of the Month

The 6th Antiaircraft Regional Command announced this week the award of "Soldier of the Month" honors to Pvt. Ronald Huffman, Headquarters Detachment, 6th Antiaircraft Regional Command.

The award was based upon superior military appearance and outstanding attention to duty.

A graduate of Wilson Memorial High School, Waynesboro, Virginia, Pvt. Huffman entered the Army in May 1954. He is currently assigned as Cryptographic Specialist in the signal section of the organization.

Colonel S. S. Cerwin

Col. Cerwin, Sixth Army Signal Head, Arrives for Duty

Colonel Stephen S. Cerwin officially assumed his duties as Sixth Army Signal officer on Wednesday of this week.

He has been Signal officer, U.S. Forces in Austria, since January, 1952.

Entering the active Army in 1940, Colonel Cerwin had been a member of the Reserves since 1928. His original corps was Infantry but he transferred to Signal in December, 1941.

On 1 January, 1944, the colonel went to the ETO as Signal officer of XIX Corps, and was there until August, 1945. He later served a tour as chief, operations and plans branch, office of the chief Signal officer, Washington, D.C.

Receiving his B.S. in mathematics and physics from the University of Chicago, class of 1929, the colonel went on to receive his M.A. in physics from the University of Chicago in 1935. His service schools include the Infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia; the Armored school, Fort Knox, Kentucky; Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Virginia, and the ICAF, Washington, D.C.

Colonel Cerwin has been decorated with the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal, the Commendation ribbon and five campaign stars for his ETO ribbon.

Able Company MP's Journey South To Camp Roberts For Month Duty Tour

Out of the sack even before the crack of dawn, three officers and 79 enlisted men of Company B, 505th MP Battalion, commanded by 1st Lt. Robert N. Anderson, climbed aboard a convoy of 25 vehicles at the Presidio this week and headed for Camp Roberts, California, 200 miles away.

At Camp Roberts, the unit will be responsible for Military Police operations in connection with the summer training activities of California National Guard and Sixth Army area reserve units.

Included in their duties will be security patrol, range security and traffic control at the installation proper, and town patrol at San Miguel, Paso Robles and San Luis Obispo.

The local MP company will also be responsible for escort service of VIP's and it is anticipated that they will also provide MP members of the reserve units with on-the-job training.

To facilitate MP operations at the reserve installation will be four motorcycles, 18 jeeps and three 2½-ton trucks.

In January, Company A was the first MP unit in the Army to participate in operations at the Army's nuclear test site, Camp Desert Rock, Nevada.

Company A will return to the Presidio the first week in September. (Picture on page 1)

Proud Parents of the last two issues of the Star Presidian were Pfc. Dick Stewart and Sp3 Jack Everhart, shown reassessing their recent editorial ventures. Veteran staffers, they co-edited the two most recent issues of the popular Army tabloid while regular editor Ken Erwin was on annual leave. (Army photo by Staknis.)

Editorial Debut!

Soldier Editors Take Publication Reins; Produce Pair of Professional Issues

If you enjoyed the last two sparkling issues of the Star-Presidian, thanks is due versatile co-editors Sp3 Jack Everhart and Pfc. Dick Stewart. For while the "old man" (regular editor, Ken Erwin) was in hot pursuit of wiley trout along the Rogue River in Oregon, these capable youngsters ably shouldered the editorial responsibility of your weekly newspaper.

We think they managed to do a fine job in the best tradition of military journalism. We also think that their high caliber production is an eloquent testimonial to their training, ability and dedication. We're proud of them and take this method of sharing our pride with you, the reader.

Pfc. Stewart joined the Star-Presidian staff a year ago this month. An English major in his senior semester at UCLA, he had previously edited the Corsair at Santa Monica JC. Following a brief stint on general features, he moved to the sports editor's desk and for the next eleven months turned out two of the finest sports pages in a service publication.

Recently promoted to co-editorship, Pfc. Stewart continues to demonstrate outstanding ability on the editorial side, his forte being makeup.

Pfc. Stewart will leave the service next month and present plans call for completion of his education. He hopes to continue in the writing fields.

Sp3 Everhart joined the Star-Presidian last October. He holds a BA in political science from Ohio State University. Previous newspaper experience consisted of a stint as editor of his high school publication. Prior to induction, Sp3 Everhart was employed as a research technician in industrial research.

He has been groomed for the number two slot, assistant editor for news and feature selection, since joining the staff. He replaced ex-Cpl. Bruce Lansbury, now an assistant editor with a popular magazine in New York City.

Sp3 Everhart will leave the service after the first of the year. Tentative plans call for study leading to a degree in law, with a career in politics as his ultimate aim.

Regular Army lieutenants are now required to take either ranger or airborne training.

Soldier Review to Be In Closed Broadcast; Combo Seeking Name

The forthcoming Soldier Review, slated to open at the Presidio Service club on 21 August at 2030 hours under the direction of Sp. 2/C Stan Dreyfuss is to be a special closed channel broadcast.

Initially, it will be viewed and heard only by the audience present in the Service club for the program, but it will be recorded at the time of presentation. A second showing is planned for 22 August at Letterman Army hospital Red Cross hall.

Recordings made by the combo which is to accompany the show have been made and are available for listening purposes at the Service club. A "Name the Combo" contest is presently under way, and the individual suggesting the best title for this musical group will receive a recording made by them. The contest will close on 17 August and entries are to be in by that time.

Combo members include Pvt. Stephen Schall, Headquarters Company, Det. 1, 6002 SU, pianist; Pvt. Joseph Carlisto, 56th MRU, drummer; Pfc. Thomas Smith, Btry. B, 9th AAA Gun Bn., bass; Pvt. Theatry Jones, Btry. B, 9th AAA Gun Bn., electric guitar, and Pvt. Carl Radosch, Sixth Army band, trombone.

More than 30 persons are presently rehearsing for the show which is to be a duplicate of one produced by Spec Dreyfuss while he was stationed in Germany.

An added highlight of the show will be the appearance of your favorite soldier of the month, "Joe Gout," who will be portrayed by Pvt. Al Cunningham.

In the last fiscal year, more than 1,300 library units throughout the world circulated almost 40,000,000 pieces of literature among Army personnel.

Goals Aided!

GED Test Series Measures Broad Educational Experience

The post Education Center announced this week that all local military personnel who have not completed high school, as well as those who have, are urged to sign up for the General Educational Development tests offered here on the high school and first year college levels.

The high school GED measures the individual educational development and appraises his educational accomplishments in broad subject areas which the person has acquired generally through reading.

The college test is used to determine whether all of the serviceman's formal and informal educational experiences have provided him with sufficient background to specialize on the college or equivalent level.

Broken down into specific study areas, both tests include English composition, social studies natural sciences and literature sections. The high school test has, in addition, a mathematics section.

The principal emphasis in the English grammar section is the ability to avoid errors in spelling, punctuation, capitalization, and grammar. Consideration in this section of the GED tests is also given for the ability to choose the best words or phrases and to organize and express ideas in clear, well-balanced sentences.

Key feature of the social studies test category is the measure of the ability to read with understanding and to evaluate reading selections concerning social, political, economic and cultural problems and issues. Since the ability to do these things depends a great deal on how well-informed the individual is, the test also measures indirectly the person's background of ideas and information in the field of social studies.

In the natural sciences category, emphasis is placed on the ability to pay close attention to detail, upon logical reasoning and a general scientific vocabulary. This section of the test also demands a considerable background of information concerning important scientific topics.

Based on a variety of selection from world literature, the literature section of the GED series emphasizes many special abilities not frequently needed in ordinary reading; such as the ability to interpret figures of speech, to cope with unusual sentence structure and word meanings, and to recognize mood and purpose.

The test in mathematics, which is a part of the high school GED test only, is concerned with general problem solving ability of a very practical sort.

Making the tests particularly attractive is the fact that there is no time limit for the sections of the tests although it is required that each section must be completed at one sitting.

More detailed information concerning the GED tests, as well as numerous other educational opportunities, can be obtained at the post Education Center, Building 117, telephone extension 3189 or 2974.

Johnson Blanks Ord Nine In Crucial Softball Tilt

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Behind the masterful no hit hurling of Ed Johnson, the Presidio softball squad defeated Ford Ord, 6 to 1 to advance to the finals of the Sixth Army Central Division playoffs at the Oakland Army Base, this week.

Johnson struck out four, walked four and received great defensive support from his team mates in posting his first no-hit game of the season. Ord's lone run came in the top of the third inning when Haueter walked, was sacrificed to second, stole third and came in on the only Presidio error of the afternoon.

The local nine bounced right back in the bottom of the third to score three runs for a lead they never relinquished. Shortstop Matthews started things off with a stand up double to left center, Dluginsky followed with a bunt single, Kindy next up, lofted a high fly which the Ord right fielder dropped for the Post's first run of the contest. Moran's bunt drove in Dluginsky with the second run and Kindy scored on Tycenski's infield out.

Johnson's control was never better as only three balls were hit out of the infield during the seven inning contest. The win puts the locals in the top spot for the tournament needing only to win their game this morning to go on to the All-Sixth Army tourney at Dugway, Utah.

Opening day of the tournament saw the red-hot Post team blast the host Oakland Army Base nine, 9 to 1. Chucker Johnson gave up but two hits and at one point in the game retired 16 batters consecutively. The Raiders iced the contest in the fourth with a four run outburst.

Bob Moran drove in the first two tallies with a sharp single to center, big Ed Tycenski followed with his second two-bagger to score Moran and scored the fourth run on another double by John Staub. Big Ed had a perfect day at the plate with four for Winding up their practice games with two wins, the softball aces edged the Parks Air Force Base 4 to 0 and overwhelmed Fort Mason 28 to 1. The Raiders chalked up fourteen wins against four losses for an outstanding non-league record.

Pitchers Ed Johnson and Roger Kindy combined to toss a three hit shutout in the Parks contest. So effective was their pitching that only one ball was hit out of the infield. Dluginsky, Moran and Staub contributed RBI singles and the fourth run scored on the only error charged against the Blue Devils.

The Fort Mason rout was terminated in the sixth inning at the request of the neighboring garrison with the score ending up 28-1. Individual stars for the Post were Ed Johnson's grand slam homer, Bush with four for four, and Ed Tycenski with three for three to round out the day's action with 23 hits collected by the Presidio's bats.

Company B Police Top Pacific Roll

Company "B" of the 505th MP's regained the top rung in the Pacific Bowling League this week with a smashing four to nothing shutout win over the sixth place Keystone Kops. High man in the Police win was Dickey with a 527 net and a 199 for high man. Johnson of the Kops had a high of 182 and a 479 net.

The Post Dispensary dumped the Sixth Army Signal crew out of the top spot by rolling to a two-two tie. DePolito paced the fourth place medics with a sizzling 225 high game for a 584 net. Morgan rolled the top game for the signaleers with a 487 net and a 187 high.

Van Ausdall's high roll of 201 helped his Hq. Co. Station Complement to an upset three to one victory over the Hilltoppers No. 1 squad. Other contests around the loop saw Hq. Co. 505th MP's defeat Hq. Co. 30th Engineers four to zero, the Hilltoppers No. 3 take a forfeit win from the 561st Engineers and the 102nd MRU bowlers with a four to nothing forfeit win from the Hilltoppers No. 1 team.

Individual high game of the week went to Thorne of the Keystone Kops with a big 242, followed by Morgan of the Sixth Army Signal team with a 232 roll. High team game with handicap went to Hq. Co. Station Complement with a 1082. High team series with handicap fell to the 102nd MRU kegsters with a 3052 mark.

In the Eastern league a three-way tie for first place between the Hilltoppers No. 6, the 6513 SU and the Occoquanians featured action. Each of the top teams featured a neat four-zero record so far in league play. Tied up with three-and-one records are the Nuggets and the Ichi-Bans for the next spot in league standing.

Ishihara of the Hilltoppers No. 6 walked off with three top honors at the end of the week's action. His 184 took the individual high average, a 553 was good for individual high series, and his 637 captured the individual high series with handicap. Palomares from the 102 MRU squad took individual high game with a smashing 208. Right on his heels with a 207 was Greene, also from the records unit.

Jimmy Ukauka, golf pro at the Kaneohe Marine base golf course in Hawaii, carded a 315 in the recent National Open championship.

nimrods

Deer season at the Hunter Liggett Military Reservation begins on the 28th of this month, and closes on the 18th of September. Army personnel desiring to hunt deer on the reservation should send their request in writing to the DPC, Hunter Liggett Military Reservation, Jolon, California. The written request should include three alternate periods when permission to hunt is requested. After permission has been granted by the Hunter Liggett DPC, accommodations at the Hacienda may be secured through the secretary, General, Staff, Hq. Sixth Army, Ext. 3241.

fishing

Army harbor craft which have been available to post personnel for recreational and fishing purposes are no longer available it was announced today. Military necessity forces the discontinuation of the Harbortcraft Recreation Fund. Post Special Services now sponsors fishing excursions for individuals on local commercial craft on a subsidized basis. Eligible personnel may secure additional information on such excursions by calling 2002. Also a limited supply of fishing equipment is now available for loan by the Post Special Services officer.

New Pigskin Schedule-6 Games Here

Featuring six home games, the 1955 Presidio Football schedule was released this week by the post sports office. The new schedule shapes up as one of the best in recent years, with twelve contests on tap, starting on the ninth of September and running through 26 November.

The first scrimmage of the campaign takes place on the 20th of this month when the local garrison travels to San Quentin prison. One week later, on the 27th, the post pigskin hopefuls journey to Santa Cruz for a practice contest with the semi-pro Santa Cruz Sea Hawks. The Raiders return for their last scrimmage before the regular season starts here against the Moffett Naval Air Station on the Fort Scott field.

Coach Gene Lynch commented that a need for players exists as the starting eleven has not been named. He went on to state that a critical need for ends and center exists and that personnel interested to call Ext. 3968 for information.

Shining brightly in early drills were veteran end Dick Piggott, Morris Maytubby, a newcomer from Fresno State College, and Jim Kozowsky at half-back. A welcome addition to the squad was Bob Ratliff, from Hq. Btry., 740th AAA. Bob was named on the All-Border Conference eleven last year when he played for West Texas State.

lakes open

Many high country lakes or their tributaries which have been closed to all fishing because of spawning runs, are now open to fishing. Among these are the tributaries to Lake Tahoe, Blue Lakes and Twin Lakes in Alpine County, Shaver, Hume and Huntington Lakes in Fresno County, Cottonwood Lakes in Inyo, and many others.

Upland game studies have established that the statewide dove population appears to be about the same as 1954.

Raiders Blast Hamilton; Collins Spins Four Hitter

The Presidio Red Raiders continued their winning habits this week by blasting the hapless Hamilton Air Force nine, 11-2, in a seven inning contest on the Fort Scott diamond.

The Post team, behind the fine four-hit pitching of ace hurler Roger Collins, gathered but six hits themselves off the offerings of Pelatari, but coupled with Hamilton's sudden weakness afield proved enough to run up the one-sided score.

The locals took a one run lead in the first when Shannon singled, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Don Duke's sharp single to left field. Hamilton bounced right back with two tallies in the top of the second to take a short one run lead, only to have the locals add one in their half of the second to tie up the ball game.

The fourth inning turned up nothing but goose-eggs as both pitchers bore down to retire the respective sides in order. Things changed quickly in the bottom of the fifth when lead-off man Alvord singled, Cringoli was hit by a pitched ball followed by a walk given up to Collins to load the bases for the Raiders. Jackson, next up, hit a sharp grounder which the third baseman muffed and all hands were safe plus a run scoring. Shannon and then Duke, the next two Presidio batters, were safe on errors by the Hamilton left-fielder and by the time the comedy of errors had ended, seven runs were across for the local garrison.

The Raiders ended the scoring for the day in the bottom of the sixth when racing Rex Willis lined a single to right field to bring in Cringoli and Collins for two runs and the final count of 11-2.

Today the hustling Raiders journey up to Hamilton Air Force Base to play a return engagement against the fliers. Tomorrow the New Pisa semi-pro squad invades the Fort Scott diamond for a clash with the locals. Sunday the soldier nine travels to Healdsburg for a game with the semi-pro team there.

Sixth Army Pair Take Net Crown

The All-Army Golf and Tennis Tournament drew to a close early this week at Fort Meade, Maryland, after five days of highly competitive action. The top-seeded Sixth Army pair of Lt. Keith Self and Lt. Conway Catton defeated Grant Golden and Bill Crary of Eighth Army, 6-1, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5, for the men's open doubles finals in tennis.

Men's open tennis final was won by Sp/3 Grant Golden from Eighth Army over Pfc. Roger Pharr, Third Army, in straight sets of 6-1, 6-1, 6-3. Senior men's single finals went to M/Sgt. Emil Johnson, Second Army, over Major Melvin Rogers, Sixth Army, 9-7, 6-0.

Women's doubles final went to Lt. Doris Sisson and Captain Ruth Haerr of Second Army over Lt. Delores Miller and Sgt. Lilia Lopez representing Fifth Army, 6-1, 6-0.

Five days of play in the All-Army Golf Tourney ended in a two-way tie for first place. In the resulting playoff between Pfc. Dan Sikes, Second Army, and Sp/3 Bill Williamson, Third Army, Sikes walked off with the championship by six strokes, shooting a two under par 70 for the 18 medal play finals.

more beaver

Beaver populations in the northern Sierras and Cascades are at a ten-year high as a result of a program of live trapping and transplanting to areas of short supply, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

In fact, in some areas there are so many beavers that proposals have been made for liberalizing trapping regulations to provide a profitable harvest and keep numbers down in keeping with available food and cover.

If adopted by the Fish and Game Commission, these measures would apply only in certain mountain areas where beaver depredation complaints have been increasing.

Jim Doerner Hurls Giants To Sixth Win

The Presidio Little League swung into the next to last week of play this week with the pace setting Giants still on top in league standing.

Behind the six-hit pitching of Jim Doerner, the Giants edged the second place Cards eight to five. Quinton Brown went to the mound for the Cubs, giving up 12 hits during the regulation six-inning contest.

The second place Cards went on a hitting rampage against the fourth place Yanks to the tune of 20-4. Pete Nicolls was the winning hurler against a trio of Yanks, Jim Hicks, Jose Salgado, and finally Ronnie Fish winding up on the hill for the last two innings.

In a contest played late this week the Cards dumped the Cubs, nine to three, behind the hurling of Tom Stewart. George Leonard followed by Ken McIntire pitched for the Cubs in a contest that saw each side get but three hits.

With rainfall below last year's total, threat of grass, brush and woodland fires in the coastal deer hunting area is increasing daily, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

Services To Play Role In '56 Cage Olympics

New York (AFPS)—The armed forces may be heavily represented on the U.S. Olympic basketball team in the 1956 games at Melbourne, Australia.

A new method of selecting the team has been recommended to the executive board of the U.S. Olympic committee which could greatly increase service participation in the games.

According to Col. Harry D. Henshel, chairman of the Olympic basketball committee which made the recommendation, the plan calls for a tryout tournament to be held the first week of April, 1956, following the AAU, NCAA and armed forces championships.

It may be difficult for college teams to participate in the Olympics because the games will be played halfway through the fall semester. For this reason, the basketball committee has encouraged the armed forces to cooperate as fully as possible.

Many of the college stars who are now in the service are still amateurs. Under a recent Department of Defense ruling they will have a chance to train and compete for the U.S. team when it does not interfere with their military duties.

Col. Henshel said the Olympic tryout tourney would consist of four teams, two from the AAU, one college squad and one from the armed forces.

The Olympic squad will consist of 14 players. Seven will be picked from the team which finishes first in the playoff and the committee will choose seven from the other teams. The same procedure will be followed should both AAU teams finish first and second.

Coaching the Olympic team, according to the committee's recommendation, will be the coach of the winning team. The committee will name the assistant coach.

The time and location for assembling the squad has not yet been determined.

fall-sports

Two new inter-mural leagues were announced this week by Hal Fischer, post sports director. A six-man touch football league, and a volleyball league are now being organized. All companies or units of comparable size desiring to enter the newly formed leagues are urged to call the post sports office, Ext. 3968, for additional information.

Parks AFB Edge WACs In Softball

The Presidio WAC nine dropped a heart-breaking 15-8 loss to the Parks Air Force Base girls Tuesday night on the Fort Scott diamond. The loss dropped the local garrison out of a first place tie in the Bay Area Armed Forces Women's Softball League.

The local girls jumped off to a three-run lead in the first inning as the first four batters singled and then after two were out, hurler Gavigan singled home two counters. Parks tallied twice in the first and once in the second inning. However, the Post team pushed across two runs to take a five-to-three lead. The two local scores came when right-fielder Christian lined a hard double to left centerfield with two mates aboard.

The Army lassies scored once in the fifth to Parks two runs to hold their lead, which had dwindled to one run, six to five. The locals' lone run came with two away when Argue singled home Edwards.

The bottom fell out of the game for the Post squad in the sixth when the Parks Air-girls tallied six times to once for the locals. In the seventh and last innings Parks added four more to one for the Post to wind up the day's action out in front, 15-8.

One week from Monday the Presidio plays host to the All-Sixth Army Women's Softball Tournament. The five-day tourney is being held at the Presidio because the local WAC nine are current champions of the Sixth Army. WAC teams from Fort Ord, Fort MacArthur, Fort Lawton, Oakland Army Base and Fort Mason will be here for the double-elimination tournament.

PLAYING heads up ball, the Little League Cubs are currently holding down third place in league standing. Although dropping two contests this past week to the Giants and Cards, the squad looms as a tough contender for the rest of the season. The team is under the direction of Major Ken McIntire, shown above in back row. The Giants are leading the pack with a six and zero record, followed by the Cards with a 4-3 record. The Cubs with a 3-4 record come next, followed by the Yanks with an 0-6 record.

On the run from morning 'til night, the Post Message Center receives and distributes correspondence for the Presidio and sub-posts, and also distributes to Headquarters Sixth Army, Letterman Army Hospital, and the Armed Forces Police Detachment at Treasure Island. Harry Hersh (l. to r.) MC chief, is emptying one of the huge bags of mail which arrive several times a day. Howard Burford, driver, is loading his truck for a delivery, and Sp3 Siver Serungard is about to depart on a special delivery of several electrical messages. Pvt. Richard Cundy is the mimeograph operator for the Post Mimeograph section. (Army photos by Staknis.)

Presidio Message Center Distributes Huge Volume Of Local Correspondence

From 3500 to 4500 pieces of mail every day are hustled through Presidio's Message Center, which serves more than 80 different activities here plus Headquarters Sixth Army and Letterman Army Hospital. This voluminous operation is speeded on under the surveillance of Message Center Chief Harry Hersh with three mail clerks and one driver.

The Presidio Message Center and the Mimeograph Section are both under the over-all supervision of Major Robert W. Evett, Post Adjutant. Both activities are located in building 220, Post Headquarters.

Incoming and outgoing mail comprise only one item on the Message Center's delivery schedule. Also handled are memorandums, general and special orders, letter orders, command orders, letters of instruction, and other mimeograph work. The Daily Bulletin and post movie schedules are also distributed through Message Center.

Service from the Message Center extends throughout the Presidio, including California Military District, Fort Barry, Fort Baker, Fort Cronkite, Battery Mendel, and at Treasure Island, the Armed Forces Police Detachment.

Correspondence which doesn't come through the mail is brought into the Message Center from the units and staff sections themselves. It is all distributed into pigeon-holes designated to each activity.

Unit correspondence is handled in the same manner that the post office handles general delivery. Unit messengers or mail clerks simply call to pick up their mail.

Some staff sections also pick up their own mail, but when location or other circumstances make it expedient, the Message Center picks up and delivers correspondence.

Adjutants' mail is sent upstairs to Post Headquarters, and all mail requiring a Command line is also sent upstairs and then returned for the Message Center to distribute.

Registered mail is handled by the Message Center in exactly the same manner as the United States post offices.

The Mimeograph Section, closely related to Message Center, although it is a separate unit, is also under the supervision of Harry Hersh. Mimeograph operator is Pvt. Richard Cundy, who runs an average of 20,000 sheets of paper a day.

The Mimeo Section is authorized to reproduce more than 800 different types of forms. The Daily Bulletin, alone, accounts for 2,000 copies a day. For the month of July, 320,740 copies of various orders and letters were run off by the section.

With the exception of two civilians, the Message Center and Post Message Center is operated entirely by Regular Army personnel. Section Chief Harry Hersh and driver Howard Burford are civilians.

Military personnel, all with RA serial numbers, include Sp 3 Siver Serungard, Cpl. Alton George, and Pvt. Wilbur Ramey, mail clerks, and Pvt. Cundy, mimeograph operator.

Harry Hersh, now a civilian, is a retired officer of 30 years' service in the Army. He retired here as a chief warrant officer in December, 1954. He served at the Presidio as legal administrative assistant in the Post Judge Advocate section from May, 1954, to December, 1954.

A stepped-up mailing schedule at the Army Finance Center, Indianapolis, Indiana, made possible by the use of high-speed IBM machines, resulted in the mailing of class Q allotments on the last working day of each month rather than on the second day of the month in which they were due.

'55 School Registration for Presidio Children to Start Early in September

Student registration for San Francisco public schools will be held on 6, 7 and 8 September between 0900 and 1500, for those children who have not previously attended San Francisco schools. Last year's students are not required to register.

A child must be four years and nine months old on or before 1 September in order to enter kindergarten on 12 September, and five years and nine months old on or before 1 September, to enter the first grade. A birth certificate is to be presented at time of registration.

New arrivals living on the Presidio, excepting Park Presidio apartments, who will enter kindergarten through sixth grade, will be registered at Fort Winfield Scott school, Divisadero and Beach streets, until classroom capacity is reached. Madison school, Clay street and Arguello boulevard will be utilized next.

Children entering kindergarten whose brothers and sisters attended other San Francisco schools last year will register in those schools, it was pointed out.

Those starting in grades seven and eight will be registered at Marina Junior High, Fillmore and Bay streets, or Presidio Hill Junior High, 3839 Washington street.

Park Presidio residents may obtain school information by calling their billeting office, 1504 Pershing Drive, SKyline 2-1830, or the Post TI&E Section, Ext. 4449. It is recommended that those starting junior and senior high school, register at the school nearest the housing area.

High school students, both Presidio and Park Presidio residents, may register at any of the following high schools: Galileo, Francisco and Van Ness avenue; Lowell, Hayes and Masonic; Balboa, Onondaga and Cayuga avenue; Abraham Lincoln, 24th and Rivera, and George Washington, 32nd and Anza.

The Post Motor pool will furnish school bus service. Further transportation information may be obtained by phoning Ext. 2143.

According to a law recently passed, no Korean veteran may get unemployment compensation more than three years after discharge or three years after the bill became a law, whichever is later.

Retired military personnel under 65 will pay $6 million less in income taxes under the terms of a bill passed by the House and approved by the Senate Finance Committee (HR 291).

An experimental, all aluminum, two-and-a-half ton truck having light-weight characteristics that would make it especially useful in air-borne operations has been developed by the Army.

Battery D, 740th Takes 30th AAA Best Mess Award

First time winners of the 30th AAA Group's monthly Best Mess contest was Battery D, 740th AAA Missile Battalion. To win the coveted award, D Battery dished up Class A chow in a virtually immaculate mess hall while amassing more points than any other battery in the San Francisco AA defense.

In a recent ceremony at the Battery D mess hall, Lt. Col. Marvin E. Waller, acting 30th AAA Group commanding officer, presented the coveted plaque to Sfc. Clarence T. Baxter, mess steward.

Also present at the informal ceremony were Lt. Col. Charles M. Ashley, 740th AAA Missile Battalion commander, Capt. Arthur Weeks, D Battery CO and battery cooks, Sp2 Robert L. Cathey and Pvt. Gordon Fitzgerald.

The Best Mess plaque which will remain with the battery for a month is awarded on the basis of a highly selective and competitive examination judged by staff members of the 30th AAA Group.

Chemical Corps Says Smoke Screen Could Reduce Atomic Rays

Washington (AFPS)—The Army Chemical Corps has disclosed that the effectiveness of deadly heat rays from an atomic bomb can be reduced as much as 90 per cent through the use of smoke screens.

A preliminary report on "Operation Teapot," the series of nuclear tests held last spring in Nevada, outlined the success of the corps' TRAC (Thermal Radiation Alternating Clouds) project. It is designed to absorb much of the effects of the atomic bomb.

The smoke screens, produced by generators, give the same effect as clouds in the sky filtering the sun's heat and light.

The artificial clouds are not actually smoke but fog oil, a vaporized petroleum product which has proven between 75 and 90 per cent effective in cutting off nuclear heat rays.

The report says the exact amount of fog oil used is classified, but it is approximately the same as that used for screening tactical operations from enemy observers.

Area Native!

Colonel Haynes To Command Area Antiaircraft Defenses

Colonel Dallas F. Haynes has been designated to command the 30th Antiaircraft Group at Fort Barry, part of the 6th Antiaircraft Regional Command under Major General Hobart Hewitt.

Colonel Haynes succeeds Colonel P. H. Wollaston, who has commanded the 30th Group since January 1954 and who now is assigned to duty with the 6th Regional Command.

Colonel Haynes is a native son, born in Santa Paula, and schooled in San Francisco. He was stationed with the 6th Coast Artillery at Fort Winfield Scott, as an enlisted man while attending the West Point preparatory school in 1933. He entered the Military Academy and was graduated as a second lieutenant in 1938.

His first assignment as an officer was at Corregidor in the Philippine Islands. He returned from the Far East in October of 1941 and his wartime service included assignments at Camp Haan, California, Fort Bliss, Texas, and then as a battalion commander participating in five campaigns between the Normandy landing and VE day.

For his service in Europe he received the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart, the French Croix De Guerre and Belgian Fourragere.

After World War II, Colonel Haynes attended the Command and General Staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and then returned to Germany as executive officer for the European Exchange service. Later he attended the Graduate school at Yale University and in 1949 received a masters degree in international relations. He is also a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Virginia.

He served four years in the G-3 Section of the Army General Staff in the Pentagon, and in 1953 went to Istanbul, Turkey as principal foreign advisor to the Turkish National Defense and War colleges.

Colonel Haynes is married to the former Mabel Slaughter of Riverside, California. They have a truly international family of six. The two older children, Mary and Dallas, Jr. were born in the Philippine Islands before World War II. John Patrick was born in Frankfurt, Germany in 1946. There are twins, David and Nancy, who were born in Connecticut in 1947. William was born in Washington, D. C. in 1951. Also in the family is a young Bulgarian refugee who was admitted to the United States under the Escapee act as a result of the Colonel's sponsorship.

New CONARC Board Expected To Benefit Army Aviation School

Organization by Continental Army Command of a new development and test agency at Camp Rucker, Alabama, home of the Army Aviation School, was announced recently by the Department of the Army.

The new agency will be known as Board Number 6 of the Continental Army Command.

This places the six CONARC Boards at the sites of centers having primary interest in specific development and test fields.

promotions

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has authorized a total of 41,290 enlisted promotions for August, second highest monthly quota since September 1954.

Largest allocation of new stripes since that date was made in June, when 117,250 advancements were made. The July quota totaled 36,200.

The August promotion schedule calls for 572 advancements to E-6, 4,189 to E-5, 16,287 to E-4 and 20,242 to E-3. No promotions to E-7 were allocated for the second straight month.

A total of 350 new E-7s was authorized during May and June. Before that there had been no E-7 advancements for 15 months.

Reserve Commissions Open to Male Nurses, Medical Specialists

Appointment of qualified male personnel as commissioned officers in the U.S. Army Reserve for assignment to the Army Nurse corps and the Army Medical Specialist corps (formerly the Women's Medical Specialist corps) will follow the same procedure already in use for Medical officers, Major General Silas B. Hays, surgeon general of the Army, said this week.

Signature of the President on the Bolton amendment to the Army-Navy nurses act of 1947 now makes it possible for these formerly all-women components to accept men into their organizations, and duty tours will be assigned by the same criteria which now governs the women officers.

General Hays explained that this new authorization will make it possible to further utilize professional skills of scarce Medical specialists while they are serving in the Army Medical service.

Engineer General Is Recalled To Manage Beach Erosion Board

Brigadier General Theron D. Weaver has been recalled to active duty and named president of the Beach Erosion Board of the Army Corps of Engineers, the Department of the Army announced recently.

General Weaver retired in December, 1952, while Chief Engineer of the U. S. Army in Europe. For the past two years he has served as a consultant to Lt. Gen. S. D. Sturgis, Jr., Chief of Army Engineers, on special civil works problems.

As president of the Engineers' Beach Erosion Board, General Weaver will head the government's official agency studying beach erosion and shore line protection as related to economic and military needs. The board compiles engineering reports from around the world and carries out experiments with research facilities located in Washington, D. C.

General Ennis!

Name Airborne Commander As New Sixth Army DCG

Major General Riley F. Ennis, commanding general of Fort Jackson, S. C., and the 101st Airborne Division, has been assigned to Sixth Army Headquarters, it was announced today by the Department of the Army. He will be named deputy Sixth Army commander upon the retirement of Major General William F. Dean, in October.

Born in Paulding, Ohio, on 23 April, 1897, General Ennis attended Ohio State University and Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. He was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry following his graduation from Officers Training Camp, at Fort Sheridan, Ill., on 16 Sept., 1918.

General Ennis received his Regular Army commission and was promoted to first lieutenant on 1 July, 1920.

During the period between the wars he saw service with the 35th Infantry Regiment at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii; the 17th Infantry at Fort Omaha, Nebr.; the 66th Infantry at Fort Devens, Mass., and the 68th Infantry at Fort Lewis, Wash., moving with that unit to Fort Benning, Ga., where it was converted to an Armored regiment.

In the year preceding Pearl Harbor, he served as a military observer at London, Cairo, and Singapore, returning to Washington, D. C., for duty with the War Department and later with Headquarters, Army Ground Forces. He commanded an Armored unit in the European Theater of Operations between August, 1944 and July, 1945, and returned to the United States that October, to become director of Intelligence, Military Intelligence Service, in Washington.

There followed tours as Military attache at Ottawa and Mexico City and as chief of the Armored Inspectorate, Army Field Forces, before he was assigned to the Far East Command in May, 1951, as assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence.

General Riley F. Ennis

He has been in his present assignment, at Fort Jackson, since his return to the United States, in February, 1954.

General Ennis is a graduate of the Infantry School, the Command and General Staff School, the Army War College and the Chemical Warfare School. His decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, with one Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Bronze Star Medal, with one Oak Leaf Cluster, as well as numerous foreign decorations.

He is married to the former Helen M. Pemberton of Zanesville, Ohio.

United Nations Day

The United Nations' key role in solving critical international problems was graphically pointed up by President Eisenhower recently. He officially credited the U.N.'s top officer, Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, with playing a leading part in the release of 11 U.S. flyers held illegally by the Chinese Communists for more than two years.

Hammarskjold, a Swede, flew to China to seek their freedom. Later, he carried on months of incessant negotiation with the Communists until the airmen finally were freed.

This incident illustrates one of the reasons why the U.S., a charter member of the world organization, regards it as so important. It helps explain why President Eisenhower again this year has proclaimed October 24 as United Nations Day.

The Department of Defense has urged commands throughout the world to honor the observance with appropriate ceremonies.

Communism at Work Slated For Information Conferences

The who, what, where, when, why and how of Communism will be explained in detail at next week's Troop Information Conferences in the topic: "Communism at Work."

The basic aim of international Communism, it will be shown, is to enable Soviet rulers to control the world. Communist Parties are agents of the Soviet Union, engaged in systematic espionage for the sole purpose of establishing Soviet world control.

Modern communism was born in the early 1800's when Western Europe was shifting from an agricultural to an industrial economy. Communism is based primarily on the ideas of Marx and Engels—state control of production and distribution, class struggle, dictatorship of the workers and the eventual withering away of the state.

Although their theories were not developed with specific reference to Russia, the Russian revolutionaries who gained power in 1917 adapted Marxism to conditions in their country.

Governing power in the U.S. S.R. wears two faces, the Communist Party and the Government. The council of ministers is the most important organ of Soviet government but the Communist Party completely controls it. Most Communist Party officials double as government officials on all levels.

Thus the Soviet people are ruled by the Communist Party through the Government. The governments of 16 Soviet Republics parallel the central government and are directly controlled by it.

The techniques of Communist controls are as varied as they are sinister. Organized terror by the secret police maintains forced labor camps to keep the people submissive.

Voters can elect only candidates chosen by the Communist Party leadership and since only one slate of candidates is presented to the voters, there is no element of choice involved in Soviet elections.

Soviet youth are controlled through Young Communist Leagues and other militant youth organizations.

The Communist bag of tricks employed on the international scene has long imperiled the peace and security of the world.

Communist parties in the USA and other free world nations pretend to be domestic political parties supporting local issues and reforms. They frequently seize on local issues as a coverup for their true subversive intentions.

Often, non-communist organizations are infiltrated by Communist Party members who maneuver to capture key positions. They also create front organizations with innocent sounding names to trap the well-meaning and the unwary.

Knowing more about the communists, their organization and their aims, and their techniques is a part of the soldier's overall job of knowing something about his potential enemy.

General Hoeffler Given Farewell Fete; Leaves For New Assignment

Brigadier General Henry J. Hoeffler, who was just awarded his first star two weeks ago, left the Presidio yesterday for his new assignment as South Atlantic Division Engineer with headquarters at Atlanta, Georgia.

Sixth Army Commander Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young was on hand at the farewell ceremony for the former Sixth Army Engineer. Color guard was provided by the Honor Guard, the Sixth Army Band and the unique Pipe Band.

General Hoeffler was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1927, receiving his original commission with the Coast Artillery. He transferred to the Corps of Engineers in 1931.

Colonel Francis H. Falkner has been named by General Young to succeed General Hoeffler.

DOD to Withdraw U.S. Troops Now On Austrian Duty

Washington (AFPS) — All U.S. troops now in Austria will be withdrawn within the next three months and some of them will be stationed in Italy to strengthen NATO ground forces in that country, the Defense Department announced.

According to the provisions of the Austrian peace treaty, all Allied troops will leave the country within 90 days after 27 July, the date the treaty became effective.

The U.S. troops will go to Italy as NATO forces as soon as the necessary arrangements to receive them have been worked out, the DOD said. The number of troops involved and where they will go has not been disclosed.

Defense officials indicated that if Italian approval is not obtained or if suitable quarters are not available by the time the troops have to leave Austria, they might be sent to another country before going to Italy.

The DOD said the deployment has been recommended by NATO military authorities and endorsed by the North Atlantic Council.

The exact location of the units and logistical arrangements will be worked out by Italian, U.S. and NATO representatives in the NATO Southern Command Hqs. at Naples.

Department of Army Announces New Jobs For 3 Gen. Officers

New assignments for three Army general officers were announced recently by Secretary of the Army, Wilber M. Brucker.

Major General Joseph I. Martin, Surgeon, U. S. Army Europe, will return to the United States in September and has been assigned to the office of the Surgeon General, Washington, D. C.

Brigadier General Andrew P. O'Meara, Deputy Chief for Development, office of the Army Chief of Staff, has been named Chief of Research and Development, succeeding Maj. Gen. Kenner F. Hartford, who retired last month.

Brigadier General William E. Christ, assistant Chief of Staff G-2, U. S. Army Element, Allied Forces Central Europe, will return to the United States where he has been assigned to the office of the Army Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C.

The Star Presidian

The Star-Presidian is an authorized dual purpose weekly publication published by and for the military personnel of the Sixth Army Headquarters and the Presidio of San Francisco, California, under the supervision of the Post Troop Information and Education Office. DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

officers recently assigned

Colonel JOHN F. ARFMAN has become the assistant Post Engineer for the Presidio of San Francisco.

During the past two years, he has been in New Orleans as assistant district Engineer, rivers and harbors, New Orleans area Corps of Engineers.

Colonel Arfman received his B.S. in engineering from the University of Alabama, class of 1933, and along with it, a Reserve Army commission. He entered on active duty in 1940, and was integrated into the regular Army in 1947. He is also a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Virginia.

Early in World War II, the colonel was in the Caribbean theatre (1941-43) serving with Engineer aviation battalions. The next 19 months were spent on Guam, and during 1946-49, he was in the Philippines as an Engineer advisor with USMAG. The Philippine government awarded him its Legion of Honor for his services there.

Colonel and Mrs. Arfman now reside in Corte Madera with their four children.

Lt. Colonel DONALD P. BOYER has been assigned to the training division, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, following his recent graduation from the 10-months' course at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Receiving a Reserve commission upon graduation from Virginia Military Institute, class of 1938, Colonel Boyer received his M.A. the following year from Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Medford, Massachusetts.

Coming on active duty in 1940, the colonel entered the regular Army in February 1942 on the basis of a competitive examination. He went to the ETO in June 1944 as plans officer with the G-3 Section, 9th Army. Four months later he joined the 7th Armored Division, and was serving with that unit during the Battle of the Bulge when he was wounded and subsequently captured, remaining a POW for four and one half months until the close of the war. He returned to Europe in January 1949, serving with the U.S. Constabulary Forces until October 1952.

Decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal, the Belgian Fourragere with Palm and Belgian Order of Leopold II (Officer) with Palm, the French Croix de Guerre with Palm and the Distinguished Unit Citation, Colonel Boyer is a graduate of the first Infantry officers' course for World War II in 1940 at Fort Benning, Georgia, and the Advanced Armored school, Fort Knox, Kentucky, in 1948. He and Mrs. Boyer are now residing here, and the colonel's mother resides in Richmond, Virginia.

Major CHARLES J. POWELL has been chief of the Army Motion Picture service, USAF-Antilles and Military District of Puerto Rico, with station at Fort Brooke, Puerto Rico, for the past three and one-half years.

His new assignment here is that of chief, plans and services division, Special Services Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Entering the Army as an enlisted man in 1943, Major Powell attended Infantry O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia, and during World War II, served two years in the Pacific with Headquarters Central Command. Discharged at the end of the war, he entered the Reserves and was recalled in 1943 and released on 1 May 1950. Again recalled three months later, he served two years at Headquarters CIC Center, Fort Holabird, Maryland, prior to going to Puerto Rico.

Graduate of both the Special Services school at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, and the Officer Personnel Management school, Fort Lee, Virginia, Major Powell, prior to entering the service, played professional baseball for seven years with the Columbus team of the American Association as property of the St. Louis Cardinals. He and his wife and their daughters, ages 13 and 7, are now residing here.

Major ARTHUR S. HYMAN has been assigned as aide-de-camp to the commanding general, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His most recent assignments were with G-3 plans section in Washington, and the 18th Airborne at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Prior to that, in Korea, he served 13 months with the 40th Infantry Division.

Graduating from the U. S. Military Academy, class of 1944, Major Hyman served the next three years in the Pacific with the 11th Airborne Division, followed by three years as an instructor at the Airborne school, Fort Benning, Georgia. He is a graduate of both the Advanced course at Fort Benning and the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

The major's decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Combat Infantry Badge with Star, the Master Parachutist badge, and the Bronze Star Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters. He resides on the Presidio with his mother and his two children.

CWO GEORGE W. MOONEY is now with the G-2 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has just returned from Korea, where he served 16 months with the 2nd Division and later the 7th Division, as administrative assistant, 17th Infantry Regiment. He was awarded the Commendation Ribbon for his services there.

Veteran of 28 years' Army service, Mr. Mooney served with the 4th Coast Artillery in Panama from 1941-1945 and it was while there, in 1944, that he received his warrant. His Panama service was followed by two and one-half years as an instructor in administration, Ground General school, Fort Riley, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Mooney reside in San Francisco, and their son is a civilian employe at McClellan Air Force Base, California.

2nd Lt. CHARLES D. KINGSLEY, an Army aviator, is a new arrival at the 521st Engineer company (Topographic Aviation).

Lt. Kingsley graduated from Iowa State college in June 1954, with a BS degree in industrial economics and labor relations and at the same time received his reserve commission through the college ROTC unit.

Called to active duty a month later, and attended the Engineer officer's basic course, Fort Belvoir, Virginia. In October he attended the Army Flight training school, Gary Air Force base, Texas, and then entered the Tactics Flight training school at Camp Rucker, Alabama, where he received his wings.

The law granting free mail privileges to servicemen in Korea expired June 30. However, the Defense Department said it would continue to grant free mail privileges pending congressional action.

Tradition was carried on in the best family manner, recently, when Lt. Col. Harley N. Miller, Sixth Army G-3 Section, swore his son, Reginald Stanley Miller, 18, into the Regular Army. Reginald will take his basic at Fort Ord.

Like Father . . . !

Family Tradition Proves Strong Lure For Son of Sixth Army Staff Officer

Continuing in the tradition of his father, Reginald Stanley Miller, 18, son of Lt. Colonel Harley N. Miller, of the G-3 Section in Sixth Army Headquarters, recently enlisted in the Corps of Engineers.

Reginald's father, Col. Harley Miller, very recently completed the Army's course at Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. During World War II, he served with the 9th Infantry Division in the European Theater of Operations, and participated in the campaigns of North Africa, Normandy, and Central Europe.

Though he attended Leavenworth High School in Kansas while his father matriculated through the Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, the younger Miller lists Seattle, Washington, as his hometown.

Sergeant George I. Kolsky, Army Recruiting Sergeant for the San Rafael area where Col. Miller and his family are living during his assignment to Sixth Army Headquarters, said "Reginald is a fine young man and will make a very capable soldier."

Young Miller received the Oath of Enlistment from his father on the 27th of July and was ordered to Fort Ord, California, for basic training. After this initial training, Reginald will be assigned to an Engineer training unit.

Defense Will Send New Dependents Medicare Plan Before Next Session

Washington (AFPS)—A new medical care program for dependents, providing uniformity in the three services for the first time, has been presented to Congress for action at the next session in January.

The key feature is a voluntary insurance plan.

The proposed legislation is broader and differs in several aspects—particularly the insurance provision—from the bill on the same subject rejected at the last session of Congress.

The DOD is hoping to make dependents eligible for medical treatment wherever they may be living. This has been theoretically the case up to now. But, in practice, dependents living far from installations often find it difficult to take advantage of military medical facilities.

The new program would offer dependents the option of using military facilities or being covered by a group insurance plan purchased by the DOD.

The cost of the latter would be split between the government and the serviceman. As their share, individuals would pay no more than 30 per cent of the monthly premium. The maximum charge would be three dollars a month.

The proposal also would protect service dependents not covered by insurance nor accessible to military facilities. The government would share the cost of civilian treatment.

In this case, individuals would pay 30 per cent of the first $100 in medical expenses and 15 per cent of the rest. In cases where hospitalization was not needed, they would pay a flat 30 per cent of the cost.

The bill strictly limits the kinds of medical treatment to be provided or paid for with government assistance. It applies only to diagnosis, acute medical and surgical conditions, contagious diseases, immunization and maternity and infant care.

Civilian Employees May Revoke Waivers On Life Insurance

An opportunity for Presidio civil service employees who filed a waiver of coverage under the Federal Employee's Group Life Insurance prior to 1 January of this year, to revoke such a waiver by written notice prior to 1 September is now in effect.

This amendment, made by the Civil Service Commission, makes it possible for those employees who now wish the federal insurance, to obtain it immediately, as the individual will be insured on his first day in a pay status following the day his notice of revocation is received.

Persons will be insured without regard to age or physical condition.

Those desiring to revoke their waivers may obtain the necessary forms at the Civilian Personnel division office, Bldg. 36, where the notices are to be filed.

Officer Completes Spare-Time Work For AB Degree

Good news came twice to Capt. Samuel P. Marshall, of the post finance and accounting section recently, as he received a promotion to captain from the Army, and a certificate from San Francisco State College stating that he had completed work for an A. B. degree in social sciences.

The captain joined the Army as an enlisted man in 1940, and began correspondence study through the University of Missouri two years later, while overseas.

Because Army service kept him moving from place to place frequently, he was never quite able to meet the one year's residence study required by most colleges and universities for a degree.

During the last year while stationed at the Presidio, Capt. Marshall managed to earn 27 semester hours college credit in evening classes and thus meet the last requirement for his A. B. degree.

At the post finance and accounting section, Capt. Marshall is the assistant F&A officer and also the authorized certifying officer. Captain Marshall plans to begin work on a Masters degree in the fall.

Testing

Foot Soldiers of the future may be equipped with their personal "walkie-talkies" for combat orders if tests such as the one being carried out by Pfc. John McBride (right) of Ft. Carson, Colo., prove successful. Cpl. George Payton makes notes on the test of the miniature radio.

Corps of Engineers Will Study Hurricanes To Decrease Fatalities

The Army's Corps of Engineers has initiated action on a survey to ascertain the behavior of hurricanes and to determine possible means of preventing or minimizing loss of life and damage to property resulting from them, the Department of the Army announced recently.

Lieutenant General S. D. Sturgis, Jr., Chief of Engineers, said the survey authorized by Congress following the disastrous Hurricane Hazel of last year, would be made in cooperation with the U. S. Weather Bureau and other federal agencies concerned.

General Sturgis said tentative plans call for concentrating most of the studies for the first year in New England, Long Island and the Carolinas, which are the areas where the greatest loss of life and heaviest damage were experienced last year due to Hurricanes Carol and Hazel.

Help Wanted!

Lagging AER Drive Needs Big Boost By Local Soldiers

A Presidio soldier on temporary duty in Southern California last week received a long distance call from his family in the East, informing him that his father was seriously ill. He received permission to return to his unit at the Presidio and upon his arrival here requested a leave, which was immediately granted.

His next stop was at the office of Major Elsie Weible, Army Emergency Relief officer.

Short of funds, he asked for a loan of $100 to pay for transportation to his home. Within four hours after receiving his leave orders he was on a plane heading to the bedside of his father.

Major Weible pointed out that the non-interest-bearing loan will be repaid by the soldier in monthly allotments of $10 beginning September 30.

The current Presidio drive for funds for Army Emergency Relief has resulted in donations of $1,369.21, according to Major Weible, with several large units not yet reporting.

The Army's own fund-raising campaign is conducted each year to permit a voluntary contribution from every member of the Army and raise in a single campaign the funds for both organizations.

Last year's campaign netted the Presidio AER fund more than $4,700 from individual contributions. An additional contribution of $2,100 was made by individuals and organizations after the campaign was over.

During the first six months of this year more than $5,000 in AER funds were loaned Presidio soldiers who faced financial hardship and emergency situations.

Judging from previous experience, it is estimated that nearly 100 soldiers will be in desperate need of emergency loans from local coffers next year. Army Emergency Relief is the only agency designed specifically to help soldiers in tough spots.

Emergencies and hard times occur without regard to the US or RA prefix of the soldiers' serial number. Career soldiers as well as those serving a two-year hitch are given assistance according to need, not according to time in grade, or Army status.

If Presidio soldiers who face periods of financial emergency next year are going to be able to receive AER assistance, considerably more money than has been raised so far will have to be contributed before the campaign ends 31 Aug.

In no way is Army Emergency Relief a charitable institution. It is simply the machinery set up so that the soldier through annual AER contributions can help give his buddy a small loan or grant when he needs it most.

To meet the needs of the local AER program soldiers are urged to match their first contributions and thus help provide enough money to keep AER on firm ground at the Presidio.

Army Soon to Move AFPE, 8th Army Hqs., From Japan to Korea

Tokyo (AFPS)—United States Army Forces Far East and Eighth Army Hq. will move soon from Camp Zama, Japan, to Seoul, Korea.

The move involves no major changes in the development of army forces, since the bulk of troop strength in the Far East ready is in Korea, Hq. Far East Command stated.

Eighth Army forward headquarters in Seoul will be redesignated as AFPE/Eighth Army Hq.

The rear headquarters will remain at Camp Zama.

Gen. Isaac D. White, who recently assumed command of AFPE/Eighth Army, will also serve as U.N. commander in the field. His headquarters will be located in Seoul and he will command troops under the rear headquarters through a deputy commander at Camp Zama.

draft!

The Department of Defense has requested the Selective Service System to provide Armed Forces Induction Stations with 10,000 men during October for assignment to the Army. The number of men to be inducted for October is based on attainment of approved strength after allowances have been made for enlistments and re-ups.

Safety Awards from the National Safety Council were presented two Post Motor Pool drivers, this week. Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, congratulates Mr. Fred Ellis, who won his award for five years of accident free performance. Mr. Raymond Logan, looking on, won his award for a year of perfect driving. (Army Photo by Staknis)

Slowly and carefully Sp3 Gilbert L. Guerrero, D Battery, 9th AAA Gun Battalion works a design on this piece of rawhide at the Post Crafts shop, where everything but the leather is furnished soldiers wishing to complete money-saving "do-it-yourself" projects.

Do-It-Yourself!

Billfolds, Belts And Purses Are Easily Made At Service Club Crafts Classes

Soldiers who aren't using the facilities of the post crafts shop at the Service Club may well be missing an unusual opportunity to make a variety of useful and decorative articles in their off-duty hours.

To make leather articles such as billfolds, belts, and purses, all the soldier needs do is purchase at low cost the leather required for his project at the PX and go to the Service Club craft shop during a free evening or week-end.

There, Miss Ruth Rippon, post arts and crafts director, will be on hand to provide the person with the necessary tools and whatever technical guidance the individual happens to need.

To get started on a leather craft object, the industrious soldier must first dampen the leather.

Step two consists of transferring the desired design from a plastic template to the leather. This is done by firmly pressing the imprint of the design on the leather.

The portion of the designs which needs to be carved is then cut with a swivel knife.

After the carving is completed it is time to begin the fourth step which is stamping. For this phase such tools as bevelers, seeders, camouflagers, veiners, and background stamps are required.

If the original color of the leather is to be changed by dyeing or staining, this process will constitute the fifth step.

Now, almost finished, holes must be punched for lacing and the final step of assembling ensues.

Making leather articles may be even easier than this story indicates. You can try your hand at this and other arts and craft projects at the Service Club on week-day evenings from 1930 to 2200, on Saturday from 1400 to 1800 and on Sunday from 1400 to 2200.

Fort Mason, California, San Francisco Port of Embarkation, set an all-time record in June when 54,348 pieces of personal property of transient Army and Air Force personnel were handled.

Photography Display Set For Tuesday At Presidio Service Club

"Posing the Model and What to Do With the Spare Parts," is the fascinating title which Mr. George Baker, photographic editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, gives to his story-display of "glamour" photography, which he will present at the Presidio Service club Tuesday (23 August) at 2000.

He will be assisted by a San Francisco model, Miss Betsy King.

Photographers of note (or no note) may bring any type camera they wish and shoot pictures from all angles. They may be either black and white or fast color high speed Ektachrome or Anscochrome. Adequate lighting will be provided.

Mr. Baker is a former Navy photographer, an instructor in photo techniques at the Fred Archer School of Photography in Los Angeles, demonstrator for a national film company and is nationally known as a lecturer and illustrator.

For the past 20 years, the U.S. government has burned its worn-out money. Before that it was converted into a paper pulp and sold.

Soldier Review Sets Presidio Service Club Opener Sunday Night

The "Soldier Review," which has been in rehearsal the past several weeks, will be staged at the Presidio Service Club Sunday night at 2000. It is open to both military and civilian personnel and admission is free.

Incidental to the show will be the presentation to the winner of the "Name the Combo" contest, of an album of recordings made by the combo which is accompanying the show.

The group will give its second performance in the Letterman Army Hospital Red Cross recreation hall on Monday night at 2000.

Directed by Sp2 Stan Dreyfuss, assisted by Sgt. Jay Brinkmeyer and Sgt. Elsie Davis as production coordinator, the show will be a simulated closed circuit radio broadcast and has many a unique feature in store for its audience.

Members of the cast include Sgt. George MacMullen, Sp2 Louis Jimenez, Pvt. Al Cunningham, Pvt. Gordon Freeman, Pvt. Donald Francisco, Pvt. Lee Titchen, Pvt. Robert Yakutis, Pvt. David Tucker, Pvt. Wanda White, Marilyn Harner, Rosalind Reinstra, Al Chevez, Tim Murphy and George Fifikle.

Combo members include Pfc. Thomas Smith, Pvt. Carl Radosch, Pvt. Theatry Jones, Pvt. Stephen Schall and Pvt. Joseph Carlisto.

cinema previews

"THE SEA CHASE." An adventure story of an outlaw ship and the people aboard her, and the fight to bring the ship to home port—if possible.

"KISS OF FIRE." Violent drama of love and intrigue among the early Spanish Royalists as Princess Lucia of Spain renounces her throne to marry a royal household guard.

"NOT AS A STRANGER." The story of the making of a doctor, based on the best-selling novel. Idealistic and uncompromising, he is helped towards his ideal by a girl.

"THEY WERE SO YOUNG." A yankee meets a girl under some embarrassing circumstances and refuses to take her seriously until violence shows him that her almost unbelievable story is true.

While attending Pennsylvania State College three years ago, Sp3 Howard Kuni decided to do something about his life-time interest in aviation. He enrolled in a civilian flying school and one year later was granted his credentials as a bona fide civilian flyer.

Today, the young Pennsylvanian's interest in aviation has become a full-time occupation.

Shortly after earning his civilian flyer's license, he signed up for a three year hitch in the Army. After completing basic infantry training, Sp3 Kuni went to Helicopter Mechanics School at Gary Air Force Base, Texas.

There he spent 13 weeks learning the many complexities involved in the repair and maintenance of the Army's versatile three-passenger H-13 helicopter and another four weeks studying the mechanical intricacies of the much larger H-19 helicopter.

Assigned to the 521st Engineer Company (Topo Aviation) of the 30th Engineer Group, he held down a slot with the unit's crew of helicopter mechanics, responsible for organizational maintenances of the Alaska-mapping engineers' aerial eggbeaters.

Once again Sp3 Kuni's civilian flight training paid off. The 521st Engineers selected him to attend Link Trainer and Repairman's School at Chanute Field, Illinois.

During his five-months' stint at Chanute, the young aviation enthusiast learned how to operate, maintain and repair the Link Trainer which is the chief training apparatus used by the Army, Navy and Air Force in many phases of flight training programs.

Effective this week, Fidos of all types residing on the Presidio have got to be kept under lock and leash. Wanderers over the military reservation will be collected by the Provost Marshal, unless they are under obvious leash or voice control of their masters. Additionally, the deputy post commander will require owners of dogs who bite or attack persons, to remove the animal from the post should circumstances so warrant. These rulings have been placed in effect following study of data which shows that since 1 June, there have been 13 cases of dog bite on the Presidio. Military dog owners who err will be reported to their superiors for discipline while civilian violators will be referred to the U. S. Commissioner's Court.

Loan Examiner and Correctional Officer Vacancies Are Critical

An insufficient number of applications have been received to fill positions of savings and loan examiner and correctional officer in Federal agencies in California, the U. S. Civil Service commission's office in San Francisco said today.

Savings and loan examiners, $4,525 to $5,440 a year plus travel and allowances, are employed by the Home Loan Bank board in Los Angeles and Portland to audit savings and loan associations in western cities. Persons are sought with knowledge of accounting in financial institutions, and a written test will be given. Applications are being accepted by the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, Home Loan Bank Board, 215 W. Fifth Street, Los Angeles.

Correctional officers, $3,670 a year, are needed at Alcatraz and at the federal correctional institution, San Pedro, California. No experience is required. The written test will be held in mid-August to meet the extreme shortage of candidates for this position.

Applicants must possess good morals, patience, capacity for leadership, and must be an influence for uprightness among prisoners. Applications are being accepted by the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, U. S. Penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kansas.

The Quartermaster Corps anticipated an expense this fiscal year of $509,481 for feeding and bedding 143 horses, 539 mules, 1,715 dogs; for feeding 1,560 pigeons; and for additional bedding for troops in maneuvers and field exercises.

Another Conquest in the weekly retreat parade "Honor Unit" competition went to the Honor Guard, Station Complement. Here, M/Sgt. William E. Traffic Ace!

MP At Complicated Crossing Gives Almost Automatic Signals

As the age of automation progresses, a lot of people are wondering how long it will be before a machine replaces them. But in the case of Cpl. Richard N. Tanski, Company B, 505th MP Battalion, the more appropriate question is how long did it take him to develop machine-like motions while directing rush-hour traffic at Presidio's busy five-cornered intersection at Lincoln and Presidio boulevards.

Execution of the precise hand and arm signals, which is a trademark of MP's in general and Cpl. Tanski in particular, is not exactly an automatic reflex.

Good traffic signalling is the result of a great deal of training and practice and also a high degree of individual interest.

Handling vehicular and pedestrian traffic at the complicated pentagonal intersection, however, requires almost a sixth sense, or at least the development of extraordinary coordination of hands and eyes.

Vehicles and pedestrians are virtually everywhere and it's Cpl. Tanski's job to keep the traffic moving somewhere in an orderly and safe manner. While one arm is signalling traffic from one or more directions to stop, his other hand is quickly motioning vehicles and pedestrians approaching from other directions.

The precision MP's first exposure to the standard Military Police hand and arm signals came during his eight weeks' stint at the MP training school at Camp Gordon, Ga. There, after first learning the signals in the classrooms, the local traffic ace and his classmates spent long hours polishing up the signals at a large area called "Traffic City" which simulated actual streets and intersections and which presented realistic traffic control problems.

He was assigned to Company B, 505th MP Battalion, in June, 1954, and began pulling a variety of routine MP chores. When it became apparent that Cpl. Tanski was unusually proficient in traffic control operations he was chosen for a position on the traffic squad which is supervised by PMO operations M/Sgt. Donald S. McDowell.

Like his buddies on the squad, Cpl. Tanski holds two letters of commendation, one from Col. Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, and another from Lt. Col. Keene Saxon, 505th MP Battalion commander and post provost marshal.

Eyes Everywhere is a must for this Company B, 505th MP Battalion Cpl. Richard N. Tanski who's been directing traffic at the Presidio's five-cornered intersection at Presidio and Lincoln Boulevards.

"The biggest problem faced by traffic control MP's," says Cpl. Tanski, "is that drivers all too frequently watch the traffic instead of the MP. If drivers would concentrate on watching the MP and wait for his signal they could easily save themselves a few extra minutes on the trip."

A native of Euclid, Ohio (a suburb of Cleveland), Cpl. Tanski graduated from Cleveland Benedictine High School and completed two years at John Carroll University before entering the Army.

He received basic infantry training at Ft. Knox, Kentucky. His service with the 505th MP's has convinced Cpl. Tanski that he ought to pursue a career in police work when he leaves the service in January.

Safety Council Awards Army Initial Plaque For Community Service

The National Safety Council awarded the Department of the Army a plaque recently, in recognition of "Extending its excellent traffic safety program to benefit communities of its installations."

The plaque presented by Maj. Gen. George C. Stewart (USA Ret.), general manager of the National Safety Council, was accepted for the Army by Secretary Wilber M. Brucker.

Safety officials stated that the Army had received an annual award from the council for the past eleven years but that this was the first time it had received a competitive award for activities recognized as beneficial to the community.

Reds Win Tourney Play; Edge Oakland Army, 5-4

By Pvt. Boh Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Scoring the winning run in the last of the seventh, the Red Raider softball squad defeated the Oakland Army Base nine, 5-4, last Friday to capture the Central Division playoff. Coach Van Kirk and his softball whizzes leave this morning at 0930 from Hamilton Field for the All Sixth Army Tournament at Dugway, Utah, 22-26 August.

The local nine scored two runs in the first inning only to have Oakland come back with three runs in the top of the second. Bouncing back, the Post tallied twice to take a narrow one run lead. Oakland tied the score with a single run in the top of the fifth setting the stage for the dramatic seventh inning.

With two away, Kennard Whitfield, Raider first sacker, hit a high fly ball to left field that dropped in safely for a triple. On the throw-in, Oakland short-stop Garcia made a wide throw to third base for an error that enabled Whitfield to scamper across the plate with the winning run.

Allowing Oakland but four hits was Presidio chucker Ed Johnson, who turned in the most outstanding pitching duties of the five-day Central Division playoff. In the three games Johnson hurled, he allowed but six hits, which included a no-hit performance against the defending champion Fort Ord Warriors.

Third sacker Lee Dluginsky captured batting honors in the final contest, gathering two hits in four trips to the plate. One of these hits being a mighty two-run homer in the third frame.

Big Ed Tycenski walked off with the hitting honors for the five-day tourney. Waving a mighty mace, the Presidio backstopper garnered six hits in ten trips to the plate for a .600 average. Second baseman Ken Bush led the Raiders in defensive play with eight put-outs and 11 assists.

Col. Pash Wins PostHole-In-One Tourney,$toAER

Nearly 200 golf hopefuls turned out last week for the 1955 Presidio Hole-In-One Tournament. The large number of golfers poured a record $92.50 into the coffers of the Army Emergency Relief drive on the Presidio.

Colonel Pash, G-2 Sixth Army, proved the winner when he laced a seven iron into a stiff wind to two feet, five inches of the cup just as the tourney was drawing to a close. Just four inches farther away was Captain Jarrard of Sixth Army Transportation for second place.

Tommy LaForge, son of Colonel LaForge, AAF Exchange, won the non-military division when he played an eight iron shot to within two and a half feet of the pin. The tourney was held on the first hole of the Presidio Pitch and Putt course with play being directed by Ralph Scanlon, Pitch and Putt Director.

Following are the top finishers little league

Tomorrow at 1300 on the Pop Hicks field, the final Presidio Little League games get under way. The Giants, winners of the second half of major play engage the Cards, winners of the first half. The winner of this game will be crowned with the championship for the 1955 season in Little League play here at the Presidio. The second game features the Cubs against the Giants to round out the year in League play. Admission is free and all personnel are urged to attend as the games are both exciting and closely played. Pop Hicks field is located behind the Officers' Club on Post.

Sixth Army Signal Tops Pacific Set

The Sixth Army Signal crew climbed back on top of the Pacific Bowling League this week boasting a thirty-seven win and fifteen lost record. The Signal gang have smashed a grand total of 35,852 pins so far in league competition.

Second place is in the hands of the 102d MRU rollers. The record men boast a 33 and 15 record in their 48 games rolled so far. Dropping down to the third slot is B Company of the 505th MP's. The policemen have a 29 and 15 record so far this season.

Thorne of the Keystone Kops took home the individual high game in the Pacific set by smashing out 242 pins. In second place was Morgan of Sixth Army Signal with 232 pins knocked over. Individual high series was captured by Dickey of the B Company MP's with a 596 roll. High team game with handicap went to Hq. Company, Station Compliment with 1,082 pins downed. Just two pins back were the Hilltoppers No. 1 with 1080 pins to their record.

Awards for rolling a 200 game went to five kegsters in the Pacific League. Topping the list was Ishihara, Hilltoppers No. 3, with 226. Second place went to De Palito, Post Dispensary, with a high of 225. Next was Hoffacker of the 102d MRU with 221, Van Ausdall, Hq. Co. Station Complement with a 201 roll. Finishing with a score of 200 even was Palomares of the 102d MRU pin-splitters.

dove shoot

Elimination of the traditional September 1 opening of dove season this year, in favor of a Saturday, September 3 opening, has been approved by the California Fish and Game Commission.

The move was taken in response to sportsmen's requests for Saturday openings of all fish and game seasons, to give the average rod-and-gunner a better chance to get out on opening day.

Also missing in the 1955 regulations is the usual noon opening. Hunters can now start shooting one-half hour before sunrise on the opener, as well as on the other days of the September 3 to October 2 season, the Commission has decreed. Shooting must stop at sunset.

Wac's Take 3 Out of 3 Softball Tilts

Getting in shape for the All-Sixth Army Women's Softball Tournament, the Presidio Wac's blasted out three wins in their only three starts this week to loom as the team to beat in the on-coming tourney.

The five-day double - elimination tournament starts here Monday at 1320 hours on the Ft. Scott diamond. Following a brief opening speech, Col. Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, will throw out the first ball and the game will begin.

Wac teams from Ft. Ord, Ft. MacArthur, Ft. Lawton, Ft. Mason and Oakland Army Base will be here trying to take home the Sixth Army crown currently held by the Presidio girls.

Starting the week off with a bang, the Army lassies captured a slugfest from the Hamilton Air Force Base nine, 12-9. The contest, played at the Ft. Scott diamond saw the locals get off to a two to one lead in the second inning, only to have Hamilton tally three times in the top of the third. Not to be denied, the Army girls came right back with five big runs to extend their lead to 7-4.

After a scoreless third inning, the local garrison added two runs in the fourth and fifth, ending up with one run in the sixth for the win.

Next to fall were the Ft. Mason Wac's by the tune of 13-5. Edwards took the hill for the Presidio and with the exception of two innings held the visitors scoreless. Meanwhile her mates had batted out a four-run lead in the first, added two more in the third and tallied three times in the third. Continuing on, the locals added four runs in the fifth and ended their day's scoring with a pair in the seventh.

Wednesday, the girls journeyed to Hamilton Air Force Base and emerged with a slim five to three win. Edith Thompson made her first start on the mound a winning one while Betty Stokely hurled for the Air-girls.

The Wac's tallied once in the first and twice in the second to take a three to one lead into the third frame. They added single runs in the third and fifth innings, while Hamilton was able to garner only two more, for their third win of the week.

Softball finals. The All Sixth Army tourney is also a five-day event, 22-26 August. From Dugway, if victory beckons, the trail leads on to Ft. Dix, N. J., for the All Army tournament, 5-10 September.

Army Pistol Team Wins SE Matches

Army pistol shooters, led by M/Sgt. Joe Benner, of West Point, N. Y., won 187 out of 265 places and all but one of the team championships in the southeastern regional pistol matches at Jacksonville, Florida.

The U.S. Marine Corps won 57 places, while the Cuban army won 13; USAF, five; U.S. Navy, one; and Cuban navy, one. Remaining spots were won by various civilian and police entries.

Benner, perennial army pistol champion, won the four-day grand aggregate championship with a total of 2,613 points. He finished six points ahead of marine 1st Lt. William McMillan of Parris Island, S. C.

1st Lt. William Burkman, U.S. Army, Europe, scored 2,523 points to win the sharpshooter grand aggregate match. Sgt. Merriweather Jones of Ft. Lewis, Wash., was next with 2,498 points.

Another USAREUR pistoleer, Capt. Clarence Guelker, won the marksman class grand aggregate, winning eight of the 10 individual events.

In the grand aggregate expert class M/Sgt. Roy Ratliff of Ft. Bragg, N. C., finished ahead of the field with a total of 2,532 points.

An Army private from Brize Norton AFB, England won the 1955 USAFE golf championship. Pvt. Jennings Randolph, Jr., carried a 284 in the 72-hole tourney to win the title. Two strokes behind was Herb Weaver, 1984 US AFE champ, who is also from Brize Norton AFB.

Raiders Sweep 3 Games Ryan Stars On Mound

Continuing on the winning path the Red Raider baseball nine swept to three victories this week in preparation for the on-coming All-Sixth Army baseball tournament.

Falling victim to the Raider onslaught were Hamilton Air Force Base, 4 to 1, the New Pisa Restaurant, a class A semi-pro club, 13 to 4, and the Healdsburg All-Stars, 13 to 4.

The Hamilton Flyers were the first to fall as First Lieutenant Lester Ryan and Bill Davis combined pitching chores to limit the Flyers to but five hits and one run while the local batters were blasting Hamilton's chucker Ted Kalauer for seven hits and four tallies for the win. The big blow of the game coming from the bat of Presidio's Roger Shelstad, who laced a low curve ball into far center field for a round tripper with a pair of mates aboard in the third.

Lieutenant Ryan took the hill again against the semi-pro New Pisa squad, setting the visitors down with but four runs on five hits. His opponents on the mound, Lee Samardef and Jack Thaer didn't fare so well as they were pounded for 13 runs on 12 hits. Shannon, Duke and Miyahara led the Raider attack with two hits apiece. Yukio Miyahara's triple in the third frame was the game's longest blow.

Private Roger Collins stopped the Healdsburg All-Stars as he spun a three hitter to halt the All-Stars 13 to 4. Leading the Raider attack were Shelstad with a triple and single, and Shannon Rubcic and Cringoli with two singles each.

Winners of the Bay Area Armed Forces League, the Red Raiders boast a .736 average for

PFC Joey Giambra Set For Clash With Olsen

Professional boxers and the Army haven't always seen eye to eye. The boxer is often quick to tag service time as wasted as far as his professional career is concerned. The Army has a hard, fast, and necessary rule, that in the service, military pursuits come first. So it was with some trepidation that I approached big name boxer Pfc. Joe Giambra for an exclusive, service slanted interview.

POINTING to his "Ike" jacket is Joey Giambra of Ft. Hood, Texas. Joey has served 18 out of his 24 months' hitch and credits the Army for improving him as a fighter. His clash with Carl "Bobo" Olsen takes place August 26 at the Cow Palace.

I got the surprise of my life!

For Pvt. Giambra, slated to mix in a non-title affair with middleweight champion Bobo Olsen at San Francisco's Cow Palace next Friday night, not only credits Army life with improving his outlook and determination to be the next middleweight champion of the world, he is convinced that regular hours and solid food have added 10 badly needed pounds to his title chances.

As for mixing, temporarily, a military and professional career? Let Giambra tell it in his own words.

"For the first 12 months I was in the Army no one even knew I was a boxer, let alone the world's fourth ranking middleweight. It could have stayed that way as far as I was concerned, but a dyed-in-the-wool boxing fan recognized me."

Such becoming modesty isn't a trait that boxers are noted for, yet in the case of good looking, soft spoken Joey, it seemed neither calculated nor out of character. The well set up young private first class from Buffalo, New York, continued to answer questions quickly and candidly.

He was proud of the military record he had made to date.

"I'm a mortar loader with the 704th Tank Battalion at Fort Hood, Texas. Pretty good at my job too. I fired expert in all weapons during my basic and that early training seems to have carried over into my present job."

Giambra devotes spare time to training and of course boxing. He's assistant coach for the Fort Hood team, and is proud of the fact that he has contributed to the development of six post champions. As for training, Joey does several miles of road work before reveille each morning. His coaching job gives him time for work on the bags and gym calisthenics.

Giambra has had four local fights since entering service, winning three via the KO rout and one by decision. He has a fine overall record of 46 wins against three losses. Twenty-four of his victories have been knockouts. He has beat such ranking performers as Joey Giardello, Tuzo Portugues, and Italo Scortichini.

As for Bobo Olsen? Well, Pfc. Joey Giambra has determination, youth, ten solid new pounds and perhaps, most necessary of all, a sensationally improved left hook.

However, win, lose or draw, Pfc. Giambra is proving that a top contender isn't necessarily a bum soldier. That like anything else, Army life is just what you make it. He'll have the best wishes of a lot of fellow soldiers riding on that good left hand, when he tangles with the middleweight champion, next Friday night. More important than that, he'll carry with him for the rest of his life the personal satisfaction of a job well done for his country. (Casey)

PREP stars are numerous as East Bay meets West Bay this Sunday, at Kezar Stadium. John Barbieri (l.) will start at a halfback slot for the West squad. From Saint Ignatius High, John was an All-City selection for three years. His counterpart Bob Sibilia (r.) was chosen on last year's All-Alameda county squad as center. His 230 pounds will play offensive tackle and also middle guard on defense.

East Bay vs West Bay Prepsters Battle Sunday

Bringing together the cream of the Bay region prep football talent, the first annual East Bay vs. West Bay prep all-star game gets underway this Sunday at Kezar stadium. Kickoff is slated for 1400 hours.

The East Bay, coached by Fremont's (Oakland) Bob Wasgatt and Berkeley's Fred Moffett, are slight favorites late this week. The main reason for this favoritism seems to be six veterans of last month's Shrine North-South game, all listed as starters for the East squad.

However, West Bay coaches Dutch Elston of Mission and Milt Axt of Polytechnic expect all of their players to be fit as a fiddle come Sunday and expressed no worry over the outcome. Both squads feature the "T" formation so plenty of scoring action is assured.

The game is being sponsored by the 20-30 clubs in the Bay region for the benefit of their youth activities program. Teams will be made up of 25 players each, all seniors who graduated from high school this past year. The 20-30 clubs hope, beginning with the 1955 game, to establish the game as an annual contest.

Plus providing a source of revenue for broadening their youth programs on both sides of the bay, the clubs hope to establish the game as a major sporting event in Northern California.

Admission prices for the game will be $.50 for military personnel showing ID cards, $1.00 for general admission seats, and $2.00 for reserved seats.

more deer!

Prospects for the 1955 coastal deer season, which begins August 6 and continues through September 18, are generally better than last year, when all-time record deer bag was set, Department of Fish and Game wardens report.

Throughout Region III, embracing coastal counties from Mendocino through San Luis Obispo and the major early season deer producing areas, the animals are in excellent condition.

Two factors will affect the kill in that area, the wardens report. Fire danger will be extreme and may limit opening of some private land. Another is that more ranches have been leased for hunting clubs, which should increase the harvest in counties where most land is privately owned.

By the end of FY 1954 the U.S. Naval Reserve numbered approximately 678,000.

Terry Leads U.S. Air Force To Golf Title

Lieutenant Ray Terry of Patrick Air Force Base captured the 1955 Interservice Golf Championship, with a 72 hole total of 295, at Langley Air Force Base, Virginia.

Terry's win paced the Air Force to the Interservice Title with a team score of 1211. General Weyland, Comdr., TAC presented the James Forrestal Interservice Golf Trophy to the USAF team. The USA and USMC tied for second place with team totals of 1237. The USN team placed fourth with a team score of 1240.

The championship was determined on the twentieth green when Terry sunk a 15 foot putt, thus defeating Lt. Barber Perrin USAF, in a sudden death playoff. Both players finished with identical 72 hole totals of 295.

Top Army finishers were Pfc. Dan Sikes of Fort Meade, All-Army champion taking fourth place with a 302 total. In seventh place was Sp3 Bill Williamson of Fort Jackson, with 306. Sp1 Murray Jacobs, Shreveport, 314, Pfc. Dick Goerlich, Fort Sam Houston 315, and Lt. Bill Moody, Fort Bragg, 318.

fencing

Tonight a composite fencing team from the Presidio and Letterman Army Hospital will enter the Minerva Trophy Tournament, to be held at the Berkeley Fencing Club, 1740 University Avenue, Berkeley. The entrants will consist of three men and two women per team. Each of the women will fence only in foil, while the men will fence in one weapon each, foil, sabre, and epee.

Team members will consist of Col. Brownlee, Sp2 Herb Rhodes, Sp2 Thompson, Sp3 Jose Tafoya, Pfc. Chuck Ward and Brookner Brady, son of Col. Brady, Sixth Army IG. Women members are Miss Shawn Brownlee and Mrs. Shirley Canter.

Religious Data Covers All Faiths On New ID Tags

Washington (AFPS) — All servicemen now may have their exact religious preference indicated on their identification tags, the Defense Department has announced.

In the future, the single letter symbols which have been used to denote religious preference will be dropped. Religions will be spelled out or clearly abbreviated on tags issued from now on.

At present, religious preference is shown by the letter "P" for Protestant, "C" for Catholic, "J" for Jewish and "X" for all others. The "X" category is to be eliminated under the new system and specific denominations shown. The letter "Y" currently is used for personnel who indicate no religious preference.

The DOD said the new system would make it easier, in an emergency, for chaplains to insure that appropriate last rites are administered.

Tags which already have been issued will not be called in, the Department said, but servicemen may make arrangements to obtain new ones if they wish.

Paper pulping machines are being purchased by some of the Services for destruction of classified documents. This technique is said to save man-hours in comparison with burning the paper. One model can grind up 1,000 pounds of paper per hour.

Assistant Secretary Hugh M. Milton Pays Staff Visit to Sixth Army

The Honorable Hugh M. Milton II, Assistant Secretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Forces, visited the Presidio last week.

A 17-gun artillery salute marked his arrival at the Presidio where he was met by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander. After inspecting a guard of honor, he conferred on Reserve activities with General Young, Brigadier General Claude F. Burbach, Chief of the California Military District, and members of their staffs.

A former Reserve major general, Mr. Milton served on active duty as Executive for Reserve and R.O. T.C. Affairs at the Department of the Army prior to his retirement in November, 1953.

After serving as both an enlisted man and an officer in World War I, he entered the field of education, teaching at Texas A & M College. At the time of his return to active duty with the Army in World War II he was president of New Mexico A & M College.

During World War II he advanced from the rank of lieutenant colonel to brigadier general and participated in five campaigns in the Pacific, serving principally as chief of staff of the XIV Corps.

After his return to civil life in 1946 he became president of the New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell, N. M., retaining that position until his return to active military service in 1951.

Mr. Milton departed for Washington, D. C., on Monday of this week. (pictures below)

400 Billets Open For 2nd Class At AF Academy

Lowry AFB, Colo. (AFPS) — Army and AF men have many opportunities to compete for the 400 vacancies in the second class of cadets which will enter the Air Force Academy on July 9, 1956.

Qualified members of regular or reserve components of both the Army and AF have five different ways of obtaining academy appointments. These are:

1. Through the category open exclusively to members of the Army and AF. Applications must be submitted through unit commanders by Nov. 30, 1955. Complete details may be found in AFR 53-10 and AR 600-690. Fifteen vacancies are allotted for regular AF and army personnel and another 15 for members of reserve components.

2. Nomination by a U.S. senator or representative, each of whom may nominate 10 candidates who reside in their respective state or district. Within each state the nominees compete for vacancies allotted according to representation in Congress.

3. Nomination by the Vice-President, who may name 10 candidates from the U.S. at large to fill a single vacancy.

4. Competition for the 15 presidential appointments open to sons of present, retired or deceased members of the regular components of the armed forces.

5. Competition for the seven appointments open to sons of veterans of the armed forces who died in, or because of their service during WWI, WWII or the Korean war.

Applicants for the last two competitions should write immediately to the Air Force Academy, Appointments Branch, Hq. USAF, Washington 25, D. C.

In all other cases, a letter of nomination from the nominating authority, or a letter from the individual requesting permission to compete in one of the categories that does not require nomination, must be received not later than Jan. 31, 1956, at the academy appointments branch.

In addition to these other appointments, sons of Medal of Honor winners, if otherwise qualified, will be admitted to the academy without regard to the number of vacancies.

Last Call for much-needed contributions to the soldier's own Army Emergency Relief campaign at the Presidio will be in the pay lines Wednesday morning 31 August. To help give the campaign a shot in the arm, Lt. General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander (right) and Col. Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander (center), made their personal contributions to AER campaign Chairman, Maj. Elsie L. Wieble this week. Although the campaign is nearly over, slightly less than $2,000 has been contributed, a figure amounting to less than half of the amount raised last year.

Vol. 4, No. 13      PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA      Friday 26 August, 1955

Retreat Parade Today Will Highlight Retirement of Seven Career Officers

A total of seven Army officers, five from this headquarters, will retire from active duty on Wednesday. They will stand their final retreat parade on the Presidio's Main Parade ground at 1600 hours that day.

Those retiring include Lt. General Paul W. Kendall, who commanded Allied Land Forces in Southeastern Europe; Colonel Clarence G. Hupfer, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army; Colonel Carl M. Prince, Medical Section, Headquarters Sixth Army; Lt. Colonel Melvin H. Jones, Fort Amador, Panama Canal Zone; Lt. Colonel Floyd S. Hicks, Post S-2 Section; Major William G. Potts, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, and Major James Walker, Post Comptroller Section.

General Kendall, who was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in November, 1918, retires with more than 37 years of military service. During World War I he received the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action.

His World War II service was in Italy with the 88th Infantry Division, first as assistant commander, and following recuperation from a wound received in January, 1944, he assumed command of the division in August of that year and led it through the North Appenine and Po Valley campaigns.

From July, 1952, to April, 1953, General Kendall commanded I Corps in Korea and was then named chief of staff, AFCE, Tokyo, Japan, where he remained until his Southeastern Europe assignment in January of this year.

The general's other decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal, the Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart, the French Croix de Guerre and Legion of Honor, the British Commander Order of the Bath, the Italian Cross of St. Maurizio and Lazzerio and the Czechoslovakian War Cross.

General Kendall was accorded a formal guard of honor, including a 15-gun salute, Wednesday, 24 August, at Sixth Army Headquarters.

Colonel Hupfer joined the G-3 Section in April, 1954, and is completing some 30 years of Army service. He served with amphibious forces in Japan from August, 1950, to May, 1951, and during World War II commanded a separate Tank battalion of the 9th Infantry Division in the ETO.

The colonel has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Soldier's Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters and "V," the Purple Heart, the French Croix de Guerre with Palm and the Korean Presidential unit citation.

Colonel Prince served as executive officer of the Sixth Army Medical section from February, 1951, until June of this year when he entered Letterman Army hospital. He enlisted in the Army in August, 1928, and came on active duty as an officer in 1940.

In the Far East from September, 1945, to January, 1948, Colonel Prince served in various positions, including two years as registrar, 76th Station hospital, and later as executive officer of both the 13th and then the 28th General hospitals. Upon his return to the States he served as operations officer and school secretary, Medical Field Service school, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. The colonel is a graduate of both the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and the Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Virginia.

Lt. Colonel Jones, who served in the G-4 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army from 1947 to 1951, has returned to the headquarters to be retired. His most recent assignment has been with the 23rd Infantry Division at Fort Amador, Panama Canal zone, where he has been the past 18 months.

Colonel Jones served in the Pacific with the IG department during World War II, and has also served in Korea. He has been on active duty for more than 20 years and has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal, the Soldier's Medal, the Silver Life-saving Medal (Coast Guard award) and the Order of Cordoba, a Colombian award.

Colonel Hicks, present Post S-2, has been at the Presidio since March, 1952. He served as Post Confinement officer for two years, Letterman Army hospital Provost Marshal for a year, and as chairman of the 1955 Armed Forces Day Committee.

Enlisting in the Army in 1933, Major Hicks received a direct commission in September of 1942 and (Please turn to page 8)

DOD Says 14 Service Plants Closing; Await Congress Okay

Washington (AFPS)—The Defense Department has informed Congress that it plans to discontinue the operation of 14 commercial and industrial type activities in line with its policy of not conducting enterprises that can be performed by private business.

In the defense appropriations act for the 1956 fiscal year Congress required the DOD to notify the Senate and House appropriations committees at least 90 days before it proposes to discontinue such operations.

Should either committee veto the DOD's proposed action, the law stipulates that the closing of the plants must be canceled.

However, President Eisenhower, in signing the appropriations bill recently, declared the proviso is unconstitutional and said he would disregard it.

The facilities scheduled to be closed include the ropewalk at the Boston, Mass., naval shipyard and four coffee roasting plants, at Atlanta, Ga., Auburn, Wash., Oakland, Calif., and New York City.

Other activities to be discontinued are the Camp Kilmer, N.J., bakery, paint manufacturing facilities at Mare Island, Calif., and Norfolk, Va., naval shipyards, a dry cleaning plant at Ft. Benning, Ga., and cobbler shops at Gary AFB, Tex., Chanute AFB, Ill., Lowry AFB, Colo., McChord AFB, Wash., and Warren AFB, Wyo.

new info chief

Brig. Gen. Theodore S. Riggs has been named acting chief of information for the Army, succeeding Maj. Gen. Gilman C. Mudgett.

Gen. Riggs has been deputy chief of information since October 1954. Prior to that time he was an instructor at the National War College.

Gen. Mudgett has assumed command of Ft. Ord, Calif., and the 6th Inf. Div. stationed there.

CG Administers Oath to First "New Reservist"

Yakima, Wash.—Darrel E. Cushing is the first American boy to be sworn into the Army Reserve under the new Reserve Act. Darrel is the son of Superior Court Judge and Mrs. Eugene Cushing of Vancouver, Washington. Lt. Gen. Robert Young, Commanding General of the Sixth Army, swore Cushing in to the Reserves in a ceremony here on Tuesday. Darrel became a member of the 104th Infantry Division, USAR, composed of Washington and Oregon Reserves and commanded by Major General Lamar Tooze. The division is conducting their two weeks training here.

Under the new Reserve Act which became effective Saturday, the new Reserve private will be deferred from the draft and allowed to finish high school before he reports for six months of active duty. Upon completion of the active duty, he will again become a member of the 104th Infantry Division and continue with his college education.

Judge Cushing, in a statement to the press, said he was very pleased that Darrel would have the opportunity to fulfill his military obligation and still continue with his education without interruption. His brother Kevan, 20, is a member of the 104th Division Band and attended the ceremony.

There was a young soldier named Dan
Who ran his hitch 'cording to plan'
"For your information, it's Unit Rotation*
That gives me the time so I can!"

"UNIT ROTATION" gives you the time really to plan your hitch. You know in advance where you're going and when you're scheduled to move. This gives you plenty of time to make educational and financial arrangements that fit your program of rotation.

Find out how you can re-up with "Unit Rotation." See your Unit Commander now!

New Series!

Armed Services Committee Policies Pamphlet Explains New Reserve Act

Washington (AFPS)—To answer many of the questions which have arisen concerning the new military reserve law, the House Armed Services Committee has prepared a pamphlet containing an outline of the legislation's purpose and provisions in question-and-answer form. The following have been taken from the pamphlet.

1. What is the purpose of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955?

Its purpose is to improve the measures by which our reserve forces may be so organized and trained that in the event of war they can be mobilized quickly.

2. Does the act establish an entirely new reserve system?

No. It merely amends two of the principal laws constituting the foundation for the reserve forces; namely, the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952 and the Universal Military Training and Service Act.

3. What is the nature of these amendments?

There are four principal areas in which this act provides affirmative legislation: (a) improvement in the structure of the reserve forces; (b) establishment of a clear obligation to take part in reserve training, and effective measures to insure compliance with this obligation; (c) provision for the recruitment and training of young men specifically for the reserve; (d) establishment of a lesser military obligation for individuals who enter the armed forces after the act becomes law, and perform active service.

4. What is the present reserve structure?

The essential elements of the present reserve forces are the ready reserve and the stand-by reserve. The present ready reserve was designed to contain the reserve forces needed for a Korean-type emergency. The stand-by reserve was to contain additional units and individuals needed from the reserve forces in case of war or a general emergency. A lack of participation by members has resulted in the reserve forces becoming more of a pool of personnel than an organized military force.

5. What is the present difference in vulnerability of members of the ready reserve and the stand-by reserve?

The ready reserve is subject to being ordered to active duty in case of war or of national emergency declared by the Congress or proclaimed by the President. In the case of an emergency proclaimed by the President, however, Congress reserves the right to determine the number to be called. The stand-by reserve is subject to active duty only in time of war or emergency declared by the Congress.

6. In what way is the structure provided in this act different from the present structure?

In the new structure, the ready reserve is designed to contain the reserve forces needed to meet the requirements during the early phases of a war or general mobilization. The ready reserve would be subject to a continuous screening process to assure that its members are available in an emergency. The stand-by reserve on the other hand is essentially a non-organized pool from which the experienced personnel needed for the secondary phases of a war or general mobilization would be obtained through a process of selective recall.

7. Will the ready reserve be a larger force in order to carry out its new role under the act?

Yes. The statutory size of the ready reserve is increased from 1,500,000 to 2,900,000, including members of the reserve serving with the active forces.

8. What is meant by the screening process?

This is the process by which members of the ready reserve who possess critical civilian skills in excess of the requirements therefor, individuals occupying key positions in government or defense supporting industry, those whose order to military service in an emergency would result in extreme personal or community hardship, and those who possess military skills in excess of requirements will be transferred to the stand-by reserve. Top priority for such transfer will be given to members who have participated in combat.

9. What is meant by selective recall?

This is the process which in time of mobilization would be applied to members of the stand-by reserve. Under the process no member of the stand-by reserve will be ordered to active duty until the Selective Service System has determined whether he is more essential to the defense effort in the military service or in his civilian pursuit.

10. Is the stand-by reserve under control of the Director of Selective Service?

Not at all. Members of the stand-by reserve retain their military status and remain subject to military control under appropriate conditions.

11. Does the act change the relative vulnerability of members of the ready and stand-by reserve?

To a degree. Under the act, the President has the authority, in time of emergency proclaimed by him, to order to active duty up to 1,000,000 members of the ready reserve without further Congressional authorization.

12. Does the act contain provision to increase participation in reserve training?

Yes. The act imposes on all young men entering the armed forces after its enactment the obligation to take part in reserve training, and provides effective measures for insuring compliance with that obligation.

Next Week: Recruitment and Reserve Training.

Cal Slates Special Management Courses For Civilian Workers

The University of California announced this week that its comprehensive off-campus program for government personnel will begin early this Fall with the launching of 22 classes in San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Redwood City and Stockton.

Designed for supervisors up to middle management levels, these courses aim at providing "what every good administrator ought to know."

University Extension's Public Administration classes can be taken individually or in a planned series of eight, leading to the Certificate in Public Administration.

For complete details on course content, meeting schedules and fees see the Civilian Personnel training officer, Bldg. 36. Public Administration Program Announcements are available at 2493 Bancroft Way, Berkeley 4, California.

Lt. Col. Agnes A. Maley

Colonel Maley Is New Nursing Chief For Sixth Army

Lt. Colonel Agnes A. Maley, ANC, has reported for duty as chief, nursing service, Headquarters Sixth Army.

She succeeds Lt. Colonel Francis G. Gunn, who held the position since 1 August, 1951, and who now is reassigned to U. S. Army forces in Europe.

Colonel Maley has spent the past four years in the European command, where she was chief of nursing service. Prior to that she spent the period 1947 to 1951 as chief, nurse personnel section, personnel division, career management branch, the Surgeon General's office, Washington, D. C.

Entering the Regular Army on 15 May, 1930, Colonel Maley went to the Philippine Islands in 1937, where she served three years in Manila and Stotsenburg. During World War II, she was assigned to the China-Burma-India theater in 1944 and remained there for two years as chief of nursing service, CBI theater. She received the Legion of Merit for her service there.

From 1946 to 1947, the colonel served as chief of nursing service, Third Army area, and was presented the Third Army Commendation plaque at the conclusion of her tour there.

Colonel Maley received her training at the General Hospital School of Nursing, Phillips University, Enid, Oklahoma, and the University of California. She is a member of the American Nurses Association and the Oklahoma State Alumna and Oklahoma State Nurses Association.

officers recently assigned

Lt. Colonel CHARLES M. DELAMETER reported here for duty on 5 August—16 years to the day he first reported for active duty, 5 August, 1939, with the Presidio's old 30th Infantry.

He returned only recently from three years of service in Heidelberg, Germany, with the G-4 section of Headquarters USAREUR, and is now chief of the Reserve components branch, supply division, G-4 section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

During World War II, Colonel Delameter served, from October, 1941 to January, 1945, with the 24th Division, participating in the New Guinea and Philippine liberation campaigns as well as the landings on Leyte and Mindoro, late in 1944, and as member of a task force to the Arawe area of New Britain. Following his return to the States he served with the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington, and later with the 7th Armored Division at Camp Roberts, California.

Graduate of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and the associate officer's advanced Infantry course, Fort Benning, Georgia, the colonel has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal and five campaign stars for World War II. He, and his wife, and their nine-year-old daughter, and seven-year-old son, are now residing in Colma.

Lt. Colonel MARK E. CORY has been assigned as assistant Inspector General, Headquarters Sixth Army. His most recent service was in the Far East, where he spent the past year with Headquarters Central Command in Tokyo, and prior to that, a year with KMAC, in Korea.

In the Army for the past 14 years, his World War II service was in Africa, Sicily, and Italy, with the 7th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Division. He was hospitalized in November, 1943 and returned to the States. In 1949, Colonel Cory went to Greece where he spent a year as advisor to the Greek Army.

Graduate of the officer's advanced infantry course at Fort Benning, Georgia, the colonel has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart, the Combat Infantry Badge, the French Croix de Guerre and the Greek War Cross.

Colonel and Mrs. Cory, and their two sons, aged 13 and 10 years, now reside in Mill Valley.

Major BRADFORD F. MUSE has spent the past 42 months in Exchange work in the Caribbean Command with station in the Panama Canal zone. He is the newly assigned Bay Area Exchange officer, Presidio of San Francisco.

Veteran of more than 21 years of Army service, Major Muse was graduated from O.C.S., at Camp Davis, North Carolina, in January, 1943. He enlisted originally at Fort Baker, California, in 1934, and served with Btry. K, old 6th Coast Artillery. He is likewise a graduate of the officer's advanced radar AA school, at Camp Davis, and the Army Exchange school, at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey.

In the Philippine Islands, during World War II, the major was a battery commander with the 14th AA Command, from June to November, 1945, and returned to the Philippines the following summer, for 30 more months of duty there.

Major and Mrs. Muse, and their 16-year-old daughter are now residing in San Rafael.

Major CHARLES H. FOGG has been assigned to the G-2 Section of Headquarters California Military district, Presidio of San Francisco.

Native of Placerville, California, the major entered the Army in March 1941, and served in the Pacific theatre during World War II. He was stationed in Korea from 1951 to 1952, and again from 1953 to 1954. While with the Eighth Army in Korea, he was an interrogator of prisoners of war. Recently he was escort officer for the Chinese Nationalist quartermaster general on his United States tour.

Major Fogg studied Japanese and Chinese at the Presidio of Monterey Language school, and attended the Advanced Infantry Officers' course at Fort Benning, Georgia, earlier this year. He is a graduate of the University of California, where he majored in Oriental languages.

Major Fogg, his wife Hazel, and their two children make their home in Lafayette.

Major JOHN B. VALENTINE only recently completed the advanced course at the Medical Field Service school, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and is now assigned to the budget and analysis branch, Medical section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In the Far East for three years previous to entering school, Major Valentine was with the 25th Infantry division in Korea for a year and the balance with 8164th U.S. Army hospital in Japan.

In the Army for the past 13 years, the major served with the 81st Infantry Division in the Pacific for three years during World War II. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation ribbon.

Graduate of the Comptroller school, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, Major and Mrs. Valentine and their son now reside in San Francisco.

Second Lieutenant RALPH L. COFFMAN, who has been in the Army for the past year, has become assistant budget officer, Post Comptroller section, Presidio of San Francisco.

The past six months he has been in the Army Finance office at Detroit, Michigan, and prior to that served with the 10th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kansas, for three months.

Lt. Coffman received his commission through R.O.T.C. ranks at the University of California, from which he was graduated with the class of 1954, with a degree in business administration. Upon entering the service he attended the Finance school at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

The lieutenant's parents reside in Beverly Hills, California.

Helping Hand—Close to home in the case of all three men above was the flood which swept the Eastern Seaboard last week. They are turning over to Mr. Raymond J. Gilbreth, field director of the local Red Cross, $15 spontaneously donated by Headquarters Company Sixth Army to the

Quick Action

Local Unit Takes Initiative In Disaster Relief Campaign

In spontaneous response to appeals from President Eisenhower and the National Red Cross for aid to a flood-stricken Eastern Seaboard, Headquarters Company Sixth Army donated $15 Wednesday to the post Red Cross Emergency relief campaign. For three of the men, with relatives in the disaster area, the contributions were something more than impersonal gestures of generosity.

Headquarters Company personnel were informed of the local appeal at their weekly Troop Information Conference where M/Sgt. Merrill Harrison, Sixth Army Information Section, read a message from the National Red Cross, asking for voluntary individual donations. After the TIC hour, the Company as a group passed the hat for a total of $15.

The money was presented to Mr. Raymond J. Gilbreth, local Red Cross Field Director, by the three men with family ties in and around the disaster-ridden areas.

Although all of the men's families had escaped harm, Pvt. Steve Schmier of Rockville Center, Long Island, had received letters from his parents, describing the havoc wreaked by the flood in surrounding neighborhoods. M/Sgt. Ivan W. Cahoon, whose son is a Midshipman at Annapolis Naval Academy, was awaiting his account of the calamity. In Boston, Mass., Pvt. John Baker's family remained safe from the flood.

The three men joined Red Cross Director Gilbreth and other key military and civilian officials in urging units and individuals to make voluntary contributions to the campaign through the local Red Cross Chapter at Building 97.

For as the flood waters receded this week, property damage was estimated at $3,000,000,000 with 12,000 persons left homeless in six floundering states. After a personal survey of the washed out areas, President Eisenhower Wednesday was considering calling a special session of Congress to appropriate the estimated $75,000,000 needed for immediate relief. The President's own Emergency Relief Fund which he is free to use, has only $11,600,000 available.

In a nation-wide television and radio appeal, the President said, "In my opinion, everybody within the sound of my voice will sleep better tonight if he turns in everything he can spare to meet this great disaster that has happened to our fellow Americans."

Stressing the local aspects of the appeal, Col. Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, urged "every unit and individual to take the initiative in contributing whatever possible to the campaign."

Executive Order Expected to Spur Reserve Volunteers

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower has moved swiftly to put into operation one of the special reserve enlistment programs created under the new Reserve Forces Act. He has issued an executive order authorizing direct enlistments into the army and marine reserve. They are the only services that asked for enlistment quotas under the new program.

The President said he was authorizing such enlistments because, otherwise, the enlisted strength of the army and marine ready reserves could not be maintained "at the level necessary for the national defense."

"No time should be lost in moving toward the goal of stronger reserves as rapidly as the new law permits," he declared. "It is my sincere hope that young Americans will respond to this volunteer program in such measure as to insure its success."

The executive order provided the go-ahead for the Army and Marine Corps to enlist for their reserves youths below the age of 18½ for an eight-year period of service, including six months of active training.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson disclosed that the number of six-month trainees requested by the two services was well within the annual limit of 250,000 provided by Congress.

Anonymous Soldier May Have Solution To AER Mystery

"Maybe I'm just a bit soft," confessed a young Presidio soldier this week, "but I never felt I could ever really give enough to help a person out who got a tough break through circumstances which he couldn't possibly control."

"Last payday, when the Sergeant asked me if I was going to contribute to the Presidio AER drive, I automatically peeled off a buck from my new roll of bills and handed it to him without another thought in mind but what a ball I'd have that night celebrating payday."

"That was the last I thought about AER until last week when I read that the campaign wasn't doing very well, that it hadn't actually got off the ground. I'm a little short on cash at the moment, but next Wednesday, payday, that is, I plan to double my original contribution."

Doubling original contributions may be the solution to the Presidio's AER drive for some, and for others it may even mean making an initial donation.

One fact is clear, though; local military personnel are going to have to dig a little deeper before the campaign ends next payday if the Presidio is going to uphold the Army's time-honored tradition of caring for its own through AER.

Michigan Has Trouble Finding Claimants For K-Bonus Checks

Lansing, Mich. (AFPS) — Some 150 Michigan Korea bonus checks are going begging. The checks, mailed to claimants, have been returned to the state auditor general's office here from the applicant's last known address.

Most of the checks were returned from Michigan addresses. However, 38 were from armed forces addresses, and many from other states.

Korea veterans from Michigan who have failed to receive their checks should write the Auditor General of Michigan, Korea Bonus Check Writing Dept., Lansing; including their identification, claim number and current address.

Don't Set a Record!

Defensive Driving Maneuvers Scheduled As Next TIC Topic

"It was dark and the unexpected glare of oncoming headlights down the lonely highway blinded me. The driver of the approaching car refused to dim his lights. I swerved my car to the right, careening into a roadside ditch."

Could this accident have been prevented? Certainly the driver who refused to dim his lights was legally in the wrong. But the victim could have avoided the mishap, as next week's Troop Information Conference will point out.

The TIC topic, "Don't Set a Record," is part of the concerted nation-wide Slow Down and Live campaign. Since motor mishaps take the largest toll of accidental deaths among servicemen, the Armed Services safety program is calculated to help "the man behind the wheel" develop safe driving habits.

Accidents do not just happen—they are caused!

By analyzing a series of case histories of common accident situations, the TIC will show that a great deal of motor mayhem could be avoided through increased alertness and safety common sense. As in the case of the blinded-night driver, he might have spared himself hospital and repair bills, had he kept his eyes on the right edge of the road well beyond the approaching car in order to offset the glaring lights.

The emphasis of the safety campaign is on "defensive" driving. It is not the woman driver or the bad weather or the old wrecks on the road that make tragedies certain. Rather it is the attitude of the ordinary driver which makes the difference between a safe trip and a crippling or killing accident. To drive "defensively" is to be aware of such safety principles as:

1. Follow at a safe distance. Anticipate the actions of the driver ahead of you.
2. Know the "danger zone" for all conditions of weather and road.
3. Slow down before entering a curve.
4. Anticipate the unexpected.
5. Reduce to night-driving speed before total darkness.
6. Obey traffic laws, signs and signals.
7. Keep your eyes and mind on what you are doing.

16th BPO Members Set For Field Tests In Annual Bivouac

An annual dose of Army Training Program tests in the field will keep 48 enlisted men, 19 NCOs and 2 Warrant Officers of the Presidio's 16th Base Post Office busy solving tactical infantry problems at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation from 29 August to 10 September.

On the two-weeks' bivouac, the unit will be commanded by Warrant Officer Emory B. Cunningham. During the test, the unit will employ Basic Infantry tactics against an aggressor force composed of members of another locally-based unit, the 561st Engineers.

In another phase of the field problem the local soldiers will set up a mock-base post office in the field. The first sergeant of the unit is M/Sgt. William Matcaroff.

Sale of the 1955 angling licenses is running about four per cent ahead of the same period last year, when more than 1,200,000 licenses were sold.

SF Public School Registration Slated 6, 7, 8 September

Registration for San Francisco Public Schools will be held on 6, 7 and 8 September, 1955, between 0900 and 1500 hours, for those children who have not previously attended San Francisco Schools. Children who attended school in San Francisco last year are not required to register.

A child must be 4 years and 9 month old on or before 1 September 1955 in order to enter kindergarten on 12 September 1955, and must be 5 years and 9 months old on or before 1 September 1955 in order to enter the first grade. A birth certificate must be presented at the time of registration.

New arrivals living on the Presidio, but not in Park Presidio Apartments, in grades kindergarten through sixth grade will be registered at Fort Winfield Scott School, Beach and Divisadero Streets, in the Marina District, until classroom capacity is reached; after such time the Madison School, located at Clay and Arguello Streets, will be utilized. Children starting to kindergarten whose brothers and sisters attended school in San Francisco last year at schools other than those mentioned above will be registered at the school previously attended by members of their family.

For information relative to the schools serving Park Presidio Apartments call the Park Presidio Apartments Billing Office, 1504 Pershing Drive, Telephone SK 2-1830. Further information can be obtained by calling the Post TI&E Division, Extension 4449.

Children starting in grades seven and eight will be registered at Marina Junior High School, Fillmore and Bay Streets, or Presidio Hill Junior High, 3839 Washington Street.

High school students living on the Presidio and at Park Presidio Apartments may register at any one of these schools:

Galileo Francisco & Van Ness
Lowell Hayes & Masonic Ave.
Balboa Onondago & Cayuga
Abraham Lincoln 24th & Rivera
George Washington 32d & Anza

It is recommended that children living at Park Presidio Apartments who are starting junior high and high school register at the school nearest the housing area.

The Post Motor Pool will furnish school bus service. For information call extension 2143.

Hospitality 30th Engineer group style was met with the proverbial appetites of growing boys this week. Here members of Boy Scout Troop Number 2, Nevada Area Council, BSA, dig in for a full complement of Army chow at Headquarters Detachment, 660th Engineer Battalion mess hall. The scouts were here for a three-day tour of San Francisco and a first-hand view of Army living.

Early Start!

Nevada Scout Troop Obtains Glimpse Of Military Life From 30th Engineers

Once again stepping into the role as hosts to visiting Boy Scouts, the 30th Engineer Group this week billeted Troop Number 2 of the Nevada Area Council Boy Scouts here for a tour of San Francisco and a look at some key features of military life.

The Scouts, all from Reno, bunked with Headquarters Detachment, 660th Engineer Battalion. Mess facilities were provided by Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group.

The Engineer hosts indicated that the boys showed an amazing aptitude for military life. They arose each morning before daybreak, made their beds in the typical military fashion, and stood reveille at the Ft. Scott parade ground, right alongside the troops.

Even the flag raising ceremony held earlier in the morning were witnessed by the eager youths. Following reveille, the boys marched in cadence from their barracks to the mess hall where they were met with full-dress Army-sized breakfasts.

Troop Scoutmaster, Mr. William H. Curtis, stated that his boys enjoy the military-like discipline to which they must adhere. Not a single member of his troop has become sick, or met with an accident while on a scouting trip.

Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA Unit Wins AA Area Best Mess

Colonel Dallas Haynes, new commanding officer of the 30th AAA Group, made the first presentation of the organization's monthly Best Mess Award, since assuming command recently.

Presented to Sfc. R. H. Montgomery, Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA mess steward, the award is made each month on the basis of a strict inspection conducted by 30th Group officers.

Also present at the ceremony in which Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA Battalion mess hall was named superior in the local AA defense area, were Lt. Col. Lyman Burkett, CO, 9th AAA Missile Battalion and Capt. Richard Essacson, Headquarters Battery commanding officer.

Mrs. Young Will Host Informal Meeting of Post Woman's Club

Mrs. Robert N. Young, wife of the Sixth Army commander, has invited wives of the headquarters section chiefs and the officers of the Presidio Woman's Club to a morning coffee at her quarters at the Presidio of San Francisco on Monday, 29 August. Activities for the monthly luncheon meetings for the coming year will be the topic of an informal conference.

Ladies who will assist Mrs. Young are: Mrs. Charles N. Hunter, wife of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration and Management; Mrs. Thomas J. Siegler, wife of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Public Affairs; Mrs. Paul A. Mayo, wife of the Comptroller and Mrs. Joseph B. Coolidge, wife of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4.

The fall calendar for the Presidio Woman's Club will officially get under way with a welcoming tea to be held at the Presiding Officers' Open Mess on September 8. Mrs. Young is honorary president of the club and Mrs. Brookner W. Brady, wife of the Sixth Army Inspector General, is president.

Colonel Reinhart To Assume Command Of Reserve School

Colonel Allan M. Reinhart, USAR, will take command of the post U.S. Army Reserve School Thursday, 1 September, succeeding Col. Fred C. McFarland, USAR, who has commanded the school for the past five years. Colonel McFarland's next assignment is as yet unannounced.

A graduate of the Naval War College, Col. Reinhart recently completed two weeks' active duty as director of the Command and General Staff branch of the Army Reserve School. During World War II, he served at the Presidio and in Europe with the XXII Corps.

As a training center for Army reserves on inactive status, the school offers courses in Command and General Staff, AAA and Guided Missiles, Transportation Corps and other subjects. About 150 officers and EM are currently attached to the school's command.

new pow code

1. I am an American fighting man. I serve in the forces which guard my country and our way of life. I am prepared to give my life in their defense.

2. I will never surrender of my own free will. If in command I will never surrender my men while they still have the means to resist.

3. If I am captured I will continue to resist by all means available. I will make every effort to escape, and aid others to escape. I will never accept parole nor special favors from the enemy.

4. If I become a prisoner of war, I will keep faith with my fellow prisoners. I will give no information nor take part in any action which might be harmful to my comrades. If I am senior, I will take command. If not, I will obey the lawful orders of those appointed over me and will back them up in every way.

5. When questioned, should I become a prisoner of war, I am bound only to give name, rank, service number and date of birth. I will evade answering further questions to the utmost of my ability. I will make no oral or written statements disloyal to my country and its allies or harmful to their cause.

6. I will never forget that I am an American fighting man, responsible for my actions, and dedicated to the principles which made my country free. I will trust in my God and the United States of America.

Executive Order!

Department of Defense Fixes Standard for POW Conduct

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower has signed an executive order putting into effect a new, uniform code of conduct for future U. S. prisoners of war.

The code was drawn up as the result of an intensive two-month study by a special committee of civilian and military authorities selected by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson. The ten-man group, headed by Assistant Secretary of Defense Carter L. Burgess, paid particular attention to POW problems arising out of the Korean War.

In its 82 page report, the committee called for "a unified and purposeful standard of conduct for our prisoners of war backed by a first-class training program. From no one did we receive a stronger recommendation on this point than from former American prisoners of war in Korea, officers and enlisted men."

The DOD said servicemen would be familiarized with the new code through the educational and training programs of the various services.

The committee recommended that reservists, as well as those on active duty, be given thorough instruction in its meaning.

The committee recommended that servicemen be required neither to swear to obey the code nor sign a statement to do so. Neither will they be ordered to memorize it like General Orders. Instead, the committee said, every effort should be made to see that they understand it fully.

In its report, the committee denied that members of the armed forces were seriously undermined by communist propaganda in Korea. The report pointed out that "of 4,428 Americans who survived communist imprisonment, only a maximum 192 were found chargeable with serious offenses against comrades or the U.S."

NCO Wives Club Pot Luck Supper for 10 Sept., Dancing Set

At the monthly meeting of the Presidio NCO Wives Club held recently, plans were completed for a potluck supper to be held at the Fort Scott NCO club on Saturday, 10 September.

The food will be prepared and served buffet style by members of the club and a nominal fee of $.85 a person and $.50 for children under 12 will be charged. Serving will begin at 1900 hours and there will be orchestra dancing later in the evening.

Those who attended the planning meeting included Mesdames Merrill S. Harrison, Roy Delp, Leon Busbee, Joseph Webster, Edward Therens, J. F. San Nicholas, Henry Reitz, Raymond Decker, Perry Valk, Maurice Dineen, Marion Phinney, Robert Hall, Cora DeQuir, Margaret Suttas and Hildgarde Randolph. Mrs. Anita Carol was a guest.

A Novelty is never registered when the Honor Guard wins the weekly parade competition. Captain Eugene J. Gasior, Honor Guard commanding officer, is shown here as he was presented the "Honor Unit" plaque by Lt. Col. Milton H. Price, Headquarters Sixth Army G-2 section, who served as commander of troops.

Science Scoops!

"Previews of Progress," Show Slated At Fort Baker Service Club Tuesday

"Previews of Progress," a dramatic non-technical science show sponsored by General Motors will be shown at the Fort Baker Service club Tuesday at 2000.

Already witnessed by millions of Americans, this traveling presentation graphically presents many of the most recent developments in scientific research, which will contribute to a more enjoyable and comfortable life in the years to come.

For instance, jet propulsion is actually more than 2,000 years old. To prove that statement, a replica of Hero's aeolipile of 200 B. C., the world's first known jet engine, will be presented.

The modern application of jet propulsion will be illustrated in two ways. First, a miniature jet engine, operating on the same principle as the German V-1 buzz bomb, will be placed in actual operation after being anchored in place. The blast of its high pressure flame creates a roar that fills the auditorium.

Following this demonstration, models of a Douglas Skyrocket fighter plane and a V-2 rocket will be driven at high speed the length of the auditorium, propelled by tiny but powerful jets of compressed gas.

A bottle with a dual personality will be demonstrated. The bottle is used to pound a nail into a piece of wood, then it is shattered by dropping into it a small piece of abrasive material.

The refrigerant, Freon, will be used to run a steam engine. To illustrate that nobody can foretell the ultimate use of any invention, it will be demonstrated how Freon was used to save millions of lives during World War II.

One of the most unique demonstrations in electronics will be the broadcasting of sound over a beam of light. Here is music that is definitely on the beam—a tiny beam from a concentrated arc lamp. This pin point arc is a spot of light that is one-tenth the size of a period made by a typewriter, and yet, with it an entire symphony can be reproduced.

Most recent addition to the show is a sequence demonstrating how the energy of the sun might be harnessed. An electric motor is operated using nothing more than the light from a 100-watt lamp and the heat from a candle.

But the experiment that compares with any feat of magic is the manufacturer of synthetic rubber. The demonstrator merely pours two liquids into a pop bottle and shakes. In sixty seconds, out jumps a large ball of white fluffy rubber—twelve or fifteen times the volume of the bottle containing it. "Jumping Rubber," which at present has no commercial application, was invented by Dr. Avery A. Morton, a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Overwhelmed describes the attitude of M/Sgt. John Vekich, Headquarters Company, 505th MP Battalion as he appraises this "Hookah" sent to him from Pakistan by an Army friend who apparently wanted to rib the local NCO about his hobby of collecting pipes. Question now is what to do with it.

Show-Stopper!

Hookah From Distant Pakistan Surprises Pipe-Smoking NCO

By Sp/3 Jack Everhart
Star-Presidian Associate Editor

"The crate in which it was shipped looked like a miniature coffin," said M/Sgt. John D. Vekich, chief clerk of the Post Provost Marshal's Office. "I had no idea that a friend stationed in Pakistan would send me a Hookah just in order to rib me about my collection of pipes."

The Hookah which puzzled the veteran MP this week could hardly be categorized as a mild or subtle ribbing.

Standing about four feet high, the pipe is mounted on a silver metal water cooler. The bowl of the pipe is large enough to hold nearly two standard packages of American tobacco, roughly, a week's smoking. The pipe's flexible stem conforms to the overall proportions of the water-conditioned smoker. It's easily a yard long.

The smoke of the tobacco passes through the water in the bowl and is thus cooled.

The person who sent the local NCO the exotic apparatus is a former Presidian, Sfc. Homer Scudder, who was M/Sgt. Vekich's neighbor here for a year.

To find out a little bit about this unique pipe, the PMO chief clerk beat a hasty retreat to the encyclopedia. He discovered that it was probably being used by Near-Eastern and Indian connoisseurs of tobacco smoking before the time of the Genghis Khan.

In India the pipe is called a narghile, because its water-cooling receptacle was originally a coconut which the Indians call narghil.

Although M/Sgt. Vekich will keep the pipe in his collection of novelty items acquired during his Army career, he doesn't intend to place it among his assortment of 26 pipes.

An inveterate pipe-smoker for the past 16 years, and a fancier of quality pipes since 1946, the MP noncom keeps only pipes in his collection which he smokes.

"In spite of Hookahs and the like," insists M/Sgt. Vekich, "the best pipes are made right in the U.S." I usually get from 5-10 years of good smoking from them."

Local Wacs Lead Tourney Play

Score 75 Runs in Three Game Sweep; Title Near

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Under Monday's sunny blue skies and to the music of the Sixth Army Band, Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, threw out the first pitch and the All-Sixth Army Women's Softball Tournament got under way on the Presidio PX diamond.

By Wednesday night the defending champion Presidio girls were well on their way to a repeat of 1954 when the locals walked off with the title.

In their first contest the local lassies blasted Fort Mason, 25-10. Harris with four hits in five official trips to the plate led the Presidio batting attack, closely followed by Thompson and LaDue with three hits apiece. Thompson had a pair of home runs to top the game in extra base blows.

The local garrison jumped off to a seven run lead in the first innings adding 14 more tallies in the second frame before Mason was able to break into the scoring sheet. The defending champions added single runs in the fourth and fifth innings and wound up their day's scoring with two counters in the last frame.

The Presidio's second win came at the expense of the Oakland Army Base nine, in a contest called at the end of four innings. Sgt. Julie Kite's heavy hitters got off to a six-run lead in the first frame, added four in the second, eight in the third and finished up with seven tallies in the fourth. Oakland's two runs came in the bottom of the third. Second baseman Argue led the batting parade with four hits in five trips to the plate, including one home run.

Ruth Gavigan won her second victory as she set the cross bay rivals down with five scattered hits.

The big game of the week came Wednesday when the local garrison trounced Fort Ord, 25-6 in seven full innings. Ruth Gavigan hurled the win for her third victory of the tourney. Batting honors went to third baseman Thompson with two home runs and seven runs batted in. Center fielder Harris and catcher Christian added four base blows to round out the homers for the local girls. Center fielder

The first game of the five day double elimination tourney saw Fort Ord edge the Fort MacArthur club, 12-6. Ord led three to nothing going into the third inning only to have MacArthur score three times to tie the contest up. Fort Ord came right back with two tallies in the fourth and salted the game away in the fifth with six big runs. Homeruns were divided between the ball clubs with Miller of Ord and Iida of MacArthur hitting four base blows.

Fort Ord won their third contest when they blasted Fort Lawton to the tune of 24 to 6. Ord collected twenty-one hits to Lawton's eight but the northern girls committed 15 errors to lose the ball game. Right fielder Grant and shortstop Kittle hit round trippers for the Ord squad and center fielder Powell had one for the Fort Lawton nine.

Fort Lawton bounced right back in the afternoon to drop Fort Mason out of the tournament by the score of 15-12.

Lawton started off with five counters in the first frame, two in the second, three in the third and four in the fourth, to take a fourteen to three lead into the bottom of the fifth. Fort Mason then blasted out eight big runs to put themselves back in the game, fourteen to eleven. However, they were able to score but one more run in the next two innings and suffered their second loss.

The sixth game saw Fort MacArthur knock Oakland Base out of the tourney with an eighteen to six win. MacArthur was never headed as they rolled up their 18 runs before Oakland was able to score. Left fielder Taylor hit the game's only home run for Oakland in the seventh frame.

Going into yesterday's play four teams remained in competition as Oakland Army Base and Fort Mason were eliminated as they were beaten twice. This leaves the Presidio, Fort Ord, Fort MacArthur and Fort Lawton. The final game will be played today.

Male personnel wishing to compete for a position on the Presidio Bowling team should contact the Post Sports Office for information, Ext. 3968. Date of the initial roll-off will be Saturday, 27 August. A total of six lines will be bowled, with three lines at Fort Scott, and three lines at the Presidio alleys.

First Scrimmage

Red Raider Grid Aces Trounce San Quentin

The 1955 edition of the Presidio Red Raider Football squad rolled into action last Saturday by trouncing the San Quentin Prison eleven 19-6 in a game type scrimmage played inside the Prison walls.

The scrimmage was played under game type conditions except there were no kickoffs and the coaches were allowed on the playing field. All of the 42 Presidio grid hopefuls saw action in the bruising four quarter scrimmage. Head Coach Larry McInerney was highly pleased over the showing of his soldier gridsters but commented that "a lot of hard work awaits the squad before the regular season begins."

Hard charging lefthalf Jim Guimarin put the Presidio ahead to stay with five minutes left to play in the first quarter when he bulled his way over left guard for two yards and the touchdown. Guimarin, a veteran from last year's University of Baylor squad, added the extra point with a perfect placement.

Bobby Ratliff, bulled his way over left tackle for three yards and the second six pointer, with just four minutes gone in the second quarter. The score came after a drive of 65 yards, featuring fine running by Guimarin, Ratliff and Ed Colarossi, plus the passing of Morris Maytubby, Raider quarterback.

Halfback Jack Everhart tallied first for the Prison eleven when he galloped 62 yards for a teede on the last play of the first half. The conversion attempt was wide and the half ended 13 to 6 in favor of the Presidio. San Quentin's Everhart brought the score up to 13 to 12 when he went 65 yards on the first play of the second half on an end sweep from the single wing formation used by the Prison team.

The Red Raiders bounced right back with eight minutes gone in the third quarter when Maytubby, Raider quarterback, lofted a 40 yard pass to Guimarin, who sprinted 20 yards for the final score of the afternoon. The conversion attempt was wide to the right and so the score stood 19 to 6.

Lefthalf Jim Guimarin led the Presidio backs, carrying the ball 14 times for 112 yards and a 8.0 average. Fullback Bobby Ratliff carried for 13 times for 85 yards and a 6.5 average. Ed Colarossi with a .48 average and Leroy Waterland with a 4.0 average were other mainstays in the Raider running game. The hard driving quartet rolled up 251 yards rushing for the local garrison.

Quarterbacking Coach McInerney's T formation was Morris

Maytubby, former Fresno State College ace. Maytubby had a perfect day, tossing the pigskin oval for five completions in five attempts, good for 142 yards and a touchdown.

Standouts in the front wall for the Raiders were Burt Terrell and Frank Wilson at the defensive tackle positions and John Snyder at center. Playing a great game as linebacker was fullback Bobby Ratliff, former All-Border Conference star at West Texas State.

Other than lefthalf Jack Everhart's two touchdown runs the Prison eleven gained but three yards rushing through the strong Raider front line. San Quentin attempted eight passes from their single wing formation, but completed none and had one intercepted by the alert Raider pass defense.

Tomorrow night in their first practice game of the season, the Red Raiders travel to Santa Cruz for a charity clash with the Santa Cruz Sea Hawks. Little is known of the Sea Hawks except their lineup is loaded with college stars and they have three victories in three early season starts. Following is a tentative offensive-defensive lineup for the Raiders.

SECOND place finishers in Presidio Little League competition were the Cards. Winners of the first half of League play the Cards dropped a close 4 to 0 loss to the Giants in the League playoffs. The Cards are coached by Captain Ellis, back row left, and were managed by Colonel Barnes. The Cards showed lots of hustle this year and will be the team to beat in next year's Little League play.

Brothers Duel

Giants Take Little League Playoff From Cards, 4-0

The Little League Giants captured first place in the official league playoffs last Saturday by edging the Cards, four to nothing on the Pop Hicks field. The contest was between the Giants, winners of the second half of league competition and the Cards, winners of the first half of the summer baseball play on the Presidio.

The final game saw Giant hurler Earl Stewart give up but four scattered hits in out-pitching his brother Tommy Stewart, who gave up only five singles. The Giants scored two runs in the fourth inning on a walk and two errors to take a narrow lead. They added two more in the fifth on a walk and two singles for the final scores of the six inning game.

Fielding was the deciding factor in the contest, as the usually smooth fielding Cards committed nine errors while the Giants had a perfect day afield. The only extra base blows went to the Cards as Bob Long in the first and Tommy Stewart in the second had two baggers.

The Giants were awarded engraved brass belt buckles by the Presidio Officers Club for taking first place. The handsome buckles have the inscription, Golden Gate League, 1955 and will have the individual player's names engraved also.

The consolation game saw the Cubs go on a batting rampage to take the Yanks into camp to the tune of 17 to 1. George Leonard pitched for the Cubs and Earl Pegram suffered the loss for Yanks. Second baseman Jim Holimon of the Cubs made the best catch of the day when he speared a line drive in the third inning, going far to his right to make the catch.

Following the double header the 1955 Presidio All-Star was named. The players were chosen by the four coaches of the various team and were divided into three classes. Five 12 year olds, five 11 year olds, and five in the ten years and under class. The 12 year olds were Earl Pegram, Yanks; Jim Doerner, Giants; Pat O'Conner, Cubs; Tom Stewart, Cards; Pete Nichols, Cards and the alternate was Tom Delaney of the Yanks.

Eleven year olds were Earl Stewart, Giants; Bob O'Conner, Cubs; Kim McIntire, Cubs; Teddy Waite, Cards; Sam Mullins, Cards; and the alternate was Jose Salgado, Yanks.

For the ten and under division, Freddy Patrick of the Giants; George Leonard, Cubs; Brian Whaitte, Giants; Jay Krause, Cards; Irving Agent, Giants; and Tommy Delaney, alternate from the Cubs.

Reds Take Two Wins In All-Sixth

The Presidio Red Raider Softball team won two early victories in the All-Sixth Army Softball Tournament being held this week at Dugway, Utah.

Their first win came at the expense of the Fort Lewis, Washington ballclub in a thriller that went into extra innings. The two teams were tied four to four at the end of the regulation seven innings, however, in the eighth frame the Presidio Red Raiders erupted for ten runs to crush their northern foes 14-4.

The second Presidio win came over Fort MacArthur, Southern Division champions, ten to four. MacArthur got off to an early lead by scoring four runs on four hits in the top of the first inning only to have the Raiders come right back with six tallies in the bottom of the first. Presidio chucker Ed Johnson, Headquarters Company, 505th MPs, salted away his own ballgame with a grand slam home run into left center field, his first of the year.

This ended the scoring for the day for both teams, as Johnson of the Presidio and Valdez of MacArthur gave up but six hits apiece during the seven inning contest. The Red Raiders gained a slight edge in fielding as they committed but two errors and the MacArthur squad committed three in a closely played ball game.

Fort Lewis bounced back after their early loss to the Raiders to knock Earl Douglas out of the tournament 17-2. The Lewis crew overcame a weak fielding Fort Douglas squad with a barrage of 14 hits while their hurler Rhodes was scattering seven singles. Erratic fielding was another reason for Fort Douglas' loss as they committed five errors afield.

The five-day, double elimination tourney is due to wind up action today with the results appearing in next week's Star-Presidian. The winner of the All-Sixth Army Tournament goes on to Fort Dix, New Jersey, for the All-Army Softball Tourney, 5-10 September.

Pin Splitters!

Ft. Baker Engineers Win Presidio Summer Bowling

The Fort Baker Engineers edged out the Sixth Army Signal rollers by one-half a game to top the final standing in the Presidio Summer Bowling League over the Presidio Alleys. The Engineers emerged with a 41 and 15 record for the tough 56 game schedule. The Signal crew right on their heels all the way finished with 40 and a half wins and 15 and a half losses.

Third spot was captured by the Mix Ups with a 35 and a half to 20 and a half slate in official competition. The Fin Comps finished fourth ahead of the Barons and the Crissy Flit-Dits. Seventh place fell to the Qmers, who edged out the San Francisco Marines for the last two spots in league standing.

Whitesell topped the Fort Baker keg splitters with a 169 average, tops for the Engineers. Potter, with a 155 average, finished in second spot just ahead of Daglow's 150. Adair led the Sixth Army Signal rollers with a 167 high average, closely followed by Oakley with a 162 average.

Highest team game with handicap for the Summer roll went to the fourth place Fin Comps with a 1058. High team series with handicap was captured by the second place Sixth Army Signal kegsters with a sparkling 3046. Morgan of the Fin Comps took first place for having rolled the highest game of the season with a 245. Thorne, with a 233, and Jacobs, with a 230, took the next two places.

Over in the Pacific Bowling League the Sixth Army Signal rollers kept their hold on the top spot with a 41 and 15 record. Second place went to the 102d MRU crew with a 36 and 16 record. Nearly tied with the Records crew is the Post Dispensary with a 38 and 18 total in league play.

Thorne of the Keystone Kops rolled the individual high game of the week when he smashed 242 pins. Morgan of Sixth Army Signal, with a 237, and Macias of Dispensary, with 233, took the runner-up spots. Headquarters Company, Station Complement won the high team game with handicap when they finished with a 1082 pins smashed. Just two pins back was the Hottoppers No. 1 squad with 1080.

National League play saw the Flashers continue to top the team standing with a 30 and 18 record. A red hot battle continued for second place with the Asps holding on to a narrow lead on the strength of a 27 and a half win and 20 and a half loss mark. The Recruiters are tied for third place with the Hooks, as each team boasts a 27 and 21 record.

High average fell to Hoffacker of the King Pins with a 178 average. Johnson of the league-leading Flashers finished second with 174 pins split. High game went to Goodnight with a smashing 244 roll. Johnson finished second with a 234 and third place fell to Carlisle with 228 pins downed.

A four-way tie for first place still exists in the new Presidio Bowling League standing. The Spades, Duds and the Mix Ups continued on with identical four and zero marks to lead in league play. Four teams, each with a two-two mark, tied for the second rung in league standing. They are the Fort Baker Engineers, the 16 Bops, Physical Standards and the Qmers.

Murphy of the top-flying Spades captured the top individual high average of the week with a 194. Individual high series also went to Murphy with a 582 mark. Whitesell of the Fort Baker Engineers took the individual high game with a 211 roll.

Grant Golden of the Eighth Army, and winner of the All-Army Tennis crown will meet Whitney Reed, Air Force champion, in the finals of the Interservice Tennis Tournament today at Quantico, Virginia.

Golden trounced Dick Macy, Air Force, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1, while Reed was disposing of James Dye of the Air Force, 6-2, 6-3, 8-6, yesterday in semi final matches at the huge Virginia Marine Base.

In doubles play, Conway Catton and Keith Self, winners of the All-Army as well as the Sixth Army crown, were defeated in a four set thriller by Reed and Keith Self, Air Force title holders, 3-6, 6-2, 10-12, 6-3.

Swordsmen Take First In Tourney

In their first stab at the Minerva Trophy, one of California's highest fencing prizes, a composite team from the Presidio and Letterman Army Hospital took the coveted award in a clear cut victory at the Berkeley Fencers' Club last weekend.

The composite Presidio first team registered a slashing win, without a single team loss, in the competition with the Olympic Club and the Halberstadt School of Fence. For five years the much-prized plaque had been won by either Olympic or Halberstadt until last Friday when Letterman entered the matches for the first time.

This week the team presented the plaque to Brigadier-General Paul I. Robinson of LAH. The plaque with the LAH victory noted on the nameplate will be kept in the Letterman trophy room until next year when it will be offered up again for competition.

The second Presidio-Letterman team entered in last week's matches, tied for second place with Olympic and Halberstadt.

On the first team, Col. Laurance Brownlee, G-4 Sixth Army, wielded the foil; Sp/2 Herb Rhodes, the sabre; and Sp/3 Jose Tafoya, LAH, the epee. Two women, Mrs. Sam Canter and Mrs. Grace Mukabe, LAH, completed the foilwork against the opposition. Mrs. Canter has been chosen to compete in the 1956 Olympics in Australia.

It was the same first team which played in the U. S. Nationals last year in New York City. The team is coached by Mr. William O'Brien, a civilian, who donates his services in his spare time.

On the second team which slashed its way to a second place draw with Berkely and Halberstadt were Sp/2 Leo Thompson who handled the epee and Pvt. Charles Ward on the foil. Mr. Brookner Brady, son of Col. Brookner Brady, Sixth Army I-G, wielded the sabre. Miss Shawn Brownlee, daughter of Col. Brownlee and Mrs. Vera Perkey handled the foils.

Frank Eidom of SMU scored a touchdown for the College All-Stars in their 30-27 win over the pro Cleveland Browns. He will play for the Brooke Army Medical Center, Tex., this season.

TROPHY winners in last month's Presidio Tennis tournament were awarded just prior to the first game of the WAC Softball tournament. Presenting the trophies were Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, and the winners were (l. to r.): Captain John Fleming, Master Sergeant Anus Velarde and Private First Class Mat Schmutz.

Kennedy Meets the press, even though his career as representative to the Mississippi state legislature does not begin until next January. Sp. 3/c John L. Kennedy, newly elected to that governing body, is asked about the many facets of state programming and decisions which his new duties will prevail upon him to make, by members of the San Francisco press. Kennedy was notified of his election by his wife and campaign manager Tuesday night. He is presently stationed here with the Sixth Army Chaplain's section, and will be discharged from the Army in January. Shown at the conference are l. to r.: William McPhillips, San Francisco Examiner; Jerry Flamm, San Francisco Call-Bulletin; Gloria Hetherington, Star Presidian, Presidio of San Francisco; Sp. Kennedy, Pete Trimble, San Francisco Chronicle; George Dushek, San Francisco News, and Hugh Brown, San Francisco News photographer.

New Congressman

Chaplain's Aide Wins Election To Mississippi's Lower House

Facing his first major press conference late this week, the newly elected representative to the Mississippi state legislature, Sp 3/c John L. Kennedy of the Sixth Army Chaplain's section, came in contact for the first time with many vital national issues.

Reporters and news photographers converged on him in a Presidio press conference during which questions and answers literally flew and 24-year-old Kennedy handled himself with the polish and decorum of an old pol.

It was 2330 hours Tuesday night when a telephone call from his wife back in Holly Springs, Mississippi, gave Kennedy the news that he had been elected.

And it was to his wife that the new state representative gave the greatest share of credit and praise for the victory. "She campaigned actively for me from the moment she knew this was my dream. She went from door to door throughout our town, throughout our county, seeking supporters for me. And at the height of the campaign, she took just enough time out to become the mother of our second daughter who was born on 18 June." The Kennedys also have a 15-months-old daughter.

Sp Kennedy will be, of course, one of the youngest of the 140 representatives who will gather for the opening of the legislative session on next 3 January. He is the youngest from his county of Marshall, of which Holly Springs, with a population of some 4,000, is the county seat.

This farming county, located in the northern portion of the state, is 45 miles from Memphis, Tennessee, and Sp Kennedy is the third generation of his family to reside in the community. His father, now deceased, was a merchandise broker, and his mother is presently a secretary with the health department there.

And he carried his town. In the first primary he ran against nine opponents; in the second primary (which in Mississippi is the actual election) he had six opponents.

All this with what was of necessity a very limited campaign. The man is in the Army and some 2,200 miles from home.

"It only serves to point up the tremendous amount of work which was done by my wife, my relatives and my friends, so that I might have a chance to fulfill my desire to serve my fellow man," Kennedy said.

From a purely non-political family, young Kennedy said desire to serve was his basic reason for entering politics. "I would have run four years ago if I had been old enough," he explained.

Education-wise, the new representative has been in hot pursuit of books ever since his graduation, cum laude, from high school. He has attended both Mississippi State and the University of Mississippi, and since his arrival on the Presidio last 12 October, he has been attending both San Francisco State college and the Marina Adult Extension school at night.

He entered the Army on 12 January, 1954, and, following basic training at Fort Bliss, Texas, the Army sent him to map compiling school at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, followed by both trimetregon mapping and multiplex map compiling courses, in all of which he finished at the top of his class.

Following some seven months with the 30th Engineer Group at Fort Scott, Sp Kennedy joined the Sixth Army Chaplain's section in May, where he is administrative assistant to Chaplain (Colonel) John T. Kilcoyne, the Sixth Army Chaplain.

Coincidentally, his discharge from the Army will also take place next January.

Between sessions of the legislature (his elective term is four years) Sp Kennedy plans to attend the University of Mississippi Law school, and become a full-fledged lawyer, a field in which he is confident he can best pursue his aspirations—both to mankind and to the body politic.

Major Potts, on duty with the Sixth Army AG Section since August, 1951, was first with AGP and since August, 1952, with Reserve components. Just prior to coming here he completed 39 months in the Far East with Headquarters 8th Army and the Japan Logistical Command.

Enlisting in August, 1935, Major Potts attended O.C.S. at Fort Washington, Maryland, and was commissioned in February, 1943. In the ETO from November, 1943, to July, 1945, he served with Headquarters U. S. Army Forces and the United Kingdom Base. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation Ribbon.

Major Walker has been with the Post Comptroller Section since March, 1953, coming here from service with the Comptroller Section of the Far East Command.

From 1946 to 1949 he was fiscal officer, Quartermaster Section, Headquarters European Command, and then served three and one-half years as fiscal officer, the Engineer Center, Fort Belvoir, Virginia. He has more than 27 years of Army service.

Evening High School Courses Offered Here To Commence 13 Sept.

The Post Education Center announced this week that four high school courses will be offered military personnel on-post this fall, beginning 13 September, by the San Francisco Public Schools.

Along with successful completion of the High School GED tests, these courses are all part of the basic requirements for a San Francisco high school diploma.

Counseling for the high school program and all other education programs is available at the Education Center, Building 117, telephone extension 2974 and 3189.

Colonel Francis H. Falkner New Sixth Army Engineer

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, has announced the assignment of Colonel Francis H. Falkner as Sixth Army Engineer. Colonel Falkner comes to his new assignment from Washington, D.C., where he was resident member of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors. He succeeds Brigadier General Henry J. Hoeffer who has been reassigned South Atlantic Division Engineer, Atlanta, Ga.

A native San Franciscan, Colonel Falkner is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, class of '28, and holds a BS degree in civil engineering from the University of California.

Prior to his Washington assignment, Colonel Falkner served two years as the Senior Army Member of the Joint Landing Force Board at Camp LeJuene, North Carolina. This assignment was preceded by a two-year tour of duty as District Engineer at Honolulu, T. H.

Colonel Falkner spent the early part of World War II as District Engineer at Huntington, W. Va., where he was responsible for some $30,000,000 (M) in industrial war plant construction. He was later assigned as G-4 with the Engineer Amphibian Command at Camp Edwards, Mass.

In 1943, Colonel Falkner was ordered to organize, train and command the 594th Boat and Shore Regiment for the 4th Engineer Special Brigade. He later led his unit to support duty at New Guinea, New Britain and the Philippine Islands. Participating in the assault landings at Lingayen Gulf.

Following a period as G-4 with the Philippine Base Engineer Section, Colonel Falkner returned to command of the 594th Boat and Shore Regiment, now attached to the 33rd Division. His unit served with the initial occupation of Japan.

In 1945, Colonel Falkner returned to the U. S. following a brief hospitalization for tropical disease. His subsequent stateside assignment was as executive officer with the South Pacific Division Engineer, in San Francisco.

Colonel and Mrs. Elizabeth H. Falkner have one son, Charles H., 21, a senior at Stanford University.

The Army Chemical Corps has announced development of a radiation detector, no larger than a package of cigarettes, which is expected to replace the film badge. Unlike the latter, the detector, known as a tactical radiation dosimeter, can be used repeatedly and no processing is needed. Liquids in five tubes change colors when a dangerous amount of radiation is present in the individual wearing the dosimeter.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 2 September 1955

★ ★ ★ Gen. Kendall Ends 37-Year Career In Final Salute

Strategy for Operation 288 is plotted by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, chairman of the Bay Area Crusade Military Cabinet, and Maj. Elsie Weible, co-chairman of the Presidio campaign. With a $30,000 objective, planners of the drive at the Presidio and its sub-posts are seeking to solicit a day's pay contribution from all military and civilian personnel. Gen. Young urged the Presidio community "to be generous" in their gifts to the "288 vital agencies" represented by the concerted Bay Area Drive. Unit solicitors will hold their drive for pledges from 6 to 9 September.

Give a Day's Pay!

Post Begins Operation 288 In United Crusade Campaign

"Let 'Give a day's pay' be your slogan," urged Col. Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, as he briefed a committee of unit representatives Tuesday for the opening phases of Operation 288, the Bay Area's military mission in the 1955 United Crusade campaign.

Representing 288 recognized local and national charities, the United Crusade's 1955 One Big Give drive will serve over 90 per cent of the health and welfare organizations in the Bay Area. It represents this year 2,370,000 citizens of five counties in a concerted drive against disease and poverty in the Bay Area.

The objective of the Presidio and its subposts in the $10,000,000 crusade is $30,000. An ideal contribution for both civilian and military personnel has been set at one day's pay. The military scale ranges, for example, from $2 for an E-1 to $35 for an O-8. Similar estimates have been made for civilians.

From 6 to 9 September, a corps of unit representatives will carry on a campaign to realize that goal of an average contribution of 24-hours wages from every individual. Although the solicitors will be interested in cash, the major immediate drive will concentrate on pledges to be paid over the next two months—in two installments for service personnel, in four for civilians, if desired.

Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, is chairman of the United Bay Area Crusade Military Cabinet.

Heading the local drive are Col. Lundquist, chairman; Major Elsie L. Weible, co-chairman and secretary-treasurer, and Major Charles A. Frances, publicity director.

Col. Lundquist described the local campaign as a "grand joint operation in behalf of both the civilian and military. "These 288 organizations," he said, "are doing exactly what they purport to do—providing much-needed services for people who would otherwise have to do without many of the most essential necessities."

The United Crusade includes most of the volunteer charity and health research agencies in San Francisco, East Bay, West Contra Costa, San Mateo and Marin counties. It cuts across civilian and military needs, representing organizations in which all citizens have a direct interest—the USO for example, as well as many of the health and research agencies from which everyone benefits—such as the Multiple Sclerosis Society and the Heart Association.

As a combined drive, the United Crusade is able to economize on operating expenses and repetitious campaigning. According to Miss Clarita Robinson, the Crusade's Staff Military representative, the cost of running the campaign, plus the year-round operation of five regional offices, is held to only 8.9 per cent of the total contributions. This year each agency in each region will be given 99 per cent of its last year's receipts. The surplus will then be allocated on the basis of carefully determined need. "So the money really goes back to the community," Miss Robinson pointed out.

Lending his support to the campaign, Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, said, "The San Francisco Bay Area is our community and the United Crusade is the best way for us to support the whole community. I hope you will be generous in your gift to these 288 vital agencies."

Uniform Board Okays New Light Raincoat For Army Personnel

Washington (AFPS)—The Army uniform board has recommended that the chief of staff approve a new lightweight taupe raincoat for issue to enlisted men and for purchase by officers and warrant officers.

The proposed raincoat, which has been found to be completely waterproof, is similar in appearance to the taupe officer overcoat now being worn.

It is a lightweight, belted model made of 1.8-ounce nylon coated on the inside with polyvinyl butyral. Tests have shown that it does not mildew or get sticky.

The new raincoat is designed for garrison wear.

army commander

The Annual United Crusade Campaign for funds will be conducted at the Presidio of San Francisco from 1 September through 31 October, 1955.

This year, for the first time, the five counties in the Bay Area—San Mateo, San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, and Marin—have joined the United Bay Area Crusade. This combined effort will greatly reduce the cost of the campaign and make it possible for the individual to give where he works and be assured that the community where he lives will also receive its share.

To accomplish the goal assigned to the Presidio requires the wholehearted interest and support of everyone. It is important that each person contribute; civilian employee and military personnel alike, married as well as single persons. It is important that each person's contribution be as large as he can afford. The United Bay Area Crusade combines all the charitable drives throughout the year except the March of Dimes and Army Emergency Relief.

I urge that each of you give generously to the United Bay Area Crusade.

VA Says:

New Law Will Allow Many Veterans To Replace Expired Term Policies

Veterans of the Korean conflict who lost their World War I or II GI term insurance because their policies expired within 120 days after their discharge may now apply for replacement of that term insurance under a new law.

Veterans Administration said the new act is Public Law 194, 84th Congress.

Under this act, veterans whose GI term insurance expires after April 25, 1951, either while they are in active service or within 120 days after discharge may replace such insurance within 120 days after discharge, or within 120 days after July 29, 1955, whichever is later.

They must file application, meet good health requirements and pay the premium at their attained age in order to qualify.

Previously, only those GI term policies that expired while the policyholders were in active service after April 25, 1951, could be replaced within 120 days after discharge.

No provision was made for the replacement of term policies that expired within the 120-day period after discharge. The new law adds the latter period for replacement.

In addition, the new law grants another opportunity for replacement to those persons whose term policies expired while they were in active service after April 25, 1951, but who failed to apply for replacement within 120 days after discharge. These persons now have 120 days after July 29, 1955, in which to apply.

VA said detailed information may be obtained from any VA office or by writing to the District Office where the veteran's insurance records are maintained.

New Law!

Servicemen Now On Active Duty Must Fulfill Reserve Obligations

(Editor: This is the second of a series on the new reserve act.)

Washington (AFPS) — The new military reserve law, though probaby having its greatest effect on men joining the armed forces after its passage, also contains provisions of importance to servicemen currently on active duty. Here are the key questions and answers pertaining to them which have been provided by the House Armed Services Committee.

1. Does this act reduce the military obligation for persons who entered the armed forces prior to the date of its enactment?

No. Such persons are required to remain a member of a reserve component until the eighth anniversary of their entry into the armed forces.

2. Does the act cancel the military obligation of combat veterans?

No. However, the law specifically provides that combat veterans will be given special consideration for screening from the ready reserve to the stand-by reserve.

3. What is the nature of the present eight-year obligation?

An individual serving in an eight-year obligation is upon release from active service transferred to the ready reserve, unless he has had five or more years of active service, in which case he is eligible for transfer to the stand-by reserve. Individuals transferred to the ready reserve may spend the remainder of their eight-year obligation in the ready reserve. They are not subject to the compliance measure for participation in reserve training.

4. Under the present eight-year obligation, how does an individual get from the ready reserve to the stand-by reserve?

He may voluntarily participate in the ready reserve training program (National Guard or reserve), and at such time as his active service and period of ready reserve participation total five years he is eligible for transfer to the stand-by reserve for the remainder of his obligation.

5. Does the act affect the military obligation of anyone now in the active service or in the reserve forces?

Yes. Incentive programs affect three categories of persons.

(a) A person now in the National Guard who entered before age 18½ may reduce his required period of participation from age 28 to eight years by undergoing not less than

late wire

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has taken quick action on three enlistment programs created under the Reserve Forces Act to build a trained and ready reserve as rapidly as possible.

Under the only program affecting men now in uniform, the Army is offering a shortened ready reserve obligation to those who leave active duty before July 1, 1957.

They can fulfill their ready reserve obligation by serving for one year with any Army reserve unit. They then can complete any remaining military obligation in the standby reserve, in which participation in training is not required.

three consecutive months of active duty for training.

(b) An individual who is released from active duty subsequent to the date of enactment of this act may be offered the opportunity to fulfill his ready reserve obligation and qualify for transfer to the stand-by reserve by joining and satisfactorily participating in the training of a reserve unit for a period of one year. During the one-year period he is subject to the 45-day compliance provisions of the act. This program will be available until 1 July, 1957.

(c) Until 1 July, 1957, a person who was on active duty at the time of enactment may be given the opportunity to apply for release from such status, after twelve or more months of active military service, for the purpose of joining and satisfactorily participating in the training of a reserve unit. In so doing he makes himself subject to the 45-day compliance provisions of the act, but reduces his ready reserve obligation to a period which, when added to the time spent on active duty, totals four years. Following this he is eligible for transfer to the stand-by reserve.

Secretary Wilson Directs Services To Program Code

Washington (AFPS) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has directed the service secretaries to set up programs to instruct the armed forces in the new code of conduct for prisoners of war.

In a proposed educational and training guide sent to the secretaries, Mr. Wilson called for the "development of resistance to enemy political and economic indoctrination" through an understanding of the basic truths of democracy.

Key points in the training program include:

1. A thorough knowledge of the code of conduct, its purpose and meaning.

2. Understanding of the nation's war aims as opposed to those of the enemy.

3. A knowledge and appreciation of national, service and unit history and tradition.

4. Character guidance and encouragement of religious beliefs.

The defense secretary ordered instruction to include the use of "cover" stories in the event of capture by the enemy, escape and survival techniques, rights under the Geneva Convention and POW camp organization and discipline.

service vote

A congressional resolution urging the states to liberalize absentee voting rules for servicemen and service wives has been signed by President Eisenhower.

The legislation had received the President's strong endorsement when it was first introduced in Congress.

The President has urged the state legislatures to act in time to permit servicemen and their families to vote in the 1956 presidential election.

Application Open For Civilian Jobs in Technical Fields

Experienced technicians may now qualify for three job openings in Sixth Army sections, it was announced recently by the post civilian personnel division.

An equipment specialist (radio) with a GS-1670-9 rating is needed at the Sixth Army signal section. Applicants must have five years' experience, including four years progressively responsible experience in the field of radio, plus one year of specialized experience.

Also needed by the Sixth Army Signal section is an equipment specialist (wire communication) in the same pay grade. Required of applicants is a total of five years' experience, including four years progressively responsible experience in wire communications and one year of specialized experience of a technical, analytical, administrative or supervisory nature.

A college degree in engineering or four years of progressively responsible experience in technical engineering which shows a thorough knowledge of professional engineering, plus an additional requirement of 2½ years of engineering experience in the field of fuel and heating is required for the third job.

All of the jobs involve travel in varying degrees. Detailed information can be obtained at the Civilian Personnel Office, Bldg. 36, telephone extensions 2349 or 4233.

officers recently assigned

Colonel Otto D. Cloudt has joined the staff of the G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

For the past three years he has been PMS&T at North Dakota Agricultural college, Fargo, North Dakota.

Graduating from Texas A&M, class of 1939, with a degree in animal husbandry, Colonel Cloudt entered the Reserve program immediately and in 1940 was commissioned in the Regular Army.

During World War II he served three years in the ETO as an Infantry battalion and regimental commander with the 94th Infantry division.

Following his graduation from Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1951, Colonel Cloudt went to Turkey for a two-year tour with a Joint Military Mission.

Decorated with both the Silver Star and the Bronze Star Medal, Colonel Cloudt now resides with his wife and their four daughters at Terra Linda, San Rafael.

Lt. Colonel Earl C. Downey has just returned from a two-year tour with NATO at Izmir, Turkey. He is now assigned to the G-2 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In the Army for 18 years, 13 on active duty, Colonel Downey is a graduate of both the basic and advanced officer's Infantry courses and the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal with "V" and three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Combat Infantry Badge with Star.

During World War II, the colonel was with the 147th R.C.T. in the Pacific from March, 1942, to May, 1943, and returned to become assistant PMS&T of New York University. With the 21st Infantry, 24th Division, in Japan, from January, 1949, to 1 July, 1950, he then accompanied that unit to Korea where he remained until May, 1951.

Colonel and Mrs. Downey are presently residing in Parkmerced with their daughter and two sons.

Lt. Colonel Wilbur A. Leary, recently with the G-1 Section of AFPE, has become the post adjutant, Presidio of San Francisco. He has been in the Army 24 years.

Captain EDWARD R. SCOTT recently took over the duties of assistant S-3, Presidio of San Francisco. For the past 18 months he has been stationed in Puerto Rico, with the Replacement Training Center, at Camp Tortuguero.

His World War II service was in the Pacific, with the 24th Division for 41 months, seeing duty in Australia, New Guinea and the Philippines. In 1946, he went to Germany for 21 months' duty with a Military Police Service battalion. And in August, 1950, the captain entered Korea with the 2nd Infantry Division, where he served for a period of 10 months.

Captain Scott entered the Army 13½ years ago and is a graduate of the officer's basic Infantry course at Fort Benning, Georgia. He has been decorated with the Combat Infantry Badge with Star, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Korean Presidential Unit Citation, the Philippine Presidential Unit Citation, and three U. S. Presidential Citations.

He, and his wife, and two daughters, Verena, 11 years old, and Virginia, six years, are presently residing in Oakland.

CWO ERNEST W. CHILDERS has been assigned as assistant military personnel officer, post Adjutant section, Presidio of San Francisco.

For the past three years, he has been in Germany, the first two of which were spent with the 51st Ordnance Group in Stuttgart, and the past year with the 53rd Ordnance Group, at Mannheim.

Veteran of 19 years with the Army, Mr. Childers was at Schofield Barracks, with the 25th Division, 8th Field Artillery battalion, during the bombing of Pearl Harbor, and served with that unit in the Pacific, until December, 1945, including action at Guadalcanal, in 1943, New Caledonia, in 1944, and the Philippines and finally Japan, in 1945.

It was while serving on Guadalcanal that he received his warrant, and he received his Regular Army Warrant, in 1949. He has also been awarded the Bronze Star Medal. Mr. and Mrs. Childers reside in San Rafael, with their seven-year-old daughter, and eight-months-old son.

1st Lt. EMMETTE C. SKINNER, JR., was recently assigned to the 521st Engineer Company (Topographic Aviation). He is an Army aviator, qualified to fly fixed wing, single engine aircraft.

An ROTC graduate, he attended the Virginia Military Institute, where he earned his BS in civil engineering, class of 1953. Called to active duty on 1 October that year, Lt. Skinner joined the 3rd Armored Division, Fort Knox, Kentucky, for five months' service, and then was assigned to the Engineer school, Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

Lt. Skinner next attended the Army flight training school, Gary Air Force base, Texas, and was then assigned to the Tactics Flight training school, Camp Rucker, Alabama, where he received his wings in July 1955.

A native of Suffolk, Virginia, Lt. Skinner now resides here with his wife, Margaret, and their 17-month-old daughter, Mary.

extended

President Eisenhower has signed a law extending free social security wage credits of $160 monthly for members of the armed forces until 31 March, 1956.

The extension runs for only nine months because an entirely new survivor benefits law is expected to replace the present arrangement for servicemen by then.

A new survivor benefits system was approved by the House in July and is scheduled to be considered by the Senate after it reconvenes next January.

America's vast labor force, one-half of our capitalistic system of free labor and free enterprise, pauses for its traditional yearly salute on Labor Day, Sept. 5. We acknowledge that the efficient mass productive power of that labor force, and resulting lower prices, has created a standard of living in this country unsurpassed anywhere.

There is no reason why we should not call our economic system capitalistic; it is only misinformation which has caused the word to become distorted in the minds of some foreign peoples to mean exploitation and greed. Communism has done much to foster the misinterpretation.

On this Labor Day, a communist would have a very hard time convincing the American worker that he is a "capitalist slave."—(AFPS)

Side-Tracked during earlier stages of their lives, 10 enlisted men from 436th AAA Battalion, based at Travis AFB, settled down for 9 weeks' study in intermediate education subjects in a program provided by the Presidio TI&E section.

I&E Helps 10 EM Stationed at Travis Finish Intermediate Education Studies

Deficits on the education side of the personal history ledgers were partially overcome recently by 10 members of the 436th AAA Battalion who completed their intermediate education by attending classes provided by the post I&E section at Travis AFB. The 436th is a part of the San Francisco AAA Defense Command which is logistically supported by the Presidio.

Intensive study over a nine-week period culminated in the receipt of Department of the Army Certificates of Completion in a ceremony attended by Maj. Earle K. Stewart, post I&E officer.

Also present at the ceremony were 436th AAA Battalion Commanding Officer Lt. Col. Harry V. Heim and Pfc. George D. Hanna, Jr., post I&E section. A former teacher with the Chicago area public schools before entering the Army, Pfc. Hanna conducted the classes for the ten AAA men.

The nine-week course of study was presented in both morning and afternoon sessions and it consisted of five subjects: mathematics, English, general science, geography and history.

To receive the Certificates of Completion, the group had to pass a battery of intermediate level USAFI tests. Although 22 men originally signed up for the instruction, transfers and other administrative factors reduced the total number of men finishing the course.

According to Pfc. Hanna, 80 per cent of the men who completed the course passed and thus received the Army equivalent of a grade school diploma.

Now that these soldiers have fulfilled the Army's intermediate education requirement, they may qualify for certain service schools which were previously not open to them.

The classes provided for the enlisted men at Travis by the post I&E section were a part of the over-all Department of the Army's minimum education standards program for NCOs which is designed to improve the education status of NCOs.

The 436th AAA men included: Sp3 Everett E. Thompson, Sgt. Gustave A. Andrews and Pfc. Clyde D. McKenzie, all of Battery B; Sp3 Eustaquio Baluyot and Pfc. Leon Roughton, Headquarters Battery; Sgt. Antonio Olmo, Sp3 Johnnie McNair, Sfc. Rahley O. Batts and Sp2 Howard D. Taylor of Battery A and Sfc. Paul J. Benton of Battery C.

Rosh hashanah...

Rosh Hashanah, Jewish New Year, begins at sundown Friday, 16 September and ends at sundown Sunday, 18 September. Yom Kippur, Day of Atonement, begins at sundown Sunday, 25 September and ends at sundown Monday, 26 September. Jewish military personnel and their families may attend High Holy Day religious services at the Synagogue of their choice in the San Francisco Bay Area. Seating reservations may be made by calling EXbrook 7-0822, or writing the National Jewish Welfare board, 870 Market Street. The Sixth Army Chaplain's office, Ext. 2521 or 4192, will supply additional information.

Diploma Offered Through On-Post Class Program

Four on-post classes leading to a high school diploma will begin next week, taught by instructors from Benjamin Franklin Adult School.

Part of the high school diploma program offered by the Post Troop Information and Education Division, the courses include General Mathematics from 1800 to 2100, beginning 19 September; U. S. History and Constitution from 1800 to 2100, starting 13 September; General Science from 1800 to 2100, beginning 14 September, and English Fundamentals from 1800 to 21, starting 15 September.

By completing the four-course program, and applying for military experience credit, service personnel may receive high school diplomas from the San Francisco Unified School District. The four-class program is also aimed at preparing the soldier for passing the GED test at high school level.

Counseling service is available at the Post Army Education Center, Building 117. Additional information may also be obtained by phoning 2974 or 3189.

VA Advises Veterans To Avoid Late Rush For GI Bill Benefits

With close to 25,000 veterans expected to enroll under the Korean GI Bill in northern California schools this Fall, the Veterans Administration advised eligible persons to file their applications early to avoid the last-minute September rush.

Applications are available in any VA regional office; in San Francisco—49 Fourth street. When the form is completed, it should be sent to the nearest VA office along with a photostat or certified copy of the individual's separation papers.

For veterans planning an education, the VA suggests that the student be certain of his objective and choose a training program which will achieve that goal. The law allows only one change of program under the GI Bill.

The veteran should also check to be certain that his course is approved for Korean GI training by the state in which his school is located. Before applying for GI educational benefits, the veteran should complete arrangements for admittance to the school of his choice.

Airborne!

Veteran MP Officer Assumes 505th MP Battalion Command

Command of the Presidio's combat-ready 505th MP Battalion changed this week as Lt. Col. Fred C. Smith became battalion commander succeeding Lt. Col. Keene Saxon who has been commanding officer of the local MPs since July, 1952.

Colonel Smith is also slated to assume additional duties as post provost marshal when Colonel Saxon departs for his new assignment as commanding officer of a unit of the 95th Military Government Group at Camp Gordon, Georgia.

Before coming to the Presidio, Colonel Smith had just completed the Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas.

A 1937 graduate of the University of Oregon, the new 505th MP commander participated in the ROTC program while earning his bachelor of business administration degree.

He was commissioned a reserve second lieutenant in the Infantry in July of that year and assigned to the Seventh Infantry Regiment at Vancouver Barracks, Washington. From 1938 to September, 1940, Colonel Smith was with the CCC operating out of Ft. Lewis, Washington.

In September, 1940, he was assigned to the 9th Infantry Division, with which he served until May, 1942. He then became a member of the newly-organized Corps of Military Police (now the Military Police Corps), serving on the staff of the First MP School, which was located first at Ft. Myer, Virginia, then at Ft. Oglethorpe, Georgia, and later at Ft. Custer, Michigan.

After attending Command and General Staff College in 1943, Colonel Smith went to the European Theatre of Operations. In 1944 and 1945 he was executive officer and S-3 of the 506th MP Battalion, participating in two major campaigns, the Rhineland and the Central Europe.

Integrated into the regular Army in 1947, he became provost marshal of Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, until the following year when he returned to Europe. For two years he was commanding officer of the 793rd MP Battalion at Nuremberg, Germany, and during his last year and a half in Europe, Colonel Smith was chief of plans and operations with the Provost Marshal Division, Headquarters, EUCOM at Heidelberg, Germany.

Returning to ZI in September, 1952, the veteran MP commander attended the Officers Advanced Course at the Provost Marshal General School at Camp Gordon, Georgia.

Colonel Smith went Airborne in 1953 and became 11th Airborne Division provost marshal and commanding officer of the Special Troops Regiment at Ft. Campbell, Kentucky, from June, 1953, to August, 1954.

Colonel Smith resides in Infantry Terrace quarters with his wife Donna, 15-year-old Gary, Susan, aged 13, and nine-year-old twins, Kermit and Craig.

The Army plans 53 more servings of bread, rolls, cake and pastries per man this year.

For Outstanding Service and years of faithful devotion to duty, Mr. Harold J. Beach of the Post Ordnance section is awarded a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement by Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, on the eve of Mr. Beach's retirement this week from federal service. Observing the presentation are Mr. J. N. McConaha, chief, civilian personnel division, and Lt. Colonel Robert G. Van Ness, Post Ordnance officer. Colonel Lundquist's letter of commendation for Mr. Beach's 15-year service record, in which he stated, "your devotion to duty, the efficient and capable manner in which you completed all assignments, and the attitude of cheerfulness and cooperation you continually display has been an inspiration to all," accompanied the certificate. Mr. Beach served the government two years during 1918-19, and returned to federal employ on 27 May 1941. He has been with the Post Ordnance since November of 1945.

Subdued after a final show of protest, 60 tons of steel crane kicks up its flanks before settling down in its berth on a giant LCM-8 landing craft. The 561st Engineers Port Construction Company moved the massive machine Tuesday by water across the Bay from Ft. Baker to the Presidio Engineering Supply Yard. When State Highway and Bridge Commission officials refused the Engineers permission to haul the crane over local roads, the Engineers took to the water with the 120,000 pounds of machinery. Savings in the maneuver amount to about $350.

Monster Crane

Engineers Transport 60 Tons Across Bay by Landing Craft

By Pvt. Landers Rosenblum
Star-Presidian Staff Writer

The 561st Engineers skillfully secured a beachhead this week and won their stubborn campaign to transport 60 tons of motorized steel crane from Ft. Baker to the Presidio Engineering Supply Yard. Tuesday morning the massive jaws of an LCM-8 yawned open and disgorged 120,000 pounds of crane which rumbled onto the beach near Crissy Field.

Both the State Highway and the Bridge Commissions had forbidden the Engineers to use the roads in moving the ponderous crane with their own tractor and trailer. To hire a private company with the necessary equipment for the job would have cost about $350.

It was Capt. Arthur H. Newlin, company commander of the 561st Engineers Port Construction Headquarters, who suggested an assault by LCM-8, the Army's latest model in mechanized landing craft. Capt. Newlin had hauled the crane by tractor and trailer over the hill from Ft. Barry to Ft. Baker from where it had yet to negotiate the Bay.

In consultation with 2d Lt. Lawrence Bingham of Harbor Craft Detachment 6002, the two officers worked out the plan which not only saved the Army $350, but gave their men some useful training experience. The 60-ton crane also provided an opportunity for proving the 120,000-pound authorized capacity of the new landing craft.

Driven by four 225 hp Diesel engines, the giant LCM-8 is large enough to swallow its most recent predecessor, the LCM-6. Until Tuesday, the Engineers had used the LCM-8 for carrying comparatively light loads—Nike trailers, furniture vans and equipment to Angel Island.

The most hazardous part of Operation Crane was jockeying the 60-ton lift onto the landing craft. From the operator's cabin, Pfc. Richard Schmitz coaxed and persuaded the bulky crane to back as gently as possible up the ramp of the LCM-8. Several times, the crane's heavy steel treads slipped in the loose sand; the boom lurched menacingly off to the left.

Finally, Schmitz, directed by SFC William King, lined up the tracks of the crane with the wood planks which formed a plane to the ramp and eased the heavy machine onto the landing craft. The pressure of the steel treads left the boards crushed and splintered. With the crane aboard, the stern of the landing craft settled down several feet closer to its waterline.

Accompanied by an Army crash boat from the Marine Maintenance Shop, the LCM-8 crossed the Bay, following the boom of the crane which hung out in front of the craft like a super fishing rod and tackle. Once on the beach, the crane, under its own power, snorted off in the direction of the supply yard.

Secretary Brucker Urges Army Assist To Flood-Torn States

As an aid to reconstruction of the flood-ridden Eastern Seaboard, Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker this week issued instructions to Army procuring agencies to give preference in awarding contracts to firms in the disaster areas.

The move was made as a means of implementing President Eisenhower's request that all Federal agencies render assistance wherever possible to the stricken states.

Army agencies were instructed to review those procurement plans pending and contract whenever possible with companies in the effected regions. Further aid is to be rendered by liberal financing procedures, modification of delivery schedules and other methods.

Part of Engineer Task Force Back From Alaska Duty

Just in time to witness the tail end of summer at Ft. Scott, two officers and 218 enlisted men of the 30th Engineer Group arrived here this week from Arctic Circle where the bulk of the organization is wrapping up part of its annual photo-mapping mission.

Sailing from Whittier, Alaska, aboard the USS Funston to Seattle, the men made the final leg of the journey by passenger train to the Oakland terminal.

There, they were taken by military bus to home-base at Ft. Scott, where a contingent of wives, families and sweethearts greeted them.

Under command of Lt. John W. Granicher, the men who returned here this week represented slightly more than one quarter of the 30th Engineers Alaskan task force.

Coinciding with the arrival of this group was the landing at Crissy Field of four of the organization's fixed wing aircraft which is a fraction of the unit's 19 planes and 40 helicopters.

The bulk of the task force will arrive here from Alaska in within 30 days. It is expected that both men and equipment, including helicopters, will be transported by means of aircraft carrier.

Civil Service Office Announces Job Lists For California Area

Offering salaries ranging from $4,345 to $4,930 a year, federal agencies throughout California and Nevada have job openings for chemists, metallurgists, physicists and mathematicians, according to the 12th U. S. Civil Service Region office, 630 Sansome Street in San Francisco. Starting salaries will depend on education and experience.

Other available positions include postal transportation clerk at $1.82 an hour. Openings exist in Inglewood, Los Angeles, Oakland and South San Francisco and on a number of railway post office lines. No prior experience or education is needed, although applicants must take a written examination.

Further information may be obtained from the San Francisco regional Civil Service office.

56th MRU Specialist Registers Record Score on College GED

After making up his mind to prepare for a civilian career as a High School social sciences teacher while still in the Army, 56th MRU's Sp3 William DePonceau did such a thorough job of tackling the college GED tests at the Post Education Center that his test scores are the highest recorded here this year.

Results of the test found him rated in the 99th percentile in English Grammar and Natural Sciences, in the 98th percentile in Social Studies and the 97th percentile in literature.

A percentile score indicates the rating of the individual in comparison to all others who have taken the tests. A 99 percentile score means that the person rated higher on the tests than at least 98 per cent of all others who completed the examination.

Specialist DePonceau said that he found the best approach to taking the test successfully to be simply a careful reading of the questions and a logical evaluation of the answer choices.

Spurred on by the results of his GED test, Sp3 DePonceau has consulted Mr. Ralph McElroy, the post education director. As luck would have it, he discovered that Indiana State Teachers College, which is located only a few miles from his hometown, Mt. Jewett, Pennsylvania, would grant him 24 credits as a result of his scores on the GED test.

(Editor's Note: For reader edification it should be noted that Pennsylvania also boasts a California State Teachers College at California, Pa.)

To add to the 24 credits which the test has netted him, the young machine records specialist plans to acquire more credits this fall by attending on-post college classes sponsored by the Post Education Center and provided by San Francisco State College.

Specialist DePonceau entered the Army in January 1954, completing basic infantry training at Ft. Dix, N. J. He then attended IBM school in New York City and upon graduation two weeks later was assigned to the 56th MRU here.

As a personnel analyst with Machine Records division of Headquarters Sixth Army Adjutant General section, he works in the USAR branch which maintains IBM records of retirement credits of reservists in the Sixth Army Area.

Volunteers Donate $430 For Red Cross Flood Campaign

Over $430 has been contributed by the Presidio and its subposts to the Red Cross Emergency Flood Relief drive in the past week, according to Mr. Raymond J. Gilbreth, field director of the local Red Cross Chapter.

Close to $350 of the total, however, was donated by Ft. Mason where the Overseas Supply Agency gave $161 and the I-G Section $50. On-post contributions total about $85.

Additional donations, to be used for direct relief to the victims of the recent Eastern flood, will be accepted throughout the next week, Mr. Gilbreth said. There has been no organized campaign. Volunteer contributors have been giving their donation through the post Red Cross, Building 97.

On-Post College Courses Slated For Next Month

Three on-post courses for college credit will begin 19 September under the auspices of San Francisco State College. Each eight-week course carries three units of transferable credit and is designed to meet requirements for a bachelor's degree at San Francisco State.

The September series includes English 164, the Modern American Novel; Geography 150, Geography of the United States and Canada, and International Relations 122, International Politics.

Service personnel may register for classes by calling the Presidio Army Education Center, Ext. 2974 or 3189 as early as possible, since class space is limited.

English 164, which covers the American novel from Henry James to current writers, will meet from 1830 to 2100 Mondays and Wednesdays in Building 1131. It will be taught by Dr. Karl G. Peterson.

Geography 150 will be held from 1830 to 2100 Tuesdays and Thursdays in Building 1101. The instructor will be Dr. Lyle E. Gibson. Meeting from 1830 to 2100 on Mondays and Wednesdays in Building 1101, the class in International Relations will be taught by Dr. Robert T. Mack, Jr.

The three eight-week classes are part of an annual series of five such sessions, planned by the Post Troop Information and Education Division.

women's jewelry here in less than an hour's time and at a cost of slightly more than the fourth part of a dollar.

Or, if the individual wants to make his efforts a little more creative, he can use bits of scrap copper available at the crafts room and lower the cost of the project even below the 25-cent level.

Copper, which is already cut into a variety of shapes and jewelry fasteners, can be purchased at nominal cost at local department stores.

After obtaining the metal, the initial step required to make the cuff links and earrings is basically a cleaning process. The copper must first be polished with steel wool, then dipped in a mild acid solution and finally rinsed with tap water. This step usually takes no more than ten minutes for the beginner.

A gum substance which is on hand at the crafts room is next applied to the metal. The articles are now ready for the color treatment.

After chosing the desired color or color combination, all supplied by the Service Club, the enamel powder is sifted lightly onto the gummy surface of the copper. Unique design effects can also be applied by scratching lines into the color coating during this phase of the project.

The objects are now ready for the final enameling process, which is completed in a small furnace heated to 1600 degrees F. The enamel pieces are fired two minutes.

Once the items have been fired and the backs cleaned with steel wool, the only step remaining is the mounting of the hardware cuff-link and earring fasteners. This is done with a soldering iron and requires a minimum of time.

Miss Ruth Rippon, post crafts director, or other persons familiar with the enameling process are available to assist the beginner on week-day evenings from 1930 to 2200, on Saturdays from 1400 to 1800 and on Sundays from 1400 to 2200.

3 Win Auditions Here, Will Appear On Soldier Parade

The chance to perform on the nationally-televised Arlene Francis "Soldier Parade" served as the bullseye for 19 entries from Ft. Mason, Two Rock Ranch and the Presidio in the talent auditions at the Service Club this week.

Vocalists seemed to have the lion's share of the victory formula, taking two out of the three top spots. Both winning vocalists, Pvt. Bob Yakutis, Headquarters Battery, 9th AAA, and Pfc. Vic Hubbard, Sixth Army Band, earned a future role in the big television show by presenting arias from "I Pagliacci."

Lively interpretation of popular piano selections spotlighted Pfc. Russ Martinor, 22nd Army Band, Ft. Mason, into the winners' circle.

Judged by Cyril P. Hyman, Department of the Army Soldier Show advisor, and Mr. David Gordon, representative of the Army recruiting service, the talent show was introduced with a performance by the Presidio Male Chorus, its first this summer. The chorus was not an entry.

USO Clubs Arrange Labor Day Outings For Service Personnel

Servicemen and women will find a wide variety of activities available for their amusement at San Francisco USO clubs during the long Labor day weekend.

Embarcadero YMCA-USO (166 Embarcadero) offers a three-day outing at the YMCA camp in the Santa Cruz mountains. Servicemen and their families are included, and may sign-up at the club for reservations.

JWB-USO (3200 California St.) will hold a Labor day house party Sunday afternoon following the regular Sunday morning brunch activities, at the California street club rooms.

YWCA-USO (966 Market St.) has planned a broom dance for tonight, at 2000. Any kind of a broom will be a ticket for exchange dances with junior hostesses. Sunday, the club will hold a dance in honor of the men from the U.S.S. Jason. Servicemen and junior hostesses will journey to Lake Anza for a picnic on Labor day, and will meet at the club at 1100.

Sixteen Little League Batters Top .300 Mark

With the close of Presidio Little League play last week, the official batting averages were released this week by Mrs. Ronald Ellis, League scorer.

Sixteen players from the four teams had batting averages of over .300 per cent for the summer baseball action. Following are the names of the 16 boys batting over .300.

For the League-winning Giants: Earl Stewart .406, Jim Doerner .339 and Irving Agent .333.

The second-place Cards had Tommy Stewart .556, Bob Long .428, Pete Nicholls .387, Sam Mullins .347 and Terry Waite .339.

For the third-place Cubs: Bob O'Connor .483, Pat O'Conner .437, Kim McIntyre .385, Quinton Brown .382 and George Leonard with .350.

The fourth-place Yanks placed Tom Delaney .428, Jim Hicks .369 and Earl Pegram with .372.

Members of the Little League governing committee will meet through the winter on the second Wednesday of each month. The meeting will be held at the Post Headquarters conference room at 1930.

Personnel interested in becoming coaches, managers and score keepers for next season are urged to attend the monthly meetings.

Pop Hicks field, the home of Little League play on the Presidio, will be further improved in the near future with the addition of dugouts, grass planted in the infield and a public address system installed.

Next year the winners in Presidio Little League play will go into statewide competition. The winners were unable to enter play this year as Little League rules state that leagues must be in operation for one year prior to entering state competition.

dove hunters

Dove hunters who traditionally have been opening the season on 1 September again were reminded that the 1955 season begins on Saturday, 3 September, in keeping with Commission policy to open as many seasons as possible on Saturday.

An additional change is the one-half hour before sunrise opening, in contrast to former noon starts.

Department of Fish and Game field men have reported normal flights of birds, and good shooting is seen until the first rains scatter the birds.

The season will continue on a straight 30-day basis throughout California, closing on October 2.

33 Win Honors As Marksmen In Seven Months

Ft. Monroe, Va. (AFPS)—The largest group of rifle and pistol shooters to win the coveted Distinguished Marksman Badge since its inception in 1903 has been announced by the Continental Army Command Hq.

In the first seven months of this year, 20 riflemen and 13 pistol shooters have qualified, smashing the record set in 1954 for a full 12-month period.

In 1954, 17 men won the award for the rifle shooting and eight were honored for pistol marksmanship.

To win the badge, a shooter must win three excellence-in-competition awards in top-flight meets and one of those must be at the national matches at Camp Perry or in the all-Army matches at Ft. Benning, Ga.

The system for determining excellence - in - competition takes into consideration not only the candidate's score and final ranking, but also the scores of his competitors.

Yankees To Tour Far East, In Oct.

New York (AFPS) — The New York Yankees have announced they will leave 8 October for a tour of Japan and the Far East to play exhibitions with local professionals and U.S. service teams.

The Yankees said the tour is endorsed by the State Department and the Japanese government and is regarded as an "outstanding contribution to international understanding and good will."

Tentative plans call for the Yankees to play five games during a 10-day stay in Hawaii. Sixteen games will be played in various spots in Japan and the trip will wind up about 18 November, following games in Okinawa and the Philippines.

Biggest man on the football team at Ft. Carson, Colo., is right guard Don Borschulte, a 270-pounder who played at Missouri University.

raiders leave

Yesterday the seventeen-man Red Raider baseball squad shoved off from Travis Air Force Base for the All-Sixth Army baseball tournament at Fort Lewis, Washington.

The four-day double elimination tourney begins Tuesday and will pit coach Hal Fischer's Presidio nine against the top Army teams in the Western States. The winner goes on to Fort Belvoir, Virginia, for the All-Army championships, 19 to 24 September.

Joe "Boy" Charles, AF feather-weight champ from Hamilton AFB, Calif., plans to turn pro sometime next year.

GOING for six points is Raider fullback Bobby Ratliff (r.), former all-border conference star at West Texas State. Handing off the pigskin is Raider Quarterback Morris Maytubby, who played his pre-service ball at Fresno State College. The Presidio scrimmage with Moffitt scheduled for tomorrow was cancelled at the request of the Moffitt Flyers.

Signal Leads

Baker MPs Take Over Second In Pacific League

The Company B MPs swept two series this past week to jump from fourth to second place in the Pacific Bowling League. Sixth Army Signal continues to lead the league with a 44-16 mark.

The police kegsters smashed Headquarters Company, 30th Engineers, four to nothing. Wright's 183 and 488 series paced the first police victory. Their second win was a four to nothing forfeit win and again Wright, with a 179- 512 roll led the way.

The Sixth Army Signal crew rolled right along in first place by dumping the Hilltoppers No. 3 by a three to one margin. Barber's 192-500 roll led the Signal men while Godino with a 202 high roll and a 571 series was high for the Hilltoppers.

Headquarters Company, station complement, knocked over the Post Dispensary three to one. Van Ausdall with a 177-486 led to the win. Regan was high man for the Medics with 220-352 scores.

High series this week went to Murphy of the Hilltoppers No. 1 team when he rolled a cool 651. Second place was taken by DePolito of the Post Dispensary with a 590.

Murphy of the Hilltoppers No. 1 led the way in rolling 200 games this week by turning in scores of 217, 215 and 219. Regan, Post Dispensary, rolled a 220 game and Schuster of the Keystone Kops had a 214 game. Others smashing over 200 pins were Godino of Hilltoppers No. 3 with a 202 game and DePolito of the Post Dispensary with 201 pins blasted.

Action in the Eastern Bowling League saw the Ichi Ban's climb to the top of the ladder, with a fourteen and two record and a 949 average.

The Nuggets kept their hold on second place with a twelve and four mark. Last week's top squad, the Hilltoppers No. 6, dropped to fourth place with an eleven and five mark, just behind the 6513 SU with a twelve and four record.

The Spades fought their way out of last week's four-way tie to take over first place in the Presidio Bowling League. They now boast seven wins against one loss.

A two-way tie exists for second place between the Mix-Ups and the Physical Standards with six and two marks. The Quers with a five and three record have a firm hold on fourth place ahead of the Fort Baker Engineers.

Marksmen Competing In Nationals

Camp Perry, Ohio (AFPS) —Over 3,000 of America's finest military and civilian marksmen are currently competing in the 70th renewal of the national rifle and pistol matches here.

The shooting will continue until 10 September and during the 28-day tournament sharpshooters from all over the world will vie for the national high-power rifle, small-bore rifle and pistol titles.

Harry Reeves of Detroit, Mich., winner of the U.S. pistol championship six times since 1940, will try for his third consecutive win against 600 of the country's top hand-gunners.

His chief competition will once again come from his perennial rival and three time holder of the national crown, Army M/Sgt. Joe Benner of West Point, N. Y.

The high-power rifle matches will be fire in two divisions with the NRA match rifle and service rifle crowns defended by two U.S. Marines. 1st Lt. Clifford Tryon of Camp Pendleton, Calif., is the present match rifle champ, and CWO Thomas Carpenter, 3rd Marine Div., the service rifle titleholder.

sage grouse

Prospects are for a better than average sage grouse (sometimes called sage hen) season, which is open 3 and 4 September and only in Lassen and Modoc Counties, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

The bag and possession limit is two birds per season, and there is no open season in other counties.

Game managers report that the best concentrations of sage hens are in the Madeline Plains area of northern Lassen County, although there are scattering concentrations in other areas.

Finer Lines are the chief interest of Pfc. Russell Church, 21st Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group, who placed top in a recently-completed cartographic drafting course at Ft. Belvoir, Va. As a fine line draftsman with the photomapping unit, he is responsible for placing the almost microscopic detail lines on the Engineers' maps.

Steady Hands!

Engineer EM Parlays Skill, Precision To Take Top Spot in Drafting Course

A pair of deft hands, a trained analytical mind, and a healthy respect for fine line drafting laid the groundwork for 21st Engineer Company's Pfc. Russell Church to capture the top spot in the Army's cartographic drafting class at the Engineer School, Ft. Belvoir, Va., recently.

Though not a newcomer to the drafting field, the 11-week course presented the young engineer with the first significant opportunity to try his hand at the difficult science of precision map detail drafting.

Drafting became Pfc. Church's professional interest when he obtained a job as a mechanical draftsman with a firm in his native Gary, Indiana, following high school graduation in 1952.

He entered the Army in May, 1954, and completed Basic Infantry training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. Next sent to Ft. Belvoir he received training at the Engineer's Map Compiling School.

In November, 1954, he became a member of the 21st Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group. Because of the skill which he displayed as a draftsman with his organization he was chosen to attend the cartographic course.

Major Richard G. Bohn, 30th Engineer Group executive officer, congratulated Pfc. Church for his accomplishment and noted that achievements of this nature are often of immense future value to the enlisted man.

When he completes his chores as a fine line draftsman with the 21st Engineer Company and upon separation from the service next year, the precision draftsman plans to attend a California college to prepare for a career in Industrial Design.

In February, 1943, General Kendall was named assistant commander of the 88th Infantry Division at Camp Gruber, Okla., and the following November accompanied the division to Italy where, in January, 1944, he was wounded in action. He assumed command of the division in August, 1944, and led it through the North Apennines and Po Valley campaigns.

From July, 1952, until April, 1953, he commanded the American I Corps in Korea and then was named Deputy Commanding General of the Far East Command with headquarters at Yokohama, Japan. He was appointed to his last post with headquarters at Izmir, Turkey, in January, 1954.

In addition to the Distinguished Service Cross, General Kendall has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

His foreign decorations include the French Croix de Guerre for both World Wars, French Legion of Honor, the British Commander Order of the Bath, the Italian Cross of St. Maurizio and Lazzero, the Czechoslovakian War Cross and the Korean Taeguk Distinguished Military Service Medal with Silver Star.

nurse chief

Lt. Col. Inez Haynes has been named chief of the Army Nurse Corps, effective Oct. 1. At the same time, she will assume the rank of full colonel.

She succeeds Col. Ruby F. Bryant whose four-year statutory term expires Sept. 30. Col Bryant has been assigned to USAREUR.

Slow Down and Live Meets Final Hurdle Labor Day Weekend

As a part of the 101-day Slow Down and Live Campaign which meets its final challenge over the long Labor Day weekend, the post safety office presented the national prize-winning safety film, "Devil Takes Us," to all local military and civilian personnel at the post theatre yesterday.

During the last major hurdle of the nation-wide safety campaign, the 4th of July week-end, the Presidio and sub-posts registered a perfect record with not a single accident or mishap reported.

Throughout the campaign the post safety office has employed such devices as automobile stickers, small billboard placards and publicity materials to stress the "Slow Down and Live" slogan.

The Army has been emphasizing that accidents could be practically eliminated if drivers would settle down and learn traffic regulations and then proceed to observe them consistently.

Safe driving can become a steady and well-defined pattern for drivers not only over the period of the approaching holiday weekend but throughout the course of safer and potentially longer lives if the basic rules of highway safety are used.

Here are the important rules for sane and thoughtful driving:

1. Drive at a speed that is safe for road and other conditions. Speed limits are maximum speeds, and not necessarily safe speeds.
2. Don't drive while drinking.
3. Cross an intersection only when certain of the right of way and be prepared to yield the right of way to avoid accidents.
4. Do not pass on hills and curves and never cut in sharply after passing another car.
5. The way to stay safe is to stay on your own side of the road. Don't hog the road.
6. Heed traffic signs for your own protection and for the protection of others.
7. Check your car—the only safe car is one in good mechanical condition.
8. Remember this slogan—Know and Obey Traffic Laws. This is a requirement for all who would become careful and safe drivers.

Free Polio Shots Set For Military Personnel In Overseas Areas

Washington (AFPS)—Free Salk polio vaccine shots are to be given to dependent children of military and civilian personnel serving overseas.

For the present, the free vaccinations, in most instances, will be limited to children between the ages of five and nine.

This vaccine is in addition to that which was previously furnished to the Defense Department for first and second graders in government families overseas.

The first round of shots in this program is now being completed, a DOD spokesman said.

The DOD said that, if health conditions required it, the services could establish priority areas for the distribution of initial supplies of the vaccine. In these areas, dependents aged six months through 15 years would be eligible for vaccination.

Guaranty Increase

New Law Will Aid Veterans In Obtaining GI Farm Loans

World War II and Korean conflict veterans will find it easier to get GI loans to purchase farms on which there is a home or to construct or improve farmhouses under a new law recently signed by the President.

The new law increases the Veterans Administration guaranty of GI farm loans made by private lenders to 60 per cent of the loan with the maximum guaranty of $7,500 on the following three types of loans:

1. For the purchase of a farm on which there is a farm residence to be occupied by the veteran as his home. The guaranty would cover not only the farm and residence but include all other buildings which are considered as part of the realty.
2. For the construction of a farm residence to be occupied by the veteran on land owned by the veteran. In the case of a veteran who wants to build a residence on his farm on which there is an indebtedness secured by a lien against the land, the GI loan with the increased guaranty can be used to liquidate that lien if the indebtedness does not exceed the reasonable value of the land.
3. For the repair, alteration or improvement of a farm residence owned by the veteran and occupied by him as his home. Such repairs, alterations and improvements must protect or improve the basic livability or utility of the farm residence.

VA said the new law puts the three types of farm loans on a parity with GI home loans—both of which now carry the 60 per cent up to $7,500 guaranty.

The guaranty on GI loans for unimproved farms or for the repair of farm buildings other than the residence itself will remain the same—50 per cent of the loan with a maximum guaranty of $4,000.

The guaranty of farm non-realty loans for such things as stock, feed, seed and equipment remains at 50 per cent of the loan with a maximum guaranty of $2,000.

VA said that while maximum guarantees are set by law, the amount of the loan obtainable by a veteran depends on the policies of the lender.

World War II veterans have until July 25, 1957 to use the GI loan benefits while Korean conflict veterans have until January 31, 1965.

Over 212,000 weapons, worth $120,000,000, were rebuilt by the Army in 1954 at a cost of $349,000. Included were 144,000 automatic weapons ranging from small arms to heavy tank armament.

Vol. 4, No. 15

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 9 September, 1955

As Fires Raged in Klamath National Forest near Yreka, California, nearly 500 Presidio soldiers were dispatched to the scene to take up pick-and-shovel arms and combat the timber-eating flames. Here, members of the 30th Engineer Group pile aboard a bus which carried them to the disaster area where they joined buddies sent from the Presidio the day before.

Place Highest Priority On Army Weapons, New Director Named

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has tagged the "highest priority possible" on the research and development of new weapons.

At a ceremony appointing William H. Martin as director of research and development, Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, said a "rapid break-through" in the realm of new weapons was being accomplished by scientists everywhere in the world.

For this reason, he said, the Army must be foremost in the field.

Martin will exercise the same responsibility as an assistant army secretary and have complete authority in his field.

The new research director was formerly vice president of the Bell Telephone Laboratories and has served as deputy assistant secretary of defense (applications engineering) since January, 1954.

Col. Robert H. Rhine

Name New Senior Advisor for 91st Infantry Division

Colonel Robert H. Rhine has been assigned as the Senior Advisor for the 91st Infantry Division (Reserve) at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Colonel Rhine, a West Point graduate of 1938, recently returned from Thailand, where he was Deputy Chief of the Army Section for the Joint United States Military Advisory Group.

A veterans of 17 years' commissioned service, the colonel obtained his Bachelor of Arts degree from West Point, and his Master of Arts degree in Political Science and International Relations from Georgetown University.

He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff course at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and of the Strategic Intelligence School.

The colonel served in the Rhineland, Central Germany and Czechoslovakia. From 1945 to 1947 he was the senior military government officer of the Fukushima Prefecture in Japan. He was the Chief of Operations for the United Nations Mission in Kashmir in 1950 and 1951.

Strictly Interpreted

New Policy Allows Soldiers To Stop Wives' Allotments

In clearly established cases of desertion without cause and/or marital infidelity, service personnel will be able to have Class Q allotments discontinued or withheld, according to a recent announcement by the U. S. Army Finance Center.

Because withdrawing or refusing to initiate a Class Q allotment is considered attempting to escape the legal duty of a husband to support his wife, cancellation is regarded as a "drastic action" to be permitted only in the most clearly established instances.

The evidence in such cases will be weighed by the post legal officer within the Army definition of grounds for the action.

At all times the burden of proof will lie with the serviceman in establishing an accusation of misconduct against the wife. Evidence of guilt must be "conclusive," such as a court record or an admission of guilt on the part of the accused.

In no case, however, will a serviceman be allowed to discontinue an allotment to a dependent child or children, even though they may be in the custody of his wife, who has been shown guilty of misconduct.

During the time that a case of marital infidelity or desertion without cause is pending, however, the allotment will continue.

If at some later date, the serviceman renews marital relations with his wife, he will be considered to have "condoned" the former misconduct and will be permitted to renew the Class Q allotment.

paper drive...

The first Fall paper and pop bottle drive conducted by the Presidio Boy Scout Troop No. 77, will be held Saturday (10 September) beginning at 0830 hours. Residents are asked to have their waste paper and pop bottles on their steps prior to the pickup hour. Proceeds from the sale of these items help to finance Scout activities.

500 Local Soldiers Join Fight to Save Valuable Timber

More than 500 Army troops from the Presidio, rushed by special busses 349 miles from their home station in the past two days, are engaged in a furious fight to halt the raging fire in the Klamath National Forest near the California-Oregon border that has already devastated thousands of valuable acres of pine and fir stands.

The first group of soldiers—109—under the command of Major Ray Neilsen of Fairview, Utah, near Salt Lake City, of the 30th Engineer Group, left the Presidio at 0800, Monday, 5 September, arrived at the Klamath River Community Hall (30 miles west of Yreka) at 1030 the next day, and the same afternoon half of them were fighting fires along the river.

This group was relieved by another detachment of 50 men at 2100 that night and this unit was still working at 0800 the morning of 7 September. Tuesday evening, 6 September, an additional 397 men, under the command of Captain Emory M. Eldridge, 25650 Code Road, Detroit, Mich., also of the 30th Engineer Group, left the Presidio of San Francisco at 1845 in a convoy of eleven busses, arrived at Yreka between 0330 and 0830, 7 September, and promptly moved to the fire lines.

By mid-morning of the 7th, 200 men were in action in the Yreka vicinity and the remainder of the Task Force—300 men—was operating from the Klamath River near the Oak Knoll Ranger Station.

Troops involved in the fire fighting include men of the Sixth Army Honor Guard, Sixth Army Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group, 561st Engineer Company (Port Construction) and medical aid men from the Presidio dispensary.

The Army troops were dispatched by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander, in response to a request from the U.S. Forestry Service.

late wire

Washington (AFPS) — The U.S. and Japan have agreed to the "progressive withdrawal" of American ground forces from Japan as soon as Japanese units are strong enough to assume the burden of their homeland's defense.

In three days of talks here, Secretary of State Dulles and Japanese Foreign Minister Shigemitsu agreed this goal was to be achieved as rapidly as possible. They also called for gradual reduction of Japan's financial support for U.S. forces stationed there.

Still Possible to Buy Homes On Old Terms If OK'd Before Aug. 1

Washington (AFPS) — Veterans, including servicemen, may still buy homes under a 30-year mortgage, no down-payment arrangement if the structures received FHA certification prior to the 1 Aug. deadline, even though applications for approval by the Veterans Administration were not filed by that date.

The VA announced that homes certified by the FHA and exempted by that agency from the stricter purchasing terms imposed by the government on 31 July can still be approved by the VA under the old terms. The deadline for filing for VA appraisals in these cases is 30 Sept.

The new credit controls announced by the government will require veterans henceforth to make a two per cent down-payment on GI-loan houses. The remainder must be paid off in 25 instead of 30 years.

'yard'...what?

Washington (AFPS) — Army enlisted specialists, who may be in pay grades as high as E-7 are outranked by Navy and AF enlisted men from E-4 up, according to a new Army regulation.

AR 600-15, dealing with rank and precedence, sets forth the relative rank of personnel of all the services.

It lists Navy petty officers and AF sergeants and airmen first class as ranking ahead of all Army specialists.

Army NCOs, of course, have equal footing with enlisted personnel of other services in the same pay grade.

number to call

Military personnel living on post and in Park Presidio apartments have been asked to call the post Troop Information and Education officer, if they have dependents planning to attend any of the local San Francisco colleges or universities. Phone is Ext. 4449 or 4445.

There was a young soldier named Lee
Who balanced his tour to a "T"
"For your information, it's Unit Rotation*
That makes things so easy for me!"

Under "UNIT ROTATION" you serve a balanced tour (33 months overseas—31 months stateside). That means fewer moves—fewer family separations. More time to settle down and make plans!

Great-Grandmother Sfc. Phoebe Rumley of the Post Machine Records Division: "There are probably more great-grandmothers in the WAC than you think—but they just don't want to admit it." Sgt. Rumley's great-granddaughter was born 10 August to her 21-year-old grandson and his wife of Polson, Montana.

Great-Granddaughter

WAC Sergeant, Not Yet 60, Becomes Great-Grandmother

Petite Sfc. Phoebe Rumley of the Post Machine Records Division was promoted last month—to the rank of great-grandmother.

Not yet 60, Sgt. Rumley was already a grandmother when she joined the WACs in June, 1944. On 10 August, great-granddaughter Emily K. Graves was born to 21-year-old grandson Delbert K. Graves, Jr., and his wife of Polson, Montana.

Until last month, the diminutive Sgt. Rumley and her businessman husband, Owen A. Rumley, had two daughters, a son and four grandsons. With the birth of tiny Emily, the Rumley's daughter, Mrs. Delbert K. Graves, Sr., became a grandmother at the age of 39. Sgt. Rumley, married at 17, had herself become a grandmother at 37.

Her red hair flecked with only occasional wisps of gray, Sgt. Rumley took her new status calmly. "But," she said, "the idea of my daughter's becoming a grandmother is really exciting."

In June, 1944, with both her daughters married and her son in service, Sgt. Rumley found herself with little to keep her occupied. So she joined the WAC. The Associated Press and Woman's Magazine duly took note of the young grandmother who had joined the Women's Army Corps.

During nearly 11 years of Army service, Sgt. Rumley has worked with IBM and control procedures. For five and a half years, she was stationed at Camp Stoneman and only recently returned from three years in France and Germany. She received an Achievement Award for her work in Europe.

Last January, Sgt. Rumley was assigned to the Presidio and MRU where as a sort of "handyman" she audits and checks section reports.

Although she has not yet seen the most recent twig on her family tree, Sgt. Rumley plans a November visit with her grandson and his family at the University of Montana where he is a student.

"Probably," she said, "there are more great-grandmothers in the WAC than you think—but they just don't want to admit it."

officers recently assigned

Lt. Colonel John C. Bulmer is assigned to his second Presidio tour as chief of the construction branch, services division, G-4 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

From 1938 to 1945, the colonel was at Fort Scott, serving with the old Coast Artillery there. Following World War II, he served 42 months in the Philippines and Okinawa as searchlight unit commander and group S-4.

Enlisted from 1934 to 1941, Colonel Bulmer attended Artillery O.C.S. at Fort Monroe, Virginia. He has just returned from three years of duty in France with the G-4 section, Headquarters Communications Zone. Prior to going to France, he served 18 months in the G-4 Section, Eastern AA Command, Stewart AFB, New York.

Colonel and Mrs. Bulmer and their daughter are now residing here.

Lt. Colonel Albert M. Wunderlich has arrived for duty on the Presidio of San Francisco.

He has just completed 15 months as deputy G-4, Ryukyus Command, prior to which he spent 10 months in Korea with the 2nd Logistical Command. His World War II service was in the Pacific with the 40th Division, and he has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal and the Chinese Cloud and Banner award.

Veteran of 30 years' Army duty, both active and Reserve, Colonel Wunderlich, is a graduate of the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, and the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

The colonel and his wife reside on the Presidio with their nine-year-old daughter and nine-year-old adopted son whom they adopted while stationed in Germany in 1950. The couple also has two older married daughters.

Lt. Colonel Brice Pace, who has just completed a year's service as Adjutant General of the 69th Infantry Division, Fort Dix, New Jersey, is now assigned as special projects officer, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In 1937, Colonel Pace received his commission from R.O.T.C. ranks concurrent with his graduation from New York University. His majors were political science and geology.

Following two years of service in Europe with the 1st Army, and later Allied Forces, Italy, 1943-45, the colonel spent four years in Washington, D.C., the first two in the office of the Adjutant General and the last two with the G-1 Section, D/A. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation Ribbon.

A graduate of the nine-month AG officer's advanced course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, Colonel Pace previously spent 30 months as an interchange officer with the Canadian Army, with station at Ottawa. He and his wife and their three children who include Pamela, 11; Johnathan, seven, and Scott, three, now reside in Mill Valley.

Lt. Colonel James J. Hatch has joined the staff of the G-2 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. He has just completed a five-month assignment with JUSMAG in Thailand.

Prior to departing for Thailand, the colonel spent 30 months with the Joint Airborne Troop board, Fort Bragg, North Carolina. He was graduated from the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1949, and next February is slated to attend the Armed Forces Staff College. He has been in the Army for 15 years.

Colonel Hatch's World War II service was in the ETO for 30 months with the 502nd Parachute Infantry, part of the 101st Airborne Division. He later returned to Europe to serve 1949 through 1952 with the G-1 Section, EUCOM theatre headquarters.

Colonel and Mrs. Hatch and their five children are presently residing in the East Bay Area.

Captain Henry C. Vineyard, aviation officer with U. S. Forces Antilles and Puerto Rico at San Juan the past three years, has become an Army aviator with the Presidio of San Francisco flight detachment.

In the Army for 18 years, Captain Vineyard was a pilot with 77th F.A. Group in Italy during World War II, and with the 14th and later 2nd Constabulary in Austria and Germany during 1947. He attended O.C.S. at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and is a graduate of both the flight and advanced flight schools, the latter also at Fort Sill.

Leaving the service in 1947, the captain re-entered in 1948 as a master sergeant, and was recalled to active duty as an officer in 1949 while serving on Okinawa. Going to Korea, he joined the 10th Corps as a pilot, taking part in the Inchon landings and remaining with them until July, 1951.

Captain Vineyard has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, the Air Medal with seven Oak Leaf Clusters, the ETO Ribbon with two stars, the Korean Ribbon with six stars, the Korean Presidential Unit citation and the Crown of Italy, Degree of Cavalier. He, his wife and their six-year-old daughter are now residing in the Presidio Park apartments.

Major Walter L. Carppi, member of the G-2 Section, 7th Corps, Germany, for the past three years, is now the assistant Post Inspector General, Presidio of San Francisco.

A liaison pilot with the 203rd F.A. Group in the ETO during World War II, Major Carppi served there for 13 months. In 1946 he returned to Germany to serve four years in the G-2 Section of USAEUR Headquarters.

In the Army for 15 years, the major has attended flight, chemical warfare and intelligence schools, and his decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, and ETO Ribbon with four stars and the Liberation of Verdun Ribbon.

The major resides with his wife and daughter in San Rafael.

2nd Lieutenant Mac J. T. Barnette is in his first active duty assignment with the accounting branch, Post Finance Section, Presidio of San Francisco.

He has just completed the 16-week officer basic Finance course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, having entered the Army in April of this year.

Receiving his commission from R.O.T.C. ranks at the University of Washington, along with his degree in banking and investments, class of 1954, Lt. Barnette was employed by the Seattle First National bank prior to entering the service.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mac F. Barnette, reside in Seattle.

quarters Company, Station Complement; Capt. Chester C. Getty, 433th AAA, Travis Air Force Base; Capt. Robert J. Lewis, Headquarters Company, 46th Ordnance Group; Lt. Herbert M. Youngdahl, Special Services, Fort Winfield Scott; Major Earl K. Stewart, post Troop Information officer, and Sgt. Dugdale.

Operation Education

TI&E Officers Hear Briefing On Methods and Objectives

Whether a draftee or a voluntary enlistee, the soldier has a right to know why he is in the service and why his job is important to himself and his country, said Major Earl K. Stewart, post Troop Information and Education officer, at a recent briefing of more than 40 TI&E officers.

Paraphrasing General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chief of Staff, United States Army, Major Stewart pointed out that it is "the duty of the commander and his staff to provide the man with the answers to these important questions," using every means available.

Representing most of the units of the Presidio and its subposts, the TI&E officers were given a comprehensive outline and review of their mission as well as the methods by which to achieve an informed and intelligent Army.

Major Stewart emphasized the role of the TI&E officer. Because it is "considered a sensitive area," he said, "commanders must monitor TI&E activities closely."

But also, as General Taylor has pointed out, Major Stewart said, "... the most important (troop information) method of all is the direct contact of the commander with his men, which permits him to convey to them simply and sincerely the essential facts which every soldier should know."

Regularly scheduled, Commander's Time, it was pointed out, is the opportunity for unit officers to discuss such subjects as morale, discipline, the welfare of the unit, savings bonds, fatigue, AWOL, unit policies on leave and passes, police and other topics of unit and individual interest.

Other weekly unit briefings are designed to acquaint and inform personnel on ideas basic to American tradition and governmental policies as well as to explain regulations and directives of the Armed Forces.

Considering the other aspects of the TI&E mission, Major Stewart reviewed the educational opportunities offered to Army personnel in a program covering instruction from the fourth grade to the college level and offering both technical and general education courses.

Another phase of the TI&E program the Army newspaper, was discussed by Mr. Kenneth Erwin, editor of The Star-Presidian.

School on Tuesday, Not Monday; Motor Pool to Use Busses

Word received this week on the Presidio stated that San Francisco public schools will reopen on Tuesday, 13 September, rather than Monday, 12 September, as previously announced.

Registrations for children not yet enrolled in the school system were held this week.

Grade school youngsters will be attending Fort Winfield Scott school and Madison school. Junior high students will attend Marina Junior High School or Presidio Hill Junior High.

High school students may attend either Galileo, Lowell, Balboa, Abraham Lincoln or George Washington High schools.

The Post Motor Pool will furnish school bus service, and further information on this may be had by phoning Ext. 2143.

Safety Pays Off

Despite the highest holiday death toll in the nation's history, the Presidio and its subposts emerged from the Labor Day weekend without a single reported accidental death or injury, according to Mr. Henry E. Bennett, post Safety officer.

The casualty-less weekend marked the climax of the Army's 101-day Safety campaign as it was carried out on the Presidio and its subposts.

Bell XV3 Convertiplane, half helicopter and half airplane, is shown in its 'copter phase during its recent initial test flight at Ft. Worth, Tex. The craft takes off and lands as a helicopter. Then the pilot swings its rotors forward and they become propellers. The prototype can carry four passengers. It is being developed for the Army by Bell Aircraft and the AF's Air Research and Development Command.

Convertiplane's First Flight Success

The Bell XV-3 convertiplane, revolutionary new aircraft designed to operate as both a plane and a helicopter, has been flown at Ft. Worth, Texas, for the first time.

Military men watching the initial flight said that the new craft was "impressive" and performed very well considering its early stage of development.

The plane was developed for the Army by the Bell Aircraft Corp. and the Air Force's Air Research and Development Command.

It has two combination rotor-propellers mounted on a stubby, 30-foot fixed wing. The XV-3 can take off, hover and land like a helicopter.

Once aloft, the pilot tilts the rotors forward about 90 degrees into a conventional propeller position for high speed and long distance flights.

The conversion process, according to Bell engineers, is a smooth operation taking from 10 to 15 seconds with no loss of speed or altitude. The pilot can safely stop or reverse the conversion at any point and maintain stable flight.

Soldier Diplomats

Service Abroad to be Topic Of Troop Information Session

When in Rome—make friends of the Romans.

Serving Overseas, the topic of next week's Troop Information instruction, is designed to brief service personnel on the purposes and the added responsibilities of foreign assignment.

In whatever sphere of America's far-flung interests the soldier serves, his primary objective is the same—the prevention of general war. His presence as part of a combat-ready unit is an integral part of America's policy to maintain peace against aggression by a show of power and the willingness to use it, should it become necessary.

But the soldier overseas is also an American ambassador to the foreign peoples among whom he serves. His objective is to win and maintain the confidence and friendship of his country's allies.

To gain and keep the respect of his nation's associates, the soldier must above all show a healthy respect for the institutions of other peoples. By showing an interest in their history, their way of life, overseas personnel can help to keep their country in good standing among its associates.

At the same time, the soldier is in a position to extend the range of his own interest and experience through contact with other peoples. He has at little cost to himself the benefits of foreign travel which were once the privilege of only the comparatively few.

Prepared by the post Troop Information and Education Division, the instruction is aimed at preparing personnel for assignment in the Far East as well as in any of the nations of the Atlantic Community.

In any case, the soldier contributes not only to his own country's security and well-being but also to that of its foreign allies by his personal conduct.

25 Soldier POW Cases Still Await Final Disposition

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has disclosed that 25 officers and enlisted men still may face court martial charges as the result of alleged crimes committed while they were prisoners of war in Korea.

An army spokesman said that 13 cases have yet to be heard by boards of officers. Twelve others await possible court martial action by major commands following thorough investigation of their behavior in POW camps.

Ten army men already have been court-martialed for offenses committed in communist POW camps. Of these, three were acquitted and six were sentenced to terms ranging from two to 20 years. Sgt. James C. Gallagher's life sentence has not yet been approved by the convening authority.

An additional 65 army men were separated from the service as the result of hearings conducted by boards of officers. Of this number, there was one discharge other than honorable, 35 undesirable discharges, 27 general discharges and two honorable discharges.

Presidio Girl Scout Wins Writing Honors in National Scout Magazine

"When I was working for my Girl Scout merit badge of writer, the instructions said to send in contributions to the magazine—so I did."

With these words, 10-year-old Luellen Dineen of Presidio Girl Scout Troop No. 187 explained how she won a non-fiction award for her story "Mac," which appears in the September issue of the national Girl Scout magazine, "American Girl." The magazine reaches more than half a million subscribers monthly.

Luellen was awarded $5.00 for her simple, heart-warming story about the family's dog, Mac, who was purchased as a puppy while the family was stationed in Germany, as a birthday present for Mrs. Dineen.

Only child of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Maurice L. Dineen, Luellen will attend the sixth grade at Sutro school this fall. She feels now that she will make writing her career. Daddy is stationed with the Post Transportation section.

When she first came to the Presidio in 1953, Luellen was in the Brownie Troop but for the past year has been a Girl Scout. Other badges she has won include cook and cat and dog.

Following is her prize-winning entry as it appears in the magazine:

Nonfiction Award

"Mac is an English cocker spaniel. He was born in Garmisch, Germany, on January 12, 1951. His parents were champions, but he can't be a champion because his lower jaw is crooked. Mac stands sixteen inches off the ground at his back, but he likes to fight with much bigger dogs. I guess he thinks it is his duty to protect little dogs. He has been taught to sit up on his hind feet for food, dig holes, carry his leash to the house (because we live in a place where the dogs have to be on a leash) and play with his toys. Though he likes to fight with big dogs, he is quite a baby. He cries when he is left alone. He gets on the beds with wet or dry feet. He spends most of his time sleeping. We have a long, low bookcase in front of our living-room window. Mac lies on top of it looking outside; sometimes he falls asleep. When he falls asleep, he spreads out and his foot keeps sliding off the bookcase and looks so silly. Mac also likes to play with cats."—Luellen Dineen (age 10), San Francisco, Calif.

'sa fact!

Outside the Ice Follies side door entrance last Thursday night, two youngsters with a playground group sighted five Presidio Wacs in uniform approaching the entrance. Wide-eyed, one punched his companion with his elbow. "What are they?" he asked in astonishment. "Those," his friend pronounced, "are lady soldiers. THEY DO A GOOD DEED EVERY DAY!"

One In Hand is worth legions in the bush to Pvt. Arnold Vandenberg who has just received his San Francisco High School Diploma from 1st Lt. Herbert M. Youngdahl, acting CO, Company C, Station Complement. A native of Holland, the private's greatest challenge was the English language. He filed first papers for American citizenship this week.

Presidio Soldier Overcomes Language Barrier To Earn High School Diploma

Shortly after filing his first papers for American citizenship this week, Pvt. Arnold Vandenberg, Company C, Station Complement, was presented another important piece of paper, a San Francisco High School diploma.

Presented by 1st Lt. Herbert M. Youngdahl, acting CO of Company C, the parchment was awarded Pvt. Vandenberg for the successful completion of high school courses on-post and at Galileo Evening High School.

Another requirement for the diploma was satisfactory scores on the Army's High School GED test battery.

A native of Amsterdam, Holland, the local EM found the English requirements to be the most difficult part of his recent educational pursuit.

He came to Fresno, California, from the Netherlands with his parents in 1951. In Holland he completed the standard seven years' grammar school and went on to an agricultural school for another year and a half.

Before coming to the United States he worked on his family's dairy farm and was also employed by his uncle in a grocery store in Amsterdam.

Colonel Saxon Leaves For Command Duties At Camp Gordon

Lieutenant Colonel Keene Saxon, post provost marshal and former 505th MP Battalion Commander bid the Presidio farewell today prior to his departure for Camp Gordon, Georgia, where he is slated to assume command of a Military Government Group.

Succeeding Colonel Saxon as provost marshal is Lt. Col. Fred C. Smith, who last week became commander of the 505th MP Battalion. Colonel Saxon first came to the Presidio in July, 1952, as commander of the 505th and in May, 1954, assumed the additional duties of provost marshal.

A native of Kansas where he practiced law for 18 years following the receipt of a reserve commission in 1924, Colonel Saxon was called to active duty in 1942 to serve as a Military Police officer. He served 30 months in the European Theatre.

In Korea from 1950 to 1952, he was IX Corps provost marshal. Colonel Saxon holds the Bronze Star and Legion of Merit, in addition to the Army Commendation Ribbon and theater credits.

September Term Education Program Opens Next Week

The fall semester of on- and off-post high school and college courses for service personnel will open next week sponsored by the post Troop Information and Education Division in cooperation with local educational institutions.

The first of four on-post high school courses leading to a diploma will begin 13 September. Taught by instructors from Benjamin Franklin Adult School, the classes will be held from 1800 to 2100 week day evenings.

The classes are General Mathematics, beginning 19 September; U. S. History and Constitution, starting 13 September; General Science, 14 September, and English Fundamentals, 15 September. The four course program leads to a high school diploma from the San Francisco Unified School District.

On the college level, three on-post eight-week classes will begin 19 September under the auspices of San Francisco State College. Each course carries three units of transferable college credit.

The classes include English 164, the American novel, which will meet from 1830 to 2100 Mondays and Wednesdays in Building 1131; Geography 150, meeting from 1830 to 2100 Tuesdays and Thursdays in Building 1101; and International Relations, 1830 to 2100 Mondays and Wednesdays in Building 1101.

Additional information, registration and counseling services can be obtained from the post Army Education Center, Building 117, or by calling either 2974 or 3189.

Off-post college courses will also begin next week at the University of California extension in San Francisco and other local colleges.

Long, Long Trail...

Cemetery Air Superintendent Retires After 51 Years' Army, Civil Service

A total of more than 50 years of Army and Government service was climaxed recently by Mr. Warren L. Pierson, San Francisco National Cemetery superintendent at the Presidio for the past 21 years.

At ceremonies held at the cemetery here, Certificate of Retirement was presented to Mr. Pierson by Warren Jones, Assistant Chief, Cemetery Division; Sharpe General Depot, Lathrop, California, the regional supervisory headquarters of the National Cemetery System.

Mister Pierson saw 30 years of continuous military service in the infantry and the coast artillery, retiring as master sergeant, July 31, 1933.

In August, 1934, he was assigned to Arlington National Cemetery and was named assistant superintendent of the San Francisco National Cemetery, 1 August, 1934. He received his promotion to superintendent, September, 1939.

From May, 1941, to November, 1943, Mr. Pierson acted as Superintendent of the Golden Gate National Cemetery at San Bruno, California. Returning then to the San Francisco National Cemetery he remained as Superintendent for nearly 12 years, with supervision of employees, maintenance and care, conduct of funerals, and keeping of official records.

Mister Pierson's record during his long service has been outstanding. His conduct of Memorial Day ceremonies and his courtesies to visitors have brought high commendation, not only from the civilian personnel chief of the Presidio of San Francisco, but from San Francisco city officials and the Commanding General of the 6th Army.

Mr. Pierson and his wife will reside in Diablo, California, where they are building a new home.

Operation 288!

Tours Planned To Demonstrate Key United Crusade Activities

With Operation 288 underway, the agencies and charities enlisted in the United Bay Area Crusade have swung open their doors to soldiers and civilians of the Presidio who wish to tour facilities needing funds.

The tours were planned to stimulate Presidio-wide interest in reaching the donation tag of $30,000 set for the Presidio. Anyone—civilian, enlisted or officer—is entitled to participate in a tour.

Arrangements may be made by contacting the Custodian's Office, Post Headquarters, Extension 3823. Tours are of two-hour and three-hour length. They take in at least three agencies, usually one each of hospital clinic, community center and youth center services.

A spokesman for the United Bay Area Crusade said an effort was made to take visitors through one of the special services, such as a cerebral palsy clinic.

The donation objective for the Presidio is part of an overall goal of $10,000,000 in the 1955 Crusade. "Operation 288," the military division of the campaign, got its name from the 288 organizations that will benefit from the drive.

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, is chairman of the Bay Area Crusade Military Cabinet, and Col. Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, is chairman of the Presidio campaign.

The three-hour tours will be given from 900 to 1200 hours and from 1330 to 1630. The shorter tours are slated from 900 to 1100, 1000 to 1200 and 1430 to 1530.

Transportation will be arranged by the United Crusade from the Presidio to the tour destinations for personnel wishing to see how United Crusade contributions are spent for key community services.

Shorthand Reporters Needed in California, Nevada Fed. Offices

Shorthand reporter vacancies will be filled in federal agencies throughout California and Nevada through examinations just announced by the U. S. Civil Service commission.

Positions in Northern California and Nevada will be filled from one examination; positions in Southern California from another.

The written test requires taking dictation at the rate of 175 words a minute. Shorthand reporter positions paying $4,080 a year require no experience; one year as court reporter or hearing stenographer is required for positions paying $4,525 a year.

Explorer Scouts Complete Pack Trip; Cover Yosemite Mountains and Valleys

"Crescent M," an Explorer Scout bivouac just recently completed, had nine young men from Presidio Troop No. 77 as members, and they were in charge of their Scoutmaster, Pfc. Jack Winitzer. Other troops in the Bay Area also participated.

The boys included Henry Thomas who kept the log, Dan Buttolph, Michael Woodrome, Robert Kelley, William Perkins, James Caldwell, Earl Greshenow, Kelley Bates and Donald Rudser.

Hiking some six miles in their planned tour the first day, the Scouts made camp in a meadow that night, "but we discovered a bee hive under us, so we quickly moved to a safer spot."

On the third day out they climbed one of four mountains listed in their itinerary, covering 12 miles of scenic splendor and rugged hiking, the most for any single day.

The camping trip lasted 10 days during which the boys did their cooking, camped out, hiked, fished, swam and did numerous projects to earn explorer ratings.

Next on Troop 77's list was a Yosemite Valley trip which began on 21 August.

Explorer Scouts will meet in the Scout hall at 1900 hours tonight.

Great Days!

Presidio Children's Nursery Is Home for Happy Moppets

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

When we opened the door and someone said, "WAAAAaah," I knew we were at the right place!

This greeting continued until we made our way up the hall and into a spotless playroom full of toys of every description and very small children of every description.

Then it stopped.

Dozens of little blue, brown, green and grey eyes were instantaneously focused on the pair of intruders (Photographer Pvt. Phil Staknis and me).

We explained to them in our best baby talk that we had come to take their pictures and find out how they enjoyed life at the Presidio Children's Nursery.

They seemed satisfied with our explanation.

Posing the little moppets was another matter.

There is more squirm, wiggle, pull, push, crawl, and bustle to one small human being that to a division on the march!

Several hours later we emerged victorious with both pictures and exclusive interviews with several of the little people who said that they would rather be there with their fellow playmates than just anywhere else they could think of!

I could easily see why.

The surroundings are excellent, the nurses are angels of patience and kindness, the toys are numerous and you are bound to meet all of the best people at one of the two luncheon periods held at 1100 and 1400.

Some 40 to 60 kiddies gather 'round the gleaming tables or pile into high chairs each day and a "really busy" day will see 75 tumble in for chow. The food, by the way, is prepared and labeled by the individual parent and brought to the Nursery along with the young 'un. It must be pre-cooked as foods are warmed only. Bottle infants are, of course, fed on schedule. Refrigeration, dishes and pans are provided by the nursery.

The ladies and gentlemen range in age from six weeks to five years, and, when not playing indoors or sleeping, they are taken outdoors (weather permitting) where they have access to slides, swings and other outdoor play equipment adjacent to the Nursery building.

Hours are 0730 to 1800 Monday through Friday, 2000 to 2300 Tuesday and Thursday nights (for bingo players), 1200 to 0100 Saturdays, and 0730 to 1330 Sundays, (for two hours only for parents attending church services).

Rates are $.35 an hour for the first child and $.20 an hour for each additional child in family. Weekly and monthly rates are also available on a five-day-week basis, 0730 to 1700 hours. They are $10 weekly for each child or $37.50 monthly, each payable in advance.

In addition there is a special commissary rate which applies from 0830 to 1130 weekdays, when kiddies may be left for one and one-half hours for $.25 a child.

Children of military personnel on active duty on the Presidio and its sub-posts as well as other installations, those on Reserve status and those whose parents are employed in a civilian capacity on the Presidio are eligible for Nursery care. The Nursery is located on Ruger street, Bldg. 569, near the Lombard gate. Full information on the many facets of Nursery care may be obtained by calling Ext. 3588.

Mrs. Betty Russell is the nurse in charge and her assistants are Mrs. Elfreda Robertson and Mrs. Elizabeth Bunford. Part time assistants include Mrs. Josephine Duffy, Mrs. Cathy Keatton, Mrs. Jane Meeks and Miss Beverly Lawton.

rosh hashanah...

Rosh Hashanah, Jewish New Year, begins at sundown Friday, 16 September and ends at sundown Sunday, 18 September. Yom Kippur, Day of Atonement, begins at sundown Sunday, 25 September and ends at sundown Monday, 26 September. Jewish military personnel and their families may attend High Holy Day religious services at the Synagogue of their choice in the San Francisco Bay Area. Seating reservations may be made by calling EXbrook 7-0822, or writing the National Jewish Welfare board, 870 Market Street. The Sixth Army Chaplain's office, Ext. 2521 or 4192, will supply additional information.

cubs, scouts...

First Fall meetings of Presidio Post Boy Scout Troop No. 77 and Cub Pack No. 77 are slated for the beginning of next week. Scouts (boys from 11 to 14 years of age) will meet Monday (12 September) at 1900 in the Scout hall, Bldg. 229, and Cubs (boys from eight to 11 years) will have their meeting on Tuesday at 1900. Parents are being encouraged to attend the Cub Pack meeting and any Presidio boy who wishes to join either the Cubs or the Scouts, may attend the proper meeting. Further information may be obtained at Ext. 3645.

Turn of the Mask!

Private Is Also a British NCO In Actor's Workshop Hit Play

Instead of changing into civvies every night after duty hours, Sp3 Bill Sibley of the Headquarters, Sixth Army Information Center climbs right back into another uniform—that of the British Army and even manages to gain sergeant's stripes in the process.

By no means a counter-spy, Pvt. Sibley is merely following a director's orders as an actor by night. He plays a featured role in "The Girl on the Via Flaminia," a current Actor's Workshop production playing at the Mariposa Memorial Theatre at Sutter and Mason.

In his role as a British soldier, the local private has not only acquired a Cockney accent but by a clever switch of his vocal cords, he also manages to speak Italian like a native of Piccadilly.

Holder of an AB degree in speech from the College of the Pacific, the soldier thespian has appeared in several previous productions of San Francisco's resident professional theatre company.

Following college graduation in 1954, during the two months prior to beginning Army service, Pvt. Sibley served as director of the Stockton Civic Theatre group.

In 1952 and 1953 he toured with the Children's Theatre of the West. On the same day he was assigned to the Presidio in September, 1954, the eager actor joined Actor's Workshop.

Upon completion of military service and duties in the Radio-TV section of the Sixth Army Information Center, Pvt. Sibley plans to begin working on a master's degree in speech arts and also to complete the requirements for a teaching credential.

As a Cockney NCO, Pvt. Sibley can be seen on Friday and Saturday nights at 2030 at the Marines' Memorial Theatre. Tickets may be acquired at Sherman Clay or reserved through Actor's Workshop, MA 1-5901.

The drama deals with the relations between Allied liberators and Italian citizens during the fading days of WWII in Rome. It centers around the love affair of an American sergeant and an Italian girl. Adapted from the best-selling Alfred Hayes novel, the story was given a somewhat altered version in the film, "Act of Love."

"VERA CRUZ," Mature. Intrigue and bloody conflict which characterized Mexico under the rule of Maximilian.

"APACHE AMBUSH," Mature. Set just after the Civil war, the picture portrays one man's fight to get a herd of cattle from Texas to Abilene, Kansas, to alleviate a food shortage in the north.

"TRIAL," Mature. A law school instructor gets his first taste of criminal law when he finds himself assigned to defend a 17-year-old Mexican boy on a murder charge.

"ULYSSES," Mature. The great Greek warrior and sailor whom the mighty Neptune vowed to destroy and who, by his resources and energy, was able to defy the god of the sea and return to his home and family.

"NIGHT FREIGHT," Mature. Battle of the truck lines.

"LUCY GALANT," Family. That famous gal who set up business in a boom town shack and built an empire in fashions and furs. She loved, too, a Texas roughneck, but only as long as he played the game her way.

"COUNT THREE AND PRAY," Mature. The rowdy story of a horse-racing, hell-raising man and the town and women who wouldn't let him reform.

"TO HELL AND BACK," Mature. Biography of Audie Murphy's World War II exploits which won him every medal in the books, portrayed by Murphy himself.

"THE BAR SINISTER," Family. Adventures of a fancy-free bull terrier named Wildfire and his wise and shaggy observations about people and life—in other words—you're going to the dogs!

Quick-Change artist, Pvt. Bill Sibley, Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, is currently changing accents as rapidly as he switches uniforms to play the role of cockney sergeant in the Actors' Workshop production of "The Girl on the Via Flaminia," at the Marines Memorial Theatre. At the Presidio Sibley plays the role of a full-time soldier in the Radio-TV section of the Sixth Army Information center.

Raiders Open Year Against SF Sailors

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Football gets back in the Presidio sports picture this afternoon at 1400 hours when the Presidio Red Raiders engage the San Francisco Navy Shipyards in their first game of the season at Hunters Point Field in South San Francisco.

Head Coach Larry McInerney stated that "a critical need for football players still exists, especially ends and backs." Any Presidio personnel with playing experience are urged to call Lieutenant Glick at Post Special Services, extension 2002, for information.

Coach McInerney is expected to open today's game with veteran Dick Piggott at the left end slot. Piggott, a 190-pound star from last year's Raider squad, played two years at the University of Illinois. Burt Terrell, a member of the 21st Engineers, will start at the left tackle slot.

late flash

Three first string players will be missing from today's lineup due to their units being called upon to fight forest fires in Northern California. Missing from the squad will be left end Dick Piggott, left tackle Burt Terrell and center John Snyder. Replacing them will be John Dreiholz at end, big Bill Pritchard at the tackle slot and Doug Weaver at the pivot position.

Left guard will be manned by tough, 195-pound Sam DeOrian, who did his pre-service playing at Fresno State College. Center of the Raider line will be John Snyder, a 210-pound veteran from last season's team. Duke Holmes of A Company, 505th MPs, will hold down the right guard position. Frank McDonnell, a 220-pound lad from the 56th MRU, will start at right tackle. Frank did his playing at Long Beach City College prior to his entering the service.

Starting at right end will be rangy Jerry Nims at 175 pounds. Nims is stationed with the 9956 TU on Post and did his early playing at Stockton Junior College.

Starting at the key quarterback slot will be Morris Maytubby, a converted halfback from Fresno State College. Maytubby has been running the squad like a seasoned veteran in his first year at the key spot in the T formation.

Left half will feature Jim Guimarin from Battery B of the 752nd AAA unit. Guimarin played a year at Baylor University prior to entering the Army.

Ed Colarossi, one of several Honor Guardmen on the Raider squad, is a veteran of last year's Presidio team and will handle the punting chores.

Fullbacking the Raiders will be Bobby Ratliff, a 210-pound spark-plug from Headquarters Battery, 740th AAA Missile Battalion. Ratliff was chosen on the All-Border Conference team last season while playing for West Texas State.

The Raiders dropped a close 27 to 21 practice game to the semi-pro Santa Cruz Sea Hawks early last week. The Reds got off to a seven-point lead in the first quarter only to have the Sea Hawks roar back with 14 counters in the second frame.

The third quarter saw both teams score seven points. Each side got one touchdown in the fourth and final quarter with Morris Maytubby running 90 yards for a sensational kickoff return.

Tycenski's .394 Tops Post Team

Wielding a mighty mace, catcher Ed Tycenski smashed out 28 hits in 71 official appearances at the plate to walk off with the top batting average for the 1955 Presidio Red Raider softball squad. Tycenski's .394 average topped the Raider team as official records were released this week by the Post Sports Office.

Second place went to hustling Bob Moran, who connected for 23 hits in his 60 appearances for a nifty .383 mark. Right on his heels with a .378 average was Ken Bush, Presidio second sacker.

Seven members of coach Van Kirk's 14-man squad hit for .300 per cent or over as the regular season closed last week with the Raiders taking third place in the All-Sixth Army Tournament at Dugway, Utah.

Nineteen round trippers rattled off the bats of the softball aces with four players tied for the top with three apiece. The four were catcher Tycenski, first baseman Bob Moran, hurler Ed Johnson and third baseman Lee Dluginsky. Rangy Kennard Whitfield blasted out two homers to finish just between the leaders.

Runs batted in honors went to chucker Ed Johnson with 29 as his battery mate Tycenski finished with 25 RBI's. In third place with 18 RBI's was Bob Moran. Lee Dluginsky's five pilfered sacks led the team in stolen bases.

service stars

Stars and Stripes in Europe has named two pitcher-outfielders, A/2C George Morgan and Pfc. Ray Rosenbaum, as winners of its second most valuable player poll. Morgan had a 4-0 pitching mark at Bitburg AB, Germany. He hit 24 homers and batted .393. Rosenbaum finished the season with a 7-1 record. As a member of the Falcons (39th Inf. Regt.), he averaged 10 strikeouts per game, batted .385 in 35 games and clouted 11 home runs. Both will be flown to the U.S. and get VIP treatment, including seats at the World Series.

VETERAN end Dick Piggott is one of several football stars hailing from the 99th Engineer Company of the 30th Engineer Group. Pfc. Piggott will start at left end this afternoon against the San Francisco Navy Shipyard in South San Francisco.

Army Second

AF Netmen Win 4 Titles, Take Inter-Service Crown

Quantico, Va. (AFPS)—Air Force netmen won four titles and scored 11 points for their second straight inter-service tennis championship. The Army was second with eight points, the Navy had three and the Marine Corps failed to score.

A/2C Whitney Reed of Tinker AFB, Okla., defeated the Army's top-seeded player, SP3 Grant Golden of Eighth Army, 6-4, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, to win the singles title. Golden, all-Army champ, was ranked 10th in the nation in 1953.

Reed's singles victory gave the AF a 10-8 edge in competition and clinched the Leech Cup for the defending champs.

The AF champion received the Riseley Bowl as the top singles player in the tourney and an invitation to play in the national singles at Forest Hills, N. Y. Golden also will compete in the nationals.

Reed and teammate Cpl. Hugh Ditzler of Guam, downed Golden and Pfc. Don Flye of Hanau, Germany, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2, for the doubles crown.

In the senior singles competition, Col. Nicholas Powell, USAF Hq., defeated M/Sgt. Emil Johnson of Camp Dietrich, Md., 6-2, 6-3, for the title.

Cols. Powell and Harris Hull, Northeast conference, won the senior doubles title defeating Lt. Cols. John Butler of Ft. Monroe, Va., and Chaplain Francis Sampson, Ft. Campbell, Ky., 6-4, 3-6, 6-0.

This year's tourney was the 16th such meeting. It marked the first time the Marine Corps entered a team and the first time the tournament was hosted by a military installation. Since 1924, the Navy has won 10 times, the Army four, and the AF two.

Presidio Plays Host to Army Sports Clinic

Next Thursday Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, on behalf of the Presidio will host the Sixth Army basketball and volleyball clinic. The two day clinic will be held in the Letterman Army Hospital's gymnasium.

Purpose of the two day clinic is to familiarize Sixth Army athletic directors and coaches with recent changes, new rules, new techniques and strategy for the forthcoming basketball and volleyball seasons.

The volleyball clinic will be conducted by Bobb Miller, physical director of the San Francisco Embarcadero YMCA and director of the 1955 All-Army Volleyball Tournament. Amory T. (Slats) Gill, head coach of the Oregon State College basketball five will conduct the basketball clinic. Master of ceremonies will be Ed Schonfeld, Sports Director of the Oakland Tribune.

An exhibition volleyball match will be played between the Embarcadero YMCA and the Hamilton Air Force Base team, all Air Force champions for the past year.

salmon

Salmon catch of California's commercial fishery totaled a record 892,000 fish in the 1954 season, according to figures compiled by the department's marine fisheries branch. The ocean troll fishery set an all-time high, landing 835,000 fish, or 8,500,000 pounds, compared to the previous record in 1947, when just over 8,000,000 pounds were taken. About 57,000 king salmon were taken by the river gill-net fishery, in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

Rifle Meet Honors To C G Ensign

Ft. Meade, Md. (AFPS)—A coast guard ensign from Cape May, N. J., won top service honors in the middle Atlantic regional high power rifle matches here.

Ens. James Doughty scored a total of 489 points with 52 V-ring shots. He finished second to Arthur Jackson in the battle for individual high aggregate honors.

Jackson, a member of the 1948 and 1952 U. S. Olympic rifle teams, also had a total score of 489 but he recorded 54 V-ring shots—two more than Doughty. Jackson's victory gave him a free trip to the national championships at Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 20.

A team from Eighth Army, composed of 1st Lts. Winfield Holt, John Sandhaas, Robert Carter and Cpl. Samuel Lucero, placed first in the four-man team match with a total of 956 points.

Lt. Holt also won the 20-shot rapid fire event with a score of 100 and 14 V-ring shots. The 20-shot 500-yard record fire event was won by Marine Sgt. Delbert Faulkner of Cherry Point, N. C., with a score of 100 and 18 V-ring shots.

for AER

Chicago (AFPS) — The 10th annual armed forces benefit football game between the professional Chicago Bears and Cleveland Browns will be played at Soldier Field here 15 Sept.

Proceeds from the game, sponsored by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers Assn., will go to the Army Emergency Relief Fund, the Navy Relief Society and the Air Force Aid Society.

ducks

Waterfowl banded by department federal-aid project crews during the 1954-55 banding season included 32,495 ducks and 5,855 geese. Band returns will yield information on flyway routes, and also give some indication of relative hunting pressure on the different species.

Pin Smashers

Lt. Colonel Jacobs Tops Post Bowlers With 187

Topped by Lieutenant Colonel Jacob's 187 average, a seven-man Presidio bowling team was chosen last Saturday for action in San Francisco Winter League. Colonel Jacobs, of Sixth Army Chemical, smashed 2250 pins to top the field and become captain of the bowling squad.

Second place went to Major Murphy, G-2, with 2194 pins downed and a 182 average. Third went to Sergeant Hoffacker of the 102d MRU, with a 175 mark and 2102 pins knocked over. Sergeant First Class Johnson, Headquarters Company 505th MP's, smashed 2064 pins for a 171 average.

Specialist-three Whitesell of the 561st Engineers rolled a 171 average to tie for the fourth place position. Whitesell smashed 2062 pins for the 12 games. Sergeant First Class Regan of the Post Dispensary blasted 2044 pins and a 170 mark. Seventh place on the Presidio team went to Master Sergeant Taylor, Hilltoppers, with 1996 pins shattered and a 165 average.

The qualifying round of bowling consisted of 12 games rolled over the two Post alleys. Six games were rolled on the Presidio alleys and six on the Fort Scott hardwoods.

Over in the Eastern League the Ichi Ban's continued their hold on first place by winning two games this week to rack up a 16 and 4 record for the 20 games played so far this season.

The 6513 SU crew moved up to go into a tie with the Hilltoppers No. 6 for the second rung on the Eastern ladder. Both squads boast a 13 and 7 record so far in league competition. Last week's second place Nuggets dropped four games this week to wind up in fourth place this week with a 12 and 8 mark.

High game this season for a team with handicap went to the seventh place Ten Pins with 1087 pins shattered. For high series with handicap the Nuggets won out with a 2970 record. Individual high averages in league play saw Owens and Yoshino tie for the top with 175's. Just three pins back were Ishihara and Bram with 172 averages in official competition.

antelope

Antelope census taken from the air in northeastern California shows the State's prong-horn herds have increased 5.7 per cent over last year. The survey, taken by a department Pittman-Robertson federal aid project crew, tallied 2,137 animals this year, against 2,022 in 1954. Of the total 1,383 were in Modoc County, 506 in Lassen, 217 in Siskiyou, and 31 in Shasta County.

elk hunt

A special tule elk hunt, in which 150 animals may be taken, was set for Inyo County by the Fish and Game Commission at its Los Angeles meeting.

To be taken in the 3-11 December hunt will be 40 bulls and 110 cows, the Commission decided.

Applications for permits, accompanied by one dollar, must be in the Department's Sacramento office, 926 Jay Street, by 6 October. A drawing will be held 17 October. A ten dollar fee will be required of successful applicants. Applications are now being distributed to license agents, and are different from those used in special deer hunts.

Brothers Star

Presidio Little Leaguers Edge Hayward Stars, 1-0

Getting but one base hit the Presidio Little League All-Stars edged the champion Hayward Little Leaguers, 1 to 0 in a seven-inning thriller last Sunday afternoon in Hayward.

The Presidio lads scored the only counter of the extra inning contest in the bottom of the seventh frame. Second sacker Tommy Stewart walked, stole second and then stole third, setting the stage for the dramatic finish. Brother Earl Stewart, Presidio hurler, next up, hit a sizzling grounder to short and young Tom slid home with the winning tally.

The Presidio batters were able to gather but one base hit during the seven-inning contest and winning pitcher Stewart made this by singling sharply to left in the fifth frame. Hurler Stewart gave up four hits during the game in winning the first Presidio Little League All-Star contest of the year. Hayward's Jack Everhart got the only extra base blow when he doubled to right center in the sixth.

This Sunday at 1400 hours the champs from Hayward's other Little League will invade the local Pop Hick's field for a must on the sports calendar. The invading squad is rated above last Sunday's foe in Hayward Little League play.

George Leonard, Presidio short-stop, turned in the game's only double play unassisted in the top of the first frame. With a runner on second Leonard snagged a line drive and doubled the runner off first.

Fathers of Little League players are invited to the playing field Saturday afternoon at 1300 hours for help in fixing up the diamond for Sunday's clash. Also players that have lost jackets during the summer Little League play are urged to contact CWO Mullins, League president, as several jackets have been turned in to him.

Ft. Lewis Set For Struggle With Hamilton

An aerial attack built around three versatile quarterbacks was revealed this week as the 23rd Infantry Regiment's (Fort Lewis) chief offensive hope for the Oyster Bowl game tomorrow against the powerful Hamilton Air Force grid eleven at South Bend, Washington.

The aerial play will revolve around three ex-college pigskin stars. Clarence Franklin, University of Southern California; Lesly Burton, University of Houston, and John Kinyo, Yakima Junior College.

The 23rd Infantry Regiment's team is supplemented with players from throughout the 2nd Infantry Division and Fort Lewis for the grid clash, as Fort Lewis itself will not field a football team this season.

olympic star

Washington (AFPS)—Marine Lt. Bob Mathias has left the U. S. for a three-month tour of foreign countries under auspices of the State Department. Now assigned to Camp Pendleton, Calif., he was granted leave to make the trip.

The Olympic decathlon champion will conduct athletic clinics and give track and field exhibitions. He will also meet informally with youth groups and community leaders.

His itinerary includes Ireland, Iceland, Germany, Turkey, Egypt, Iraq, Iran, Pakistan, Ceylon, India, Indonesia, Malaya, Formosa and Hong Kong.

HOPES for reaching the pigskin are pretty slim for 5' 6" Pvt. Ken Watts. But not so slim, 300 pound 6' 4" Sp/2 Nelson Young has no trouble holding the oval out of reach. The pair are the largest and smallest men training with the Fort Lewis 38th Infantry Regiment's football squad, as their season opens this week.

tion of the bus as M/Sgt. Jack G. Wall and Lt. Col. John J. Loughran, CO of Detachment 6, 6400 SU, San Francisco Main Recruiting station, look on. The bus will travel to various communities in Northern California in an extensive recruiting program.

Mobile Campaign!

Commander Hosts Cal Governor At Recruiting Bus Dedication

California's Governor Goodwin J. Knight recently became the first official visitor to view the Army's latest version of a "Recruiting Station on Wheels." The mobile unit was unveiled in dedication ceremonies held on the State Capitol grounds at Sacramento, when the Governor cut the red, white and blue ribbon signifying his endorsement of the new mobile unit.

Acting as host for the occasion, Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Commanding General of the Sixth Army, invited Governor Knight to view the exhibits on display inside the bus.

The General pointed out the many informative features of the traveling unit. Other members of the official party included Colonel William M. Cohoon, Military Personnel Procurement Officer for the Sixth Army Area, and Lieutenant Colonel John J. Loughran, Commanding Officer of Detachment 6, 6400 SU.

In addition to being fully equipped as a mobile recruiting office, the bus contains a host of military displays. Along one side of the bus' interior there is a model of a typical Army mess hall and kitchen, complete in every detail.

Another miniature display shows seventy-five armored vehicles used by allied and enemy nations during World War II. The models of scout cars, tanks and amphibious units are mounted on a life-like ground landscape in simulated combat formations.

A collection of enlarged colored photographs depicting today's modern Army points out the many advantages and opportunities available to young men and women who choose an Army career.

The unique and attention-getting vehicle was constructed under the supervision of 1st Lt. Sterling R. Thompson with the assistance of Pfc. Roderick Bethea and Cpl. Max Johnson all of Detachment 6, 6400 SU. Cpl. Johnson will operate the vehicle on its swing around the detachment area.

An extensive advance publicity campaign will herald the forthcoming visits of the unit to the outlying communities. Newspaper mats, releases and radio and TV spots have been especially produced for this purpose.

The bus had its premiere showing at the California State Fair in Sacramento, California, where it became a center of attraction in the military exhibits area.

Colonel Loughran, Commanding Officer for the Northern California area, said, "This unit was designed primarily as a mobile recruiting station. It is scheduled to visit cities and towns in Northern California and Nevada where we do not have a full time Army Recruiting office."

K-Vet POWs Granted GI Insurance Waiver Under New Law

Washington (AFPS) — A new law granting waivers of GI insurance premiums to servicemen who could not apply for them during the Korean war because they were prisoners or in a missing status is now in effect.

Some policyholders in service after April 25, 1951, were prevented from making written application for premium waiver because they were missing or prisoners of war.

The new law corrects this situation by providing retroactive waiver to those in a status of missing or captured at any time after April 25, 1951, and before April 26, 1952.

heliport open

Washington (AFPS)—A new helicopter landing pad has opened for business outside the Pentagon for the use of the Defense Department's top military and civilian officials.

The concrete strip measuring 100 feet square is on the south side of the Pentagon facing Ft. Myer, Va. It cost $14,000.

The need for such a facility was demonstrated during "Operation Alert 1955" last June when many of the Pentagon's top officials were transported to secret hideaways by helicopters that landed on the grass outside the building.

Cash Prizes Awarded Headquarters Company, Sixth Army Marksmen

The lure of cold cash enhanced the marksmanship of members of Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, who sharpened their eyesights, blackened their carbine sights and assumed the appropriate positions before settling down to fire for annual qualifications records.

When the last target was pulled and the final round of 30 calibre ammunition was spent, the unit's officers began sifting through the score cards to determine which EM had the best showing and claim to $20 first prize money.

A score of 197 brought to Sp1 Dwight J. Curb the distinction of beating every man in his company on the ranges along with the $20.

Only 2 points behind at 195, Pfc. Jack B. Munroe pocketed $10 second place money. Competition on the ranges was so keen that the 194 tallies of four men put them in line for the third prize $5.

The $5 winners were Sp3 Robert Tufo, Sgt. John C. Craig, Sgt. Robert M. Alexander and M/Sgt. Ralph Olin.

Dog Show, Drawing Set on Letterman Lawn Sunday, 18 September

Care to go to the dogs? Your chance comes Sunday (18 September) at 1200 hours, when the Collie Club of Northern California will hold its fall puppy show on the lawns in front of Letterman Army Hospital.

Registration will begin at 1200 and judging at 1330. Jane Kuska, noted collie authority, will be the judge.

All purebred collie puppies between the ages of three months and one year are eligible to enter, with entry fee set at $.75 for the first puppy and $.50 for each additional puppy.

Trophies will be awarded for first, second, third and fourth places in class competition as well as for special awards, and a highlight of the show will be the drawing for the purebred puppy prize. Last year's collie was won by a Letterman patient.

The first Chief of Staff of the United States Army, Lieutenant General Samuel B. M. Young, took office 16 August, 1903.

Army Developes New Striking Force; Tougher Than Rangers, Commandos

Ft. Bragg, N. C. (AFPS)—For the first time in its history, the Army has created a corps of special troops trained chiefly to fight as guerrillas deep inside enemy territory.

Formed in 1952, the existence of the tough, rigorously conditioned Special Forces Group, Airborne, was only recently made public by the Army.

Their motto is: "Anything, Any Time, Any Place, Any How."

The men of this outfit are described by their superiors as even tougher and more skilled in combat than the U.S. Rangers and British Commandos of WWII who, unlike the new group, fought primarily as shock troops rather than guerrillas.

In the event of war, the Special Forces would be parachuted inside enemy borders to fight alongside local guerrilla groups.

Even their uniform differs markedly from that of the rest of the Army. They wear distinctive, jaunty green berets.

All special force soldiers had to volunteer as paratroopers before also volunteering for this assignment.

Some are Eastern European refugees whose linguistic skills and intimate knowledge of their homelands are regarded as highly valuable. But most are native-born Americans, including some Korea veterans who fought behind enemy lines and survived against great odds.

The 77th Special Forces Group, Airborne, is now in training here under the supervision of the Army's Psychological Warfare Center. Another group, the 10th, is in Germany. Each consists of about 2,000 men.

The aim is to make special force soldiers the most diversely trained in the world. They are organized into 15-man teams—two officers and 13 enlisted men—who have the knowledge and equipment to direct large-scale guerrilla operations. A group has 100 of these teams in its table of organization.

Every member is a highly trained technician—for example, a radio operator, demolition expert or medic. But he also has mastered most other aspects of soldiering. He is trained to use every weapon from pistols to 105 mm. recoilless rifle.

In the coastal bogs near the Marine base at Camp Lejeune, N.C., the special force recruits engage in two weeks of swamp maneuvers. Part of the time, they live off the wild life of the region. If nothing else is available, they eat snakes. When the swamp training is ended, they walk the 100 miles back to Ft. Bragg, N.C.

They learn to fight as mountain troops in eight weeks of exercises at Ft. Carson, Colo. They are flown there and at the end of the 12-hour flight, every man "hits the silk."

A significant portion of their training involves an extremely thorough indoctrination in evasion, escape and survival. An exercise in brain-washing—in which those who are "captured" are treated to a realistic example of the procedure as it was employed by the communists in Korea—is part of the course.

Col. Edson D. Raff, a paratrooper who commanded guerrilla-style operations during the WWII North African campaign, heads the Psychological Warfare Center here and supervises training of the Special Forces.

The Army's Office of Psychological Warfare in Washington is in overall charge of policy and disposition of the force.

big savings

Washington (AFPS) — The Defense Department has directed the services to cut the ration allowance given to enlisted men on leave and those authorized to mess separately from $1.10 per day to $1.05 effective 1 Sept.

A DOD spokesman said the decrease was ordered because food prices are expected to be lower in FY '56.

The ration allowance is intended to equal the cost of feeding one man at a regular mess. It is reviewed each year to determine if any adjustment should be made.

Army To Share Cost Of Soldier Enrollment In Area Universities

Another educational break is in store for some local military personnel who sign up for evening classes at University of California Extension at the evening division of the University of San Francisco.

The post Education Center of T.I.&E. section can pay 75 per cent of the tuition for these classes up to a $7.50 maximum for each unit for which college credits are given.

Eligible for this tuition assistance are all military personnel qualified for college studies, and who have not already completed four years of college.

Information, college bulletins and descriptions of an extensive variety of certificate programs and academic courses are available at the Education Center, Building 117, Telephone Extension 2974 and 3189. Most classes begin the second and third weeks in September.

Forestry Praises Sixth Army Troop Support

Battle Lines became fire lines for more than 500 Presidio soldiers sent to the flame-swept Klamath National Forests near Yreka, California, last week. Above, a group of local soldiers in a maze of hot smoke man pick, shovel and ax to quickly establish a line of resistance against the invading fires. All fire-fighting Presidio soldiers were back on their jobs here this week, as the fires began to burn out and subside.

Flames Battled!

Forest Fire Fighting Chores Completed By Local Soldiers

By Sp3 Jack Everhart
Star-Presidian Associate Editor

The last remnants of a contingent of 500 Presidio troops returned here from the Klamath National Forest this week where during several days on the fire lines they nourished a healthy respect for the timber-belching flames.

The local fire-fighters were dispatched to forest fires in the Yreka, California, area by Lt. General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander, who responded to an urgent plea for Army assistance from the U. S. Forestry Service.

Though one major fire still smoulders in the north state mountains, U. S. Forestry officials indicated earlier this week that the costly fires were basically under control at the time the local Army men were returned to the Presidio.

The three major fires in the Siskiyou mountains swallowed up an estimated 110,000 acres of tall timber valued at more than $2 millions. Men on the fire lines during the peak onslaught of the invading fires numbered about 2,000.

Presidio fire-fighters represented about one-fourth of the 2,000 Sixth Army soldiers dispatched to the forest fires.

Sent to the scene of the fires on 6 September, the first group numbered some 109 men. It consisted of members of Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, the Honor Guard, the 561st Engineer Company, the post dispensary elements of the 30th Engineer Group and the post motor pool. The motor pool provided drivers and buses for the first group of fire-fighters.

Departing the following day, the second group which totaled approximately 400 men was drawn from Headquarters Company, 21st Engineer Company, 99th Engineer Company, the 542nd Engineer Company, Headquarters Detachment, 660th Engineer Battalion, units of the 30th Engineer Group, the 561st Engineer Company and the post dispensary.

The advisory group which includes nine general officers will discuss important policy matters pertaining to various reserve operations in the Sixth Army area.

New Bill Allows Services to Pay For Civil Trials

Washington (AFPS) — The Defense Department has drawn up a bill authorizing the services to pay the cost of defending military personnel on trial in foreign countries. It will be introduced in the next session of Congress in January.

The bill would permit the services to pay counsel fees, court costs, bail and other expenses involved in defense of accused servicemen or civilian personnel abroad on military orders.

Agreements with our NATO allies and Japan give them jurisdiction over U.S. military personnel for offenses which occur off U.S. installations.

The DOD cited the need to protect servicemen against possible disadvantages that may arise in foreign courts such as unfamiliarity with local laws, languages and court procedures.

Campaign Flourishes!

Psychiatrist Speaks Here On Function Of Major United Crusade Activity

To explain one of the 288 agencies of United Crusade, Dr. Knox H. Finley, a member of the Medical Advisory Board of the United Cerebral Palsy Association of San Francisco and of the Research Council of the National United Cerebral Palsy Association, will speak at the Troop Information instruction tomorrow at the Presidio Theatre at 0800 and at the Fort Scott Theatre.

As a member of the national organization, Dr. Finley, a neuro-psychiatrist, helps make the decisions on research grants throughout the nation in an effort to solve the problems of cerebral palsy.

Because of this national committee work he is in a good position to report on current research efforts in cerebral palsy.

The Cerebral Palsy Foundation is only one of the 288 health, welfare, research and character building organizations of the United Crusade campaign for which local civilian and military personnel are being urged to donate one day's pay.

At the Presidio two United Crusade organizations which fall into the character-building category are the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. Scout troops here provide a well-rounded program of informative, constructive and recreational activities for children of Army personnel and also for children of civilian personnel living at Wherry Housing.

United Crusade agencies such as the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are concerned not so much with preventing juvenile delinquency as with equipping youth with a set of values and experiences that will give them an adult life which will be rich and full whatever they may do for a living.

The Presidio and sub-post goal in "Operation 288," the military section of the United Crusade, headed by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander, is $30,000.

Four Camps Selected As Training Sites For Six-Month Basics

Washington (AFPS)—Four army installations definitely have been selected to conduct basic training for volunteers given six months' active duty under the new reserve program. They are Ft. Ord, Calif.; Ft. Jackson, S.C.; Camp Chaffee, Ark. and Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. The Army said Ft. Bliss, Tex. and Ft. Knox, Ky., may be added to the list.

Advanced training will be given at Fts. Ord and Jackson (infantry); Ft. Bliss (AAA); Ft. Knox (armor); Ft. Leonard Wood (engineer); Camp Gordon, Ga. (MP and signal); Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. ordnance); Ft. Eustis, Va. (transportation); Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. (medical) and Ft. Lee, Va. (QM).

Parents of children attending Kindergarten through the 3rd Grade in schools serviced by Army School Buses, print the child's name, quarters and name of school on a small card and attach the card to the child's coat, sweater or hat for a period of three weeks so that bus drivers can become acquainted with the child. It is also suggested that the children's clothing, lunch boxes and other items also be marked.

Generosity Great!

Red Cross Halts Disaster Relief Fund Drive; Thanks Those Who Contributed

"One of the speediest, most generous responses from the American people in Red Cross history made it possible for the special disaster fund appeal for victims of floods in the six northeastern states to be terminated on 3 September.

"Donations exceeded the $10,000,000 goal set for this purpose and this marks the first time the American Red Cross has ever called off a national disaster fund appeal."

These statements were issued today by Mr. Raymond J. Gilbreth of the Presidio Red Cross office, who went on to explain that donations from military and civilian personnel at the Presidio amounted to $224.55.

"We wish to thank the editor of the Star-Presidian for the excellent news coverage given the Red Cross appeal in the story appearing in the 26 August edition of the paper. This excellently written and accurate news story was of great help in making it possible to obtain the support of those who contributed to the fund," Mr. Gilbreth said.

The Post Red Cross office also received the donation from Fort Mason in the amount of $792.98, and from the men of the USS General Anderson, the sum of $1,457.53. Throughout San Francisco, a total of $60,267.45 was raised.

The money is being spent to rehabilitate more than 13,000 families whose homes were damaged or destroyed by rampaging floods. At the peak of the flood, Red Cross operated 104 shelters in the disaster area and fed 17,672 refugees.

600 Million Ill-Fed Kids Look to U.N. for Help!

(Editors: This is one of a series of brief AFPS articles intended to publicize United Nations Day, 24 October.)

There are about 600 million children in the world who don't eat enough to insure they'll live to grow up. Neither do many of them have enough clothes to cover them or a place to sleep with a roof. They are easy prey to many ravaging diseases many Americans never even heard of.

These are the children of the world's backward and war-wrecked countries. They may seem a remote problem but they are two-thirds of the kids on earth.

Their chief hope is the United Nations Children's Fund—UNICEF. This agency helps children in more than 90 countries. This year it is expected to vaccinate 15 million children against tuberculosis, help provide millions with free or low-cost milk, treat those afflicted with diseases like yaws and trachoma and carry on numerous other public health and nutritional programs for youngsters who otherwise would have little chance.

UNICEF is one of the reasons why the U.S., a charter member of the United Nations, regards it as so important. It helps explain why President Eisenhower has again proclaimed 24 October as United Nations Day.

The Department of Defense has urged commands throughout the world to honor the observance with appropriate ceremonies.

"Daddy, I was only going to school!"

(Editor's Note: The author's five-year-old daughter was hit by an automobile on her first day of school. Though badly bruised and battered, her condition was not diagnosed as critical as this issue went to press. This dramatic essay is printed in the hope that it will serve as a "red light" for those who drive in sections where small children are at play or school.)

She was a tiny thing with a mop of curly blonde hair and a pair of china blue eyes that sparkled with good health. On this night she was an animated bundle of pajamas and excitement. For tomorrow was a really big day in her just-turned-five-year-old adventure with life. She was going to school!

Her tousled, near-baby head was just about the height of a new car's fender.

Sleep wouldn't come right away. She thought of the fun she would have playing with the other children. Last year she had been only a wide-eyed little spectator. Watching the other children sing and play games and do things. She loved to do things! But she had always been so little, at least so everybody said. Now she was big and . . . She was going to school!

She was a small bundle of unpredictability. A hazard to the driver in a hurry. . . .

Ever since Mama and Daddy had told her for sure, she had thought about it. Now she was really a big girl! Her sister and brother were only little, so they couldn't go. Maybe she would teach them some of the new games she would learn. Oh! It was so exciting. . . . She was going to school!

She had been taught to look both ways for cars, to walk, not run. She even knew the importance of the wide white lines, but then she was only five and excited. . . .

The black shrill of screeching brakes shattered the lower keyed sound of small voices and busy feet. Fear spread a moment of deathly silence, then . . .

"Oh my God! One of the children has been hit!"

A tired mother refused to believe this crushed bundle of bloodstain was hers. Why it had been only a few hours since she had. . . . How could this possibly be true? They only lived a few doors from the school. One quiet street to cross! Plainly marked! That had been a major selling point when they had bought the house . . . the little ones would be safe!

The Father arrived, agitated and angry, sick and helpless. What monster had done this? How could this horrible thing happen? Couldn't the fool see this was a school zone? That all those babies were in the street? A Post Troop of unanswerable questions. . . .

He clutched the tiny pile of bloodsoaked rags. Clapsed the little broken body close. . . . Baby! Baby! Baby! He stroked the matted hair and kissed the bruised little face. . . .

The driver was sorry, he had been driving twenty years and this was the first time. . . . The teachers and parents were sorry, something should be done. . . . The police officers were sorry, and philosophic. . . . Sure, he would be cited! Sure, he would get a fine and a lecture! But you could tell that they weren't convinced that this would change anything. In a few minutes they would be rushing to just such another scene. A crumpled body . . . a saddened driver . . . a crowd murmuring sympathy. . . .

The ambulance arrived. They pried the child loose from the father's frustrated grief. Then as he made a last desperate and futile clutch for a matted curl, a bright blue eye opened wide, a swollen little mouth said—questioning and almost apologetic—

"Daddy, I was only going to school."

Fire Fighters

To most of the men in the Presidio group, fighting a forest fire was an entirely new and foreign experience. They set up fire lines, cleared off inflammable brush in 20-foot strips, felled trees and broke the ground.

Frequently, they were sent on patrols to unburned areas to put out spot-fires ignited by flying sparks.

They also learned the value of the "McCloud," the forestry service's unique combination rake and pick, and the "Polaski," pick-axe especially developed for fire-fighting purposes.

A Medical Corpsman, Sfc. Warren J. Beasely, post dispensary NCO in charge of 14 Presidio Medics on the fire-fighting team, said that fast-moving fires made the situation in many ways similar to actual combat.

Said Sfc. Beasely, "In the thick of the fire our medics were spread throughout an area of about 50 miles. We treated a total of 30 cases, all relatively minor with the exception of a man overcome by smoke and another involving rattlesnake bite."

Summing up the Presidio Medics' role in the fire-fighting, Sfc. Beasely said, "We were well equipped for most any emergency and could even have performed an appendectomy if it had been necessary."

When one spot-fire got completely out of control, Sp3 George Hammond and some of his buddies from the 21st Engineer Company were for a time surrounded by the flaming terror.

"We really had a bad day the second day out," said Sp3 Hammond referring to the time when his patrol was encircled, "but we managed to retreat to the comparative safety of a burned-out area where the smoke was so thick that visibility was just short of zero."

"Duty on the blistering hot fire lines," exclaimed Sp3 Hammond, "was probably my most exciting experience in the Army and certainly the most terrifying; the intensity and sweep of the fire was relentless."

Another local soldier, Pvt. John C. Good, 561st Engineering Company, said, "We were actually fighting fire with fire. We were sent beyond the burning timber into the mountains where we started small controlled fires in order to clear a burned-out area too large for the main fires to penetrate."

Forestry officials expressed appreciation for the special aid given by Sixth Army in the costly forest fire battle.

First Day of school this week found more than 1000 Presidio children scurrying aboard 23 Post Motor Pool buses which will carry them to and from 34 public and parochial schools in San Francisco and Marin County during the next nine months. Above, a group of excited kids board one of nine buses which make the biggest single pick-up at Wherry Housing.

School Starts!

Post Motor Pool Provides Bus Service For 1000 Children

As the familiar sounds of ringing bells and shouting young voices ushered in the new fall term, more than 1000 students were loaded on 23 buses at the Presidio and sub-posts and carried to 34 public and parochial schools in San Francisco and Marin county this week.

Manned by veteran drivers, the Army buses take the children to the classrooms in the mornings and pick them up in the afternoon when classes are over and bring them back to Army quarters.

The biggest single pick-up point in the Post Motor Pool's "Operation School Bus" is at Wherry Housing where nearly 450 school-children ranging from Kindergarten Moppets to High School Seniors are serviced by nine of the big olive drab carriers.

The remaining 14 buses make stops at practically every street corner on the Presidio, Ft. Scott, Ft. Baker, Ft. Barry and Ft. Funston. Wherever traffic conditions permit, the buses stop only a few steps from the children's homes. Some of the children are even lucky enough to be able to catch the buses right in front of their doorsteps.

Vehicles used in the operation are the same as the standard 54-passenger Army buses except for one additional safety feature. They are equipped with red lights on the front, rear, and both sides. Each time the bus doors are opened the lights flash giving nearby drivers an added caution signal.

Drivers are responsible for seating arrangements as well as discipline on the buses. Like teachers, drivers frequently have to be a combination of a practical psychologist and an experienced diplomat to keep the buses running in a safe and orderly manner.

Although responsibility for the children's behavior while riding the buses rests with parents, drivers have to keep the youngsters sufficiently settled down to insure the safest possible operation of the bus.

It generally takes drivers about two weeks to learn the names of all the students on his bus. Such knowledge is useful to the driver, particularly in view of the fact that most drivers will handle the same routes throughout the school year.

Last year "Operation School Bus" was carried off during the regular nine months school term without a single mishap.

Before setting up the bus schedules this year the Motor Pool sent information sheets to all parents, urging them to caution their children not to make undue noises or cause confusion among the other children in the bus.

It was also urged that children be instructed in Safety Rules, such as cross-walks, entering and leaving the bus, remaining seated in the bus and keeping head and arms inside the bus.

The school bus detail is a function of the Post Motor Pool under the direction of 1st Lt. David M. Karr. The bus schedules were worked out by CWO Charles Young. All of the 23 school bus drivers are civilian employees of the Army at the Presidio.

President's Program 'Slow Down and Live' Paying Off in Army

Washington (AFPS)—President Eisenhower's "Slow Down and Live" campaign is paying dividends for the Army.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor reports that since the start of the nation-wide drive last Memorial Day the Army has reduced its fatal accident rate by about 20 per cent compared to the same period last year.

The "Slow Down and Live" drive, organized by the National Conference of State Safety Coordinators and launched by the President, ended Labor Day.

Army commands throughout the U. S. have been working with state and local organizations active in the campaign. Posters, bumper stickers, films, and other forms of publicity have emphasized the need to adjust speeds to prevailing driving conditions.

Lei Lani Revue At Service Club Sunday; Chess Set on Fridays

The Lei Lani revue, a new stage show, will be presented at the Presidio Service Club, Sunday at 2000. It is directed by Mildred Sateren.

George Krauder will be master of ceremonies, and the program will include the Lei Lani trio in Hawaiian dance numbers, Roy Shorter, fiddler; the "Three D's," harmonizing trio; Jackie Fontes, dancer; Jean McCormick, impersonator; Richard Fields, tap dancer; and Jessie Selby, blues singer.

On Thursday next, the Post dance will really be something "fishy."

To be called the King Neptune dance, it will feature caricatures, lii' fishes, mermaids, and all such accoutrements.

And Friday nights, something new has been added. Chess tournaments yet, with valuable prizes for the winners. The thought sessions begin at 2000.

New Act!

1955 Reserve Forces Act
Topic of Information Program

The Reserve Forces Act of 1955 will be the subject of the next Troop Information Instruction program.

Designed to meet recent shifts in America's military posture, the 1955 military law amends two of the principal acts constituting the basis of the Reserve Forces, namely, the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952 and the Universal Military Training and Service Act.

It does not create an entirely new reserve system, however.

The 1955 act aims to establish a clear, ready reserve obligation for men entering service after 9 August 1955. It also provides for recruiting and training of men for the Army Reserve specifically, as well as prescribing a lighter military obligation for men entering the service under the new law.

Under the former Reserve structure, the basic elements of the system were the ready and stand-by reserves. The ready reserve was designed for meeting emergencies like that in Korea. The stand-by reserves contained additional personnel who could be called on in case of a declaration of war or general emergency.

Because of poor participation, the Reserve became something more like an unorganized pool of personnel than a military force.

In the new structure, the ready reserve will contain the forces needed to meet the requirements of a war's opening phases. A continuous screening process will insure the availability of its members in any emergency.

The stand-by reserves would be essentially an unorganized reservoir of manpower from which could be drawn experienced personnel needed for the secondary aspects of a war or general mobilization. Men would be drawn from the stand-by reserve through a process of selective recall.

The act imposes on all men entering the service since its passage the obligation of participation in reserve training. Measures for assuring that participation are also provided.

Provisions are made, however, for sifting personnel from the ready to the stand-by status on the basis of hardship, civilian skills, combat experience and other factors.

Persons entering the service before 9 August 1955 will maintain a total eight-year military obligation and will be listed as ready reservists. (Those entering service under the new act must fulfill only a six-year reserve duty.) However, persons not affected by the new act are not required to participate in reserve training.

Season Opener!

First Eagle Scout Award in Troop 178
Given at Initial Fall Meeting of Unit

Opening its fall season with a court of honor, Boy Scout Troop No. 178 received its first Eagle Scout, with the awarding of this, the highest award possible in Scouting, to Explorer Scout James Reynolds, son of Lt. Colonel and Mrs. James H. Reynolds.

Fifteen-year-old James is a charter member of Troop No. 178 which is composed of boys from the Wherry housing area and has been in operation for approximately 18 months. There are 38 young men in the Troop, and its committee chairman is Lt. Colonel Willit Ware, Jr.

Other awards made included Life Scout to Orth Leonard, Star Scout to Marvin Lupo and Greg Simeon, and First Class award to James Stout. Second Class awards went to Martin Gruber, William Johnson, John Walters, James MacKinzie and John Gordon.

There were, in addition, approximately 48 merit badges presented and special awards went to Thomas Holimon, Robert Hawes, Michael Walker and Jerry Jackson. More

Colonel Roth Receives Plaudits for National Guard Achievement

Colonel Andrew W. Roth, senior advisor for the California National Guard in Sacramento, the past three years, received best wishes and a letter of appreciation from Brigadier General Claude F. Burbach, chief of the California Military district, Presidio of San Francisco, as Colonel Roth prepared to depart for his next station at Fourth Army Headquarters, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Earlier he was presented with a letter of appreciation from Major General Earle M. Jones, Adjutant General for the Guard. While on duty in Sacramento, Colonel Roth was Senior Advisor for the 49th Division Artillery prior to becoming Senior Advisor for the 40th Infantry Division during its period of reorganization. He then became the Senior Advisor for the California National Guard.

Moments Before "on stage," is called in the first dress rehearsal of the San Francisco Opera Company's opening production of "Aida," two of the Presidio's own personnel stop to wish each other luck. Miss Kay Shipley, employed at the Presidio branch of American Trust, and Pvt. Gary Hall, assistant to the Post Chaplain, are both in their first year as members of the chorus. Both have had extensive musical training, and Pvt. Hall plans further study in Europe when he leaves the Army.

Chorus Member!

Local Soldier Appearing With San Francisco Opera Company

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

A high priest in "Aida," a nobleman in "Andrea Chenier," a soldier in "Carmen," and Faninel's lackey in "Der Rosenkavalier."

It IS possible to be all those things.

Pvt. Gary Hall of the Post Chaplain's section is.

That's because he is singing this season in the chorus of the San Francisco Opera Company, which opened its fall program last night with a performance of "Aida."

This is Gary's first year with the company. He was one of 40 men chosen in auditions held last March.

His musical background, which began when he was but 11 years old, is extensive and diverse.

Piano study and boy soprano appearances with various youth choirs in his native Glendale, California, came first.

In high school, he took up organ study and appeared as school organist for operetta productions. He likewise served as organist for the Sawtelle Veterans' hospital in Los Angeles for three years, and was heard over a Los Angeles radio station in a half hour program of religious organ music. He also was soloist at St. James Episcopal Church in South Pasadena.

When he entered Occidental College of Los Angeles, Gary elected a vocal major and also took numerous music education courses. He appeared as vocal soloist with the college glee club with which he toured the west coast for two consecutive years. He was at that time the pupil of Howard Swan.

Entering the Army in July 1954, he was immediately assigned as organist with the hospital chaplain at Fort Ord, throughout his basic training and clerk typist school.

On the Presidio too, Gary has been active in church work, appearing as soloist, organist and choir director of the Post Chapel choir.

And for the past three months, he has been directing the Presidio Male Chorus which recently appeared in a local "Quest for Talent," program conducted here to select candidates for the Arlene Francis TV soldier show in New York City.

Opera-wise, Gary has been a busy man these past months. The company has rehearsed four nights a week, every week, for some four to five hours a session. Says Gary, "I've learned to operate on five and one-half hours sleep a night."

Altogether, he will be appearing in 14 operas, and although he is a first tenor, for the opera company season he has been placed in the second tenor section.

Gary gives a great deal of credit for his career so far, to his mother, Mrs. Mildred F. Hall of Glendale, who, he explained, encouraged him in the field of music throughout his life. She is herself, a professional pianist.

Another "Presidian," who is appearing with the opera company this season is Miss Kay Shipley, who is employed in the Presidio branch of American Trust. A soprano, she began studying voice in high school and attended Santa Rosa Junior College for two years, studying with Everett Foster. She also attended San Jose State for one year and for the past year, has been studying with Maestro Nino Comel.

She has been working at the local branch bank since October 1954.

3-D and Italian Renaissance cartography were the two major influences in Ted Hubbard's development of picture maps—combined with his own cartooning skills. The map on the opposite page is the most recent and one of the most complete plans of the Presidio. Its present size and development are in marked contrast to the Presidio 100 years ago as depicted in picture below. Beneath Hubbard's left hand are several of his four-minute sketches of key buildings. It took Hubbard four days to complete his map and reproduce it on lithograph press.

Ted Hubbard

Cartoonist's Map Pictures Post in Three Dimensions

"Get lost—?"

"Not with this map, soldier," said Ted Traver Hubbard, cartoonist creator of a new "three-dimensional" handmap of the Presidio and Ft. Scott.

"In the middle of the night you should be able to find any building on post with this map," he said, "even after a three-day weekend."

Artist, cartoonist and advertiser, Hubbard has produced his "3-D" maps for Hamilton Field and Oakland Army Base as well as for over 50 different community areas. His most recent work is his guide to the Presidio, 5,000 copies of which he delivered last week.

An advertising executive by trade and a cartoonist by life-long ambition, Hubbard applies a cartoonist's pen to his map-making projects. He calls them cartoon maps, but to him they are a serious work. Hubbard is meticulous in his attempts to produce maps which will be detailed but at the same time attractive and easily read.

Most important is the "3-D" effect for which he strives.

In some cases, Hubbard's buildings and elevated freeways almost stand up on the surface of the paper. From his copter's eye view of the post, enough of the structure of each building is shown to make it easily recognizable even to the stranger.

Hubbard conceived of his cartoon maps while in Europe after World War I. He had been an artillery sergeant and remained in Europe to travel when the war ended. In Italy, he saw a 15th century map of a small Italian town. Designed as a guide for visitors unversed in conventional map-reading, it had a perspective and depth which made the buildings and landmarks it depicted easily recognizable, even to the 20th century stranger.

Years passed however before he put the idea to use. Although Hubbard had wanted to be a cartoonist since his boyhood, he took a degree in business administration at the University of California.

"I never took an art lesson in my life," he said. "I have followed the advice given me by several cartoonists I knew and admired as a young man. They all advised me to stay away from art schools if I wanted to be a cartoonist."

Hubbard had succeeded in selling his first cartoon at the age of 13 to the Los Angeles Times which printed it on page one. But although he continued to draw, Hubbard spent his next years in establishing a San Francisco advertising agency which he still runs.

Only in the past few years has he had the opportunity to implement his cartographical ideas and his cartoonist's skills. He began with a map for the Bank of America and found that they too considered his ideas and his maps valuable.

Since then, Hubbard has done maps of some 65 different communities. One of his favorites is of Jack London Square. It was done in color on a lithograph press.

He had drawn about all of Oakland, except the Army base when, urged on by Oakland businessmen, Hubbard contracted with the Oakland military. He secured clearance and began drawing the installation. Restricted areas were blanked out. He ended by doing nine different maps of the base. One of them is still given to each newly assigned man and entering visitor.

Hubbard has actually produced two maps of the Presidio, one for general use and one as a menu cover for the Officer's Mess.

The first Indian convert at the Mission of San Francisco was named Francisco Moraga after the Presidio commandante who stood as godfather. The first marriage was that of soldier Mariano A. Cordero and Juana F. Pinto, November 28, 1776.

Presidio Notes 179th Anniversary Of Founding by Spanish Forefathers

By Pvt. Sanders Rosenblum

Star-Presidian Staff Writer

"Te Deum Laudamus" ("We Praise Thee, God"), sang the cluster of Spanish soldiers and citizen settlers from within the crude adobe chapel of the Presidio of San Francisco.

From the Bay, the guns of the supply ship San Carlos joined the pealing chapel bells and celebration salvos of land cannon to announce the founding of Spain's northernmost outpost.

It was September 17, 1776. Since that dedication ceremony 179 years ago tomorrow, the Presidio of San Francisco has garrisoned the troops of three nations and grown to maturity with the development of a continent.

According to the speculation of one principal eyewitness to the founding ceremony, Father Francisco Palou, the roar of Presidial cannon "doubtless terrified the heathen, for they did not show themselves to be seen for many days."

However, the Presidio, always poorly garrisoned during the Spanish period, hardly terrified the Russians or the English who had been showing acute interest in Northern California. But the simple fact of the Presidio's existence at the edges of the Spanish frontier was sufficient to forestall belligerent advances on the part of potentially hostile powers. It was not until 1822 that the Spanish flag fell, and then to the new revolutionary government of Mexico.

In the 1760's Charles III had ordered the occupation of Northern California as a buffer against possible foreign thrusts at New Spain. By 1769, a Spanish expedition had unwittingly discovered San Francisco Bay and, in 1770, the viceroy of New Spain (modern Mexico and the American Southwest) ordered construction of a Presidio to guard the port.

The Presidio along with the mission was the major instrument of Spanish colonization. (Presidio is taken from the Latin praesidium, meaning fortified camp). Northern California came to be divided into four military districts with a presidio the center of each.

The presidios of the northern march were similarly built, walled camp about 300 feet square. They were constructed as economically as possible with whatever materials were available—usually adobe. Within the presidio enclosure were the church, officers' and soldiers' quarters, colonists' homes, storehouses, stables and workshops.

By Spanish law, the reservation upon which the Presidio was constructed measured usually 3000 varas (1564 acres), the approximate size of the Presidio lands today.

It was not until October, 1775, however, that a founding expedition of 240 persons, led by soldier-explorer Juan Bautista de Anza, set out overland from the Presidio of Tubac, Arizona, to establish a new post in Northern California. By January they had made the arduous crossing of the Colorado desert and arrived at San Gabriel near modern Los Angeles.

Despite a number of delays, the expedition pushed northward to Monterey and on to the vicinity of present-day Ft. Point by March 28, where Anza planted the cross for Spain. Exploring the area, Anza and his lieutenant, Jose Moraga, judged it ideal for settlement. But Anza did not found the post. After surveying the area of modern Berkeley and Oakland, he returned to Monterey from where he left for Mexico on other business.

It was left for Moraga to construct the Presidio. With 12 families, he set out from Monterey. Accompanying the expedition went Fathers Palou and Pedro Cambon to administer the sacraments and be on hand in the event a mission were built. (The mission, although not authorized, was built and dedicated several weeks after the Presidio.)

The founding party included Moraga, a sergeant, two corporals and ten soldiers with their wives and children. In addition there were seven civilian families as well as five servant boys, muleteers and vaqueros who handled the 200 head of king's cattle which accompanied the mule train.

While the land expedition made its way to San Francisco, the San Carlos was to be fitted out with supplies at Monterey and meet the settlers at the new outpost. On 27 June, the settlers arrived only to wait two months for the arrival of the San Carlos which had been delayed by red tape and rough winds.

With the arrival of the San Carlos 17 August, construction of the Presidio began. As Palou described it, "A square measuring 92 varas each way was marked out for it, with divisions for church, royal offices, warehouses, guardhouses and houses for soldier settlers. . . ."

It was then that the soldier colonists erected the commandante's quarters which still stands as today's Officers' Club.

The rest of the buildings, however, thrown up in hasty fashion, were for the most part destroyed by rain in 1779. Rebuilding was done in stone. A fort at the entrance of the Bay, however, was not built until 1794. The Castillo de San Joaquin, as it was called by the Spanish, was constructed on a cliff 100 feet above the water. It is the site of present-day Ft. Point.

Never adequately maintained, the Presidio became Mexican in 1822 in whose hands it remained for the most part neglected. American occupation began with the Mexican war.

Although only the former commandante's quarters stands today, it is, as one author has written, "a tribute to the genius of a people who conquered more than two-thirds of the Western hemisphere." In a measure, it was the Spanish who held the West against European inroads, thus contributing to the eventual fulfillment of a destiny Americans saw as manifest.

During the 1848-1849 Gold Rush, it was impossible to maintain any kind of military force in the California area. The Presidio was deserted. With no real function to perform, the Presidio's commanding officer worked as a surveyor and contractor, constructing the first wharf in San Francisco.

The Presidio of San Francisco was the third of four such Spanish posts established in Northern California in the 18th century. They were the presidios of San Diego, founded 1769; Monterey, 1770; San Francisco, 1776; and Santa Barbara, 1782.

Resurrected after its decay during the Mexican regime, the Presidio looked like this about 1853 or 1854. With American occupation, new construction and extensive repairs went into the Presidio. The men drilling were probably Company L of the "Gay and Gallant Third" Artillery which arrived in San Francisco the summer of 1854. The cattle were part of the large herds which ranged the Presidio reservation; local ranchers were often granted grazing privileges. Reproduced through the courtesy of the California Historical Society, the picture is part of the collection of photos, maps and sketches to be incorporated in an illustrated history of the Presidio. The project is being developed by the Post Troop Information and Education Section under the direction of Major Earle K. Stewart, Post TI&E officer.

Raiders Play Navy Tomorrow

First Victory

Red Raiders Smash Navy Shipyard Gridders, 32-7

Rolling up 465 net yards running and passing the Presidio Red Raiders made their first start of the '55 season a winning one by blasting the Pachunters from San Francisco Navy Shipyards, 32-7, last Friday. All 30 members of the Raider squad saw action in the opening game played at the Navy Hunters Point field.

The Raiders scored the first time they got their hands on the ball. They marched 62 yards in nine plays, climaxed by right half Ed Calorossi's two-yard bursts through right tackle for the first TD. Fullback Ratliff's placement with Maytubby holding was good and the first quarter ended with the Raiders ahead 7 to 0.

RIGHT end for the Presidio Red Raiders grid clash tomorrow will be rangy Jerry Nims. Hailing from Stockton, California, Jerry is stationed with the 9956 TU at Letterman Army Hospital. Jerry played an outstanding game against the SF Naval Shipyards last week and is a player to watch in tomorrow's battle with Alameda Hellcats.

Fullback Bobby Ratliff electrified the crowd when he rolled 35 yards on a pitch out around right end for a TD. However, the score was nullified on an offside penalty and Navy took over on downs. Presidio back Al Edwards intercepted the first Pachunter pass on their 30 and two plays later the Raiders were back on the nine-yard line.

Back Jim Kozlowski then spurted through left guard, avoided the line backer and scored the second Raider touchdown of the afternoon. Ratliff's conversion attempt was wide to the left and the score read 13 to nothing.

The Shipyard eleven took the next kickoff and marched 25 yards before line backer Joe Devereux fell on a loose ball and the Raiders took over again. After two running plays gained but seven yards, quarterback Maytubby tossed a 17-yard pass to left half Jim Guimarin who rambled 30 yards for the third Presidio tally. Ratliff's conversion was good and the half ended with the Raiders leading 20 to nothing.

After half time entertainment by the Navy drill team, the Presidio kicked off to start the second half. The Pachunters were unable to gain through the likes of Frank Wilson, Sam DeOrian and Ron Loewen and punted to the Presidio 45. Left half Guimarin sprinted around right end for 25 yards to the Navy 30. Calorossi went 11 yards around left end to the 19. It was Guimarin again for seven at right end, and Maytubby got to the six on a quarterback sneak.

Guimarin then sped six yards for the fourth Raider tally around right end without a hand being laid on him. The conversion attempt was wide to the right and the score read 26 to nothing. Again Navy was unable to get a scoring drive rolling as Dick Maddock, Joe Devereux and Bill Pugh piled up the Naval attack.

Raider guard DeOrian opened the fourth quarter by grabbing a loose ball in the Pachunters backfield. After three running plays failed to gain, Presidio quarterback Dobson fired a 20-yard bullet pass to fullback Edwards who sprinted into the end zone for the final Presidio score. The point after touchdown attempt was wide to the right and the score stood 32-0.

On the second play after the kickoff, Navy Back Bobby Short bolted through right tackle on a cross buck and sped 65 yards for the only Naval score. Short added the conversion and the contest ended at 32-7. Coach McInerney's team so dominated the game that they didn't once have to kick throughout the 60 minutes.

SF Naval Shipyard eleven as well as packing the ball 11 times for a 4.2 average. The Raiders rolled up 465 yards in blasting the Shipyards, 32-7. (Army Photo by Christianson)

Ord Meets Ft. Carson Tomorrow

When the Fort Ord Warriors clash with Ft. Carson, Colorado, at the Oakland Ball Park tomorrow, local fans will see some of the West Coast's outstanding gridsters in action.

The powerful Warriors, who finished successful, with a ten and one record last year, will be led by Paul Cameron, all-American back from UCLA.

Cameron paced the Bruins to the Pacific Coast Conference championship in 1954. He will start at left half. His running mate at the right half post will be Alex Burl from Oklahoma A & M.

Sam Baker from Oregon State will start at fullback and Rudy Bukich, former USC and Los Angeles Ram signal caller, at quarterback.

With Charles Grant, 240-pound pivot man from Utah at center, the Warriors will have Jerry Penn from Oklahoma and Charles Kaohue of San Jose State at the guard positions. Gerald Perry, ex-University of California lineman, and Ernie Barnes of Oregon at tackles. Ron Miller from USC and Stan Walkolz from San Jose State will man the end positions.

First Home Game

Red Eleven Meets Navy Team Here

By Pvt. Bob Malone

Star-Presidian Sports Editor

The Red Raider eleven meets the Alameda Naval Air Hellcat squad tomorrow at 1400, for the first home game of the 1955 grid season on the Fort Scott field.

Although this is the first official game for the Hellcats this year, they have played and won three practice contests. Only last week the Hellcats edged the Martinez Alhambra semi-pro eleven, 6 to 0.

Alameda's only score came in the second quarter when right half George O'Donnell romped twenty yards to pay dirt. However the strong Hellcat defensive squad averted all Martinez's attacks, as the semi-pro club never got past the Navy twenty-yard line.

The Navy eleven two weeks ago outmatched the San Francisco Navy Shipyard eleven 30-12. Since the Red Raiders blasted the Shipyard gridsters 32-7 last Friday, tomorrow's contest should be a closely played affair.

Hellcat stars to watch tomorrow are Fran Roman, defensive left half, who intercepted three passes and played an outstanding defensive game against the Martinez semi-pros. Offensive fullback Ray Porras proved to be the big gun in the Hellcat ground attack by blasting for big yardage against the semi-pros.

A tentative line-up for the Raiders has been released by Head Coach Larry McInerney. Although there may be last minute changes, the Raider first string eleven will probably look something like the following:

Left end spot will be filled by Pfc. Dick Piggott from the 99th Engineer Company. At left tackle is Pfc. Frank McDonnell of the 56th MRU. Left guard is Pvt. Sam DeOrian of Headquarters Company, Station Complement. Veteran John Snyder of the 21st Engineers fills the center spot.

On the other side of center, Pfc. Duke Holmes, of Company A, 505th MPs, will play right guard. At tackle on the right will be Pvt. Burt Terrell of the 21st Engineers. Right end will be held down by Pvt. Jerry Nims, of the 9956 TU from Letterman Army Hospital.

In the backfield Cpl. Jim Guimarin, of B Btry., 752nd AAA Gun Bn., starts at left half. Pfc. Ed Calorossi from the Honor Guard will probably start at right half slot. Pfc. Morris Maytubby, another Honor Guardsman, will fill the key quarterback slot. Pfc. Bobby Ratliff, Headquarters Btry., 740th AAA Msl. Bn., will start at fullback.

Brussels (AFPS) — A five-man American track team—which includes three servicemen—took top honors at an international track meet here.

The team, now on a tour of seven European cities, includes sprinter Rod Richard and miler Joe LaPierre, Ft. Lee, Va., and half-miler Lang Stanley of Ft. MacArthur, Calif.

All-army champ Rod Richard won the 100 meter dash in 10.7 and placed second in the 200 meter dash with the time of 22 seconds. LaPierre took first in the 1,500 meter event at 3:55. Stanley came in third in the 880 yard run with 1:52.2.

Recruiting Second

ASP Win Hotly Contested National Bowling League

The red hot Armed Services Police bowling crew walked off with top honors as the National Bowling League wound up summer action. The Police pin-splitters took the lion's share of prizes given, adding 17 trophies to the ASP showcase. Four of the trophies were individual and the rest were awarded to the team as a whole.

Final standing in the loop showed the ASP with a thirty-three and twenty-two mark for the fifty-five game roll. Second place went to the Sixth Army Recruiting section, who edged the Flashers of the 505th MP's in a single game rolloff.

Team members were comprised of Army, Navy and Air Force personnel and were paced by Petty Officer Third Class Charles Camara. Other members consisted of Capt. Robert Orr, team captain, SFC Frank Rymuth, SFC Duane Carey, T/Sgt. Ed Cookenour and A/1C Everett Weeks.

Sixth Army Signal continued to lead the Pacific Bowling League standing with a forty-nine and nineteen mark, and a grand total of 46,785 pins smashed so far in league action. Company B of the 505th MP's holds a narrow lead for second spot with a forty-five and nineteen record. Right on their heels are the Post Dispensary rollers with a forty-five and twenty-three mark.

Individual high game honors so far go to Thorne of the Keystone Kops, with a 242 roll. Second place went to Dickey of the 505th Police with a 235 high mark. Macias of the Dispensary rolled a 233 for the third position.

Awards to players rolling two hundred games or better go to Brown of Headquarters Company, Station Complement with a 224. Rigney of the 102d MRU holds second spot with 220 pins downed. Third place is held down by DePolito, Post Dispensary, with 215 and Dickey, Company B 505th MP's, holds fourth place with a sizzling 204.

Lil' League Stars Edge Hayward

Scoring their second straight victory, the Presidio Little League all stars edged past the Hayward Little League champions 7 to 6 in a thrilling extra-inning game on the Pop Hicks field last Sunday afternoon.

Hayward jumped off to a one-run lead on two hits in the bottom of the third frame. They added three more runs in the bottom of the fourth to take a 4 to 0 lead. However, the Presidio lads roared back with three runs, featuring Earl Stewart's steal of home for the second tally.

Hayward pushed two counters across in the sixth inning on two base blows and a pair of walks. Presidio was not to be denied, however, and blasted out four hits and three runs to wind up the regular six-inning game all tied up 6 to 6.

Earl Pegram led off the inning with a single, and then stole second. Tom Delaney, next up, singled sharply to right field scoring Pegram. The next batter grounded out and then Earl Stewart doubled to left center, driving in Delaney. Kim McIntyre singled to left and scored Stewart with the tying run.

Earl Stewart led off the last of the seventh with a single but was forced at second as Jim Doerner was safe on a fielder's choice. Pat O'Connor walked, setting the stage for a dramatic finish. Sam Mullins, next up, hit the first pitch into center field for a ground rule double, scoring Jim Doerner with the winning counter.

This Sunday at 1300 hours the first annual Little League picnic will be held on the Presidio PX field. Hot dogs and the like will be furnished for Little Leaguers, their families and personnel interested in Little League activities. Engraved belt buckles will be presented to the winning Giants at this time. Also each boy in the league will be presented with a trophy. The buckles are being given by the Presidio Officers Club and the trophies by the Presidio NCO Club and the Letterman Officers and NCO Club.

service stars

Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. (AFPS) —The U.S. will be represented by three servicemen in the modern pentathlon world championships which open at Bern, Switzerland, Oct. 17.

1st Lt. Edgar O'Hair, USA REUR; Lt. (jg) William Andre, Naval Academy; and Pfc. George Lambert, Ashiya AB, Japan, were selected as the U.S. team at the conclusion of trials here.

The modern pentathlon includes the 5,000 meter steeplechase ride, 4,000 meter cross-country run, epee fencing, 300 meter swim, and 25 meter time fire pistol shoot.

Twenty-eight USAFE bases will field football teams this season.

CONGRATULATIONS are given by Colonel John Geiser (l.), acting deputy post commander, to Hal Fischer (center) and Captain John Hoover (r.). The huge trophy Hal is holding was awarded to the Presidio

Red Raider baseball squad for winning runner-up honors in last week's All-Sixth Army tournament. Each team member was given an electric razor for his part in the tourney that saw the Raiders win four out of six games played.

Ord Wins

Reds Win Second Place In Sixth Army Tourney

The powerful bats of the Fort Ord Warriors proved too much for the valiant Presidio Red Raiders as the Warriors won the All-Sixth Army baseball championship. The final game played last Saturday at Fort Lewis went to Ord 13-1 and sent Fort Ord on to the All-Army Championships at Fort Belvoir, Va., 19-24 September.

It was a tough loss for Coach Hal Fischer's Raiders as, after dropping their first game to the Yuma Test Station, they roared back to win four straight. They blasted Camp Hanford, 5 to 0, Fort Huachuca, 2 to 1, Yuma Test Station, 11-2, and the host Fort Lewis squad 15-9 before running into Ord. Fort Ord on the other hand had the luck of the draw and played but three games in winning their second straight Sixth Army crown.

The first game for the Raiders saw them drop an 11-inning, 5 to 4 contest to the Yuma Test Station. The Raiders stole nine bases and left 15 men stranded on base for a record in tournament play.

Coming right back behind the five-hit hurling of Les Ryan, the Raiders shut out the Atomers of Camp Hanford, 5 to 0. Tom Cringoli, Norm Alrod and Roger Shelstad paced the scoring with two singles apiece. The third game for Presidio saw Bob Poole stop Fort Huachuca 2 to 1 in 11 innings. Both Presidio runs were scored on squeeze plays.

George Jackson, 21st Engineers, stopped Yuma Test Station on five hits as the Red Raiders galloped to an 11-2 win. Third sacker Roger Shelstad paced the 14-hit Presidio attack with a towering home run with one aboard, a double and two singles.

Flushed with their win over Yuma, the Reds came right back to score a stunning upset over the host Fort Lewis Chiefs, 15-9. Pushing across single tallies in the first, third and fourth innings and three runs in the fifth, Presidio lowered the boom on Lewis with a nine-run explosion in the eighth to put the game on ice.

The 17-man squad from the Presidio brought home the three-foot gold trophy for runner-up honors. Each team member was also awarded an electric razor.

Although 210,533 ringnecked pheasant eggs were produced at state game farms during the egg laying season just closed, production fell short of the 233,000-egg quota set this spring. A sudden hot spell in June was believed to have caused the drop in production.

First Army Wins Army Ball Crown

A tenth-inning single to right field by shortstop Nat Johnson brought in the winning run and gave Fort Monmouth, representing First Army, the All-Army Softball Championship. The final victory was over Fort Sill, Oklahoma, 1 to 0, at Fort Dix, New Jersey, last week end.

Winning hurler John Spring struck out 19 batters and allowed but four hits while his opponent, Don Loftis, struck out six men and gave up eight hits. First Army was charged with two errors and Fourth Army one.

First Army had to defeat the previously unbeaten Fourth Army twice on the last day of play as First Army had earlier been beaten by Fourth Army in the double-elimination tournament.

The first game of the finals saw First Army edge Fourth Army 3 to 2 in seven innings. First Army led off the first inning with a walk, singles by Johnson and Spring, an infield error and two more singles to score the winning runs.

Spring and Loftis both went 17 innings in the final two contests. Spring struck out eight batters and gave up four hits while Loftis was striking out six and allowing seven hits in the opener.

Private John Spring, Fort Monmouth, turned in the outstanding performance of the tournament when he earlier fanned 39 batters and spaced two hits over 17 innings in beating the Military District of Washington, 2 to 1.

The Excellence-in-Competition badge, which had been awarded to civilians as well as servicemen for outstanding accomplishment in service rifle and/or pistol, will be awarded only to Army personnel in the future. A new badge will be created for civilian marksmen, the Department of the Army recently announced.

Army Rifle Stars Take Nine Prizes

Camp Perry, Ohio (AFPS) —Army and marine corps marksmen dominated the high power rifle and pistol events of the 1955 national matches here. Army men won nine trophies in individual and team events and the marines four.

valuable, most!

Ray Rosenbaum, an outfielder-pitcher for the 39th Infantry Falcons, and George Morgan, an outfielder for the Bitbourg Barons, were named by the European edition of The Stars and Stripes as the most valuable Army and Air Force players, respectively. Rosenbaum, who wore the uniform of Purdue University before entering the service, batted .385 and had a 7-2 mound record this season. Morgan, a Phillies' farmhand, hit .393. Pan-American Airways and A. G. Spalding & Bros., manufacturers of athletic goods, sponsored the annual poll.

Combined Efforts of members of the Presidio Woman's Club in packaging Christmas cards and note papers designed by one of their members, got the lovely cards ready for sale this week at both the Officer's club and the Thrift shop. Plans call for even further extension of sales media as the season approaches. Club members shown here include J. to r.: Mrs. Charles Allan, Mrs. John Drake, Mrs. Robert Nourse, Mrs. Virginia W. Sommerville, wife of Colonel Duncan S. Sommerville, and designer of the cards; Mrs. Claude Burbach, Mrs. J. B. Coolidge and Mrs. Willit Ware, Jr.

An Exclusive!

Unique Christmas Cards, Notes Offered Personnel at Presidio

An idea that began with an artist, a scratchboard, pen-knife, pen and ink and a magnificent panorama, has mushroomed into a unique project done by many for the enjoyment of many more.

When Mrs. Virginia W. Sommerville first took up the techniques of scratchboard, the thought occurred to her that there was a vast area for distinctive scene reproduction right here on the Presidio.

So she went to work.

Some time later she had completed a series of six panoramic views depicting the highlights of Presidio culture and historic significance.

The enthusiasm of those around her who saw the results, especially that of the Presidio Woman's Club, aided Mrs. Sommerville in her decision to produce the scenes on Christmas cards and notepapers, to be sold on the Presidio.

From there on, it became a project of the Woman's Club, and the result has been the placing for sale this week of packages of one dozen each of Christmas cards, with a choice of either the Presidio Post Chapel or the Catholic Chapel of Our Lady as the front cover, and similar packages of one dozen notepapers in which is included two notes each of the entire six scenes. These, in addition to the two chapels, include Infantry Terrace, the Officers' club, a portion of Presidio buildings with the Golden Gate bridge in the background, and Letterman Army hospital with the Palace of Fine Arts in the background.

The cards are done in black and white bold relief and are entirely unique and unknown anywhere except on the Presidio. On the back of each is a short descriptive paragraph describing its front cover.

Both the cards and the notes will sell for $1.00 a package and all proceeds will go to the Woman's Club Christmas project. Club members, under the direction of Mrs. Robert S. Nourse, volunteered to package the cards as they were printed.

A delicacy has been added to the "five-in-one" combat ration, which is enough food to sustain five men for one day. Included now are improved canned French fried shoe-string potatoes that withstand freezing temperature.

art show . . .

As part of the annual San Francisco Art Exhibit which opened yesterday at the Civic Auditorium, there is a display of Sixth Army arts and crafts from various Sixth Army installations including the Presidio of San Francisco and its subposts. Objects entered by Army personnel include leatherwork, enameling, ceramics and paintings. The show will run through Sunday and is open to the public without charge. Awards will be made to winning entries prior to the close of the show.

changes

The Armed Services Police Detachment lost two of its veteran enlisted members recently when both were assigned as instructors for the Reserve officers training program.

M/Sgt. Charles A. Tubbs, who served as detachment sergeant major for nearly two years, was assigned to the University of California at Berkeley while Sfc. I. M. Ferry went to the University of Santa Clara, California. Sfc. Ferry was a desk sergeant at the detachment's San Francisco division for two years.

M/Sgt. John W. Bradshaw, Jr., formerly the operations supervisor at the Oakland division, has assumed the duties as ASP sergeant major.

stage tryouts . . .

Tryouts for the new Presidio stage show, to be called "Sound Off," will be held next Friday, 23 September, at 1930 at the Presidio Service Club. It will be directed by Sgt. Elsie Davis, with Sgt. Stan Dreyfuss as assistant director and Mr. Tim Murphy, stage manager. Talent of all type is needed for the show, both instrumental and vocal, and Wacs are especially being encouraged to turn out for the auditions.

"Y" Slates Audience Supper Meet on Legal Problems of Service

"A Woman, a Warrior, and the Wherewithal," is the fascinating title of an audience-participation program to be given at the supper club of the Armed Services YMCA, 166 the Embarcadero, Tuesday, beginning at 1800.

All enlisted personnel may attend. The home-cooked supper is 35 cents and the program follows immediately.

Sponsored by Queens' Bench, a team of attorneys composed of Mrs. Mildred W. Levin and Lt. Colonel Edward G. Fraser, USAR, will lead the discussion and interpret commonplace situations pertaining to legal problems encountered by servicemen, their wives and sweethearts.

Mrs. Levin is an active attorney and a Queens' Bench director and Colonel Fraser, who commands a battalion in the 91st Infantry Reserve division at the Presidio, is a trial specialist and has had extensive experience in court-martial cases.

Cards and table games will follow the program.

pretty snappy . . .

At Tuesday's camera club meeting, members are to bring in all pictures taken on recent tours for study. Then come Saturday (24 September) the club will depart the Service Club at 1230 hours for a tour of the scenic city spots following which they will cook their supper in the great outdoors. The following Tuesday (27 September) George Baker of the Chronicle will return to judge the pictures which the club members took on a recent visit there with his model. In addition, members will be able to submit two slides containing people and prizes will be awarded for the best black and white and the best colored slide.

The troops which colonized early California were called "leather jacket" soldiers (soldados de cuera) because of the coat they wore, a tunic adapted from the Aztec cotton ichcapilli which served as a shield against arrows. Although the name was dropped about 1800 Mexican and Spanish soldiers continued to wear the jacket while on campaign duty.

"Job for the Man, Man for the Job," Proves Army Skill Utilization Plan

An Army private whose civilian training-occupation involved work on and assistance in designing automatic transmitter equipment now finds himself testing that self-same equipment—the only difference being the addition of the olive drab uniform, occasioned by his recent enlistment in the Army.

Twenty-six-year-old Pvt. Robert E. Stoffels, who has been assigned to the 9425th T.U., plant engineering agency, office of the Chief Signal officer, under the Specialist and Professional plan which utilizes a man in his professional skill, is presently assigned to the Transmitter station at Davis, California, a part of the Signal corps communications system.

He is observing tests being made on the new equipment being installed in the $4 million plant which is presently changing over to completely automatic communications equipment. The project is expected to be finished within a few months, and will facilitate the handling of messages in a matter of seconds.

Young Stoffels, who completed Northwestern university on a "school three months, work three months" program, gained his practical training at Automatic Electric company, the firm which supplied the Davis equipment. His immediate supervisor at the plant was Mr. Richard C. Stiles of Automatic Electric who presently is also at Davis in a civilian capacity representing the firm while the equipment is being checked and readied for use.

Working as a circuit designer, Stoffels spent 33 months in the practical field, learning the ins and outs of design, and his skill and knowledge will be utilized in other Signal installations throughout the country following completion of his Davis assignment. While in college, he was elected to Eta Kappa Nu, national honorary electrical engineering society.

"The experience Pvt. Stoffels gains at Davis in his first Army assignment will prepare him for future assignments in the Signal field throughout his Army career," Colonel Steven S. Cerwin, Sixth Army Signal officer, said today.

picnic

More than 100 adults and children, the largest number ever, attended the annual Comptroller section picnic held Sunday at Marin Town and Country. In addition to the food there were swimming, sports and children's games throughout the day. On the committee for arrangements were Earl Reinke, Helen Lucic, Mary Vilas, George Reiker, A. Kuperstein and Captain Donald F. Rabbott.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 23 September, 1955

1955-56 Season

Electronics and Management Topic of First AFMA Session

The Bay Area chapter Armed Forces Management Association will hold its first monthly meeting of the 1955-56 season at 2000 hours 20 September in Room 307, Stillwell Hall.

Key speaker of the evening will be Mr. Allan W. Voorsanger, who will discuss Electronic Data Processing — A Management Tool. Accompanying the talk, a film on the use of electronic computers by the Armed Forces will be shown.

Organized less than a year ago, the Bay Area AFMA seeks to promote the development of management practices as applied to Department of Defense Operations. Since then, an initial membership of 22 from Sixth Army Headquarters has been engaged in obtaining military and civilian members from all Army, Navy and Air Force Agencies in San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin and Solano counties.

At the 29 September meeting, newly elected officers and committees will be introduced to the membership. The officers include Mr. Bernard Kahn, president; Mr. Norman A. Bader, vice president; Mr. Albert Leslie, treasurer, and Miss Janie McElveen, secretary.

Maj. Gen. L. R. Dewey, Deputy Comptroller of the Army and acting president of the national AFMA, is scheduled to visit the Bay Area chapter next week along with Treasurer Carl Freedman.

Chairmen of the local chapter committees are Irvin F. Marlan, program; Jarvis R. O'Daniels, audit; Frederick B. Aydelotte, arrangements; Earl F. Renike, publications and publicity, and Donald Marcy, membership.

Throughout the next official year, the AFMA will meet on the third Thursday of each month, except July and August when the group is adjourned. Dinner meetings are scheduled for 15 December and 15 March.

Among the AFMA's activities is the publication of a monthly newsletter which presents articles and reports on subjects relating to members' interests. A quarterly journal is also planned.

Through conferences, seminars, work groups and other activities, the Association presents an opportunity for persons of similar interests to pool experiences and more effectively deal with the problems of planning, executing and controlling operations of the Defense Department.

Membership is open to members of the active or reserve services and civilian employees of the Defense Department.

Looking every inch the crack troops they are, members of the Army's 77th Special Forces Group stand at attention before beginning seven weeks of rugged mountain training recently at Ft. Carson, Colo. Their uniform is distinguished by a green beret on which is worn the paratrooper's badge.

promotions

The Army has allocated 49,300 enlisted promotions for September. This is the second highest monthly total in a year.

For only the third month since January, 1954, promotions to E-7 were authorized. Three hundred EM will be advanced to that grade during September.

Promotions quotas for the other grades during September are: E-6, 1,500; E-5, 6,000; E-4, 17,500, and E-3, 24,000. In each case, the quotas were higher than for the preceding two months.

General Taylor

Chief Stresses Army Mobility Aims: 'Completely Air-Transportable Units'

Boston, Mass. (AFPS)—Army Chief of Staff General Maxwell D. Taylor believes that entire divisions can be transported by air around the world, and at relative low cost.

In a speech here before the members of the 101st Airborne Div. Assn., he cited—as an example of what can be done—the recent Operation Gyroscop air exchange of regimental combat teams between the U. S. and Japan.

"Although the expense of this kind of movement may seem great," Gen. Taylor said, "strategic air mobility multiplies the effectiveness of our central reserve and reduces the number of troops which must be kept overseas."

He added that such airlifts could be in fact a great economy.

The general said that "in developing this air-transportability, we must go hand-in-hand with our friends in the Air Force."

He said the new C-123 assault transport, which can handle a 16,000-pound payload, will be able to take off from and land on improvised fields.

The general predicted that, within five years, new and improved heavy transport planes would carry as much as 100,000 pounds.

He said the Army is stressing

Program Review!

Reserve Components Advisory Group Confers Here Tomorrow

New Reserve policies and their general implementation will keynote a high level conference of the Reserve Components Advisory Group slated to get underway at Sixth Army Headquarters tomorrow morning.

Following honor guard ceremonies and an address by Sixth Army Commander Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, ranking representatives of the Reserves, National Guard and Regular Army from the eight Western States that comprise Sixth Army, will strive to ungnarl some of the knotty problems that face their respective programs.

Purpose of the conference, which is called each year by the Army Commander, is to provide the framework for ranking officers to jointly review reserve problems and to make recommendations for the improvement of the Reserve Components Program.

Any recommendations made by this group which are deemed suitable by the Army commander for possible Department of the Army adoption will be submitted to a higher headquarters.

During the morning session, Sixth Army staff officers will present G-1 and G-3 discussions of the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1955 and also a discussion of Army Construction planned for the future.

Major General William F. Dean, deputy commanding general of Sixth Army and chairman of the group, heads a list of distinguished military representatives that includes: Major General Earl N. Jones, California's adjutant general; Major General Leroy H. Anderson, commanding general of the 96th Infantry Division USAR, Montana; Major General Lamar Tooze, commanding general of the 104th Infantry Division

USAR, Washington, Oregon; Major General C. Lynn Fox, commanding general of the 91st Infantry Division USAR, California; Major General George S. Cook, commanding general of the 41st Infantry Division NG, Washington - Oregon; Brigadier General Henry K. Kellogg, commanding general of the 63rd Infantry Division, California; Brigadier General Maxwell C. Rich, adjutant general of Utah; Brigadier General Claude R. Burbach, chief of the California Military District, and Colonel John K. Miller, chief of the Arizona Military District.

Following luncheon with the Commanding General, the advisory group will continue the high level meeting with joint talks on Reserve and National Guard matters.

army commander

"Please convey my sincere congratulations to all Military Policemen on the Fourteenth Anniversary of the Military Police Corps. This anniversary marks a milestone in the progress and accomplishments of your Corps. Each of you can view with pride the outstanding service rendered to the armed forces during your short but eventful history. Your smart appearance, loyalty and devotion to duty is indeed gratifying. The ability displayed by the Military Police both in war and time of peace is indicative of pride in organization, superior training and esprit de corps. You can be justifiably proud of your outstanding record and high reputation enjoyed within the armed forces."

Faithfully,

New Trainee Program To Verse Civilians in Army Finance System

Designed to provide a steady flow of selected civilian personnel versed in Army Finance Methods, a new trainee program in Financial Management and Comptrollership began on post recently.

Involving a three-year training and development plan, the program is divided into three phases. Positions for which personnel will be trained and selected include administrative assistant, GS-301-5; accountant, GS-510-5, and budget analyst, GS-560-5.

To qualify, present civilian employees must pass a written examination in order to be considered for appointment. Those who meet the entrance requirements for the trainee program will be considered for appointment either at GS-5 or GS-7 level, depending upon individual qualifications.

Further information may be obtained from Mr. Eugene Rowden, Civilian Personnel Division, Building 36, ext. 2320.

flu shots!

Washington (AFPS) — Influenza shots again will be mandatory this year for military personnel stationed both in the U.S. and overseas. The shots also will be available for military dependents.

Supplies of the influenza vaccine are expected to begin arriving at military installations sometime in October and shots will begin immediately. The program is scheduled to be completed by the end of November.

follow through counts

Our friend Sturdley hasn't made much news lately. As a matter of fact, he's been behaving like a good serviceman should—that is, almost.

I happened to be in Sturdley's bay the other night and stopped by his bunk for a little talk before going to the first show at the local flicker.

As usual, he was all flaked out in his bunk, and I made myself comfortable on his footlocker.

He wasn't too talkative, so I switched on the radio. Then I saw something that made me good and mad.

On top of the radio was an envelope from the United States Armed Forces Institute at Madison, Wis. And it hadn't been opened.

I asked Sturdley about the letter, and he said it was a USAFI course he had ordered several months ago, but hadn't "had time" to start his first lesson.

Then I realized that our pal Sturdley was acting normal. An article I remembered reading explained there were "an amazing number" of servicemen receiving courses who didn't even bother to work their first lesson, although they had ordered the course.

Naturally, USAFI materials and administrative costs of handling enrollments amount to a sizeable chunk of money. Any waste may cut down on the quality of material USAFI can offer those who want to learn.

Well, to make a long story short, I took the bull by the horns and decided to ride herd on Sturdley. I'm glad to report he mailed the first lesson and is working on the second. (AFPS)

Current Display

Series of Historical Exhibits Illustrates Presidio's 179-Year Military Heritage

The second in a series of bulletin boards illustrating the 179-year heritage of the Presidio of San Francisco went on display recently at Post Headquarters, Building 220.

Produced by the Post Troop Information and Education Division, the project is under the direction of Major Earle K. Stewart, Post TI&E officer.

In several months of research, TI&E has culled an increasingly comprehensive set of notes from available historical sources and a varied selection of photos, maps and sketches of the Presidio since its beginnings in 1776.

Currently on exhibit is a plan of the Presidio in 1820, according to the recollections of Mariano G. Vallejo, who commanded the Post in 1831. Other illustrations include lithograph reproductions of drawings of the Presidio in the years from 1830 to 1850.

The opening display included one of the earliest maps of the Bay area as well as a drawing of the Presidio in 1816, sketched by the artist of a Russian round-the-world expedition during a stopover at San Francisco. The displays are accompanied by brief textual interpretations of the historical circumstances surrounding each illustration.

The materials which go into the displays, according to Major Stewart, are being organized into an illustrated brochure on the history of the Post from its Spanish foundations through the Mexican period to the present.

Although a large body of material has been collected, there are still large gaps in the story, according to Major Stewart.

"If anyone has information at all pertinent to the history of the Post, we would appreciate hearing from them," Major Stewart said. Post TI&E is located in Building 122. Phone is Ext. 4445 or 4449.

The TI&E division has used the research facilities available in the Bay area for its materials, including the Sixth Army Reference Library, the University of California, the San Francisco Public Library, the California Historical Society and other research centers.

Army and National Guard helicopters aided in the rescue of 235 stranded passengers from a marooned train in flooded Pennsylvania during the recent catastrophe. A helicopter of the 109th Infantry Regiment, Twenty-Eighth Division, removed scores of persons from the roofs of their deluged homes in South Scranton.

U. S. Civil Service Offers Wide Range Of Top Positions

Applications for a number of jobs with salaries ranging from $2,960 to $7,570 a year are now available, according to the director of the Twelfth U. S. Civil Service Region in San Francisco.

Among the open positions are medical technician (general medical technology, including bacteriology, hematology and serology), histopathology technician, and X-ray technician. The jobs are offered by hospitals and Defense Department and Public Health Service in California and Nevada. Applications are being accepted at the San Francisco office, 630 Sansome Street. Pay runs from $2,960 to $4,525 a year.

The Civil Service is also seeking a chief accountant to head the integrated accounting system at Sharpe General Depot near Stockton. Applicants may apply to the Depot or the San Francisco Office for the examination for Accountant and Auditor. Pay scale is $4,525 to $7,570.

Other jobs include engineering aids for the Soil Conservation Service at Yreka, Bieber, Santa Rosa, Walnut Creek, Moorpark, San Fernando, El Cajon and Fallbrook.

McClellan Air Force Base near Sacramento has positions for dental officer, accountants, draftsmen, engineers, health education training officer and personnel technician.

The Corps of Engineers at Albuquerque, New Mexico, is also seeking engineers and draftsmen. Mathematicians' positions are open with the Army Map Service in Washington, D. C.

Further information may be obtained from the San Francisco Regional Office.

first class!

Washington (AFPS) — A limited number of servicemen and their dependents will travel to assignments in the Far East aboard commercial ocean liners, the Military Sea Transportation Service announces. They will be given first class accommodations on ships of the American President Line sailing from the west coast.

The first passengers under this arrangement will sail in October.

Star Presidian

The Star-Presidian is an authorized dual purpose weekly publication published by and for the military personnel of the Sixth Army Headquarters and the Presidio of San Francisco, California, under the supervision of the Post Troop Information and Education Office. News, features, photographic and art material are solicited from military personnel. Publication depends on available space and general interest value as judged by the staff. No payment will be made. Every effort will be made to return rejected material but no responsibility can be assumed beyond the exercise of due care in expediting return.

officers recently assigned

Colonel JAMES D. BRECKENRIDGE has become chief of the special projects branch, organization and training division, G-3 section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Veteran of 22 years Army service, Colonel Breckenridge is a paratrooper, and, with his son, constituted one of the first father-son teams to go through the Airborne school at Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1954. The son, 1st Lt. Robert C. Breckenridge, is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, class of 1953, and is now serving with the 2nd Armored Division in Germany where he resides with his wife and family.

Prior to his Presidio assignment, Colonel Breckenridge served two years as deputy chief of staff, 18th Airborne corps, Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

During World War II, the colonel served in the European theatre throughout the war with the 8th Infantry Division, following which he was chief of staff of the task force which liberated Norway. And in 1946, he went to Bikini where he served as J-1 with "Operation Crossroads," the first atomic tests which were conducted there.

Colonel Breckenridge has been decorated with the Legion of Merit, the Soldier's Medal, the Bronze Star Medal, the Commendation ribbon, and the Purple Heart, in addition to which the countries of France, Belgium, England and Norway have each conferred decorations on him. He is a graduate of the Cavalry school, Fort Riley, Kansas, and instructed at the Command and General Staff school, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Colonel and Mrs. Breckenridge now reside in San Francisco.

Colonel FRED J. FIELDING, who has been in the European theatre for the past three years, is now chief of the operations division, Medical section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

While in Europe, Colonel Fielding served variously as surgeon, Base Section, USAEUR COMZ, for six months, as commanding officer, 20th General hospital, Aix-La-Chappelle, France one year; deputy commander, 97th General hospital, Frankfurt, Germany, one year, and deputy commander, 98th General hospital, Munich, Germany, six months.

Prior to going to Europe, the colonel attended the Army War college at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, for one year. He is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and the Medical Field Service school, then at Carlisle Barracks.

During a nine-year period, 1942-51, Colonel Fielding was with the office of the Surgeon General for two Washington, D. C., tours broken by an 18-months school and work program which included a year in personnel management, University of Maryland Graduate school, and six months of practical application in the field of industry.

The colonel, who has been decorated with the Legion of Merit, entered the Army in 1938, following completion of two years in internship at Letterman Army hospital. He attended U.C.L.A. and the University of Southern California Medical school.

Colonel and Mrs. Fielding reside with their two sons in Mill Valley.

Colonel MARVIN V. JOHNSTON is newly assigned to the G-2 section of Headquarters Sixth Army.

His most recent assignment was with U. S. Army Headquarters in Europe where he served as executive officer, Adjutant General division, from August 1952 to July 1955.

Veteran of 22 years Army service Colonel Johnston came on active duty in March 1942, and from that time until 1 September 1944, was assistant AG of the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia. He then served two years as AG and S-1 of the Parachute School, Fort Benning.

In July 1946, the colonel went to Korea where he served as AG of the 6th Infantry Division in Pusan for two years. Upon his return to this country in June 1948, he was assigned to military personnel procurement, office of the Adjutant General, Washington, D. C., where he remained until July 1952.

His decorations include the Legion of Merit and the Commendation Ribbon.

Colonel and Mrs. Johnston reside in San Francisco with their five-year-old son.

Lt. Colonel JAMES A. KLEIN is the newly assigned executive officer, TI&E section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In the Far East for the past 32 months, Colonel Klein spent the first 26 months as chief of the Troop Information division, TI&E section, Headquarters AFPE, 8th Army, which included Tokyo and Camp Zama, and for the past six months he has been editor-in-chief of Pacific Stars and Stripes, Tokyo.

In the Army for the past 13 years, the colonel was with the 5th Armored division and the 9th Service Command during World War II and in 1945, went to Europe where he served four years with U. S. Army forces as editor of "Army Talks," a TI&E bulletin for EUCOM Headquarters. He has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation ribbon with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Upon his return to this country, he served three years as PIO of the Command and General Staff school and Army War college, and was on the staff and faculty of the Information School, Carlisle Barracks, for five months. Mrs. Klein and the couple's three and one-half-year-old son, Jonathan, now in Santa Barbara, will join the colonel shortly.

Lt. Colonel CLARENCE S. HOWE is now assigned to the G-2 Section of Headquarters, Sixth Army. He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, the company officer's and advanced courses, the Infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia, courses in French and Polish at the Army Language School, Presidio of Monterey, and the Strategic Intelligence school, Washington, D. C.

During the period 1952-54, Colonel Howe was assistant Army attache in Poland, having been chosen on 1 May 1952, under the Military Specialization program. He has been assistant chief of staff, G-2, the Infantry school and center, Ft. Benning, Georgia.

From 1941 to 1944, the colonel was assistant military attache in Mexico City, following which he served in the G-2 section of the European command and the G-2 Section, Headquarters Fifth Army, Chicago.

Colonel and Mrs. Howe reside in Mill Valley.

Stellar 505th MP Battalion Record Spotlights Corps' Combat-Ready Goals

Spotlighting the Military Police Corps goal of soldier-policeman versatility at the Presidio is the 505th MP Battalion which manages to fulfill an impressive list of daily routine police commitments and at the same time maintain peak level combat-readiness through extensive training programs.

Military police operations commanded by Lt. Col. Fred C. Smith, at the Presidio, are as varied as they are wide-spread. The battalion's MP's are invariably the first soldiers whom people see when entering and leaving the Presidio area. They man the information booths at the main gate and also at Ft. Baker.

It is the 505th MP's whose precision traffic control program here was cited recently by ranking Chicago police officials as being the best ever seen.

MP's work around the clock.

The organization's highly-trained MP's can be found on duty 24 hours a day at Letterman Army Hospital, at the Post Guardhouse and at the Ft. Baker Stockade.

The standard workday which ends for many local personnel at 1630 is just beginning for a large number of 505th MP's who stand security guard at key post and Sixth Army Headquarters buildings and facilities.

Other MP's are commencing the second shift of routine sedan patrol of the post and sub-posts and at the same time an MP detail can be found at the Horse-shoe Cove piers at Ft. Baker clambering aboard Army harbor craft boats ready for the short journey to Angel Island and security duty there.

In addition to the many commitments here, the battalion also provides a three-man detail to pull town patrol in conjunction with other Armed Forces police in the Stockton, California area.

Before newly assigned personnel go on MP duty here they are given an orientation training program at the battalion's Ft. Baker center. There, new men learn techniques and procedures of the numerous and varied 505th jobs.

To maintain the many jeeps, sedans, motorcycles and trucks used by the MP's in their daily police and training chores, the 505th operates its own motor pool.

A glance at battalion operations centered in areas other than the Presidio and sub-posts in 1955 alone shows that the 505th really gets around. In March, Company A was the first unit in the Military Police Corps to participate in Department of the Army nuclear test exercises at Camp Desert Rock, Nevada. Throughout the period of the exercises, from 3 March to 3 July, each of the three line companies rotated the assignment.

From 21 February to 30 March, a company from the battalion took part in the Joint Army-Navy Operation SURF BOARD at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation. This summer, during the period 1 June to 6 September, the Battalion provided MP services for large organizations of reserve and National Guard troops from California and the Sixth Army area which were in summer training at Camp Roberts.

Two Hats are worn by Lt. Col. Fred C. Smith, commander of the 505th MP Battalion and the Presidio Provost Marshal. Here since August this year, Colonel Smith directs all functions of the two closely-knit organizations. Colonel Smith became an MP officer less than a year after the Military Police Corps was established, 26 September, 1942.

Currently, Company B is on temporary duty with Operation SAGE BRUSH at Camp Polk, Louisiana, making the battalion one of few Army units to play key roles in important training maneuvers.

The Battalion was first activated in 1943 just in time to see action in three major campaigns in the European Theater: the Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace and the Central Europe.

Following VE day it was sent to Vienna, Austria, where it was assigned occupational duties alongside the forces of England, France and Russia. The Battalion was deactivated in Vienna in June 1948 but only 11 months following the start of the Korean conflict, it was called to active duty at Camp Roberts, California.

In June 1952 the 505th came to the Presidio where it has continued to play an outstanding role, both as a highly-trained police organization and as a potential fighting unit in living up to the motto inscribed on the battalion crest: "Respite Finem" — "Look to the End."

Presidio's PMO Operations Cover Widespread Area

Operations of the Presidio Provost Marshal's office comes under the direction of the same officer who commands the 505th MP Battalion, Lt. Col. Fred C. Smith.

Besides supervising all police functions at the Presidio and sub-posts, the PMO functions handled by 505th MP Battalion and 60th MP Detachment (Crim. Inves.), extend from the Oregon border, north, to Central California, south.

Among the many important police programs supervised and directed by the Post Provost Marshal is internal security, traffic control, the AWOL apprehensions program and the investigation of crimes and traffic accidents involving Army personnel and property.

Members of the 505th MP Battalion handle many of the PMO duties while the 60th MPCI performs all of the investigative work. The PMO is, in effect, the administrative arm of all locally-centered Military Police operations.

Coordinator!

Staff Military Police Function Performed By Sixth Army PM

To aid, improve and coordinate all military police operations in the Sixth Army area is the function of the Sixth Army Provost Marshal's Office commanded by Colonel Shaffer S. Jarrell.

The Services and Management division of this function is basically charged with administrative and housekeeping chores while the Confinement and Correction division is concerned with Army area installation guardhouses and stockades as well as the Branch disciplinary barracks at Lompoc, California.

Another division serves as an area coordinating agency for investigations and apprehension programs of the military police. The Operation, Plans and Training Division is mainly concerned with the activities of reserve and active military police units in the command.

Probably the least known, but of immense importance defense-wise, is the Industrial Defense Division which appraises the security setups at key facilities such as railroads, mines, and dams in order to give advice on physical defense to the management of the facilities.

Although basically a coordinating staff organization, the Sixth Army PMO does from time to time initiate certain important policies. For example, at the beginning of this year it started an Off-Post Safety Program. Highway officials of the eight western states agreed to send copies of serious traffic violation citations involving servicemen to the Sixth Army PMO.

In turn the Provost Marshal would send the citations on to troop commanders so that a violator's CO would know which men were safety risks.

During the first six months of the off-post safety program, fatal accidents involving servicemen were reduced 37 per cent.

In keeping with the Military Police Corps motto, "Of the Troops, for the Troops," Colonel Jarrell serves as Chairman of the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board which investigates practices employed by unscrupulous business men which are detrimental to servicemen.

Another important function performed by Sixth Army PMO is the inspection of all combat-reserve and station duty MP units in the command.

This PMO also works at top levels with civilian police agencies to protect government property and the rights of the servicemen.

Of Troops, For Troops!

Versatile Role On Army's Team Emphasized By Military Police

By Sp3 Jack L. Everhart

Star-Presidian Associate Editor

"The Military Police Corps vital role on the Army team continues to be two-fold: the protection of the individual soldier and military property and the constant field preparation for potential combat service," said Col. Shaffer F. Jarrell, Sixth Army Provost Marshal in a statement commemorating the 14th Anniversary of the Military Police Corps next Monday, 26 September.

The MP's primary duties are to render assistance, furnish information, maintain order, direct traffic and provide security, giving emphasis to their motto: "Of the Troops and for the Troops."

Since the formal organization of the MP Corps in 1941 the other important feature of their vital mission has become increasingly emphasized.

Behind the image of the MP with gleaming white hat and finely polished leather—the MP who stands guard over secret Army developments, who executes sharp and clean signals at installation intersections, and who steers a wayward young soldier on pass away from the corrupting entanglements at an "Off-Limits" bistro, there is still another image.

Man for man, the versatile Military Police Corps today wears both white hat and steel helmet. The Military Police Corps policy of constant combat readiness makes police training a rugged proposition.

The MP has a broad variety of specialized skills and knowledge. To perform standard police duties on the Army team, MP's are instructed in such diverse subjects as military justice, court procedures, investigative methods, authority and jurisdiction, town patrol, traffic control, incident handling, riot control, efficient driving, first aid and drill and ceremonies.

For operations on the battlefield, MP's are trained to fire the M-1, the .45 calibre sub-machine gun, the shotgun, and the .50

Mushrooming clouds of a nuclear bomb blast provided the background for 505th MP Battalion combat-type duties at the Department of the Army's atomic weapons maneuvers at Camp Desert Rock, Nevada, this year. The locally-based MP's fulfill a year around dual mission of standard military police and combat-training chores.

Sixth Army Provost Marshal, Col. Shaffer F. Jarrell, heads the Army area PMO staff which coordinates and assists military police in the eight Western states. Wearer of the Bronze Star Medal, Colonel Jarrell has been with Sixth Army since September 1953.

calibre heavy machine gun in addition to the standard infantry weapons.

Besides being fully prepared to fight right along side the Infantry, the MP Corps performs a variety of key duties in combat situations.

They must direct vital traffic moving to and from fighting fronts, keep roads cleared, round up stragglers, handle hordes of civilian refugees, take charge of, search, classify, secure custody and move prisoners, provide security for command posts, and cooperate with military government in reestablishing civil police systems and law and order in occupied areas.

Another function of the Military Police Corps is that of Criminal Investigations for the Army. The Military Police Criminal Investigators are especially trained to function as the detective force of the Military Police Corps. Their duties are quite similar to those performed by detective bureaus in civilian life.

Although the history of Military Police in Anglo-Saxon Armies dates back to the 11th Century at the time of the Norman conquest of England, a Separate Military Police group was first formally instituted by the Army 26 September, 1941.

Originally entitled the Corps of Military Police, the Military Police Corps was given permanent status as a standard branch of the Army in 1950.

dusk to dawn!

It is illegal in California to drive with parking lights at any time between dusk and dawn, according to a recently enacted addition to the State Vehicle Code.

The new law requires drivers to use headlights during the hours from sunset to sunrise. Parking lights may be used only when they are connected to directional turn signals. California drivers are required to use their headlights rather than parking lights in foggy weather during daylight hours.

Psychiatrist Dr. Knox H. Finley of the National Medical Advisory Board of the United Cerebral Palsy Association, told thousands of Presidio and sub-post troops at the Troop Information sessions assembled at the Presidio and Ft. Scott theatres how some of their United Crusade contributions were being used for prevention, research and treatment of the crippling disease. Above from left to right, WAC's Sp3 Evelyn Neal and Pfc. Laura Cook discuss certain phases of cerebral palsy treatment with Dr. Finley.

$30,000 Goal

Bay Area Crusade Donations Mount to Near $10,000 Mark

In three weeks of earnest campaigning, the Presidio by Wednesday had reached the one-third mark in its drive toward a $30,000 contribution to the Bay Area United Crusade.

Since the campaign opened 1 September, personnel of the Presidio and its subposts have contributed $5,772.39 in cash and pledged $4,074.90 for a total of nearly $10,000.

The Bay Area United Crusade, representing 288 charities in five counties, has set $10,000,000 as the goal of its 1955 One Big Give drive.

The military mission in the United Crusade campaign, termed Operation 288, is headed by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander.

In the campaign which represents the nearly 2,370,000 citizens in the Bay Area, the military also has a stake.

Apart from agencies like the USO where servicemen benefit directly, the United Crusade, for example, will allocate over $1,000,000 to local and national medical care and research organizations.

Such agencies as the American Cancer Society, Heart Association, Mental Health Society and the United Cerebral Palsy Association carry on research programs against today's major killing and crippling diseases.

Although the serviceman and his family may have access to medical care, they are in a position to need and benefit as much from new medical findings as the community at large.

The United Crusade will allocate this year about $500,000 in the form of grants to individuals, hospitals and clinics for study in these fields.

With an ideal contribution set at a day's pay for each individual, Operation 288 will continue on the Presidio throughout October. Both civilian and military personnel have been urged to participate.

Coffee, Conversation Melt Icy Isolation Of 30th AAA Group

The coldness of isolation thawed a little last week for units of the 30th AAA Group, as Red Cross workers brought coffee and conversation to men of the remote anti-aircraft installations.

At the request of Major General Hobart Hewett, commanding general of the sixth Regional Anti-Aircraft Command, Bay Area Red Cross volunteers since 18 April have been bringing an hour's coffee break each week to the soldiers responsible for the close-in defense of the Bay Region.

"It's not so much the coffee as the 'break' that's valued by these men, who are doing such a vital but confining job," said Mrs. Felix Cunha, coordinator of San Francisco Chapter's AAA program.

General Hewett said the idea was suggested to him by the service of the Red Cross clubmobile girls with the Third Division in Korea, in 1953 and 1954.

"We're required to be operational 24 hours a day, seven days a week, without any let-up. We are all under pressure. To break that strain with wholesome relaxation, a chance to get their minds off their jobs, I asked for this program," General Hewett said.

Five other Red Cross chapters, besides San Francisco's, are serving installations within their areas. They are San Mateo, Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley and Marin.

The Bay Area program has been imitated by Red Cross volunteers in the Los Angeles and Seattle areas.

Cisco Andrade, one-time boxing instructor at Ft. Ord, Calif., recently won an easy 10-round decision over fifth-ranking lightweight Orlando Zulueta.

his fight has just begun!

The services' new Code of Conduct for prisoners of war is now making its way to the field. Each command has made arrangements for it to be read, explained and discussed — obviously, the more of each, the better. But that is only a start.

No serviceman, no matter how many hash marks, can ever be satisfied that he is completely trained. He must constantly refresh his combat skills.

We must realize that to know and to understand the Code of Conduct is now one of the combat skills demanded of all of us. One reading isn't enough. As with other combat skills, we must repeatedly refresh ourselves.

The Korean War brought home to us that a fightingman's job doesn't end if he is captured. In fact, it becomes in many ways, more important and more difficult.

A prisoner of war must have faith, integrity, patience and endurance, all in full measure. But he should acquire these qualities long before he is ever faced with the possibility of becoming a POW. Afterwards, it could be too late.

That is what the Code is trying to help us do. That is why we must be steadily conscious of its meaning and of the responsibility it places on us — just as we are steadily conscious of our skills as marksmen, mechanics or seamen.

officers recently assigned

Captain ROY P. BEATTY is the newest addition to the training branch, plans and training division, Engineer section, Headquarters Sixth Army. For the past three years he has been in Germany as operations officer, 499th Engineer battalion.

Following graduation from the U. S. Military Academy, class of 1946, the captain attended the basic officer's course, Engineer school, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, and the branch non-materiel course, Fort Benning, Georgia.

After two years of duty with SCARWAF in Japan, Captain Beatty returned to attend the University of Iowa for one year, receiving his M.A. in civil engineering. He then was assigned as an instructor at the Engineer school, Fort Belvoir, and while there, also attended the officer's advanced course.

Captain and Mrs. Beatty and their two sons have taken up residence in the Presidio Park apartments.

Captain RICHARD G. FAZAKERLEY has been assigned as chief, reports and accounting division, Finance section, Headquarters Sixth Army, following his graduation on 1 September from the University of Southern California, where he has been assigned the past year, working towards his M.B.A. in business administration.

With 13 years Army service, the captain previously served two years as settlement officer with the U.S. Army, Washington, D. C. Receiving his commission in 1944, he received his regular Army commission in 1948 as a result of a competitive tour. In the interim, he was Finance officer at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Reverting to Artillery troop training, Captain Fazakerley was a battery commander with the 2nd Division Artillery in Korea from August 1950 to January 1952, and was awarded the Bronze Star Medal as well as seven battle stars for his Korean ribbon.

The captain attended St. Joseph's and Alameda High school, and was graduated from the University of San Francisco, class of 1943. With his wife and daughter, Veronica, 10 years old, and son, Gregory, seven, he resides at Mill Valley.

Captain LOUIS F. ROEDERER, for the past 10 months a member of the 504th Military Intelligence platoon, 24th Division, Korea, is now with the G-2 Section at Headquarters Sixth Army. Earlier Korean service from October 1950 to November 1951, was with the 25th Division.

The captain spent two years during World War II with the 3rd Army in the ETO, and numbers among his decorations the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, the ETO ribbon with four battle stars and the Korean ribbon with four battle stars.

Captain Roederer has been graduated from the Army language school, Presidio of Monterey, where his course was Chinese-Cantonese.

He and his wife and their 12-year-old daughter, Renee Annette, are residing at the Presidio Park apartments.

Captain JAMES MALIZOLA comes to the Presidio of San Francisco from a six-weeks tour at Sharpe General depot. He has been named post ration breakdown officer, Post Quartermaster section. He recently completed the associate advanced officer's course, Quartermaster school, Fort Lee, Virginia.

Enlisting in the Army in 1942, the captain served with the 76th

Ordnance Depot company in Puerto Rico, before attending O.S.C. at Fort Lee, Virginia, where he received his commission in the Quartermaster corps in October 1945.

In March 1946, he had his first of two breaks in service until that September. The following May Captain Malizola was assigned to the Kobe Quartermaster depot, Japan, where he served until February 1949. His second reserve tour was from September 1949 to April 1951 when he was again recalled to active duty.

From November 1953 to January 1955, the captain was in Korea, serving the first 10 months as commanding officer of the 505th QM reclamation and maintenance company, and the balance as S-4, 510th QM battalion. He received the Commendation ribbon for his services there. He presently is residing on the Presidio with his wife and their three-year-old son.

First Lieutenant ROBERT L. ACKERSON, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, class of 1952, has taken up duties as assistant to the Post Engineer, Presidio of San Francisco.

Following a year's tour as assistant to the district Engineer, Los Angeles district, Lt. Ackerson attended the Airborne school, Fort Benning, Georgia, prior to reporting to the Presidio.

His first assignment following West Point graduation was that of training company commander at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. He next went to Korea where he served 14 months with the 2nd Engineer Combat battalion, 2nd Division.

The lieutenant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Ackerson, reside in Santa Barbara.

CWO CHESTER J. McCARTY is the newly assigned postal officer for the Presidio of San Francisco.

In the Army for 15 years, McCarty's most recent assignment was a 30 months tour in Alaska with the 50th Army Postal unit.

Combat service during World War II was with the 35th Infantry Division in France and Germany, during which he was wounded twice and returned hospitalized from England in 1945. He returned to Europe the following year for 30 months occupation duty with an Infantry unit. His decorations include the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Combat Infantry Badge, the ETO ribbon with four battle stars, and the Presidential Unit citation.

In 1949, Mr. McCarty went to Guam where he entered the postal service. Upon his return to this country in 1951, he received his warrant.

lc selections

Washington (AFPS) — An army selection board will meet in October to choose majors on active duty for temporary promotion to lieutenant colonel.

Eligible officers must have at least 52 months' service in grade by 31 March, 1955. Veterinary officers must have a minimum of 55 months and nurses at least 53. No chaplains or WAC majors will be considered.

However, WAC captains and lieutenants will be considered for promotion to the next grade by the same board. Captains must have 53 months and first lieutenants 32 months in grade by 31 March.

Lt. Hinerfeld Receives Achievement Honors For Work in Finance

First Lt. Norman M. Hinerfeld was recently awarded a Certificate of Achievement for his formulation of reorganization and improvement policies in Sixth Army Finance and Accounting.

At an informal ceremony attended by fellow workers, Lt. Hinerfeld received the certificate from Colonel Rudolph W. Nuss, Sixth Army Finance and Accounting officer. Lt. Hinerfeld had formulated and implemented a procedure for decentralizing the administrative control of appropriated funds within the command.

The award was made as Lt. Hinerfeld completed his two-year tour of duty. His home is in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. A Harvard alumnus, class of '51, he spent his first year of service as deputy finance accounting officer at Fort Lewis, Washington.

Checking 2D Map Contours

Selecting Scale Models

Power Tool Realism

Touch of Realism

Army Maps Get 3D Treatment From Unique 171st Engineers

The three-dimensional maps currently in production at the 171st Engineer Company, 30th Engineer Group, will so closely simulate the areas which the scale maps represent that only the slightest shift in the observer's imagination will be needed to virtually bring them to life.

Called relief maps, the 3D models will feature all terrain features, land forms, roads, buildings and natural growth. Although the relief maps are not as compact or convenient for troop-level use in combat, they are ideal for use by commanders to determine detailed terrain features at a glance.

To make these maps, the local engineers first cut out cardboard shapes representing the contour lines on the standard two-dimensional maps. The cardboard contours are laid out in step fashion, forming a skeleton for the finished maps.

Plaster of paris is then poured over the cardboard and the overall land patterns take shape. Roads and other man-made indentations are then carved into the plaster model.

After shellacking and waterproofing, a negative cast is made of the model so that more than one copy of the map can be produced.

The imagination of the 3D map-makers comes most into play during the last phases of the project. In order to simulate such objects as buildings, trees, and telephone poles, and also to accurately reproduce the specific textures of land surfaces, the map craftsmen must be prepared to use an unusual assortment of materials.

For example, miniature telephone poles are improvised from cocktail toothpicks, foliage and wooded areas are usually constructed from bits of foam rubber, sawdust, and dried moss, and buildings and man-made objects are built from balsa wood.

Once the detailed features are affixed to the map surface, the entire map is handpainted. Special emphasis is given to duplicating the original colors of all features. The result is a model which, if photographed, would look identical to a shot of the actual area mapped.

The 171st is not only a new unit at the Presidio, it is also the only one of its kind in the Army today.

Part of the unit's mission is to devise training techniques, and to determine the amount and type of equipment and materials required, the qualifications of personnel and the production capacity of a relief mapping detachment.

Here since last April, following organization at Ft. Velvoir, Virginia, the unit's first project is a model of the Presidio, which when completed this fall will measure four feet by six feet; each inch representing about 150 feet horizontally.

In one respect the relief map of the Presidio will not be altogether a scale model. Height will be represented with a two to one exaggeration of the map's horizontal scale in order to make predominant features more easily distinguishable.

Composed of 17 enlisted men, the prototype relief mapping unit is commanded by Lieutenant James W. Jennings.

Rate UN Troops Tops in Conduct In Disturbance

Washington (AFPS)—U.N. troops in Korea have been commended by high U.S. officials for their actions during recent South Korean demonstrations against the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission.

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, commander-in-chief of U.N. and Far East Commands, and his troops were praised by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Army Secretary Wilbur M. Brucker.

Several U.S. servicemen were injured protecting representatives of the neutral group, as South Korean demonstrators demanded they leave the country.

Mr. Dulles, in a letter to Secretary Wilson, wrote, "Now that the crisis in Korea is, we hope, abated, I want to express the appreciation which I and my associates in the department feel for the conduct in this period by Gen. Lemnitzer and those under him."

The troops, Mr. Dulles added, "have acted with a combination of firmness and strength, under very trying conditions which deserves recognition."

Secretary Brucker passed on Mr. Dulles' letter, as well as "sincere appreciation" from Mr. Wilson and himself to Gen. Lemnitzer.

The command strength of the active Army in the U.S. by the end of FY 1954 was 1,405,000.

Navy Must Draft 56,000 To Keep Required Strength

Washington (AFPS)—The Navy, for the first time since the end of WWII, will use the draft to keep up its strength. Beginning in November and until next June, 56,000 men will be inducted for two year hitches.

The Navy said it was forced to the move because of the unusually large number of enlistments stemming from the first year of the Korean War, which will expire during the next few months. According to present re-enlistment rates, not enough men are expected to re-enlist to keep the Navy at its required strength.

The Navy emphasized that the regular four-year enlistment program will continue to be stressed. Two-year voluntary enlistments will not be authorized.

The Navy hopes its use of the draft will end next June. Ten thousand men a month will be inducted into the Navy in November, December, February, March and April. The May quota is 6,000. None will be taken in January.

Inductees will be allocated between the Army and Navy. They will not be allowed to choose their branch of service.

The Navy said the selectees would be integrated into the fleet in the same manner as regular recruits.

More than 160,000 miles of wire are required to serve the telephone system of the Department of Defense, located in the Pentagon and 32 other Washington buildings.

Honor Guard stands tall as M/Sgt. Walter V. Dugdale of Headquarters Company, Station Complement, who served as commander of troops at last Friday's retreat parade competition, presents the "Honor Unit" plaque to M/Sgt. George S. Van Kirk, Honor Guard's first sergeant who acted as Company CO for the parade. Other units vying for the plaque last week included Headquarters Company, Station Complement, Headquarters Company, Sixth Army and the WAC company.

last ride

Vienna (AFPS)—The famed international military police patrol which policed Austria's capital for 10 years has been disbanded as part of the treaty terms ending the allied occupation. At a brief ceremony here, U. S., British, French and Russian officers abolished the joint patrol in which command was held alternately by each of the four nations.

MP Brass Pictures Army's First Standard Flint-Lock Side Arms

When the present military police brass insignia was in the planning stages, draftsmen started by drawing crossed police clubs, but at saluting distance the MP could not be distinguished from the field artilleryman. Next tried was the medieval military club, the mace. This was abandoned because the device looked like crossed potato mashers.

Final decision was to use the first standardized, quantity production military pistol with interchangeable parts, the Harpers Ferry Arsenal Army Flint-Lock Pistol, Model 1806, calibre .54. These pistols were the army officers' side arms and holster pistols of a century and a half ago.

Actually the insignia is twenty years older than the Military Police Corps, which observes its fourteenth anniversary next Monday. A drawing of the insignia was signed in 1922 by General Pershing (then Army Chief of Staff), following assignment of National Guard personnel to the military police.

Fort Point Passes Into Obsolescence Within a Generation

Obsolete and in decay, the old Spanish Castillo de San Joaquin, which for 60 years had watched over the Golden Gate, was dismantled in 1853 to be replaced by a modern American fortress, modeled after Ft. Sumter, South Carolina.

Salvaged parts from the Spanish Castillo went into the new Ft. Point along with materials transported around Cape Horn from the East Coast. The new fortress and its armament of 127 guns was laid in a cradle hewn out of the towering cliff which had been the site of the Spanish citadel.

By 1861 and the outset of the Civil War, Ft. Point was completed. Two artillery companies moved in to garrison the stronghold.

Hardly more than 30 years later, iron-clad ships and improved breechloading cannons had rendered the $3,000,000 fortress itself obsolete.

Ohio's K-Vet Bonus Has Legislative OK Now Up To Voters

Columbus, Ohio (AFPS)—The Ohio Legislature has adopted an amendment to the state constitution authorizing a bonus to Ohio residents who served in the armed forces during the Korean War. But the amendment still must be ratified by a state-wide vote.

It will not be presented to the voters until Nov. 6, 1956, according to Ted Brown, Ohio Secretary of State.

If approved, actual payment of the bonus probably will not be made until 1957. Mr. Brown said that all eligible voters, including those on military service, will be entitled to cast their ballot on the question.

The proposed bonus is like one paid to Ohio veterans of WWII, who were given $10 for each month of stateside service and $15 for each month overseas, up to a maximum of $400.

dance anyone?

For those who love to shuffle, there will be ample opportunity during the coming week at the Presidio Service club. Tuesday night there will be a western party complete with square dancing with Ron Connolly calling and music by the Fort Baker Ramblers. On Thursday, the regular Post dance will be set in "de ol' South" under the appropriate title of the Cotton Ball, and will feature intermission solos of Stephen Foster melodies as well as spirituals by Earl Phillips. And to top it off, a watermelon feast!

Hire Handicapped!

Employ Physically Handicapped Week To Be Observed Nationally in October

"Physically handicapped persons want to be taxpayers instead of tax consumers."

This sums up in a sentence the feelings of the President's committee on employment of the physically handicapped, and National Employ the Physically Handicapped week is being held this year from 2 through 8<sup>o</sup> October.

On the Presidio, civilian personnel officials cooperate to the fullest extent in the hiring of such persons, with many of them holding responsible positions throughout the headquarters, post and sub-posts.

This is the 10th anniversary of the nation-wide program to provide work opportunities for the physically handicapped, and enormous strides have been made in the right direction since its humble beginnings.

Reasons which have swayed countless employers in their decision to give the handicapped a chance include the fact that very few jobs, either in office, workshop or factory, require physical perfection, plus the fact that millions of disabled workers now employed have proved their competence in every field of endeavor.

Because a sizable portion of the handicapped these days are disabled veterans, the opportunity to give them a chance to perform becomes even more appealing to the average American employer.

New Insignia

AFPS

THIS NEW Air Defense Command insignia—drawn by cartoonist Walt Disney—will shortly be distributed to the field. The American eagle, set on a shield of sky blue and hovering in flight, vigilantly guards the northern perimeter of our hemisphere. The eagle represents awareness of the shortest distance from which an enemy could attack his area of defense. The bolt of lightning in his talons symbolizes strength and speed.

National Bible Week Campaign Planned For 17 to 23 October

The fifteenth annual National Bible Week has been set for 17 to 23 October by its sponsors, the Laymen's National Committee, Inc.

An inter-faith observance, the campaign this year has taken for its theme Andrew Jackson's statement, "The Bible is the rock upon which our Republic rests."

Initiated in 1941, the annual campaign seeks to encourage regular reading and study of the Bible by members of all faiths. This year's chairman is William J. Grede, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"The perplexing problems of our nation and the world—as so frequently suggested by President Eisenhower—will be solved only through the spiritual concepts found in our Bible," Chairman Grede said. "It is my hope National Bible Week will stimulate a new interest in the greatest of all books."

Arms Shipments Hit $11.4 Billion High For Month of June

Washington (AFPS) — The U.S. has shipped 7,575 planes, 38,400 tanks and combat vehicles and 1,079 ships to more than 35 friendly countries under the Mutual Security Program.

The value of defense shipments abroad, including numerous other defense items, reached $11.4 billion by last June 30, according to President Eisenhower's eighth semi-annual report to Congress on the program.

In addition, the U.S. placed $2.8 billion worth of contracts in friendly nations for military items to be used by the latter's armed forces. These are known as "off-shore" purchases.

Such overseas contracts, the President's report pointed out, have enabled our allies to develop their own military production capabilities and reduce their dependence on the U.S. for replacements.

Europe has received 70 per cent of the military aid shipments. Asia and the Pacific area have been sent 18 per cent, the Middle East and Africa, 11 per cent, and Latin America, one per cent.

The most powerful concentration of free world strength outside the U.S. has been established in western Europe, the report declared. European NATO nations (excluding Greece and Turkey) are spending about $12.3 billion a year on their armed forces, about double the sum they spent in 1950.

The New York State Athletic Commission has a ruling that forbids fighters to wear a mustache in the ring.

Tissue Transfer!

Old Selective Service Files Turned Into Fancy Napkins and Towels

New York (AFPS)—WWII veterans may be interested to know that more than two million individual selective service files for the years 1940 to 1947 have been converted to paper napkins and paper towels by order of Selective Service Hq. in Washington.

The old records were destroyed or sold as waste recently to reduce the vast amount of storage space they consumed.

The "total destruction by burning, shredding or reducing to pulp" of the draft records was carried out by selective service officers throughout the nation.

The operation took more than a month to complete. Great care was taken against violating the confidential nature of the files.

The original registration cards were not destroyed by Selective Service.

In New York, three stories of a fair-sized building were needed to house the local selective service files before the old records were eliminated. Now two of the floors have been turned over to other uses.

evening classes—

The fall semester of evening classes at Golden Gate College will begin 3 October. Offering a wide range of business and management courses, the school also provides a number of evening courses in the arts and sciences.

Among the classes of special interest are History of Asia, Miscellaneous Taxes and Advanced Gregg shorthand, the fourth course in the USAFI shorthand series.

Further information may be obtained by calling PR 5-5774 or visiting the school at 220 Golden Gate Avenue.

New Wonderboard Will Filter Fall-Out Says Chem. Corps

Washington (AFPS) — A cheap wood fiber "diffusion board" that can filter the deadly radioactive fall-out from an atomic explosion and save many lives, has been developed for the Army Chemical Corps.

Operating on much the same principles as the gas mask, the board is treated with certain chemicals that screen out radioactive dust as well as deadly gases and germ-carrying particles. Like the gas mask, it absorbs oxygen and carbon dioxide.

As a result, it can be used to build windowless shelters to protect civilian and military personnel alike in the event of a nuclear attack.

The work of scientists at the U. S. Forest Products Laboratories at Madison, Wis., the diffusion board resembles ordinary fiberboard used in building and is relatively inexpensive.

Maj. Gen. William M. Creasy, Chemical Corps Chief, has predicted that the new wonder board will be available for everyone as soon as it is produced in sufficient quantities.

At present, limited production is being used solely for military testing purposes.

Its developers are Dr. Alfred J. Stamm, veteran research scientist at the Forest Products Laboratory, and his assistant, Dr. Harold Tarkow.

Classical Variety!

Recital by Pvt. Yakutis Set Wednesday At Service Club; Francisco Accompanist

After the house lights are out and while the stage curtains are still drawn, a lone figure steps before the audience to present the dramatic Prologue to the opera "I Pagliacci," in which he begs them to countenance the play they are about to witness for it embodies "the sad fruits of love and passion and hearts that weep."

Pvt. Robert K. Yakutis, baritone, becomes the clown, Tonio, who steps onto the stage of the Presidio Service club Wednesday night (28 September) to present this spectacular aria from the opera which is a play within a play involving himself, the tenor, Canio (Pagliacci) and the latter's wife Nedda (Columbine.)

It was with this same aria from Leoncavallo's tragic opera, that Pvt. Yakutis recently earned a future role on the nationally televised Arlene Francis "Soldier Parade," in auditions held at the Presidio Service club.

The number will come about midway in a recital which he will present at the Service club Wednesday beginning at 2015 hours. Accompanist will be Don Francisco, until recently stationed with Pvt. Yakutis at the 9th AAA Gun battalion, and now attending San Francisco State college where he is working on his master's degree in music.

Also included in the program are groups of Italian, German and Lithuanian art songs, an English group, and a piano section of four numbers by Mr. Francisco.

Pvt. Yakutis, native of Worcester, Massachusetts, received his B.A. from Clark university, Massachusetts, and did graduate study in fine arts at New York university.

Among his tutors were Gladys Childs Miller of the New England Conservatory of Music, and Madame Eva Zayde Ross, who has numbered among her pupils the Metropolitan notable, Helen Traubel.

He recently appeared before the Shakespeare club of New York City in a recital of songs set to Shakespeare's poetry. And he has also appeared with the Long Island Opera theatre in such roles as Germont in Verdi's "La Traviata."

Prior to entering the service, Pvt. Yakutis was heard in recital throughout New England, and following his tour of service, he plans to continue his operatic and concert career.

Pvt. Robert K. Yakutis

Bills Confused!

Outside Earnings by GI Bill Students Have No Bearing On GI Allowance

Money earned outside of class by veterans in school under the Korean GI Bill has no bearing on the amount of GI allowance paid them by the Government, Veterans Administration said recently.

These earnings need not even be reported to VA, the agency said.

VA explained that some veterans still confuse the Korean GI Bill with the original World War II GI Bill which did have an income "ceiling" that applied to veterans taking all types of training — in school, on-the-job and on-the-farm.

There is no such "ceiling" for veterans in school under the Korean GI Bill. However, there is one for Korea veterans taking on-the-job training. Under this ceiling, when a veteran's on-the-job training wages, plus his GI allowance, exceed $310 a month, VA scales down the allowance accordingly, to bring the total within the $310 limit.

Starting allowances for Korean GI on-the-job trainees are $70 a month with no dependents; $85 with one, and $105 with more than one dependent. The law requires that these rates be reduced at four-month intervals, as training progresses and veterans' earning abilities increase.

The rates for veterans in school full-time are $110 with no dependents; $135 with one dependent, and $160 with more than one dependent. VA said no ceiling applies to outside earnings for these veterans.

Honor Engineer Unit For Important Role In Flood Rescues

Philadelphia (AFPS) — The Army's 509th Helicopter Co. of Ft. Belvoir, Va., was recently honored here for rescue and supply missions performed during the August floods in the northeastern U.S.

At the opening of the national air show, a special Department of the Army citation was presented to Maj. Edward E. McCollum, company commander, by Charles C. Finucane, undersecretary of the Army.

The company flew a total of 13,160 miles during the emergency, evacuating 220 persons and hauling 45,570 pounds of food, medical supplies and other cargo.

Officially Known as 'Ontos'

Meet Ontos!

Ex-Army Monster Fails Re-Up; Will Now Join Marine Corps

Washington (AFPS)—"The Thing"—a six-pronged monster with a devastating sting—is joining the Marine Corps after a brief hitch with the Army.

"The Thing" is not a fictional character from the pages of science-fiction, but a speedy anti-tank weapon that will be put into production in August, 1956, for the Marine Corps.

Its "sting" comes from six 106mm recoilless rifles mounted on its light frame.

An army ordnance contract for $13,000,000 has been awarded to the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. of Milwaukee, Wis., to begin production of the new armored vehicle.

Called a "hit and run" weapon, it was first tested for the Army, but was found more suitable to marine combat tactics.

Officially, it will be known as the Ontos (a Greek word which can be translated as meaning "The Thing"). Instead of heavy protective armor, "The Thing" will depend on the speed with which its rifles can be trained on a target to protect it against enemy retaliation.

The six 106s can be fired simultaneously or singly. Gunners use either a foot pedal or hand trigger. The vehicle is powered by a 145 hp engine, the same as used in a 2½-ton army truck.

"The Thing" has middle-range speed, and is an excellent climber. It can move up a 60 per cent grade or a two-and-one-half-foot vertical wall with relative ease.

AF Liaison Officer Colonel Blacker Given Korean Medal of Merit

Lt. Col. Jack A. Blacker was recently awarded the Korean Medal of Merit for his role as commander of the 7th Fighter Bomber Squadron in Korea. Colonel Blacker is currently assigned as Air Force liaison officer for the War and Joint Plans Branch, Sixth Army, at the Presidio.

The citation accompanying the medal praised Colonel Blacker for exceptional leadership and administrative ability. From 19 June to 27 June, 1953, his organization flew 1600 combat sorties against the enemy. Of these missions, Colonel Blacker flew 15. The strikes crippled enemy airfields, supply and transportation centers.

A senior pilot, Colonel Blacker entered the service as an aviation cadet in 1943. He has served in the China-Burma-India theater, Alaska and Korea.

The Medal of Merit was presented by Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Tucker, Western Air Defense Force vice commander, Hamilton Air Force Base.

officers recently assigned

Lt. Colonel VINCENT J. KOSEBUTSKI has reported for duty as commanding officer of the San Francisco Chemical Procurement district with headquarters in Oakland.

He comes to the Bay area from four years of duty in the office of the chief Chemical officer, Washington, D. C. He is a native of Detroit and was commissioned in the Army in 1942. The following year he attended the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

As operations and training officer with a Chemical mortar battalion at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, he accompanied that unit to Hawaii. His unit was part of the 5th Amphibious Corps scheduled for the invasion of Japan when World War II ended.

Colonel and Mrs. Kosebutski are residing in Oakland.

Major FRANCIS D. IVEY, with the Allied Land Forces in Central Europe for the past 40 months, is now chief, communications liaison branch, Signal section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In the Army for the past 17 years, the major attended O.C.S. at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, in 1941, following which he served in the Pacific theatre for a year with the 4025th Signal Service group at New Guinea, Leyte and Luzon.

From 1947 through 1949, Major Ivey was with occupation forces in Japan.

The major, his wife and their son have taken up residence in Sharp Park.

Chaplain (Major) FRANCIS CIESIELSKI has been assigned as deputy Army chaplain, Headquarters Sixth Army. He has just returned from 41 months as deputy Army chaplain, U. S. Army Caribbean, Fort Amador, Canal Zone.

A member of the Franciscan Order, Chaplain Ciesielski has been in the Army for 10 years with a seven months break for a civilian call from his order in 1947, just after his return from Japan where he had been serving as chaplain with the 11th Airborne division since July 1945. Returning to the Far East in 1948, the chaplain served two years on Okinawa as chaplain of a AAA Group.

Chaplain Ciesielski served as an assistant pastor in Baltimore, Maryland, for 10 years prior to entering the Army. He took his major seminary studies in philosophy and theology at St. Hyacinth, Granby, Massachusetts, and his preparatory work at St. Joseph's, Elicott City, Maryland. He has also attended the basic officer's course, Chaplain's school, Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia.

The chaplain's mother, Mrs. Polly Ciesielski, resides in Mattapan, a suburb of Boston, Massachusetts.

Major VERNE E. MARSDEN has become commanding officer of Headquarters company, 6000 SU. Since August 1952, he has been Post operations officer at headquarters, Fort Amador, Canal Zone.

In the Army for the past 27 years, Major Marsden was enlisted for a portion of his career, and was commissioned following graduation from Infantry O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1942. He then went to the Pacific for 30 months of duty with an Air base security battalion, with the mission of securing an Air Force installation.

During the period 1946-1949, the major was in Germany on occupation duty with Constabulary forces.

Major and Mrs. Marsden and five-year-old James Scott are residing at the Presidio Park apartments.

Major JOHN W. BOYLE, newly assigned assistant headquarters commandant, Headquarters Sixth Army, has just completed the 16-week advanced officer's Infantry course at Fort Benning, Georgia. Prior to that he served three years in Alaska.

His first service was enlisted with the 18th Coast Artillery at Fort Scott. He was graduated from Infantry O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1942 and served with the 345th Infantry. He was decorated with the Bronze Star and the Combat Infantry Badge.

Following two years of civilian life, the major reentered the Army in December 1948, and was sent to the CIC course, Fort Holabird, Maryland, from which he was assigned to a U. S. military mission to Greece. During the Greek civil war 1949-50, he was advisor and training officer with Greek forces.

Upon his return to this country to Fort Jackson, South Carolina, he was next assigned as an 8th division battalion commander, regimental S-3, and finally acting aide-de-camp to Major General Harry J. Collins who was post and 8th division commander. Major and Mrs. Boyle and their two daughters are now residing on the Presidio.

Major VINCENT P. KELLEY has been with the G-3 section 7th Division in Korea for the past 16 months. His new assignment here is with the supply division, G-4 section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Major Kelley has been in the Army for 15 years and attended Infantry O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1942, following which he served 27 months in Africa and Italy with the 34th Division. His decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Purple Heart with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Bronze Star Medal, the Combat Infantry Badge and the Commendation ribbon.

A graduate of the associate advanced officer's Infantry course at Fort Benning, the major served as an R.O.T.C. instructor at Loyola High school, Los Angeles, for four years. During the period 1950-1952, he was on Okinawa with the 29th Infantry.

Major and Mrs. Kelley and their five-year-old daughter are residing in Mill Valley.

CWO HAROLD W. WEBBER, veteran of 25 years Army service, is now the assistant chief, miscellaneous services division, Quartermaster section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

For the past three and one-half years, he has been with the logistics division of MAAG, in Japan, and was awarded the Commendation ribbon for his service there.

Mr. Webber received his warrant in May 1942, and his World War II service was in the Pacific with the 7th Division, where he was assistant regimental supply officer, 17th Infantry, and later with the division G-4 office. He was decorated with the Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart.

Mr. and Mrs. Webber reside on the Presidio with their 15-year-old daughter and eight-year-old son.

Among the Most popular merchandise for sale at the Presidio Thrift Shop are items of baby equipment such as high chairs, cribs, baby beds and play pens. Mrs. Blanche Parsons, chairman of the Thrift Shop, shows an almost new high chair to Mrs. John E. Foster, whose husband, M/Sgt. Foster, is with the Presidio Food Service team. At the right, Pvt. Clayton Galbraith, Sixth Army Band, and Sfc. Edward F. Maguire, 9th AAA Gun battalion, examine some of the variety of sports equipment which is available at the shop. In its new location in Building T-92 on Montgomery Street since last May, Mrs. Parsons reports that more space and display area have increased Thrift Shop sales considerably. (Army photos by Pvt. ## Shoppers' Haven!

Many Bargains at Thrift Shop; New Location Boon to Program

By Gloria M. Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

Have you visited the Post Thrift shop in its new location yet?

If not, you are in for a surprise.

Your reporter, who had surveyed the operation in its former location, was able to see at a glance what the much needed space the shop formerly lacked, had done to up content, appearance and sales.

By comparison with the old spot, the new Thrift shop is huge, and is not hard pressed to display to advantage the myriad items offered for sale. It is located on Montgomery street, in Building T-92, where it has been since May.

Separated more or less into rooms by merchandise types, there is a section for rugs and major appliances, baby furniture, household furnishings, clothing, both military and civilian, and all other smaller items.

In the clothing realm, specifically, the shop has uniforms, men's and boys' clothing and children's clothing up to 12 years, but carries no women's clothing.

In the "pink and blue room" for little ones, there is a vast wealth of lovely baby furniture from cribs to baby beds to high chairs.

Then there are vacuum cleaners, radios, television sets, bicycles and tricycles, clocks, irons, typewriters, drapes and curtains, pictures, dishes, trunks, cameras, jewelry and almost anything else you can name.

For the bargain hunter, there is the now famous, "$1.10 table" where everything is — you guessed it—$1.10!

The shop is open Monday through Friday from 1100 to 1500, under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Parsons, Thrift shop chairman.

A project of the Presidio Woman's club, the shop is manned entirely by volunteer help, and each day from two to six women, both officer and NCO wives, give of their time to tag, display and sell the articles. Mrs. Milton B. Halsey is chairman of the cashiers and Mrs. John T. DeCamp of the writers.

"We are always in need of additional volunteers to help in this work," Mrs. Parsons explained, "and we would welcome anyone with some time to give. We especially would like to encourage NCO wives to assist us."

"All proceeds go to Presidio youth activities, which include the Girl Scouts and Brownies, the Boy Scouts and Cubs, the Teen Age club, the Nursery, and Nursery School, Vespers and the Little League baseball teams," Mrs. Parsons explained, "and this alone should encourage all to want to help."

The Thrift shop is open to anyone who wishes to buy there, and both military and civilian personnel employed on the Presidio may bring items to the shop to be sold. In each case, the seller sets the original price on the item.

return show . . .

So busy and so popular was Caricaturist Paul Swartz when he appeared at the Presidio Service club last July, that he will return to the club Monday night (26 September) so that more of you will have a chance to see "the other you," as interpreted by Swartz and his sketchboard. Furthermore, you get to keep the results. Doing up an amazing average of eight cartoon likenesses an hour, Mr. Swartz has toured European troop installations and hospitals, where his talents have brought many hours of pleasure to personnel stationed there.

Army Drops Charges Against 48 Accused Prisoners; Clear Six

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has dropped charges of enemy collaboration against 48 former Korea POWs. Six others have been officially cleared.

An army spokesman said these were among 112 cases reported last 20 July by the defense secretary's advisory committee on POWs as still under investigation.

In addition, two former prisoners were acquitted by army court martials and one convicted of collaboration.

news in books

New books at the Sixth Army Reference library, which may be borrowed for a two-week period, include the following:

"ATOMIC WEAPONS AND ARMIES," by F. O. Miksche. In this, the noted Czech military writer analyzes the complications of atomic weapons down to the divisional level.

"COMPTROLLERSHIP IN THE ARMED FORCES," by H. M. DeWitt. A summary and comparative evaluation of comptrollership in industry and the Department of Defense, with special reference to program management and management engineering as included in the functions of the Army Comptroller.

"KAGNEW," by Kimon Skordiles. The story of the Ethiopian fighters in the Korean conflict.

"THE COMPLETE AIRBRUSH BOOK," by S. R. Maurelle. Detailed, visual instruction course and reference manual, providing information on techniques, care of equipment and clear explanations of retouching projects.

"THE APPEALS OF COMMUNISM," by G. A. Almond. Based on an extensive program of interviewing hundreds of former American and European communists, this book attempts to give an insight into the motivations for their joining the party and the reasons they left it.

"THE DIGNITY OF MAN," by R. W. Davenport. A dynamic answer to the challenge of communism and the communist concept of man's role on earth. He concludes that communism cannot be combated solely by a materialistic approach, that the key to survival of the west lies in the spiritual concept of man.

"21 STAYED," by Virginia Pasley. The story of those American GIs who chose communist China—who they were and why they stayed, with background biographical material designed to give reasons why these prisoners of war elected to remain in china.

"CONTEMPORARY AFRICA: TRENDS AND ISSUES," by W. O. Brown. Illuminates some of the prevailing basic situations and analyzes selected developments and issues in African politics, economics, urbanization, Christianity and education.

The U.S. Army's first bayonet fencing manual was published in 1852 and written by Captain George McClellan who later became famed as a Civil War general.

High Priority

Armed Forces Benefits Bill Now Before Senate Group

Washington (AFPS)—The Survivors Benefit Bill, which vitally affects dependents of military personnel, is now pending before the Senate Finance Committee. It is expected to have high priority on the legislative calendar when Congress reconvenes in January.

The bill covers regulars, reserves, fleet reservists and retired personnel presently or hereafter on active duty.

Social security credits are carried forward to civilian life upon separation from the service. Payments to widows with children under 18 years of age are based on these credits. When children reach the age of 18, the widow's social security stops, but resumes when she reaches the age of 65.

A serviceman carries social security credits for payments to himself and spouse on reaching the age of 65. If there are no minor children, the widow would receive no social security payments until she reaches 65.

Some of the pertinent provisions of the bill as it now stands are:

1. Repeals present survivor benefit laws and wraps all into a one-package deal.

2. Requires a 2% deduction of basic pay up to maximum of $4200 for social security coverage. There will be no off-set against retainer or retired pay on reaching age 65, and commencement of social security payments, additional to retired pay.

3. Inactive retired and fleet reserve personnel are not affected by the bill, and the 2% social security checkage applies only while on active duty.

4. The $10,000 free insurance cancelled and merged with higher "death compensation" and indemnity rates from Veterans Administration, additional to social security payments where applicable.

5. Permits all persons on active duty to reinstate government insurance on premium paying basis.

6. Continues payments of 6-months' death gratuity in amounts of $800 minimum and $3,000 maximum.

7. Removes present line-of-duty determination for payment of 6-months' death gratuity. (Payments to be made immediately to beneficiary.)

8. Extends payment of 6-months' death gratuity to 120 days after separation from active duty.

9. Puts all deaths, whether peacetime or wartime, on common basis. Under present rules peacetime service-connected death payments are 20% lower than wartime rate.

10. Basic rates for death compensation and indemnity for survivors have been set at $112.00 per month, plus 12% of basic pay, thus recognizing rate or rank and length of service in total payment.

11. Provides full and immediate coverage for social security for all in service, whereas present law requires 6-quarters coverage.

12. Permits survivors now on death compensation rolls for service-connected deaths to retain what they are now getting or elect at any time to come under the new rates.

13. Those survivors presently receiving the $92.90 free indemnity may not receive other higher benefits unless they give up the present free indemnity payments. Or they can wait until the 10-year period runs out and they no longer receive the free indemnity, then elect to come under the new scale.

14. All widows without minor children, receiving death compensation for service-connected deaths ($69.60 peacetime, $87 for wartime) would jump to $112, plus 12% of their late-husband's basic pay, computed on present active duty pay scale of rate or rank and length of service at time of death.

court of honor . . .

A unique "first" will be registered on Friday, 30 September, when Presidio Boy Scout Troop No. 77, combines for the first time a Court of Honor for Explorer Scouts, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts. The time will be 1900 hours at Harmon Armory, and a total of 112 merit badges are slated to be presented. All interested persons may attend the program.

Army Air Arm Will Play Integral Part In Infantry Future

Ft. Benning, Ga. (AFPS)—"Flying tanks"—fighter planes operated as an integral part of army ground forces—will be a must in any future war. That is the belief of Brig. Gen. Earl I. Hutton, commandant of the Army Aviation School.

"Although the Army has already built 60-mph tanks that can travel on highways, it still needs a fighting vehicle that can move independently of accidents of terrain," Gen. Hutton said in a speech here.

Combat planes operated as part of ground units will drastically change infantry and armored tactics, Gen. Hutton prophesied. But, he said, they would "restore the ancient offensive capability of troops by giving the army a means of carrying its fight to the enemy."

Presidio Aero Club Seeks New Members; Plans Another Plane

The Presidio Aero Club announced this week that four memberships are now open for application of local enlisted and officer personnel. The club stressed that applicant need not possess aviator's license since part of the club's program consists of flight training.

As soon as four new members are accepted, the air-minded organization will negotiate the purchase of another plane. Further details concerning application for membership may be obtained from Col. William L. James, ext. 2809 and 5185 and Lt. Col. George W. Adair, extension 2811 and 5151.

The club now consists of eight members and one plane and it operates out of Crissy Field.

"Praise God," sing members of the Presidio Post Chapel Choir under the direction of Pvt. Gary Hall, choirmaster and assistant to the Post Chaplain, Major Henry C. Butt. More members, especially among the military personnel of the Presidio, are wanted to round out the chapel choir in preparation for the coming holiday season and the wealth of lovely choral music which abounds at that

Members Needed for Post Chapel Choir; Works from 'Messiah' Planned

Vital to any church service is its music.

With this in mind plans for a bigger and better Post Chapel choir were announced this week by Pvt. Gary Hall, choirmaster, as he issued a call for more persons to join the group.

"We would like especially to have more female voices,"

Pvt. Hall said, "and we hope to interest members of the WAC detachment in singing with us. No prior voice training or previous choir experience is necessary, and the choir is open to all interested personnel, officer, enlisted and civilian.

"In the transition from a young people's choir to an adult choir, the membership has been quite flexible, especially throughout the summer months, but with the advent of autumn and the coming holiday season, we hope to expand the choir and present some outstanding concert and religious music including works from 'The Messiah,'" the choirmaster explained.

Rehearsals are held each Sunday from 0900 to 1000 prior to Sunday services at which the choir furnishes the anthem and choral responses. Last Sunday, 20 persons were present in the choir loft, one of the largest groups in recent months. In November, choir rehearsals will be changed from Sunday to one evening a week.

Pvt. Hall, himself an accomplished vocalist, graduate of Occidental college, Los Angeles, with a background in choral conducting, had directed the Chapel choir for the past three months. He likewise serves as the soloist and as Chapel organist.

Personnel who are interested in becoming choir members may contact Pvt. Hall at the office of the Post Chaplain, Ext 2110, or come to the rehearsals any Sunday morning.

List Language School Requirements in New DA Circular 611-3

Procedures and requirements for enlisted men who wish to attend the Army Language School at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., have been published in DA Circular 611-3.

EM should forward their applications through channels.

The circular lists quotas for instruction in 28 languages, ranging from Arabic to Siamese. Volunteers must apply for training in two or more of these in order of preference.

An EM selected to attend the school must meet the following requirements:

Be a volunteer for both language training and any school training needed to qualify him as a specialist.

Be eligible for security clearance.

Also be a U.S. citizen, high school graduate or equivalent; have a minimum of 15 months of service remaining after graduation and a standard score of 100 or higher on Aptitude Area III.

The circular emphasized that Army Language School training is not a prerequisite for a linguist assignment. EM already fluent in one or more foreign languages may apply for such assignments under AR 615-200.

SF Red Cross Units Need Your Help For Disabled Vets

San Francisco Red Cross is appealing for volunteers to fill a variety of jobs at the Veterans' Administration Regional Clinic, 49 Fourth Street.

Over 200 disabled veterans from all parts of northern California come in daily for treatment. Red Cross volunteers help out in such ways as acting as receptionists, assisting with the health education program, and assembling and packing sterile equipment.

Many more volunteers—who can give a day a week or even two or three hours a week—are needed. Men volunteers can be used, too, especially retired men with business experience.

Only qualifications are good health and a desire to serve. Women volunteers should have uniforms, but can start without them.

People interested in helping out should call or come in to the San Francisco Chapter Red Cross, 1625 Van Ness, Prospect 6-1500. Arrangements for personal interviews will be made. An orientation and training class for volunteers, conducted by V.A. Clinic personnel, will begin early in October.

army daughters...

Husbands and "dates" will be invited to join the ladies when the local chapter of Army Daughters meets tomorrow, Saturday, 24 September at the Treasure Island Officers' Club. New arrivals in the area who are eligible for membership may obtain further information and make reservations for the cocktail and dinner party by calling Mrs. Lee V. Harris, PL 6-0328, or Mrs. E. F. Beuter, JO 7-0629.

Batteries of 'Nikes' Slated for Okinawa, Alaska Army Reveals

Washington (AFPS)—Batteries of Nike, the Army's supersonic anti-aircraft guided missile, will go to Alaska and Okinawa, the Army has disclosed.

These will be the first areas outside of the continental U.S. to receive Nike.

Target dates for the start of operations of the batteries were not announced. In Alaska, Nike will protect key installations near Anchorage and Fairbanks.

More than 100 Nike batteries now are developed around 17 key cities and strategic installations in the U. S.

Role of Honor

Presidio National Cemetery Stands As Monument to American West

Since its establishment in 1884, the 29-acre San Francisco National Cemetery on the Presidio has become something of a monument to the history of the American West.

Its honored dead include not only a number of prominent Americans but also many of the earliest settlers of the Presidio from the time of its founding in 1776.

Once located near the present parade ground, the cemetery was the burial place for converted Indians or neophytes as well as for Spanish and Mexican pioneers. Their remains were moved to the new National Cemetery after 1884.

With American occupation and possession, many persons closely associated with the history of the West were to be interred there.

Among them are Eugene D. Baker, a close friend of Abraham Lincoln and the first United States Senator from Oregon and California. Both Baker Beach and Ft. Baker are named in his honor.

Pauline Cushman, one of the most romantic figures associated with Presidio and Civil War history, is interred in the National Cemetery. An actress who turned Union spy, she attained the rank of brevet-major during the war between the states.

In the National Cemetery is also the grave of Gen. Frederick Funston, who captured Aguinaldo, leader of the Philippine Insurrection. Winner of the Medal of Honor for his Philippine exploits, General Funston also directed Army Relief measures during the San Francisco earthquake and fire of 1906.

Many victims of the 1906 catastrophe are also buried there.

Notable too are the graves of Gen. Hunter Liggett, commander of the First Army, American Expeditionary Forces in France during World War I, and Gen. William R. Shafter who led the AEF in Cuba during the Spanish-American embroilment.

In reply to suggestions that the cemetery be converted for other purposes, the Sixth Army Information Section recently made a study of the problem and prepared a report opposing the plan.

Aside from the historical and traditional value of the burial grounds, it was estimated that the cost of moving and reintering the 22,170 remains to another location would total more than $5,000,000.

School Segregation Ends On All But Two Military Posts

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's 1954 order ending racial segregation in schools on military posts by 1 Sept. has been carried out in all but two schools, the DOD has disclosed.

The exceptions are at Ft. Meade, Md., and the Pine Bluff Army Arsenal in Arkansas. Defense officials said there were no Negro children of school age at the Arkansas post.

In these two instances, Mr. Wilson granted extensions of the 1 Sept. deadline. A DOD spokesman said the action was considered consistent with the Supreme Court ruling giving officials a reasonable time in which to abolish segregation.

Local school boards at Ft. Meade and Pine Bluff have long-term leases on military property and thus far have refused to end segregation. Defense officials said there are no legal grounds for breaking the leases.

Negotiations will be continued with Maryland and Arkansas officials, the DOD said.

The DOD said that previously segregated schools on 12 southern posts would open in September on an integrated basis.

Ord Scores First Round Win In All-Army Baseball

The defending champion Fort Ord Warriors representing Sixth Army, jumped right back on the victory trail this week when they defeated the US Army Europe team, two to nothing in the fourth annual All-Army Baseball Tournament at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Fort Ord jumped to an early lead as shortstop Bob Lillis, Dodger, chattel singled, advanced when Jerry Collins was hit by pitcher Joe Lewis and scored on ex-Buffalo Bison Den Walter's single.

Sixth Army's second and final tally was a three hundred and fifty foot homer over the left field fence by Jerry Collins of the Denver Bears. Winning hurler, Larry LaBounty, struck out eight and allowed but three hits.

The equally powerful Fort McPherson team representing Third Army, scored an impressive early win when they blasted out nineteen hits to overwhelm the First Army entry, Fort Devens, Mass., 13-0. Taylor Phillips of McPherson, formerly of the Atlanta Crackers, whiffed 10 batters and allowed but two singles in posting the win.

The double elimination tournament was delayed one day in starting due to Hurricane Ione's wind and rain. Fort Ord won the All-Army title last year along with the inter-service crown. There will be no inter-service tournament played this year.

Other opening games in the double-elimination tourney saw the Eighth Army champions, representing the Far East, shut out the host, Fort Belvoir squad, 2-0. Charley Gildewell, $20,000 Chicago White Sox bonus pitcher, hurled the win.

The Fourth Army team from Fort Hood, Texas, clipped the Fort Riley, Kansas, club, 4-2.

flyers win

Featuring two long touchdown runs, the Hamilton Air Force Base rolled over the California Ramblers, 38-6, last Saturday at Hamilton. Odell Holmes scampered 70 yards for one touchdown and Jess Holliday galloped 67 yards for another to pace the Flyers' attack.

The Presidio Red Raiders meet the California Ramblers on 5 November in Berkeley in a contest that will be played just prior to the University of California vs. University of Washington game.

First Storm Aids Inland Deer Hunt

Arrival of north California's first fall storm has brightened prospects considerably for the inland deer season, which opens Saturday, September 24, in all of the state not included in the earlier coastal season.

Department of Fish and Game wardens and other field men report deer in good numbers in most areas. The added moisture is expected to improve hunting conditions.

The storm also helped reduce the extreme fire hazard situation which had existed over the past few weeks, the Department notes.

However, strict observance of all fire precautions will still be insisted upon throughout the State. Already two hunters in the September 10-19 inland archery season have paid $500 fines for failure to properly extinguish a campfire.

Closing date for this year's six-week regular deer season is October 30, except in Inyo and Mono counties, where the season will end October 23.

Bag and possession limit for the inland season is one buck in all of the State except Del Norte, Humboldt, Trinity, Glenn, and parts of Siskiyou, Shasta, Tehama, the northwest tip of Butte, and Colusa County within the Mendocino National Forest, where two bucks are allowed.

All bucks must be forked horn or better, except in Modoc, Lassen, and eastern Siskiyou and Shasta counties, where three points are required.

The Ft. Lewis, Wash., boxing team may have a chaplain traveling with it next winter. He's Chaplain (Lt.) John Porter, runner-up for the 1951 Georgia Golden Gloves championship.

Casaba Stars Needed For Cage Quintet

"If we can find two or three more good basketball players to add to the present squad, we should have the greatest team in the history of the Presidio." Coach Hal Fischer was the speaker as the second week of casaba practice ended yesterday at the Letterman Army Hospital Gymnasium.

So far the starting five shape up something like this, Mike O'Neill and Bill Davis at the forwards. Mike was the leading scorer in the BAAF league last season with the Red Raiders. Rangy Don Lofgran at the center post. Don was voted the most valuable player in the nation in 1949 while playing with the University of San Francisco. The guards will be Lt. Bob Moran of the 56th MRU and Lt. Bob Harbertson of Company A of the 505th MP's. Other Casaba hopefuls are Herb Slavitt, from last year's Raider squad, Jerry Davis, Chuck Howard and John Milvey.

A full thirty game schedule has been lined up for the Red Raiders plus scrimmages against leading teams in the Bay Area. The official schedule will be released soon and will appear in the Star-Presidian.

University of Oklahoma tackle Steve Champlin played for Ft. Sill, Okla., last year.

Raiders Play Chico Tomorrow Night

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Sometime this morning Raider players and coaches will pile onto an Army bus that will take them the 185 miles to Chico, where tomorrow night the Red Raiders get their first taste of college competition when they meet the Chico State College grid squad.

As tomorrow night's game is played under college limited substitution rules, the Raider players will be called on to play offensive and defensive. Army football is played under professional rules or the two platoon system.

Coach McInerney starting eleven barring last minute changes will be Dick Piggott LE, Frank McDonnell LT, Duke Holmes LG, John Snyder C, Sam DeOrian RG, Frank Wilson RT, and Jerry Nims RE.

The backfield will be Morris Maytubby QB, Jim Guimarin LH, Ed Colarossi RH, and Bobby Ratliff FB. Also due to see plenty of action are Doug Weaver and Rex Dunn in the middle of the line, and Williams and Hane at the ends. Edwards, Dodson, Macias and Storey will be other Raider backs seeing action.

Raiders not making the trip due to injuries are Burt Terrell and Bill

Pritchard, tackles, out with knee injuries, and Ron Loewen out with a possible concussion. Injured in the Navy Shipyard contest were right guard Joe Devereux, and halfback Jim Kozlowski out for the season with a broken knee.

Up at Chico State, Coach Gus Manolis hopes to combine the passing of Don Ray and the sharp running of Ernie Matlock with a sturdy defense to defeat the Red Raiders. Coach Manolis will put two speedsters at the halfback spots — Mike Adams and Bob Gloyd — to complete his backfield.

The Chico line consists of Mose Mastelotto and Dave Gobbato, ends; Gene Van der Leun and Pete Sieber, tackles; Willie Miguez and Fred George, guards; and Bill Bishop, center.

Hunters wishing advance reservations on any of the 13 public waterfowl shooting areas operated by the Department of Fish and Game must have their applications in the Sacramento headquarters two weeks in advance of the selected shooting date, the Department reminded.

Thus if a hunter wanted to shoot on 15 October, opening day, his application should be received at the 926 J Street, Sacramento, office of the Department by 30 September.

Army, Marine Shooters Win Top Team Laurels

Camp Perry, Ohio (AFPS)—Crack army and marine corps shots won the top team pistol and rifle championships as the "world series" of marksmanship ended after a three-week session here.

Final results of the national matches gave army sharpshooters 18 trophies in individual and team events and the marines 12.

The Army's four-man "blue" team won the national trophy pistol team championship with a record-breaking score of 1,137 out of a possible 1,200 points. The old mark of 1,116 points was set by a marine squad in 1952.

Members of the winning team were Lt. Col. William Hancock, Ft. Bliss, Tex.; Maj. Lloyd Hummert, Camp Chaffee, Ark.; 1st Lt. David Miller, Ft. Benning, Ga.; and Sgt. William Blankenship, Ft. Jay, N. Y.

A six-man squad, representing the eastern division of the Marine Corps, shot a 1,388 out of a possible 1,500 points to walk off with the national trophy rifle team crown. This marks the third consecutive year the marines have won the title.

Team members were Capt. Henry Witkowski, Quantico, Va.; Capt. George Armitage, MCSC, Albany, Ga.; M/Sgt. Edwin Hayes, Parris Island, S. C.; Sgt. Frank Wigmore, Parris Island; M/Sgt. Charles Castaneda, NATTC, Jacksonville, Fla.; and T/Sgt. Siegfried Karmrau, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Maj. Ben Curtis, USAREUR, registered a record 290 points out of a possible 300 to become the first man since 1921 to repeat as the national trophy individual pistol champion. Maj. Curtis won the championship first in 1952.

Other winners: (rifle),

Enlisted men's trophy team match—Marine "blue" team: 1st Lt. Charles Folsom, Parris Island; Capt. Robert Lowe, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic; S/Sgt. William Rose, Camp Lejeune, N. C.; M/Sgt. Roscoe Rentze, Camp Pendleton, Calif.; 1st Lt. Norman Fournier, Parris Island; and S/Sgt. Michael Piciorforte, Quantico, Va.

Rumbold trophy team match—Marine "blue" team.

Infantry trophy match—Cpl. Arthur DeLong, Parris Island; T/Sgt. Paul Dudash, Norfolk, Va.; Cpl. Robert Reib, Camp Pendleton; T/Sgt. William Johnston, 29 Palms, Calif.; S/Sgt. Wayne Chapman, Camp Pendleton; and Sgt. Marion Taylor, 29 Palms.

Rear Adm. Morton C. Mumma, USN (ret.), president of the National Rifle Assn., announced that the 1956 national matches will be held here Aug. 17-Sept. 8.

King Pins Top Pack In Nat'l League

The powerful King Pins topped the first week of play in the National Bowling League with a perfect four and zero mark. Paced by ace roller Green's 221 high game the powerful King Pins took the lead after one week of action in the National Bowling League. Green also took the high individual series for the week with a sizzling 572.

Right on their heel are the Hilltoppers and Masonites with identical three and one records for the second place in league standing. The Hilltoppers were paced by Leonard's 181 roll while Vida sparked the Masonites with a fine 201 roll.

High game team with handicap was captured by the seventh place Soltechs who smashed 977 pins in league competition. High series team with handicap was the front running King Pins with a grand total of 2819 pins blasted. The Hilltoppers were second with 2767 pins downed and the Hooks grabbed third by demolishing 2730 wooden pins.

Sixth Army Signal continues to lead the Pacific League with a great 52-20 record. Adair leads the signalers with a sizzling 212 high game so far this season. Second place is in the hands of the Post Dispensary with a 49-23 mark. DePolito's 225 continues to be the top mark for the medics.

Fourteen Units In Intra-Mural Volleyball Play

A sign-up of fourteen unit volleyball teams in the just starting fall league play promised to make this years intra-mural round ball action the hottest in many years.

The entries will be divided into two leagues, the American and the National. Winners from each league will play a three-game playoff with the winner being crowned Post champion for 1955.

The loop got under way last Tuesday night and will continue until 12 October. At this time an All-Star team will be chosen to represent the Presidio in the Sixth Army tournament, 24-28 October at Fort Ord. The All-Army tournament will also be held at Fort Ord 7-12 November.

Units signed up for action in the fall league include Sixteenth Base Post Office Co., Headquarters Company Station Complement, Officers' Club, Headquarters 740th, 752nd AAA, Company A, 505th MP's Headquarters Sixth Army, Honor Guard, MRU, 21st Engineers, Sixth Army Medical Lab, B Battery 740th, and the EOD Scavengers (548 Ord).

Egg taking at the Mt. Shasta hatchery will continue to the end of January, the Department of Fish and Game announced. Thus far more than five million rainbow trout eggs have been taken for hatchery purposes.

ALAMEDA right half O'Donnell is being swarmed under by an alert Presidio Red Raider defense. Number 44 is Raider end Dick Piggott who played an outstanding game last Saturday as the Raiders won their second straight victory of the current season over Alameda 16-7. Tomorrow night the Presidio gridders travel to Chico to engage Chico State College in quest of their third win in the 1955 football parade.

Sink Navy

Raiders Smash Hellcats For Second Win, 16-7

Grabbing a nine-point lead in the first quarter and adding seven more in the second, the Red Raiders sank the Alameda Naval Hellcats, 16-7 last Saturday on the Fort Scott field.

Raider coach Larry McInerney fielded an alert Raider squad that took advantage of the breaks by playing heads up ball to win a well deserved team victory.

Presidio center Frank McDonnell kicked off to Alameda and two plays later Morris Maytubby intercepted a partially blocked pass on the Alameda 20. Fullback Ratliff then cracked to the ten and Ed Colarossi plunged to the four. A fumble on the next play saw Alameda recover and take over on their two-yard line.

Alameda fumbled on their first running play and Raider end Jerry Nims fell on the elusive pigskin for a touch back and a big two points. Alameda then kicked off from their twenty and Raider fullback Bobby Ratliff rolled to the Alameda 33 before being downed.

Left half Jim Guimarin rambled 21 yards around left end on the first play to the Hellcat 12. Maytubby quarterback sneaked to the four. After two plays failed to gain Maytubby pitched out to fullback Ratliff who bulled his way over for the first Raider touchdown. Ratliff converted with Maytubby holding and the Raiders took a 9-0 lead.

Midway in the second quarter Raider linesman Doug Weaver recovered a Hellcat fumble on the Presidio 46 and the Raiders took over. Jim Guimarin, left half, sprinted 20 yards around left end to the Alameda 34. With a third and eight situation, Raider quarterback Maytubby fired a 20-yard pass to right end Nims who was downed on the 12. Jim Guimarin then sped around right end for the second Raider TD of the game. Bobby Ratliff converted with Maytubby holding to extend the Presidio lead to 16-0 as the first half ended.

After a scoreless third quarter the Naval Hellcats started on their 14-yard stripe and 18 plays later Griffin sneaked over from the one-foot line for the only Naval score of the contest. Guard Van Sickle converted with Bagnall holding and the Presidio led 16-7. Neither side was able to gain in the remaining few minutes and the gun sounded with the Raiders winning their second straight victory 16-7.

flag football

Intra-mural flag football action begins next week with eight unit teams signed up and ready to play ball. The games will be played on the Presidio PX field and at Fort Scott after duty hours. Teams entered in the new league are the EOD Scavengers, Headquarters Company Station Complement, Headquarters Company 9th AAA, Honor Guard, 521st Engineers, 102nd MRU, Headquarters Company 740th and the Hilltoppers from Fort Scott.

smart trout

A Massachusetts strain of brown trout introduced as catchables in Rush Creek, Mono County, is proving far easier to catch than the California strain, Department of Fish and Game investigations show.

The eastern strain yielded catches of 35 per cent during the first two weeks of stocking, as compared to 5 to 10 per cent yields for the California strain.

Studies still are in a preliminary stage. Objectives are to determine which strains are best suited to California conditions.

Fort Ord Spurts for 32-19 Win

Roaring back from a 19-17 tie the powerful Fort Ord Warriors pushed over two last minute touchdowns to defeat the Camp Carson Mountaineers 32-19 last Saturday in Oakland.

Rudy Bukich, Los Angeles Rams quarterback, passed six yards to Stan Wacholtz, 49ers, and Gerald Perry, ex-Detroit Lions tackle, converted for the first of these late goals. A few minutes later Eukich faded back to pass, found no receiver and raced 62 yards for another score.

Both teams scored in the first period—Bukich on a sixteen yard quarterback sneak at the tail end of seventy yard drive, and Carson scored when Tony Curcillo, Ohio State, plunged for two yards. Bukich added an Ord six pointer on a forty-one yard pass play to Paul Cameron, ex-UCLA All-American.

In the third period, Cameron took Curcillo's punt and went sixty yards for an Ord tally. Carson then ripped off two tallies to knot the score. Don Holzbach, Indiana passed five yards to Curcillo who went over. Then Ron Bean, Brigham Young, plunged over from a yard out and Bean converted.

Fort Ord had an edge in the statistics, rushing 339 to 276 yards, and passing 172 to 120 yards.

temp in army

Jim Temp, a former Wisconsin end, and number two draft choice of the National Football League's Green Bay Packers, left the squad this week to report to the Army at Fort Eustis, Va. Temp, who has been outstanding in exhibition play with the Packers, is a second lieutenant in the Transportation Corps.

CURVE ball artist Roger Collins was number one man on the Presidio Red Raider mound staff this past season. Coach Hal Fischer's diamond crew took first place in the BAAF league and finished second in the recent Sixth Army tourney.

$10 to $750 and Up

Civilian Incentive Awards Committee Pays Cold Cash for Constructive Ideas

Got an idea?

If so, put it down on Employee Suggestion Form 1045 and drop it in an "out" basket with the envelope addressed to the Local Incentive Awards Committee, Civilian Personnel Division, Building 36.

It might get you anywhere from $10 to $750 in return.

What the Incentive Awards Committee wants are suggestions. Suggestions, they define as "constructive ideas designed to accomplish a job better, faster or cheaper."

The idea doesn't have to be original just as long as it is not already in use at the Presidio.

Such suggestions can be and are worth money — both to the civilian employee and the committee. Because they may save government materials or property, promote health, increase safety or improve morale.

Some award winners have already seen their brainchildren earn them cold cash.

Among recent winners are Mr. Delbert O. Tanner, Post Signal, whose twin suggestions brought him a total of $90. Mr. Norman F. Peters, Post Ordnance came up with two ideas which earned $25 apiece.

Ten-dollar awards recently went to Mrs. Alice C. Fratessa, Machine Records Unit; Mr. Rene G. Borde, and Miss Mildred C. Smith, both of Post Signal.

At its last meeting, the Incentive Awards Committee approved prizes totalling $345, according to J. N. McConaha, chief, civilian Personnel Division.

The incentive awards program is open to all civilian employees. The amount of the prize is determined on the basis of the value of the suggestion in terms of savings or benefits to the Government.

of time

As the state shifts from daylight saving to standard time Sunday, Californians will settle accounts with the Governor for the hour lost last summer. Clocks will be set back one hour at 0200 Sunday, 25 September, allowing for either a long Saturday night or a 25-hour Sunday, depending on the individual's philosophy.

Heavy Milestone

The 60,000,000th measurement ton of cargo since 1 January, 1942, passed through the San Francisco Port of Embarkation this month. The milestone was marked in an informal ceremony at Pier 5, Oakland Army Base, Cargo Center of the port.

Said Brig. Gen. W. J. Deyo, Jr., port commander, "This milestone . . . represents the close teamwork between military and civilian transportation agencies that constitutes the national defense transportation system."

Small Army!

Sixth Army Engineer's Exec. Returns To Temporary Command of Old Unit

Old Engineer units never die, they just change their numbers.

That's what Colonel Arthur M. Jacoby, Sixth Army Engineer executive officer, must have thought when he returned to Fort Lewis temporarily to command the 116th Engineer Combat Group.

Back in 1952, when the 1936 West Pointer headed the same Engineer organization here as a lieutenant colonel, it was known as the 354th.

This is Col. Jacoby's third tour of Fort Lewis duty. In 1940 he served on the post with the 2nd Infantry Division.

Originally from Orlando, Fla., the new Group commander earned a Master's Degree in Civil Engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1939. In World War II, he helped build the Alcan Highway and served in Europe.

Among his post-war assignments were the U. S. Army Mission to Ecuador, the Office of the Chief of Engineers in Washington, D. C., and Korea. He is credited with a total of 64 months overseas service.

Col. Jacoby is scheduled to command the 116th until the arrival of Col. Walter J. Wells in about 60

Carelessness Scored!

Set National Fire Prevention Week Program for Presidio, Sub-Posts

The President of the United States has proclaimed the week of October the 9th as National Fire Prevention Week.

Prevention of fires requires just a little thinking—not too much. For example it doesn't require too much thought to be sure that match is out cold before you discard it or that a burning cigarette is never carelessly discarded. Yet, for acts of carelessness and lack of thought over one million fires are reported each year and millions of dollars of property is destroyed.

The tragic toll of over 11,000 American lives is a price we pay for our heedlessness. One of these persons could be you or a member of your family. Some of the property destroyed by fires could be yours.

During Fire Prevention Week your attention is focused on these enormous losses caused by fires, fires that are needless and senseless because they never should have happened in the first place.

The Presidio Fire Department will observe Fire Prevention Week with timely talks on fire safety, displays of typical fire hazards and the piece de resistance will be free rides on the big shiny red fire trucks for all children at the Presidio and sub-posts.

Saturday, the 15th of October, all morning, children will be guests of the Presidio Fire Department. They will be recipients of souvenir fireman's helmets, free fire prevention comic books, free candy and the treat of a lifetime . . . free rides on fire apparatus.

Here are a few simple rules that will prevent fires: 1) Be careful not to permit trash to accumulate. 2) Trash is a prolific fire cause. 3) Make sure all smoking material is safely out before discarding it. 4) Replace frayed wiring and don't use defective electrical appliances before they are properly repaired. 5) Don't leave pressing irons, toasters, hot plates on, unattended, and use only non-flammable cleaning fluids.

REMEMBER, MOST FIRES ARE PREVENTABLE.

bullish trend!

A strong bullish trend was evident in the Quartermaster Stock Market, this week. Experts said the trend was directly traceable to a surprise announcement by Department of the Army that hit the uniform commodity stocks like a bombshell and forced an active buyers' market in pink and green chip stocks, Shade 51 Blouse and Shade 54 Trousers. End-of-week-trading was expected to find shares in extremely short shift, as some of the bigger bulls had stormed the market earlier. However, market pundits said a leveling off could be expected by the first of October.

(Reference DA Message No. DA348826: Effective 1 Oct. 55 all Officers and Warrant Officers are required to wear shade 51 blouse and shade 54 trousers (pink and green) for all general duty wear except when in troop formations and when performing duty in the field under conditions requiring wear of prescribed field clothing. Officers and Warrant Officers may wear the OD shade 33 uniform when in formation with troops only—AMNPR—ADJ.)

VA Gives Helpful Hints for Potential GI Bill Scholars

Veterans Administration has given three helpful tips to the thousands of veterans planning to start training this fall under the Korean GI Bill.

First, VA said, GI application forms should be filled out fully and completely. An incomplete application can only cause delay, because VA will have to write to the veteran for the missing information.

Second, veterans should be sure they enclose a photostat or certified copy of their service separation paper, along with their completed application form. Without this paper, VA will be unable to act promptly on the application.

Third, applications should be sent to the veteran's nearest VA regional office, and not to VA headquarters in Washington, D. C. Any applications received in Washington merely will have to be referred to the appropriate regional office—a time-consuming process.

VA said it expects two-thirds of a million veterans to be in training this fall under the Korean GI Bill.

—Lt. (jg.) D. G. Colwell, USSS Wahoo (SS 565) Freedoms Foundation 1954 Honor Medal Winner

When our forefathers wrote the Declaration of Independence "freedom" was an important word—just as it is today.

They assumed the responsibility for winning and keeping their freedom.

Lt. Colwell had the same idea when he penned his award winning letter to the Freedoms Foundation in 1954. In simple language he explained our responsibilities to America and how we accept them under a system of self-government.

Now it's your turn. Enter the new 1955 letter awards program and explain your stake in the American way.

The top cash award for the best letter is $1,000. Armed forces personnel on active duty are eligible to enter the contest. Reservists and national guardsmen on active duty are also eligible. There is no limit to the letters you may submit.

Send your letter of no more than 500 words to Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa. All letters must be received by Nov. 11, 1955. Letters submitted after that date will be considered for next year's awards. (AFPS)

Australia-bound, Lt. Gen. Henry Wells, Chief of Staff, Australian Army, visited the Presidio this week on the final round of his American tour. Accompanied by Lt. Gen. Robert Young, Commanding General Sixth Army, General Wells was accorded an honor guard at the Presidio. General Wells had participated in a meeting of the British Chiefs of Staff in London, England, then made a survey of American military installations. While in the United States the Aussie Chief of Staff also attended a meeting of the Anzus Pact nations. With General Wells and General Young on the reviewing platform is Melville H. Marshall, Australian Consul General in San Francisco.

Overseas Rotation!

New Gyroscope Moves Slated; Early Application Encouraged

Local personnel eager to sign up for service with one of the ten units slated by the Army for Operation Gyroscope rotation overseas in spring and summer 1956, were urged this week by Captain John Mason, post unit personnel officer to get their transfer bids in early in order to enhance chances for Gyroscope unit service.

Many local applications for earlier Gyroscope transfers to the 3rd Armored Division and the 11th Airborne Divisions were turned down for the main reason that by the time these applications were made most of the rotating divisions' rosters were already filled.

If recruitment programs for transfer to the ten new Gyroscope units, all of which are battalion size, are the same as those which were employed for the recent division-sized organizations, then all interested military personnel should be ready to make application as soon as the "Go Ahead" signal is given by the rotating units.

In the past, the period of wide-open recruitment resulted in the early filling of most unit rosters except for a few critical MOS and grade listings, thus greatly reducing a late applicant's chances for transfer approval.

To be eligible for Gyroscope service, personnel must either have a minimum of three years' service remaining or else be willing to sign a Certificate of Intention to take a discharge and re-up for a minimum of three years.

The power of approval of individual transfers is vested primarily with the "gaining" unit and the power of administrative disapproval is at no lower level than the major command, which is Sixth Army in the case of local personnel.

For Operation Gyroscope, the post unit personnel office serves primarily as a forwarding unit for local applicants and is consequently interested basically in getting the applications "on the road."

Processing of these transfer applications usually takes from three to five weeks. When applications are disapproved, the individual is notified of the reasons for the disapproval. (Please turn to page 4)

reserve first—

Washington (AFPS) — The first group of six-month trainees who enlisted in the Army reserve under the new reserve law will start their active duty training Oct. 3.

The Army said all men who enlisted in this program before Sept. 23 will be included in the first cycle unless granted a delay for special reasons.

As previously announced, the volunteers will receive their basic training at Ft. Ord, Calif.; Ft. Jackson, S. C.; Camp Chaffee, Ark.; Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.; and possibly Ft. Bliss, Tex., and Ft. Knox, Ky.

Army Association Will Hear Brucker, Taylor at Meeting

Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker and General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, are to be the principal speakers at the annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army at Fort Benning, Georgia, on 21 and 22 October, 1955.

Theme of the meeting, "The Army Team," will be stressed by all speakers and during the panel discussion conducted by key officers from the General Staff, the technical services, and CONARC.

Mr. Brucker will make the principal address at the dinner on the evening of 21 October, and General Taylor will speak on the morning of the 22d, following the panel discussion.

On the afternoon of the 21st, members will see demonstrations and displays of new and experimental Army equipment and weapons. This part of the show will also stress the theme of the meeting. Among its highlights are a demonstration by the Army Aviation Center and a demonstration of infantry and armor in an attack to be staged by the Infantry School.

It is expected that a thousand or more officer-members of the Association will attend. Registration is set for the morning of Friday, 21 October.

Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration, is chairman of the committee planning the meeting. Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Commandant of The Infantry Center, is host.

system change—

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has begun putting its new personnel management system into effect in the Army Reserve. The change-over will be completed by Feb. 29, 1956.

The new system involves the separation of NCOs from specialists among enlisted personnel in organized units.

It also changes current records to the consolidated records system for mobilization designees and members of organized units.

Re-Up Incentive!

Army Offers School Choice For New Three-Year Hitches

With high hopes that the long sought answer to lagging enlistments and reenlistments has been found, the Army this week announced that all personnel enlisting or re-upping for three years or longer may select and attend any service school which is currently open and for which they can fulfill the prerequisites.

The new enlistment - Army school tie-up is applicable worldwide to all qualified "in service" men and women including Regular Army enlistees, inductees and Army reserve component personnel on active duty and individuals who enlist or re-enlist within 90 days from the date of discharge or relief from active duty.

Personnel signing up for new hitches under this program may apply for any of the courses in the Current Fiscal Year Detailed Schedule of Classes, Army Schools which is published by the Commanding General, Continental Army Command.

To be eligible for the new service school re-up program, personnel must first be fully qualified to enlist or re-enlist under the provisions of AR 615-120.

The prerequisites contained in the Army School catalogue (DA Pamphlet 20-21) must be either fulfilled or the applicant must have been granted a waiver of certain of the prerequisites as prescribed in AR 611-215.

It has also been emphasized that an individual's retention in the school which he selects is dependent upon the person's classroom progress. Continued attendance at some of the service schools would be contingent upon security clearance.

Married personnel are reminded that current joint travel regulations prohibit the transportation of dependents and the shipment

help! help!—

The openings for GS-2's and GS-3's on the Presidio, continues to plague operations in several of the most interesting sections. Shortages of skilled workers in these fascinating fields may be filled by anyone who can pass the typing and shorthand tests required by the Civil Service Commission. Starting salaries have only recently been increased to $3,175 for stenographers and $2,960 and $3,175 for typists, and anyone knowing of outside personnel who might be interested in applying for these jobs is asked to contact them immediately, as the need is acute.

High Honors!

Outstanding Male Employees Sought In Annual Fleming Awards Competition

Ten outstanding male government employees will be selected in the 1955 Arthur S. Fleming Awards competition, according to Mr. J. N. McConaha, chief, Civilian Personnel Division.

Nominations in triplicate should be sent to the Civilian Personnel Division, Building 36 from where they will be forwarded by 15 October to the Army Incentive Awards Board, Office, Secretary of the Army in Washington, D. C.

Of the 10 selections, five awards will be given to outstanding men in scientific and technical fields and five to those in administrative and executive positions.

Candidates will be considered on the basis of either an unusual specific accomplishment, such as an economy idea, or in terms of outstanding general performance.

Purposes of the Fleming Awards program are to recognize outstanding performances by young men in Federal employ, to publicize the Federal service and attract new and talented personnel to available opportunities in government work.

Any civilian, male employee of the United States Government under 40 on 1 January, 1956 is eligible. Nominations should be accompanied by a personal data sheet, including name, title, and grade, organizational location, residence address, marital status, wife's and children's names and ages, educational background and outside activities.

Specific examples of accomplishments should be included in the nomination applications. They should be limited to factual materials as far as possible. Three type-written pages is considered sufficient.

Each award winner will receive a plaque and a gold distinguished service key.

an advance . . .

Beginning tomorrow (1 October) the Post Nursery will accept children up to 10 years of age for care at their facility. Hours and rates will remain the same, and service will be available Tuesday and Thursday nights for bingo, Saturdays until 0100 and Sunday during church hours, as always.

Date of Issue For New Green Uniform Will Be Delayed

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has pushed back 13 months the date on which it will start issuing its new green uniform as part of the initial clothing allowance for enlisted personnel.

The new date is Oct. 1, 1957, instead of Sept. 1, 1956, as previously scheduled. EM coming into the Army after that time will receive one green uniform and one of the present OD, until OD stocks are depleted.

The first change in uniform regulations takes effect Oct. 1, 1955. After that date officers must wear pinks and greens as the winter uniform except when in troop formation or on duty in the field.

Authorization to wear Army green will be moved back only one month. It will now be permitted for optional off-duty wear beginning Oct. 1, 1956, for both officers and EM.

Effective Oct. 1, 1957, the green uniform will be the required winter service uniform for officers. After that date, neither the pinks and greens nor the OD will be worn by officers at any time.

After the same date officers must wear the Army blue uniform for off-duty occasions. EM will be authorized to wear Army green on an optional basis for general duty, and either Army green or Army blue while off-duty.

Exchange Employee Honored With Award Of Gold 10-Year Pin

Bay Area career employee, Mrs. Laura E. Crandall, was presented a gold pin this week by Col. Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, for 10 years' service in the local exchange system.

Beginning her PX career in 1942, Mrs. Crandall worked first for a period of five years at the Presidio Main Exchange as a sales clerk and later as an assistant manager.

In 1949 she returned to the exchange service here where she currently holds the position of office clerk at the Letterman Exchange. Also present at the ceremony honoring Mrs. Crandall's ten years' service was Mr. George C. Elliot, general manager of Bay Area Exchange.

officers recently assigned

Colonel ROBERT O. STONE has come to Headquarters Sixth Army from approximately 26 months in the Far East. While there he served a year in Korea with the G-4 Section of 8th Army, and 16 months with 9th Corps, Japan, the past six months as its G-1.

He is now assigned to the Inspector General Section of the headquarters here.

Entering the Army in 1940, Colonel Stone went to the European theater during World War II, where for three years he commanded an antiaircraft Artillery battalion. He has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal, the Legion of Merit and the Commendation ribbon with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Graduate of the Command and General Staff college and the Artillery school, this is the colonel's second tour on the Presidio, having served with the G-4 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army during a portion of 1951-52. His college was Oregon State, class of 1926.

Colonel Stone's wife, daughter and son will join him in San Francisco in the near future.

Lt. Colonel ED V. HENDREN, Jr., has assumed the duties of executive officer, Reserve components division, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, following three years of service in Europe as executive officer, personnel branch, AG division, Headquarters U. S. Army, Europe.

Veteran of 18 years of Army service, Colonel Hendren was with the cadre of the 80th Division early in his career and was appointed a warrant officer while there. In 1943 he was graduated from the AG O.C.S. at Fort Washington, Maryland. Later he attended the advanced AG course at Fort Lee, Virginia.

The following year, the colonel went to the Pacific theater with Headquarters XI Corps, and served in New Guinea, Netherlands East Indies, Leyte, Luzon, and finally, on 2 September 1945, entered Japan with the initial troops following V-J Day. He remained there until 30 November 1946, and was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for this theater service.

Colonel and Mrs. Hendren are the parents of four children, two daughters, 12 and four years who are with them here, and two sons, 17 and 14, who are attending Hampden DuBose Academy at Zellwood, Florida.

Lt. Colonel ROY W. MARCY has joined the staff of the G-2 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. He has been in the Army for a total of 15 years.

In Germany for the past three years, Colonel Marcy was first a battalion commander with the 1st Battalion, 102nd Infantry, Augsburg, for 16 months, followed by two months as post commander, Augsburg sub-area, and finally, 18 months as chief of staff, Southern Area command, Munich, Germany.

Arriving at Schofield Barracks the week following Pearl Harbor, the colonel joined the 21st Infantry, 24th Division, and remained with them throughout the war as company commander, battalion commander and regimental executive officer, serving in Hawaii, Australia, New Guinea and the Philippines. He was decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal and the Combat Infantry Badge.

Graduate of the Infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia; advanced Armored school, Fort Knox, Kentucky and the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Colonel Marcy now resides in Albany with his wife, daughter, 14, and son, 18 now a student at the University of California.

Lt. Colonel ROSS BARR is newly assigned to the G-2 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army.

With 16 years of active Army duty service, Colonel Barr has just completed a tour in Korea which included eight months with the 9th Corps and the past eight months with KMAC.

The colonel has attended the Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and its special weapons school, and the Infantry advanced course, Fort Benning, Georgia. During World War II, he spent a total of four years on a military training mission to the Republic of Colombia.

Colonel and Mrs. Barr and their son now reside in San Rafael.

Captain MARGARET E. RADKE has been assigned duties of recruiting in Sixth Army area for the Army Medical Specialist corps, which embraces dieticians and physical and occupational therapists. She is attached to the Medical section of Headquarters Sixth Army.

Her most recent assignment has been dietician at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., where she has been for the past 20 months. Prior to that she was in the Far East for three years, serving the first two with the 279th General hospital, Japan, and the last year in Tokyo Army hospital where she cared for many of the repatriated POW's.

Entering the service 11 years ago, Captain Radke was in the Philippines with the 311th General hospital from March 1945 to June 1946.

The captain received her B.A. from the University of North Dakota and took her dietetic internship at St. Mary's hospital, Rochester, Minnesota. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Radke, reside in Walhalla, North Dakota.

Captain ORAN C. HAAS, on Eniwetok for the past eight months, is the new operations officer, Provost Marshal section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Serving in this area with the 749th MP battalion, mobile task force with the 9th Service Command, as well as in North Africa during World War II, Captain Haas has a total of 15 years in the Army. He was graduated from O.C.S. at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, in November, 1942.

During the period 1948-51, the captain was in Japan and Korea, following which he served on the staff and faculty, PMG center, Camp Gordon, Georgia, for three years, during which time he was also graduated from the associate advanced course there.

Lt. Colonel HAROLD W. WEISS has been assigned as an assistant senior Army advisor for the California Military District at the Presidio. His office supervises Army Reserve training in Northern California.

A graduate of Norwich university, the colonel entered the Army in 1940 and served during World War II with the 771st Tank battalion of the Fourth Armored Division in the European Theater.

He likewise saw service in Korea, in 1952 and 1953, and recently was with the G-3 Section of the Eighth Army in the Far East.

Colonel Weiss, his wife, and daughter, Jacquelyn, make their home at Park Merced.

Need a Rest?

Accrued Leave Set as Topic Of Troop Information Period

Since World War II, when leave time was sparingly granted, the Army has revised its policy, urging its personnel to make use of accrued leave whenever possible.

In compliance with official policy, Sixth Army Headquarters has instructed unit commanders to give their men every opportunity to take advantage of accrued leave time.

The question of Utilization of Accrued Leave will be the topic of next week's Troop Information period.

The Army regards leave as "authorized absence from duty . . . provided to accord periods of respite from routine duty for diversion, travel and healthful recreation vitally essential to the efficiency and morale of Army personnel."

During the Korean War, the Allied armies recognized the need of fighting men or personnel on difficult duty to take occasional rest and recuperation leaves. Troops exposed to rugged or arduous situations were from time to time moved to behind-the-lines "rest hotels" for relaxation and a chance to recover from the strain of extended duty. When hostilities ended, facilities in Japan, Okinawa and Hong Kong were made available to vacationing soldiers.

Such rest and recuperation periods were merely charged to ordinary leave time. A similar policy is still in effect. Only the soldier's request for time off is necessary for the granting of ordinary leave.

If his assigned military mission does not require his continued presence, he will be accorded ordinary leave.

For the man on active duty, leave accumulates at the rate of two and a half days per month or 30 days a year. No man may accumulate more than 60 days leave nor may he take more than 60 days at a single time.

Requests for leave or delay en route should be prepared in duplicate on DA Form 31 and submitted to the proper authorities.

The Army Medical Research Laboratory has developed a portable X-ray unit, weighing only 48 pounds, for use on the battlefield. It can be carried on the back of a medical man and can produce a picture without electricity, water or a darkroom. A tiny piece of radioactive thulium powers the unit.

only six weeks left!

Only six weeks remain for members of the Armed Forces to enter the Freedoms Foundation letter writing competition.

The subject this year is: "My Stake in the American Way."

The Foundation has increased the number of awards to 154 in the 1955 contest. Last year there were 86 winners.

Top prize will be $1,000 plus a watch and a medal. Second prize will be $500 plus a watch and a medal and two awards will be made of $250 plus watches and medals.

In addition, there also will be 50 prizes of $100 each plus watches and medals and 50 medal and 50 certificate winners.

Entries must contain a minimum of 100 words but no more than 500 words. However, the emphasis will be on quality rather than quantity in selecting the best letters.

The deadline for this year's competition is November 11 with no limit on the number of entries submitted by a contestant.

Letters should be sent direct to Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge, Pennsylvania.

The Freedoms Foundation was established in 1949 to inspire the love of freedom and to promote the dignity of mankind. It is non-profit, non-sectarian and non-political.

Old Timer!

Signal Corps Master Sergeant Retires After 40 Years; At Presidio 13 Years

Completing an Army career that began on 29 April 1913 Master Sergeant William Porter, 6300 SU, is retiring today from active duty.

Stationed continuously on the Presidio since August 1942 Sgt. Porter was first trick chief in the Relay Center, Signal section, and later first sergeant of 6300 SCU, redesignated 6300 SU upon reactivation of Headquarters Sixth Army in 1946.

But it was in World War I that Sgt. Porter saw a long and arduous tour of combat duty which included eight campaigns in a span of eight months, ending with the armistice on 11 November 1918.

He received the Silver Star Medal for gallant and courageous conduct while participating in a major engagement near Vierzy from 19 through 22 July 1918, while assisting in erecting and maintaining a radio station under continuous shell fire during which he was wounded.

Sgt. Porter is also entitled to wear the French Croix de Guerre as an individual decoration for his service in Company "A," first field Signal battalion, 2nd Division, the unit he was assigned to upon his enlistment.

Discharged in July 1919, he remained out of service until 22 May 1925 when he reenlisted for a two-year period. He again stayed in civilian life for four years, reenlisting in June 1931. In 1936 he went to Panama for a two-year tour, and in March 1941, he was sent to Hawaii, where he remained until August of the following year when he came to the Presidio.

Among the many good wishes which Sgt. Porter takes with him upon his retirement are a letter of commendation from Major General J. D. O'Connell, Chief Signal officer, who states in part:

"Your pending retirement brings with it an opportunity for me to express my appreciation as well as that of the Signal Corps, for your service extending over a period of forty years. . . . This record should be of great pride and personal satisfaction to you. It is fortunate that your assignment at Headquarters Sixth Army, at the culmination of your career, is one in which you are again able to set an example to the non-commissioned officers and other enlisted men who are to carry on the fine traditions of our corps."

In addition, a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement was

Scout Court Set Tonight; Scouts, Cubs Join Forces

Several hundred persons are expected to pack Harmon Armory tonight for a "first."

The occasion will be a combined Court of Honor for Explorer, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts, the first such program ever attempted in Troop No. 77, Presidio of San Francisco. It will begin at 1900.

In addition to advancements in the ranks, there will be a total of 112 merit badges presented for various accomplishments made by the Scouts in recent weeks.

Two Webelos (Cubs) will join the ranks of Boy Scouts.

There will be two Scouts advanced to second class, one to first class, three to Star Scout, and five to Life Scout.

At the conclusion of the court, there will be a skit, contests and refreshments.

M/Sgt. William Porter

awarded the sergeant, and it was presented by Colonel S. S. Cerwin, Sixth Army Signal officer.

More than 150 military and civilian co-workers and friends of Sgt. Porter gathered on 23 September at a farewell party in his honor.

Last of Engineer's Alaska Task Force Now Returned Here

As the Navy Escort Carrier, the USS Cape Esperance, moved swiftly through the Golden Gate yesterday carrying from the Far North the last shipment of 30th Engineer Group, the Army's Presidio-based photomapping organization wrapped up the final stages of its five-year Alaskan mission.

Elements of the group which arrived here yesterday set sail from Anchorage, Alaska, on 23 September. It consisted of 15 officers, and 255 enlisted men along with 40 helicopters and 350 long tons of standard and special equipment used for the Arctic mission.

During the peak of this year's operation, 120 officers and 600 enlisted men of the group were on duty in the American snow-bound territory. The majority of the group were specialists in photographic evaluation, photomapping, land surveying and topographic aviation.

The 1955 Alaska Task Force called for the survey of the northern (Arctic Slope) and northwestern (Kotzebue) coastal regions of Alaska, an area of roughly 87,500 square miles. Included in this area is Point Barrow which is some 340 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

This year's project got underway 23 May, although all movements and setting-up operations were hindered considerably by snow and floods.

This season's project completed the group's survey mission which was started in the summer of 1950. During the summers from 1950 through 1954, the 30th Engineer Group has surveyed approximately 225,212 square miles in Alaska. The 1954 season produced a record of 101,867 square miles surveyed.

"HIROSHIMA DIARY," by Michihiko Hachiya. Journal of a Japanese physician from 6 August to 30 September, 1945, this eyewitness account of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and the ensuing seven weeks is dramatically laid down in simple yet curdling terms.

August Accident Rate Shows No Increase Says Safety Report

August saw a total of ten Army motor vehicle accidents, according to Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander. Although the figure represents no notable increase in accident frequency for the Presidio, 70 per cent of the mishaps might have been prevented had the drivers exercised greater caution, he said.

Among the causes of accident were improper turns, misjudging clearance and following too closely.

In other type mishaps, 10 persons received disabling injuries. Six were military personnel, four civilian.

During the same month, 12 first aid cases were also reported, involving five military personnel and seven civilians. Eleven of the accidents occurred on post.

One person was injured when the accumulated gas in a heater exploded as it was being lit.

The apparently high injury rate for August is deceptive, since one of the civilian incidents only came to light recently through a check of dispensary records and two were brought forward from a previous month, CWO Roberts reported.

Minnesotan Tops!

56 EM Complete MP Studies At Battalion's Training Center

Headed by top graduate Pvt. Donald Dahl, a class of 56 enlisted men were awarded Certificates of Completion after winding up extensive training at the 505th MP Battalion's three-week MP School at Ft. Baker last week. Private Dahl, a native of Grasston, Minnesota, was designated the leading graduate after turning in a near-perfect score on the final examination.

On hand to present the MP parchments and a special note of congratulations to the leading graduate were Col. Shaffer F. Jarrell, Sixth Army provost marshal and Lt. Col. Fred C. Smith, post provost marshal and 505th Battalion commander.

The training school was established by the battalion to teach newly assigned personnel various local operating procedures pertinent to the 505th combat reserve and installation service mission.

Instruction included specialized training in incident handling, local traffic control operations, MP reports and a wide range of routine battalion commitments.

Detailed tours of the Presidio and subposts was another significant portion of the training which was designed specifically to familiarize the new MP's with the areas in which they will be working.

The school was conducted under the overall supervision of the Battalion S-3, Maj. John Quock and instruction was provided by battalion officers and key NCO's. First Lieutenant Donald Hovde served as the school's training officer.

With their Certificates of Completion and three-weeks intensive training tucked under their belts, the 56 new MP's have been assigned to Company A and Company C where they soon will join their more experienced buddies in performing MP duties.

The Army maintains five disciplinary barracks with a combined operating capacity of 6,729. They are located at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Lompoc, Calif.; New Cumberland, Pa.; Camp Gordon, Ga.; and Fort Crowder, Mo. It is estimated that an average of 5,977 prisoners will be confined during fiscal 1956.

The National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific at Honolulu, Hawaii, has been selected as the site for the permanent interment of the unidentified remains of U. S. servicemen who lost their lives in Korea.

Five Time Winner—M/Sgt. Glen M. Armstrong, mess steward, Headquarters Battery 30th AAA, this week in behalf of his unit accepted the Best Mess of the Year Award from Colonel Dallas F. Haynes, commander of the group. Under Sgt. Armstrong's direction, Headquarters Battery Mess hall had taken the monthly plaque five times in the past year. Six battalions, comprising the 30th AAA Group, compete each month for the Best Mess awards. Winners are chosen on a point system, drawn up by the 30th AAA officers who make regular mess inspection tours.

Types of Civil Service Possible Clarified Here

Under the new appointment system for civilian employees which went into effect this year, the following setup is now in operation:

Employees are given, generally, one of three types of appointments: career, career conditional and temporary pending establishment of a register of eligibles. There are no longer any temporary indefinite appointments.

There are also two types of appointments used for short term work. One is limited to one year or less and the other is an emergency appointment limited to one month. For these, specified time is noted on the appointment document and at the end of that time, the appointment is automatically terminated.

Career appointments are given those who have met requirements for career status in D/A or other federal agency or who are being transferred in a career status from another agency or installation.

Career conditional appointments are given those who pass open competitive civil service exams and are selected for appointment in order from established lists of eligibles. Generally, the first year is considered probationary, and upon completion of three years' satisfactory service, the appointment becomes career.

Temporary appointments are made when the commission does not have a sufficient number of applicants on registers to fill the needs and such appointments are made only until a register can be established from a competitive civil service examination. Those hired may compete in the exam and, if within reach for selection, may become career conditional.

The average stay at a particular station for an Army soldier is 11 months.

Ninth Win in the weekly retreat parade Honor Unit Competition was registered by the Honor Guard last week. Parade Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Hunt, Sixth Army G-4 section presents the Honor Unit Plaque to 1st Lt. George Burt who led the company at the competition. The last Honor Guard victory gives them an average of one win each month since the contest started in January.

Servicemen With 8-Year Obligation Get Good Break From Reserve Act

Since nothing boosts morale more than a "good break," Congress provided one in the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 for the serviceman with an eight-year obligation.

Prior to the Act, enlistees as well as selectees, to round out an eight-year Reserve obligation could: (1) serve at least five years on active duty and then go into the Standby Reserve, (2) serve on active duty and participate in the Ready Reserve's training program for a total of five years, then transfer to the Standby Reserve or, (3) upon release from active duty, serve out the remainder of his eight-year obligation in the Ready Reserve in a non-participating status.

Now, those who were on active duty on August 9, 1955 and who are being released before July 1, 1957, may volunteer for one year of active participation in a unit of the Ready Reserve.

Upon completing the year, these men will be entitled to transfer to the Standby Reserve, if they ask for it.

This, at first, may not seem to be much of a "break" but it is a definite advantage if the serviceman chooses to accept it—for by reducing his time in the Ready Reserve, he cuts his chances of recall to active duty.

This is the reason: in the Ready Reserve, he is subject to immediate recall in the event of any emergency proclaimed by the President. As a member of the Standby Reserve, in case of war or a national emergency, he cannot be called involuntarily until Selective Service determines he is available for such duty.

In other words, the Ready Reserve goes first if the President thinks it's necessary, the Standby Reserve, only when Congress votes to call it.

This lessens vulnerability to recall, particularly in a future situation such as the Korean conflict where there was no Congressional action authorizing general mobilization.

Some time back, the Defense Department said that none of the services planned to use the "pre-release" clause of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 since this was only a "permissive" provision in the legislation.

The Defense Department said no men would be released early because: (1) many technical skills are needed in the Reserve which can be developed only by several years of active service, (2) the early release from the active forces of personnel for whom there is no requirement in the Reserve would be harmful to both the active and reserve forces, (3) early separations would make it difficult to meet overseas commitments and maintain rotation, and (4) it is more economical in terms of manpower and dollars to retain personnel in the active forces for the full period for which inducted since such personnel are better trained, more valuable to the Reserve forces and have more effective periods of service.

Driver Test Station Maintains Monopoly On Operator Permits

Organized to reduce Army motor vehicle accident rates, the Presidio's central driver testing station is the only agency authorized to test and license post personnel with operator's permits.

In a recent memorandum, Post Headquarters has outlined the driving station procedure.

Personnel seeking operator's permits are required to make appointments through their Commanders or Section Chiefs by calling the Post Motor Pool, Ext. 2660.

Testing and licensing requirements include written examinations, a short physical aptitude test, a half-hour road test and familiarization with the trip ticket. A safety and defensive driving lecture as well as a film are also part of the course.

On completion of the test schedule with qualifying scores, the individual will be granted an operator's permit. The central driver test station is operated by the Post Motor Pool.

Gyroscope

Persons applying for Gyro-scope transfer are encouraged to have all of their personal affairs in order and to be ready for a quick move at the time they make application.

Operation Gyroscope is the Army's new unit rotation program which was established to stabilize personnel in combat units and at the same time produce fewer family separations since wives and dependents move right along with the rotating unit.

The units which are scheduled for rotation in 1956 are:

4th Trans Bn., Ft. Eustis, Va., with the 27th Trans. Bn., Stuttgart, Germany, in April 1956.

25th Sig. Bn., Ft. Devens, Mass., with the 40th Sig. Bn., Karlsruhe, Germany, in April 1956.

66th Ord. Bn., Ft. Bragg, N. C., with the 80th Ord. Bn., Stuttgart, Germany, in April 1956.

95th Eng. Bn., Ft. Ord, Calif., with the 547th Eng. Bn., Darmstadt, Germany, in April 1956.

97th FA Bn., Ft. Carson, Colo., with the 254th FA Bn., Wurzburg, Germany, in April 1956.

267th FA Bn., Ft. Sill, Okla., with the 597th FA Bn., Hanau, Germany, in April 1956.

532nd FA Bn., Ft. Sill, Okla., with the 529th FA Bn., Karlsruhe, Germany, in June 1956.

538th FA Bn., Ft. Carson, Colo., with the 273rd FA Bn., New Ulm, Germany, in June 1956.

553rd FA Bn., Ft. Sill, Okla. with the 760th FA Bn., Darmstadt, Germany, in July 1956.

583rd FA Bn., Ft. Bragg, N. C., with the 268th FA Bn., Tokyo, Japan, in May 1956.

Woman's Club Will Present Fashion Show At Program-Tea

"Around the Clock with the Army Wife," will be the theme of a fashion show presented by the Presidio Woman's Club at the program-tea to be held in the Moraga Room of the Presidio Officers' Open Mess on October 6.

Ladies of the club and their children will show clothes and accessories furnished by members of the Marina Merchants Association against a background set designed by Mrs. Duncan S. Somerville. Mrs. Rellie Lawyer will be fashion commentator.

Mrs. Wellington Glover, in charge of models, and Mrs. Arthur W. Gustafson, in charge of staging, will double as models. Other models will be: Mrs. Wayne W. Walters and daughter, Wanda, Mrs. Robert S. Nourse, Mrs. Willett C. Ware, Jr., Mrs. Chester B. Searls, Mrs. Lloyd C. Parsons, Mrs. Louis J. Rumaggi, Mrs. James H. Reynolds, Mrs. Francis H. Patrick and daughter, Sissie, Mrs. Kenneth A. Hunt and daughter, Tani, Mrs. Thomas M. McGrail, Mrs. Gordon H. McGough, Mrs. Somerville and daughter, Lisa, Mrs. Elwood M. Wright and Mrs. Glover's son, Nipper.

Music will be provided by Sp/3 Ernest Suerken, pianist with the Sixth Army Band.

Hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Glenn A. Hawes, Mrs. Walter R. Jorgenson, Mrs. Donald F. Rabott and Mrs. Andre L. Violante.

There were 117,000 men in the Armed Forces in the Mexican War; the last veteran died in '929 at the age of 98.

Keep it Small!

Defense Dept. OKs Bingo; Cuts Cash Prize Money

Washington (AFPS)—The Defense Department says it is all right to play bingo on most military installations. But it has directed the services to cut down on "excessively large" cash prizes and to make certain only authorized persons take part.

Carter L. Burgess, asst. defense secretary for manpower, personnel and reserves, in making the pronouncement, agreed that well-regulated bingo was a morale builder.

But he instructed the service secretaries to limit participation in bingo games on military installations to "authorized patrons and their bona fide guests."

He also specified that the cash prizes for an evening's play should not exceed $100. Un-awarded prizes may be carried over to later nights but they must not result in a total of more than $300 in cash prizes. Mr. Burgess added.

If these rules are observed the services may allow bingo on all military installations in the U.S., its territories and possessions which are fully ceded to the federal government by the states in which they are located.

The game is also authorized on those installations that are not fully ceded where bingo is allowed by local authorities.

Mr. Burgess warned that failure to adhere strictly to the prescribed regulations would result in the "immediate" cancellation of DOD approval.

Army officer and enlisted personnel paid a total of more than $141,000,000 in income taxes for the year 1954. The bill was paid in twelve monthly installments of $12,000,000 each by the Army Finance Center to the Treasury.

Almost 14,000 soldiers are completing their grammar school education in the Army under the troop information and education program. About 87,000 are pursuing high school programs and 60,000 college and graduate school programs.

Jobs for Engineer, Administrator Open At Civilian Personnel

Applications are now being accepted for several Post and Sixth Army Civil Service positions, according to a recent announcement by the Civilian Personnel Division.

Among the jobs available are administrative assistant, GS-301-9, which carries a salary of $5,440 a year, and engineer equipment inspector, paying $2.26 an hour.

Applicants should submit their requests on Form 58, including complete information on qualifying experience for the desired job. Applications should be sent to the Civilian Personnel Division, Building 36.

For the position of administrative assistant, applicants must have at least five years' experience, three years general and two specialized. A thorough knowledge of Army administration is also necessary. Only male candidates will be considered.

Individuals seeking the engineer equipment inspector's position must have had experience either as journeymen mechanics, supervisors or inspectors.

Further information may be obtained at Building 36 or by calling Ext. 2349 or 4233.

Five in a Row for Mr. Dan Dougherty of the Post Ordnance section. Five cash awards, that is, for his suggestions on improving equipment and procedures in the Post Ordnance armament shop where he is an artillery repairer lead foreman. This latest award is for $100 and is for a running gear for a universal handling dolly. His suggestion has been forwarded to higher headquarters for further consideration and possible higher award. Lt. Colonel Robert G. Van Ness, Post Ordnance officer, chats with Mr. Dougherty after presenting him his award. Mr. Dougherty has been a Presidio Ordnance employe since August 1942. Another award just presented under the Presidio Employee Suggestion award program was that of $10 to Mrs. Mary Kleinlein of the civilian personnel office of California Military district for her suggestion of annual leave booklets and personal folders to assist civilian personnel in maintaining their personal documents and records. Brig. General Claude F. Burbach, chief of the district, presented the award, her first, to Mrs. Kleinlein.

Design of these two ceramic pieces which Miss Ruth Rippon, post arts and crafts director, examines above are similar to the ones for which she was awarded three major prizes in the recent San Francisco Art Festival. A leading Bay Area ceramist, Miss Rippon has exhibited works in several mediums in local, state and national art shows since 1948.

Versatile Artist!

Ruth Rippon's Ceramics Gain Three Awards At SF Exhibit

Imaginative creative ability and skillful craftsmanship once again brought prominence in the Art World to the Presidio's Arts and Crafts director, Miss Ruth Rippon, who was awarded three major prizes for ceramic pieces which she exhibited in the recent San Francisco Art Festival.

Miss Rippon won two Purchase awards in the festival's pottery category and one Award of Merit for pottery decoration. The Award of Merit is made for entries which a winning artist does not wish to sell.

A free-form platter carved from red clay and decorated with a serafito design of three semi-abstract figures on a non-gloss, cream-colored background was the object which brought Miss Rippon the prize for pottery decoration.

Two pots made on the potter's wheel, one a large cleanly-designed bottle and the other, a covered jar, were purchased by the San Francisco Art Commission which sponsors the festival jointly with Bay Area artists.

With the Presidio and Ft. Baker service clubs since April, 1954, the prize-winning artist and craftsman has an extensive background in many of the fine arts and crafts.

She earned both a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Education and a Master of Fine Arts degree from the California College of Arts and Crafts. In 1953, while attending the San Francisco School of Fine Arts on a scholarship, Miss Rippon's ceramic works were given a one-man show at Gumps in San Francisco.

At the California State Fair in 1948, she received first prize in ceramics and in 1951 her accomplishments in the clay medium rated first place, second place and honorable mention recognition.

Other major art shows in which the Presidio's versatile arts and crafts director has exhibited her works include San Francisco's deYoung Museum, the Pacific Coast Ceramic show, the Richmond Art Center, the Syracuse National Ceramic show and the Wichita Decorative Arts show.

Just prior to coming to the Presidio, Miss Rippon was instructing ceramic design and pottery at Mountain View through the Mills College Ceramic Guild.

At the service club here on Tuesday and Wednesday nights and at the Ft. Baker Service club on Monday nights, she is on hand to offer local military personnel instruction in enameling, jewelry making, leather craft, painting, sculpture, silk screening and model building as well as ceramics.

Crafts room facilities are available every night of the week and also on week-end afternoons. A complete line of most crafts materials, including all materials used by Miss Rippon for her prize-winning ceramic pieces, are available at the service club.

Army Daughters Hold Annual Membership Tea On Saturday

The Anza room of the Presidio Officer's club will be the setting for the annual membership tea of the Daughters of the United States Army, at which potential members will be guests of the San Francisco chapter beginning at 1400 hours tomorrow (Saturday).

Reservations are necessary and are to be made with Mrs. Laurence H. Brownlee, Ext. 2443, or Mrs. Stacy W. Gooch, Ext. 2477, the hostesses.

To qualify for membership in the society, a woman must be at least 16 years of age and be a daughter, granddaughter, stepdaughter or adopted daughter of a commissioned officer in the Regular Army or a National Guard or Reserve officer on active duty.

Chapters are in operation in Heidelberg, Germany, Tokyo, Japan, and the Panama Canal zone as well as in many locations in the United States.

Permanent Switch

521st Air Engineers to Leave Presidio For Roomier Station at Sharpe Depot

The 521st Engineers Topographical Aviation Company will leave the Presidio today for a new and more spacious nest at Sharpe General Depot, near Lathrop.

Although the 521st, equipped with helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft, is being transferred permanently to Sharpe Depot, it will continue to provide aviation support for the 660th Engineer Battalion and remain a part of the 30th Engineer Group.

A principal reason for the change of station is the larger airstrip at Stockton Field Annex where Sharpe General Depot is located.

Under the command of Major Leo M. Bellieu, the 521st Engineers will include 54 officers, two Warrant Officers, 19 NCOs and 131 EM. In addition, 23 officers and 32 enlisted personnel will be attached from other Engineer units.

Officers and men will be taken from the Aviation Section, 30th Engineers Group the Aircraft Section, 660th Engineers Battalion; the craft Section, 549th Engineers Company; the Aircraft Section, 542nd Engineers Co., and the Aircraft Section, 549th Engineers Company.

Included in its equipment are 46 helicopters and 14 conventional fixed-wing aircraft which will be moved to Stockton by aircraft carrier when the Company leaves.

The unit will travel both by military and/or commercial transportation. Personnel who are not required to accompany either troops or equipment may travel by privately-owned vehicles.

NATO Names New Defense Task Force For Northern Italy

Washington (AFPS) — NATO's new Southern European Task Force (SETAF) will be stationed in northern Italy. Most of the U. S. Army troops in the new organization will be drawn from units formerly assigned to Austria.

Operating as part of Allied Land Forces, Southern Europe, the task force's mission, in cooperation with other NATO units, is the defense of northern Italy.

SETAF will be commanded by Brig. Gen. John H. Michaelis. Gen. Michaelis was commander of the 27th RCT, the famed "Wolfhounds," during some of the fiercest fighting of the Korean War.

Younger Draftee Plan Under Consideration By Selective Service

With the average age of draftees risen to about 23, the government is considering a change in Selective Service policy.

Coupled with the new military reserve program, the policy under consideration would draw draftees from the bottom age group up, instead of taking those in the 23 to 26 bracket.

Selective Service officials say they want men who will enter the Ready Reserve several years before they reach 26. A policy of "leniency" toward men in the older age group would be followed.

In 1952 and 1953, the average draftee was about 20. Since then Selective Service boards have been drawing on the upper age levels, upping the mean age.

Penny Carnival Set For Servicemen at Y On Saturday Evening

Door prizes, a queen contest, fortune telling, handwriting analysis, and many games of skill and fun will be featured at the "Mardi Gras," carnival tomorrow night (Saturday) at the Armed Services YMCA, 166 The Embarcadero. Doors will open at 1700 hours for this event.

Planned as a benefit for YMCA World Service, the carnival, according to servicemen and junior hostesses on the planning committee, will afford fun and opportunities to win prizes for a minimum outlay of cash. Most of the attractions will be one penny with a few features ranging up to 10 pennies.

The queen contest, already underway, will continue through the carnival and the winner will be crowned at the dance which follows the carnival.

Sixth Army Loses!

McPherson Drops Ord From All-Army Baseball

Behind the two hit hurling of Taylor Phillips, Fort McPherson representing Third Army, dumped the Sixth Army champion Fort Ord Warriors eight to two this week. Phillips, former Atlanta Cracker, struck out fourteen Ord batters in posting the win. The loss dropped the defending tourney champions out of the 1955 All-Army Championships being played this week at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

McPherson jumped to a two run lead in the first frame when Billy Moran, forty thousand dollar Cleveland Indian bonus player, hit a three hundred and seventy foot homer. Bolling singled, stole second and scored on Buck Riddles single.

Ord tied the score at two all in the fourth on Lillis's single, Collis's walk and an error which scored Lillis. Collis also scored on Al Casino's single. This proved to be Ord's total hit and run production for the contest.

Third Army pecked away with single runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings and put the game away with three runs in the eighth. Leading the winner's attack were Frank Bolling ex-Detroit Tiger, who collected four hits and three RBI's; Buck Riddle with two hits and three RBI's and Moran who homered and singled.

Fort Ord's first loss came from the hands of the Fort Hood, Texas squad representing Fourth Army, 2 to 1. Paul Alyward, a twenty-five year old right hander from the AAA Louisville Colonels, hurled the win by throwing three hit ball and whiffed twelve batters.

Fort Hood drew first blood when the Texan's pushed across an unearned run in the bottom of the second. Fort Ord knotted the count in the top of the sixth. Charlie Stacey was hit by Alyward and crossed the plate on a hot double into the leftfield corner by Bob Lillis.

Bill Montgomery won the game for the Texan's in the last of the ninth when with two outs, he singled to left field driving in Bob Folkert with the winning tally.

The final game or games were played too late this week to be included in this week's Star Presidian. The championship game will find the undefeated Fourth Army meeting the Fort McPherson club from Third Army.

Intra-Mural Football Starts Here

Intra-mural flag football got off to a flying start Monday when Headquarters Company, Station Complement raced to 24 to 13 win over Headquarters Company, 9th AAA.

Pfc. Roger Shelstad proved the margin of victory as he tossed three touchdown passes from his quarterback position. Rangy Ken Whitfield caught two of the six point throws and Johnson caught the other. The fourth TD came when Roger Kindy sprinted ten yards around left end.

The 9th AAA scores came when Sp/3 Don Crawley gathered in a kickoff and raced sixty yards straight up the center of the field for six points. Pfc. Chuck Horn scored the other TD on a twenty-five yard run after intercepting a Deuce pass.

The second game this week saw the Honor Guard from Fort Scott edge the EOD Scavengers from the 548th Ordnance thirteen to twelve in a closely played thriller.

Pfc. Al Lafayette proved the big gun for the Guardsmen when he scampered over for one touchdown and also tallied the vital extra point. Pfc. Wade More raced over for the second six pointer.

Lieutenant Delwin Albrecht sparked the Scavengers when he romped eighty yards for one touchdown on a kickoff return. Albrecht returned another kickoff all the way to the two yard stripe where Sgt. Ray Morris churned over on a pitchout for the second Scavenger TD. Both extra point attempts failed however and the Honor Guard pulled through with the one point victory.

Michigan State guard Karl Perryman was awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star and Purple Heart while serving with the marines in Korea.

HARD PRACTICE was the word from the Red Raider football squad this week as the team ran through drills in preparation for tomorrow's game with Edwards Air Force Base. Kickoff time is slated for 1400 hours at

Raiders Seek 3rd Win Over AF Jets

Tomorrow afternoon the once beaten Presidio Red Raiders tangle with the up and coming Edwards Air Force Jets. The game will start promptly at 1400 hours on the Fort Scott field.

The Edwards airmen have engaged in only one contest so far this season and will be out to even things up. They dropped a close one to the powerful Bakersfield college eleven, 27-13.

neyed to Edwards AFB for a night contest. However, at the last minute a desert wind storm made play impossible and the game had to be called off.

The Edwardsmen use a Maryland type 'T' formation and if ace halfback Marion Sims, Little All-American, is back this season the Jets will be dangerous from anywhere on the field.

Raider coach, Larry McInerney's starting lineup, barring last minute changes will be Piggott and Sims at the ends, McDonnell and Weaver at the tackles, DeOrian and Holmes at the guards and big John Snyder at the pivot post.

Starting at quarterback for the first time this season will be Pvt. Sid Dodson, Company C, Station Complement. Regular quarterback, Morris Maytubby suffered a slight concussion in last week's game with Chico and will be lost to the team for at least six weeks. Rounding out the backfield will be Ed Colarossi and Jim Guimarin at the halves and Bobby Ratliff, fullback.

Starting in the defensive line will be newcomer Lena Salvadaleno, a

Fur Trappers Take, Shows Big Increase

Value of the past season's fur catch increased 56 percent over the previous season despite the fact there were fewer trappers in the field, and that the total catch was up only five percent.

The Department of Fish and Game, in making its licensed fur trapper report, said that a good demand and resulting higher price for muskrat pelts accounted for the increased value.

During the 1954-55 season licensed trappers took 112,409 pelts as against 107,435 for the previous season although the number of licenses issued dropped seven percent.

Continuing the trend of recent years, highest buyer demand was for the short haired fur species such as muskrat, mink, beaver and river otter. Long haired species including coyote, badgers, bobcats and raccoons continued low in value.

Total value of the past season's catch was $144,600, with muskrat accounting for about two thirds of the total.

Red Raiders Suffer First Loss, 12-6

Last Saturday's jaunt to Chico proved for naught, as the Presidio Red Raiders dropped a twelve to six thriller. The powerful Chico State College Wildcats edged the Presidio men for the Raiders first loss of the 1955 season. The Raiders now boast a two win and one loss record so far in official competition.

With the score tied at 6-6, fourth down and twenty seconds left to play, Wildcat quarterback Carl Bloss fired a twenty-seven yard aerial to fleet footed halfback Mike Adams in the end zone for the tie breaking score. The conversion was wide and the game ended 12-6.

After a scoreless first quarter the Red Raiders fielded a Wildcat punt on their 35 yard stripe and marched 65 yards in six plays to score the first TD of the game. The scoring play saw quarterback Morris Maytubby toss a twenty yard bullet to fullback Bobby Ratliff in the end zone. Ratliff's conversion attempt was wide and the half ended with the Presidio gridsters out in front 6 to 0.

Chico State kicked off to start the second half and got the ball back just as fast as the Presidio fumbled and the Wildcats recovered on the Raider 15. Five plays later Chico Fullback Ernie Matlock cracked over from the three for six points to tie the game up 6-6. Raider right tackle Frank Wilson burst through to block the attempted conversion and the score stood 6-6.

The third and fourth quarters were scoreless until that last fatal twenty seconds. Standing out for the Raiders were Ratliff and Maytubby in the backfield and Frank Wilson and John Snyder in the front wall.

The Red Raiders were somewhat hampered in the contest as it was played under College limited substitution rules. Armed Forces football is played under the professional or two platoon system.

At 24, Pfc. John Anastasia is the youngest member of the West Point grid coaching staff. The assistant backfield coach was backfield coach at Ft. Ord, Calif., last year.

Regan Leads Dispensary To Win Over Hilltoppers

Paced by Regan's 179/515 roll, the Post Dispensary edged the Hilltoppers No. 3 squad, three to one, to continue their hold on second place in the Pacific Bowling League. The league leading Sixth Army Signal drew a bye in this week's action.

The seventh place MRU kegsters pulled the upset of the week when they trounced the third place Company B MP's 4 to 0. Hoffacker paced the record men with a 211/538 roll. Dickey topped the police bowlers with a 165/455.

Other matches saw the fourth-place Keystone Kops edge Headquarters Company, 505th MP's, 4 to 0. Johnson led the Kops attack with a 199/538 roll. Snider was high man for the police with a 145/428 mark. The Hilltoppers No. 1 team paced by Frankhauser's 170/472 roll shut out the 30th Engineers, 4 to 0. Strong led the Engineer's with a 164/456 mark.

The Fort Scott Hilltoppers and the Masonites climbed to the top of the National Bowling League ladder this week with identical seven and one records.

Third place went to the Soltechs with a five and four mark just ahead of last weeks leaders the King Pins. The King Pins dropped four games this week and in the process fell to fourth place. High team game with handicap went to Hilltoppers with 1042 pins smashed. The men from the hill also captured high team series with a grand total of 2840.

Action continues hot and heavy in the Presidio League with the Spades, 18-6, holding a narrow half-game lead. The Fort Baker Engineers hold second place with a 17½-6½ mark.

High game so far this season with handicap goes to the fourth place Crissy Flit-Dits with 1072 pins downed. High series with handicap belongs to the third place Mix-Ups with 2990 wooden markers smashed.

Over in the Eastern League the Hilltoppers No. 6 squad, with a 20-8 mark, held first place in a tight three-way race. Second spot belongs to the 6513 SU rollers with a 22-10 record, and third goes to the Nuggets with a 20-12 mark.

October Sixth Deadline For Elk Permits

Hunters interested in applying for a permit to shoot in the special Inyo County tule elk hunt, 3 December through 11 December, were reminded today of the 6 October deadline for applications to the Department of Fish and Game.

Applications should be mailed to the Department of Fish and Game, 926 J Street, Sacramento, accompanied by one dollar filing fee. A drawing will be held on 17 October to determine the 150 permit holders.

The first forty names will be entitled to a bull elk, and the remainder must take cows. One hundred additional names will be drawn as alternates in the event that any of the first priority names do not accept permits.

Applicants must be resident citizens of the state, over 16 years of age, and hold a valid hunting license.

Little Leaguer's Trounce Hayward to End Season

Closing their season with a barrage of base hits, the Presidio Little League All-Stars walloped the Hayward National League Champions, twelve to two last Sunday in Hayward.

Curve-balling Earl Stewart went the distance for the Presidio lads, giving up six hits and two runs over the regulation six inning contest. His mates backed up his fine hurling with eleven hits of which six went for extra bases. The locals stole five bases during the contest, featured by second baseman's Tom Stewart steal of home in the top of the first frame.

The Presidio pint size ball players jumped off to a fast start by scoring four runs on three hits and three walks in the top of the first. They added three more runs on three hits in the second to extend their lead to 7 to 0. Hayward scored a single run in their half of the second and one more in the third. Hurler Stewart then bore down and allowed but two hits for the remainder of the game.

Jim Doerner, with two hits in three trips to the plate, led the Presidio boys closely followed by pitcher Earl Stewart's two doubles in four turns at the plate.

The fielding gem of the game came in the fifth when Presidio second baseman Tom Stewart scooped up a hot grounder, tagged the runner coming from first and threw out the batter.

The victory marks the finale for the Presidio Little Leaguer's for the 1955 season. The All-Star squad won four out of four for a perfect record in post season competition.

Kegsters Set New Record In SF Roll

Smashing 2737 pins in a single series the Presidio Bowling Team set a new league mark while rolling in the downtown Bagdad "900" classic. The San Francisco league meets each Friday night at the Bagdad Bowl, 27th and Noriega at 2100 hours, and Presidio personnel are urged to come out and support their team.

The Presidio bowlers dropped the first series of the fall roll to the powerful Crestoni squad, two out of three games. Johnson was high man for the post team with a 194/547 tally. Owens took second place with a 179/485, Murphy was third with 177/522, Jacobs fourth with 172/471 and Taylor with 158/426.

Last week the Presidio men took a three game set from the Pleasant Cleaners. Hoffacker took the top spot with a sizzling 223/536 followed by Johnson's 213/590. Murphy with a 198/566 was next followed by Jacob's 194/471 and Whitesell's 185/522.

Ack-Ackers Take First In National

Intra-mural volleyball action this week saw the powerful Headquarters of the 752nd AAA edge the Officers' team to take over first place in the National League.

The ack-ackers boast a three and 0 mark so far this season in league play with the Officers' Team and the Headquarters 740th AAA tied for second with three and one records.

A three-way tie for first exists in the American Loop where the Baker Battery of the 740th AAA, the EOD Scavengers and the 102nd MRU boast three and 0 marks.

Action will continue until the second week of October when the winners of the two loops meet in a three-game playoff to determine the Post Champion. At this time an all-Star squad will be picked to represent the Presidio in the Sixth Army matches at Fort Ord, 24-28 October. The All-Army Volleyball tournament will also be held at Fort Ord, 7-12 November.

fish travels

California's sturgeon are getting around these days. A fish tagged by the Department of Fish and Game in San Pablo Bay in November 1954, was recovered off Astoria in the Columbia River by Oregon commercial fishermen and the tag sent to California officials.

This marks the first time that concrete evidence has been obtained that the monsters migrate between the two great river systems. The fish was 49 inches long when tagged, and had grown one inch in the 10 month interim.

National Finals

Sixth Army Pistoleers Take Individual Honors

When the smoke cleared, three members of the crack Sixth Army rifle and pistol team had triggered their way to high honors in the three-week National Rifle and Pistol competition finals this month, at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Against 805 individual entrees, M/Sgt. David Dewey, Headquarters Company Station Complement, placed 15th in the overall aggregate scoring for individuals while SFC Donald Wright, Headquarters Company Sixth Army ranked 21st in the total standings for the Expert Class.

In the .45 calibre pistol matches M/Sgt. James Wade, 30th Engineers Group, fired a perfect 200, only to see it tied by Major Lloyd Hummert of Camp Chaffee, Ark., a member of the Army's four-man "blue" team. Sgt. Wade took second to Hummert in the rubber match.

The team competition saw Sixth Army take first place in the .22 cal. expert class and third spot in the .38 cal. contest. In the .45 cal. competition, Sixth Army placed sixth among 47 other entrees.

Sgt. Dewey won 15th place capturing first slot in the .22 national match course, eighth in the .22 rapid fire, 15th in the .22 cal. slow fire and 5th in the .22 cal. aggregate. Sgt. Dewey also scored seventh in the .45 cal. time fire match. In the grand aggregate for the sharpshooter class, Sgt. Dewey's 2426 out of a possible 2600 made him number 10.

The flag was waving for SFC Wright who took first place in the .45 cal. rapid fire and third in the .45 cal. time fire. Sgt. Wright also scored 21st in the .45 cal. national match course. He placed 31st in the .22 cal. time fire.

Sixth Army team captain, Major James Reeves of the University of Washington ROTC Instructors Group took eighth place in the .22 rapid fire.

Sixth Army worked its way up to the National Firing Lines after competing in the all-Army matches at Ft. Benning in June and the National Rifle Association regional matches at Jacksonville, Fla., in July.

Top awards in the matches were won by the Army's four-man "blue" team and a six-man Marine Corps squad representing the eastern division. The Army took 18 trophies, the Marines, 12.

The National Rifle and Pistol Matches are sponsored by the Government with the cooperation of the National Rifle and Pistol Association.

Teams entered in the finals represented the Army, different Army areas, Reserve units and the other services.

VA Home Loans Hit Third High In Program History

Veterans Administration received 66,305 GI Home Loan Guaranty applications during August 1955, the third highest month in the 11-year history of the program, VA announced today.

Only the volume received during August and October, 1950, were higher. In those months 69,327 and 67,000 applications, respectively, were received.

VA said that the August, 1955 volume, an increase of nearly 12,000 applications over July, reflected the big increase in appraisal requests for 91,786 proposed and existing homes during August, nearly 6,500 more than the July total of 85,339 units.

Of the 91,786 proposed and existing homes, 55,974 were proposed homes, an increase of nine per cent over the 51,412 received in July, and 35,812 were for existing homes, an increase of 5½ per cent over the July total of 33,927.

Temporary Slowdown

Payday to Pour Reinforcements Into United Crusade Campaign

Just as a rapidly advancing Army faces the logistical problems of extended lines and thinning supplies, the Presidio's United Crusade campaign began to bog down this week, as post personnel moved further and further from last payday.

Barely more than a few hundred dollars had been added last week to the nearly $10,000 donated or pledged by post military and civilian personnel in the first three weeks of the campaign.

With new paydays civilian and military, promising adequate reinforcements, unit representatives for the campaign met yesterday to discuss the opening of the drive's second month.

As its part in Operation 288, (the military mission in the Bay Area United Crusade) the Presidio has set a $30,000 donation as its objective in the combined local and national charities drive.

The crusade on the Presidio will continue through 31 October. Planners of the local campaign have set a day's pay as the ideal donation for both civilian and military personnel. Solicitors will accept either cash contributions or pledges to be paid in installments by the drive's close.

The 1955 Bay Area United Crusade represents 288 local and national health and welfare organizations in San Francisco and four surrounding counties. The single drive represents the efforts of five former crusade organizations banned together for the first time. Few charities in the San Francisco area are not a part of this year's campaign.

The 1955 goal for the Bay Area is $10,691,640.

As chairman of the Bay Area United Crusade Military Cabinet, Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander, has urged "To accomplish the goal assigned to the Presidio requires the wholehearted interest and support of everyone. It is important that each person contribute; civilian employee and military personnel alike. It is important that each person's contribution be as large as he can afford."

Co-chairman of the post campaign are Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander, and Major Elsie Weible also acting as secretary-treasurer.

Army Will Commission First Male Nurses Sometime Next Month

Washington (AFPS) — For the first time, the Army is going to give reserve commissions to male nurses. The first one is expected to be granted in October.

The male nurses will be members of the Army Nurse Corps and receive the same assignments and responsibilities as female nurses.

The bill authorizing the commissioning of male nurses was sponsored by Rep. Frances P. Bolton (R-Ohio) in the last session of Congress and signed by President Eisenhower.

Forecast Planning!

Exercise Sage Brush Features Simulated Technical Weapons

Langley AFB, Va. (AFPS) — The largest air force-army maneuver since the end of WWII—Exercise Sage Brush—will be "fought" this fall in a sprawling 7,000,000 acre area surrounding Camp Polk, La.

Approximately 110,000 army and 30,000 air force men will take part in the huge maneuver designed to prepare them for an attack by an enemy with "numerically superior ground and air units." The exercise starts Nov. 8 and will last 45 days.

One of the key aspects of Sage Brush is the expectation that it will add significantly to our knowledge of air and ground combat when atomic weapons are employed.

Every type of tactical aircraft will be used during the maneuvers, including fighter-bombers, light bombers, tactical reconnaissance planes, tactical missiles, troop carriers, and rotary and fixed wing assault and refueling planes.

In Sage Brush, simulated atomic, chemical, bacteriological and electronic weapons will be used—and the results could mark the beginning of vital changes in military tactics.

Officials at Tactical Air Command Hq., here, met with the National and Regional Airspace Committee at Ft. Worth, Tex., recently to plan coordination of civic and military flights during the big maneuvers.

The action in Sage Brush will be centered on a situation in which aggressor forces have taken a foothold in the U.S. Gulf Coast area. The United States, fighting on the defensive, must muster its strength and strike back.

Army units will maneuver in areas reaching from the Sabine River to Opelousas, La., and from Lake Charles to Monroe, La. Air Force units will be based in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama.

Gen. O. P. Weyland, chief of the Tactical Air Command, will command the exercise. This is one of the few occasions that an AF general has commanded a large joint AF-Army exercise. Thirty-eight other generals of the Army and AF also have been assigned to Sage Brush.

The first objective of the Army education program is to raise the level of educationally substandard men. Between three and seven per cent of all new soldiers, recent surveys show, have less than a fourth grade education.

The greatest single mass troop operation in history was launched 26 September, 1918. For 47 days of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, more than 1,200,000 American troops pushed forward on a 90-mile front in France.

'Skycar' Tramways Solve Logistic Job For Open Beaches

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has come up with a solution to the knotty logistical problem of landing supplies from ships across open beaches and precarious waters.

The Transportation Corps at Ft. Eustis, Va., has developed an aerial tramway. A series of 100-foot-high steel towers support parallel steel cables.

And away she goes!

Self-propelled "skycars" use the cables for tracks as they shuttle ashore at speeds of up to 30 mph carrying 12 to 20 tons of cargo at a time. The cars are powered by 135 hp gasoline engines.

The tramway extends a half-mile out into the water. Cargo can be speeded to land at a rate of 120 tons an hour.

Technicians say the tramway will enable the Army to surmount the supply obstacles presented by wrecked ports, rocky, wave-lashed coasts and shores that are heavily mined or otherwise obstructed.

The experimental tramway on the James River at Ft. Eustis has transferred 540,000 tons of cargo during a successful 2,000-hour trial.

The National Safety Council recently awarded the Department of the Army a plaque in recognition of its "excellent safety program" and its benefits to the civilian communities where Army installations are located.

Airborne Commander

Maj. Gen. Ennis Welcomed As New Sixth Army DCG

Welcomed by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, Maj. Gen. Riley F. Ennis arrived at the Presidio Monday to prepare for his new assignment as deputy Sixth Army Commander on the retirement of Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, 31 October.

Before his assignment at the Presidio, General Ennis was commanding general of Fort Jackson, S. C., and the 101st Airborne Division.

He is a graduate of the Infantry School, the Command and General Staff School, the Army War College and the Chemical Warfare School. His decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, with one Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Bronze Star Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, as well as numerous foreign decorations.

In the year preceding Pearl Harbor, he served as a military observer at London, Cairo, and Singapore, returning to Washington, D. C., for duty with the War Department and later with Headquarters, Army Ground Forces.

He commanded an Armored unit in the European Theater of Operations between August, 1944, and July, 1945, and returned to the United States that October, to become director of Intelligence, Military Intelligence Service, in Washington.

There followed tours as Military attache at Ottawa and Mexico City and as chief of the Armored Inspectorate, Army Field Forces, before he was assigned to the Far East Command in May, 1951, as assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence.

During the period between the wars he saw service with the 35th Infantry Regiment at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii; the 17th Infantry at Fort Omaha, Nebr.; the 66th Infantry at Fort Devens, Mass., and the 68th Infantry at Fort Lewis, Wash., moving with that unit to Fort Benning, Ga., where it was converted to an Armored regiment.

Born in Paulding, Ohio, on 23 April, 1897, General Ennis attended Ohio State University and Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. He was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry following his graduation from Officers Training Camp, at Fort Sheridan, Ill., on 16 Sept., 1918.

General Ennis received his Regular Army commission and was promoted to first lieutenant on 1 July, 1920.

He is married to the former Helen M. Pemberton of Zanesville, Ohio.

School Board Address

General Taylor Cites Strong Need For Discipline Studies

Army Chief of Staff, General Maxwell D. Taylor scored de-emphasis on disciplined studies, crowded classrooms and minimization of physical training on the secondary school level as being the most significant deficiencies in the American School systems noted by the Army. General Taylor made these observations in an address to the National School Boards Association Symposium at Kansas City, Missouri, last Friday.

"As a result of this decreasing emphasis upon disciplinary subjects," General Taylor pointed out, "the Military Academy finds it necessary to include courses which would properly be taught at the high school level."

Although the Army's chief of staff felt that both from the military and civil points of view there is need for reappraising and improving American education, particularly on the high school level, his appraisal of the contemporary quality of America's young men was basically an optimistic one.

Said General Taylor, "... we have every reason to be extremely proud of the basic qualities of the young men of this nation who come to perform military service. Let no one talk to me in sweeping terms about the deterioration of our young men, because, ... I find nothing to justify pessimism from what I've seen myself and what I have been told by qualified observers."

Because the Army is so deeply involved in the "school business" and because "our pupils are the products of the primary and secondary school systems of America, we are vitally concerned with public education."

In emphasizing how big a business education is in the Army, General Taylor stressed that "Every officer and enlisted man in the Army is a teacher of a pupil most of his service. The average officer spends more of his time as a trainer and a teacher than in any other capacity."

Although the Army has shared

Army Inaugurates New Self-Service Supply Distribution

Washington (AFPS) — The Army Quartermaster Corps plans to imitate supermarkets in an effort to streamline methods of distribution. A new self-service supply system soon will be tested at Ft. Lee, Va., and Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Office supplies, brooms, brushes soaps and low-cost spare parts will be displayed on shelves and marked with prices.

Instead of present item allowances, units will be issued monetary allowances and permitted to "shop" at the supply centers for expendable items.

This system, the Army said, will eliminate requisition slips and cut down on paper work. A cash-register tape listing of the supplies "purchased" will replace the forms presently prepared.

The first center will open at Ft. Lee on 1 Nov. The Ft. Lewis center will open at a later date. Both will be operated on a test basis.

the national advantage derived from the increased number of young men receiving advanced schooling at high school and college levels, General Taylor said that judging from his experiences in Korea as 8th Army commander, illiteracy is still a problem facing American schools.

He then went on to elaborate the various programs employed by the Army to reduce illiteracy and also to raise the overall educational levels of enlisted men and officers.

In pointing up the greater need for increased physical training in the American schools, General

Staff Assignment

Commanding General Names 'Pointer As New Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3

Colonel Franklin G. Smith has been named by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, to succeed Colonel Stacy W. Gooch as assistant chief of staff for plans and operations, G-3. Colonel Gooch now becomes the section executive officer. Colonel Smith comes to his new assignment from the U. S. Army Group, Joint American Military Mission, Ankara, Turkey, where he served in a similar capacity for the past two years.

A graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, class of '33, Colonel Smith's assignment to the Presidio completes a cycle of family military tradition. His grandfather, the late Brigadier General Franklin G. Smith, commanded Ft. McDowell on Angel Island and Ft. Alcatraz following the Civil War.

Prior to his assignment in Turkey, Colonel Smith attended the Army War College at Carlisle, Pa. He had previously spent four years in Department of the Army G-1 Section at the Pentagon in Washington, D. C., and two years as commandant of the Officers' Candidate School at Ft. Sill, Oklahoma.

Colonel Smith was serving with G-4, Third Army, at the outbreak of WWII. He later joined the 2nd Cavalry Division and served as division G-1 and G-4, following which he served with Headquarters, Armed Forces, Western Pacific and with the 8th Army in Japan.

A graduate of the Command and General Staff School, Colonel Smith has also completed the Field Artillery School Regular Course. He is credited with attendance at the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va.

Colonel Smith has been decorated with the Legion of Merit; Bronze Star Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster; the Commendation Ribbon with two Oak

Colonel Smith

Leaf Clusters and numerous theatre ribbons.

A native of California, Colonel Smith spent his early years in Redlands, where his mother, Marjorie F. Smith, still resides. A brother, Rodney D. Smith, is professor of history at San Mateo Jr. College. Another brother, Latimer F. Smith, is a Los Angeles businessman.

Colonel Smith and his wife, Ruth, and son, Douglas C., eight, reside in quarters on the Presidio. Two other children, Franklin G. Smith, III, 18, attending Kendall School in Washington, D.C., and daughter, Linda C. Smith, 17, attending Ramona Convent, Alhambra, Calif., complete the family circle.

First of Six-Month Trainees Leave For Ord from Presidio

The first group of young men from the Bay Area who enlisted in the Army under the recently-enacted Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1955, left from the Presidio of San Francisco Monday for Fort Ord to begin their six months of active duty training.

The group, consisting of 17 young men between the ages of 17 and 18 and one-half, were greeted upon their arrival on the Presidio, by Brig. General Claude F. Burbach, Chief of the California Military District, which administers all Army Reserve activities in Northern California.

A clothing check, records inspection and tour of the Presidio followed.

During a steak luncheon with the 21st Engineer Base Photo company at Fort Scott, they were addressed by Major General William F. Dean, deputy commanding general, Sixth Army, following which they left for Fort Ord.

At Ord they will take the regular eight weeks of basic training, followed by specialized training in appropriate branches of service. The active duty tour will be in the grade of private and the pay will be $50 a month.

Early in their training the young soldiers will be given full information on the Army's obligations and responsibilities in such matters as pay, government insurance, soldier's indemnity, disability benefits and reemployment rights.

At the end of the basic combat phase, each trainee will be given two weeks' leave before reporting for second and third phase training. Second phase will be individual and third phase will be unit training in specialized branches. Selection for various branches will be made during basic and will be determined for each recruit by his individual desires and aptitudes and the overall requirements of the service.

Trainees slated for the Infantry, Adjutant General, Finance and Military Government will return to Fort Ord.

Those selected for Antiaircraft Artillery will report to Fort Bliss, Texas; Armor to Fort Knox, Kentucky; Engineer to Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri; Signal and Military Police to Camp Gordon, Georgia; Ordnance to Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland; Transportation to Fort Eustis, Virginia; Medical to Fort Sam Houston, Texas; and Quartermaster to Fort Lee, Virginia.

Upon completing their six months of active duty, the men will return to their Army Reserve units to complete their eight-year enlistments by participating in weekly Reserve unit training. A liberalized enlistment quota for Army Reserve units has been authorized to enable them to absorb these trainees when they return home.

Work Simplification Course At CMD Is Well Attended

Fifty military and civilian supervisors recently completed a Work Simplification course conducted at Headquarters California Military District, Presidio of San Francisco.

The eight-hour course covers specific work simplification techniques such as flow process, work distribution charts, and layout studies. Recent Department of the Army films were utilized.

Brigadier General Claude F. Burbach gave the opening address.

Top supervisors who had previously taken the course were given a two-hour orientation in lieu of the complete curriculum.

Instructors were Lt. Col. Frank P. Wilson, CMD Comptroller, Mr. Samuel R. Dows and Mr. Richard Claussenius of the CMD Management Division.

The course will result in further savings in manpower, materials and money as a part of the district's overall management improvement for Fiscal Year 1956.

Taylor Speech

Taylor stated that the Army's experience is "that young men will react to the challenge of high physical standards when stimulated by qualified leaders."

"The success of exacting physical courses such as those required for parachutists and for rangers indicates that the young men of America can be taught to like hard things . . .," the general said and added that "perhaps there is appeal in doing something a little more difficult and exacting than that expected of most men."

General Taylor also said the Army has noticed that today there is less appreciation among young men for the qualities of honor and integrity than in the past.

The home, the religious institution and the schools, General Taylor felt to be most responsible for the character development in American youth and that it is in these three vital areas that respect for honor and integrity are born.

Closing his speech, General Taylor said that although the Army as a receiver of the product of American schools has been aware of certain educational deficiencies, that the "Army is on your side in seeking to develop young men who are vigorous in mind and body and who are morally and spiritually sound."

One of Army's Top Penology Authorities Dies at Lompoc, Calif.

One of the Military Police Corps top authorities in the field of military penology, Lieutenant Colonel Raymond E. Klein passed away recently in his home at Lompoc, California. Colonel Klein was deputy commandant of the U. S. Army Disciplinary Barracks there.

A native of Brooklyn, New York, Colonel Klein first entered the New York National Guard 25 years ago. In 1942 he was activated as an officer with the newly-established Military Police Corps.

After serving three years in the European Theater of Operations during WWII, Colonel Klein returned stateside for duty with the Green Haven and Ft. Hancock Disciplinary Barracks in New York and the New Cumberland DB's in Pennsylvania.

With the United Nations Forces in Korea, he was a Provost at the Prisoner of War Exchange. He is survived by his wife Bethena, and four children.

officers recently assigned

Lt. Colonel LESTER B. JOHNSON has become survey officer, manpower division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. He has just returned from service in the Far East that began in Korea in 1952 and 1953, when he was with the Korean Communications zone and the 25th Division. For the past two years, he has been deputy chief of staff, Headquarters Central Command, Tokyo.

In the Army for 15 years, Colonel Johnson started his World War II overseas service with the 37th Infantry in the Aleutian Islands, and later went to the European theatre for three years where he served in combat with the 42nd Division and after the war with 7th Army Headquarters, and Headquarters U. S. Constabulary.

In 1950-51, the colonel attended the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia, and has been decorated with the Combat Infantry Badge, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Commendation Ribbon with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Colonel and Mrs. Johnson and their three daughters are now residing in Park Merced.

Lt. Colonel RICHARD C. McDOWELL, in the Army for the past 15 years, is now with the G-2 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army. The past three years, Colonel McDowell has been in Germany, 30 months with the 6th Infantry Regiment and the first six months as S-3, Hohenfels Training area.

For courageous action on Luzon during World War II while serving with the 40th Division, Colonel McDowell was decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross. He served in the Pacific for a total of 42 months.

Mrs. McDowell and the couple's six children will join the colonel here shortly.

Lt. Colonel GEORGE B. JORDAN is newly assigned as chief operations branch, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His recent three-year tour in Germany was divided into two assignments of about equal length, first as commander, 3rd battalion, 6th Infantry, 1st Division, Bamberg, Germany, and last as G-3, 8th Infantry Division, Goepingen.

In the China - Burma - India theatre during World War II, Colonel Jordan was battalion commander with a MARS Task Force that operated along the Burma Road.

With the Army the past 14 years, he colonel attended the advanced course, the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia, 1948-49, and the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, 1951-52. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and the Combat Infantry Badge.

Major HELEN H. HART is the newest arrival at the Public Information section of Headquarters Sixth Army. She has been the PIO at the WAC center, Fort McClellan, Alabama, since its opening, in June, 1954, prior to which she was PIO of the old WAC center at Fort Lee, Virginia.

Entering the then WAAC in 1942, Major Hart was among the first class to train at Fort Des Moines, Iowa. Her first duty following O.C.S. was with the office of the chief of Chemical warfare, for which service she was awarded the Commendation Ribbon. In 1946, she served with the G-1 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army.

During 1947-50, the major was in Germany, serving first in the G-1 division, 1st Military District, Bad Tolz, and later as PIO, Frankfurt Military Post.

Upon her return to this country, Major Hart, who is a graduate of the PIO school, was assigned as executive officer, Public Information division, the National Guard bureau, Washington, D. C., for nearly three years until ordered to Fort Lee.

Captain MELVILLE C. WILSON Jr., only recently returned from a 26-months tour in the Far East and has now reported for duty with the Judge Advocate section, Headquarters Sixth Army. While overseas he was with the JA sections of first the 8th Army in Seoul, Korea, for 10 months, and later with Headquarters Central Command in Tokyo for 16 months.

In the Navy for four years during World War II, Captain Wilson was then enlisted, and when discharged in December, 1945, his rating was signalman first class. He served six months on troop transports to Sicily and North Africa, followed by two years on patrol craft duty in that sector, taking part in the invasions of Sicily and southern France.

Following graduation from the University of South Carolina, class of 1950, with a B.S. in political science and an L.L.B., the captain practiced law for a year in Charleston, South Carolina, before accepting a Reserve commission in the ORC on 1 April 1951. He was integrated into the regular Army in July 1952.

His decorations include the Commendation ribbon, Navy Good Conduct Medal, the ETO ribbon with two battle stars, and the Korean Presidential Unit citation. Captain and Mrs. Wilson now make their home in San Francisco.

CWO EASIL E. HAYNES has reported for duty as assistant crypto security officer with the Sixth Army Communications center.

His recent 30-months overseas tour was in Trieste where he was in charge of the Communications center.

With 26 years of Army service, Mr. Haynes was with the Army Transport service during World War II, and received his warrant in 1951.

Mr. and Mrs. Haynes and their two sons are residing in quarters on the Presidio.

Captain FRANCIS A. HASTIE, who has just completed a three year tour of duty as Commanding Officer of the Reproduction Company, 656th Engineer Battalion (Topo, Army) in Germany, has been reassigned to the 30th Engineer Group (Topographic Survey).

Captain Hastie received his commission through the Engineer O.C.S. at Fort Belvoir, in 1942.

During World War II Captain Hastie served with the 664th Engineer Company (Topo, Corps) and with the 649th Engineer Battalion (Topo, Army) in North Africa.

Upon his return from North Africa, the captain spent two years with the Department of Topography, the Engineer School, Fort Belvoir, Virginia and was then assigned to the 64th Engineer Battalion (Base, Topo) in Japan. Captain Hastie remained with the 64th for three years, before returning to the United States.

The captain and his wife reside on the Presidio with their thirteen-year-old daughter and ten-year-old son.

U.S. Army soldiers are trained to use the bayonet in instances during combat when they cannot fire their rifles because of close quarters or low visibility.

Mutual Goals!

Education Program Featured At Next Information Sessions

The Army's troop education program packs a two-fold wallop—it helps to make the soldier better able to absorb military training and at the same time it gives official recognition to self-improvement through voluntary off-duty study.

Confidence, mature judgment, leadership potential, and an increased understanding of professional, technical and scientific subjects, the Army regards as being goals of the troop education program which tend to make military training more effective.

This week the troop information period at Presidio and sub-post units will be devoted to an explanation of the Army's many-faceted troop education programs.

The Army also hopes that by giving the soldier a chance to make up educational deficiencies it will increase the likelihood of the soldier remaining on extended active military service.

The highest priorities in the troop education program are given soldiers with less than a 4th grade education, troops with less than an 8th grade education or equivalent, and personnel requiring MOS related instruction and English language instruction.

Locally, this phase of the troop education program is fulfilled by providing on-post classes in intermediate education during off-duty hours, and through the administration of the USAFI achievement tests. Personnel successfully completing the intermediate education studies are granted San Francisco 8th Grade Diplomas.

On the high school level, group study classes are held on-post in review English, review arithmetic, general science and U. S. History and Constitution. Completion of these four courses along with the passing of the High School GED tests meets the requirements for San Francisco high school diplomas.

Additional high school studies are available to local personnel at city high schools through the San Francisco Unified School District's Adult Education program.

On-post college courses are offered qualified military personnel by the San Francisco State College. Enrollees pay a registration of $7.50 and the post T.I.&E. division pays the additional instructor's fee.

For enrollments in Bay Area colleges, the Army pays 75 per cent of the tuition fee up to $7.50 per unit. This applies to personnel who have completed less than four years of college.

Registration for enrollment in USAFI elementary high school and college self-teaching and correspondence courses can also be arranged through the Army Education Center.

Other services handled at the center include GED and vocational testing, individual counseling and administration locally of the Department of the Army's college program for officers.

Colonel Hettrich

Colonel Hettrich Assumes Command Of 46th Ordnance

Just prior to the departure of major elements of the 46th Ordnance Group for Camp Polk, Louisiana, for duty as a provisional group with Exercise SAGE BRUSH, Col. Albert L. Hettrich has assumed command of the organization. He succeeds Lt. Col. John D. Bowersock who is slated to retire here soon.

Colonel Hettrich comes to the Presidio from the Ordnance Automotive School which he served as commandant since June, 1953. No newcomer to the Presidio, the colonel was with the Ordnance Section, Headquarters Sixth Army from 1947 until early 1949.

Assigned briefly to the Ordnance Section, GHQ, FECOM in 1949, Colonel Hettrich was later named Chief Ordnance Advisor to the Korean Army, a job which earned him the Legion of Merit.

In WWII, he served as 351st Ordnance Battalion commander from early 1944 to 1946. It was during this tour of duty in the China-Burma-India theater that Colonel Hettrich was awarded the Bronze Star.

Colonel Hettrich began his military career in 1931 as an enlisted man following attendance at North Dakota State College. In 1937 he received a reserve commission as a Second Lieutenant and just before the outbreak of the Second World War, was called to active duty.

Among Colonel Hettrich's first duties as 46th Ordnance Group commander is the organization of the 46th Maintenance Service Group (provisional) which will soon participate in the mammoth Army-Air Force maneuver, Exercises SAGE BRUSH.

As soon as the gulf-state operation is over, the Colonel's wife and three sons will join him in local quarters. Colonel Hettrich is a native of Portland, Oregon.

MDA Program

Sixth Army Will Host Three Groups High Japanese Military

Presidio of San Francisco will be host to three groups of high-ranking officers of the Japanese Ground Self Defense Force during the period 8-12 October. Two of the parties are arriving from Japan to tour U. S. Army installations under the auspices of the Mutual Defense Assistance Program, while the third group is preparing to return to Japan after spending three weeks in this country observing training methods and equipment.

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander, and Mrs. Young, will hold a reception for the Japanese generals and their parties at their Presidio quarters, Sunday night, 9 October.

First to arrive this weekend will be a party of five Japanese officers, docking at Fort Mason from Japan on the U.S.S. General Gaffey on Saturday morning, 8 October. The group will include Major General Kiyoshi Hasebe, assistant director, Defense Staff College; Major General Tokuo Nojiri, Sixth Division deputy commander; Colonel Seiichi Yoshie, Ground Staff deputy chief of staff; Colonel Toshii Watanabe, Ground Staff programs branch chief; and Colonel Tsukashi Higura, Ground Staff, Comptroller Division branch chief.

Arriving at San Francisco International Airport from Denver,

Colonel, on Saturday afternoon will be Lieutenant General Kan Ohmori, 1st Division commander; Lieutenant General Makoto Matsutani, 4th Division commander; Lieutenant General Kumao Imoto, Secretariat, Joint Staff Council, Defense Agency; Major General Tomio Kano, Deputy Commander, Northern Corps; and Colonel Yoshifusa Amano, Deputy Chief, D-4, Ground Staff. Major Charles H. Fogg, California Military District, is the tour director. The party will visit the Army Language School at Monterey, Calif., before returning to Japan.

Sunday morning, 9 October, Lieutenant General Takeo Tsutsui, Chief of Ground Staff, Defense Agency, and Major General Shinobu Takayama, Chief of G-4, will arrive at Travis Air Force Base from Japan by way of Honolulu. They will be accompanied by Major General Sakamoto, aide-de-camp to General Tsutsui, and Captain Susumu Toyoda, U. S. Army, tour director.

67 Shopping Days

to Christmas! Nerve-racking isn't it! But Toyland on the Presidio is now officially open for you to browse and buy. Located in Bldg. 1139, Toyland features the biggest and best line yet of colorful Christmas merchandise for little ones of all ages. Brig. General P. I. Robertson, Letterman Army hospital commander, was on hand to officiate at the ribbon-cutting ceremonies opening Toyland. With him are, l. to r.: Colonel E. T. Sheen, executive officer, LAH, Lt. Colonel A. R. Traynor, Post S-1, Presidio of San Francisco, and Major B. F. Muse, Bay Area Exchange officer.

With Wide Choice!

Toyland Opens for 1955 Season in New Location at Letterman Hospital

Toyland is once more officially open on the Presidio of San Francisco.

Biggest change this year is in the location of the shop, which is now situated in Building 1139, just off Sternberg Road in the east Letterman Army Hospital area.

Featuring an unusually large assortment of toys, the shop will be open Monday through Friday from 1000 to 1800 and Saturdays from 1000 to 1300. There is a lay-away plan available, as well as a counter where purchasers may wrap for mailing.

Also featured will be a complete line of Christmas cards and wrappings and Christmas decorations for the home.

Of special interest to fathers will be a complete line of hobby electrical trains, real dreams, as well as the standard American Flyer models.

Then, of course, there are dolls of every type and description, baking sets, stuffed cuddly toys, bicycles and tricycles, push and pull toys, furniture, blocks, tea sets, Christmas stockings, doll buggies, musical toys, toy kitchen utensils, balls, and more things than you can name.

Best thing to do is to go shopping—you are sure to find what you are looking for, especially this early in the Christmas shopping game.

Half-Way Turn

Presidio Crusade Campaign Inches Up to $16,000 Mark

The Post United Crusade Campaign advanced cautiously all along the front this week, reaching the $16,000 line by Wednesday, according to Major Elsie Weible, co-chairman of the Presidio drive.

Most recent tallies showed a $6,000 increase over last week's $10,000 total. The $16,000 sum moves the Post a little more than half way toward its ultimate $30,000 objective.

Of the present donations, nearly $11,000 is in cash, the remaining $5,000 in pledges.

The Presidio campaign is part of this year's Bay Area United Crusade drive. Representing 288 charities in San Francisco and four surrounding counties, the Crusade's objective is $10,000,000.

In this year's campaign, the military has been assigned a specific mission, Operation 288. Heading the military operation is Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander. This week General Young released a recent statement by General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, to the Sixth Army.

Said General Taylor, speaking of the Community Chest campaigns in local communities all over the country (The United Crusade is the Bay Area equivalent of the Community Chest in other parts of the country):

"The members of the Army have always demonstrated an interest in the communities in which they are stationed and have established a splendid record in assuming their obligations as community residents. . . . Whenever they have been given the opportunity of contributing to this humanitarian

A fog shrouded radar sentinel listens . . . a sleek action ready Nike stands by . . . DEFENDERS EVER READY!

A Birdseye View of Operation Bay Area Defense

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

The citizen press has just had a great big look at Nike. More particularly, at Nike sites and installations in the Bay Area.

And it was something to see!

For photographer Pvt. Richard Christiansen and me, and maybe for a lot of other members of the press who spent a day on the guided tour, it belongs to the "stuff you don't believe until you see it" class.

Nike is a gleaming jewel; an almost brainy thing. We looked at it poised at launcher sites ready to leap at a quick command and tear hostile objects out of the sky.

It can make you feel small and awfully unimportant.

Yet actually it is only a weapon — controlled completely by the Army's antiaircraft artillery man.

How men control it, watch over it and keep it fit, and determine by radar to launcher to radar to launcher, a sort of ricochet romance, just when to send it aloft to do its job, could conceivably be the story of the year were it possible to enlarge on all facets of the operation.

Security still curtains a portion of the operation, but enough restrictions were lifted recently to permit Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, and Major General Hobart Hewitt, commander of the 6th Antiaircraft Regional Command, to co-host a tour for Northern California press media.

In their opening remarks of welcome, both generals traced the history of AAA under whom Nike has functioned since its birthday some 10 years ago. They explained land acquisition for Nike sites, pointing out that 45 per cent of the local sites were on federal land, 25 per cent on state and municipal land and the remaining 30 per cent on private land.

Colonel Dallas F. Haynes, commanding officer, 30th Antiaircraft Group, lauded the high calibre of troops who man these installations. Whether with launcher platoons or radar control areas, each man is a specialist in his field and as such shares equally the responsibility of the operation of protecting our coastline from surprise attack.

While at a launcher site, with "C" Battery, 740th AAA Gun Bn., we talked to Sgt. John C. Roehm, Jr., 26 months in the Army, the last 16 of them with his present battery, whose skill has earned him the position of section chief, supervising men in the ready operation for the guided missile.

From Little Rock, Arkansas, Sgt. Roehm went to Fort Bliss, Texas, for his basic training, followed by eight months at the Guided Missile Troop Training Specialist School there.

His position in the battery makes it necessary for him to know pretty much the technical ins and outs of Nike, and how to keep it in tip-top shape. And there are men like him in every launcher platoon, both officer and enlisted, upon whom the complete success of any guided missile operation depends.

The launcher area itself is compact and intriguing. It has, in a word, everything. Everything to launch a Nike, that is, except the radars.

There is a missile assembly and test section where Nike is processed. It is shipped, booster and missile separate, in sealed, pressurized containers, and in this area it is assembled and inspected for any damage or defects prior to being tested internally, and sent on to the fueling area.

The fueling and joining area

where the missile is fueled and joined to its booster contains a wealth of safety equipment for obvious reasons. The men are completely enveloped in heavy safety clothing, and there is a deluge shower as well as a fire truck and ambulance standing by inches from the operation.

In the actual launcher section each section is equipped with four launchers one on an elevator and three satellites which are stationary above ground. Under the launchers is a mammoth concrete missile storage room and a smaller room for personnel shelter and control. The missiles are transported topside by means of a hydraulic elevator.

"Standing guard" over all this is the launcher control trailer in which is located a switchboard for inter-area communications as well as communications with the control area and control panels for the launchers.

But it is in the radar control area where the first hint of possible action for Nike is received.

Glued to Bay Area hilltops, sort of hugging the terrain and breathing nice dense fog, are the control batteries, one for each of the launcher sections.

In operation 24 hours a day these control areas search the skies ceaselessly looking for trouble in the form of hostile craft.

Our choice to represent "F" battery in this area was Sfc. Eugene Tolliver, World War II and Korean combat veteran, and presently section chief, of the acquisition and computer section. This means that Sgt. Tolliver and his crew spend their duty hours on the maintenance and operation of guided missile radar.

Sgt. Tolliver must know just about everything there is to know about this business. Schooled to the nth degree, he has been to the 10 months Fire Control Electrician's School, the 16 weeks Fire Control Repair School, the 12 weeks AAA Radio Repair School, 12 weeks of O.C.S., 47 weeks at the M-33 Radar School and 47 weeks at the Guided Missile School. He joined Bay Area AAA three years ago, and has been with his present battery since last March.

High on that windy hill, we could make out huge, intricate-looking equipment that was keeping busy.

There is the acquisition radar antenna, a rectangular-shaped thing which is constantly searching

What's That One? asks Cub Scout Austin Edwards, as he newly acquired bronze palm for his Eagle Scout badge. Boy Scout Francis Barnes looks on in fascination too, while Cub Scout Robert Maguire has an eye for the photographer. Occasion for the gathering was the first joint Explorer Scout, Boy Scout and Cub Scout Court of Honor held in the history of Post Troop 77, Presidio of San Francisco. Several hundred young men were present and 120 merit badges were awarded in addition to other Scouting honors.

Some Record!

Scout Troop 77 Holds Joint Awards Court; Presents 121 Merit Badges

If you have never attended a Boy Scout Court of Honor, you don't know what you are missing. And if it should happen to be a combined court for Explorer, Boy and Cub Scouts, THAT is really something to see! 'Course it doesn't happen that way very often. In fact, when Presidio Troop No. 77 held its affair last Friday night, they managed a first in this respect, getting together a couple hundred of young men of all ages, their parents, and Troop and Scouting executives.

All this lasted far into the evening but no one seemed to want to go home even after the refreshments were served and consumed.

Almost as impressive as the closing prayer by Chaplain (Major) Henry C. Butt, Post Chaplain, given in a darkened auditorium while "Taps" was softly hummed, was the beginning ceremony, also presented with lights out save for lighted candles, during which Webelos Cubs, Sam Wilkins and Thomas Sparks left their Cub Scouting days behind them forever as they became full-fledged Boy Scouts.

After these young men had repeated the Scout oath and been accepted into their designated patrol, the interest once more centered on the Cubs (boys eight to 11 years old), who came forward by Dens to receive awards for their various accomplishments during the summer. In each case they were joined at the awards table by proud parents, who watched Lt. Colonel C. A. Barnes, Cub Pack committee chairman, and 1st Lt. George Sparks, Cubmaster, hand them out.

The Cubs then reciprocated with a simple, yet hilarious skit called "The Brutal Miner," which was led by Den Mother Mrs. George Tillery.

Boy Scouts took over the program next, with Colonel H. E. Fillinger, chairman, troop committee, introducing Lt. Colonel R. C. Psaki, representative of the advancement committee, and other troop committeemen.

Advancement to Second Class Scout was awarded to David Parsell and James Wirfs; First Class Scout to Blair Blacker; Star Scout to John Kemble, Michael Kitchen and James Hicks; and Life Scout to Lester Krause, Edward Maguire, James Caldwell, Dean Phelan and Earl Gershenow. In this ceremony also, parents stood behind their sons while the awards were given out.

When it came to merit badges, it became obvious very fast that these Scouts and Explorers had had a busy summer, for there was a total of 121 badges given out, and they were presented by Lt. Colonel William F. Perkins, Troop Committee member.

Boys receiving anywhere from one to 12 of these included Tom Coddington, Edward Maguire, Henry Thomas, Michael Baum, James Hicks, James Psaki, Peter Jegers, George Kuznecovs, Douglas Campbell, John Kemble, James Caldwell, Lester Krause, Dean Phelan, Dan Buttolph, Earl Gershenow, Michael Kitchen, Sidney Glover, Earl Pegram, Blair Blacker, John Depenbrock and Michael Dickey.

The Scout's skit took the form of a "Truth or Consequences" program, with parents as contestants and taking the consequences. It was produced and directed by Lester Krause, senior Patrol leader.

When Explorer Scouts took over, it was to recall briefly, highlights of their summer camping and pack trips into Yosemite and the Crescent M, during which these boys earned many of the merit badges they had just received, and worked on Explorer ratings. Explorer Scout Dan Buttolph was awarded the bronze palm for his Eagle badge, the highest award of the evening, by Lt. Colonel Archie Traynor institutional representative, and the bronze award for earning two Explorer ratings in emergency skills and physical fitness. This is the first time in the history of Troop 77 that the bronze award has been made.

Each Explorer also received the Post Award, National Standard Explorer Unit, and in addition there were numerous emergency service Explorer and apprentice awards made to Post members. Captain M. Woodrome, Ret'd., chairman of the Explorer Post committee, presented the awards.

Explorers also settled the question of who was the champion pie eater of 1955 for Post 77, in a knock-down drag-out pie eating contest between the two top eaters: during the Explorers' camping trips, Edward Maguire and Kelley Bates. In the beginning, it was Maguire and Bates neck and neck with their individual cherry pies but in the end—it was Maguire by a pie crust!

"Don't Give Fire A Place to Start," Theme of '55 Fire Prevention Week

President Eisenhower has proclaimed the week of October 9-15 as Fire Prevention week and he has called upon Americans to reduce "the needless waste caused by preventable fires."

The Presidio and its subposts will observe Fire Prevention week with a campaign under the sponsorship of Colonel William T. Cathcart, post fire marshal and George Geller, post fire chief.

"Don't Give Fire a Place to Start" is the slogan for this year's program which is sponsored nationally by the National Fire Protective association.

Cooperating with the fire department in fire prevention activities are post Girl and Boy Scout Troops. Scouts conduct periodic home inspections and submit reports to the Presidio fire station. They collect old newspapers and discarded household belongings and distribute fire prevention posters and literature.

And the Scouts, along with other post children, will have a ball on Saturday (15 October), when they are guests of the Presidio fire department, who will take them for rides on the fire trucks, and distribute free firemen's helmets, badges and candy. The time is 0900 to 1200 and there will be refreshments for the grownups as well.

Arthur LeDuc, post fire inspector and Scout counsellor in safety and fire prevention, pointed out that this training has paid off for both Girl and Boy Scout Troop headquarters have received membership in the Junior Fire Marshal's association, and a banner and official badges were delivered to all Scouts who participated in fire prevention activities.

Raiders Meet Navy Tomorrow

1955 Duck Season Will Be Delayed

There will be delayed opening days on eight of the state-operated public waterfowl shooting areas due to adjacent unharvested crops, the Department of Fish and Game announced today.

Opening of Grizzly Island, Solano County; Honey Lake and Madeline Plains, Lassen County; Imperial Waterfowl Management area, Imperial County, will be October 15, or the regular beginning of the first half of the waterfowl season.

Other opening dates are: Gray Lodge, Sutter and Colusa areas, Oct. 29; Mendota, San Luis Wasteway and Los Banos areas, Oct. 22; and Merced and Salton Sea federal areas, December 10, or opening day of the second half.

Because crop depredation control plays a major role in the activities of the waterfowl areas, shooting on them must be postponed until nearby crops have been harvested. Otherwise birds will scatter from the management areas to cropland, the Department explained.

Hunters planning to apply for advance reservations on the above areas should not apply for dates in advance of the delayed openings.

Applications for advance reservations, which can be obtained from fish and game license agents, must be at the Sacramento headquarters of the Department two weeks before the shooting date chosen.

Coastal Deer Season Bag Sets Record

In spite of one of the driest and hottest coastal deer hunting seasons in decades, the bag probably will reach the second highest total on record, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

Deer tag returns to the Department as of the second day of the season were 21,650, as compared to 23,839 on the same day last year.

The 1954 season saw a new record bag of 28,076, or about 6,000 more than the average for the previous several years.

Department officials said that when final returns are in, there is a good chance the 1955 total will reach 23,500, or better than the three-year average 1951-1953.

Although the season was a week longer this year than in 1954, the extra hunting time was largely nullified by extreme fire danger and the fact that forest fires were burning in many deer areas.

TIGHT rope walking for six points is Presidio right half Ed Colarossi. Ed scored one touchdown against the San Francisco Navy Shipyards in the first meeting between the two clubs this year on a two yard smash through right tackle. The Red Raiders play the Navy boys tomorrow afternoon in the second half of their round robin schedule.

Presidio Plays Host to Navy 'Pachunter' Eleven

The Presidio Red Raiders, fresh from a 25-7 victory over the Edwards AFB eleven, engage an up and coming Pachunter squad from the San Francisco Naval Shipyards. Kickoff time is slated for 1400 hours tomorrow afternoon on the Fort Scott turf.

AF Survival Area Open to Public Hunting

The Air Force has announced it will open the survival training area adjacent to Dixie Mountain Refuge in Plumas County to deer hunting for the entire inland deer season beginning 24 September.

But the Department of Fish and Game stressed that the refuge itself will be closed to hunting.

Air Force personnel will man nine check points around the perimeter of the survival training area. Airmen in the check points will inform the public about the training program, and on safety measures necessary within the area.

Air Force personnel within the area during the hunting season will conspicuously mark themselves with red parachute material. The public has been asked not to give the trainees food, transportation or other assistance.

A limited number of maps describing the area are available at the Department of Fish and Game Region II office, 1215—16th Street, or headquarters, 926 J Street, both in Sacramento.

Head Coach Larry McInerney's grid machine will be in quest of their fourth win of the current pigskin season as against a single defeat. The Raiders have rolled over the likes of S. F. Shipyard, Alameda Naval Air Station and the Edwards AFB. Their lone loss came at the hands of the powerful Chico State College eleven, 12-6.

The hard charging Presidio footballers rolled up 465 net yards running and passing in their first encounter this year against the Pachunter team as they rolled to 32-7 triumph.

Topping the Raider backs in scoring in the earlier Pachunter game was fleetfooted left half Jim Guimarin, who rolled for two TD's. Others scoring were right half Calorossi, left half Kozlowski and fullback Edwards.

Probable starting line-up for the Pachunters will be Helmolds and Cain at the ends, Taylor and Ray tackles, Rivas and Whitaker guards, and Gibson at the center post.

Tom Montague will probably start at the important quarterback slot with Green at fullback. The halfbacks will be Bradd and Scott. Scott scored the only Naval touchdown in the first meeting between the two clubs when he raced 65 yards on a cross buck in the fourth quarter.

Pentathlon

Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. (AFPS)—The Army has designated Ft. Sam Houston as the permanent training site for the armed forces modern pentathlon team and the U. S. squad in this sport.

Pentathlon candidates will train for the 1956 Olympics on a part-time basis from Dec. 1, 1955 to June 17, 1956, and on a full-time basis from June 18 to Nov. 10, 1956.

MRU and AAA Set For Final Volleyball Games

Two volleyball teams remain in contention for the Presidio intra-mural volleyball championship this week. They are the 102nd MRU club in the American League and the Headquarters Company of the 752nd AAA in the National loop. Each of these teams boast perfect 6 and 0 records and with but one game remaining for each are expected to come out on top.

The two teams will meet next Monday and Wednesday nights at 1830 hours in the Fort Scott gym for the golden trophy symbolizing Presidio champions. The playoff tilts will be two out of three matches with three games making one match. The winning squad will form the nucleus of the Presidio team that goes to Fort Ord, 24-28 October, for the Sixth Army Championships.

Named to coach the Presidio squad in the All-Sixth Army matches was Major Bob Jones of the 56th MRU. A Phi Beta Kappa, Bob was a three-year varsity letterman end while attending the University of Southern California.

His volleyball coaching record includes his MRU squad winning the Far East championship and representing the Far East in the All-Army playoffs in 1950. In 1953 Bob coached the Washington, D. C., YMCA club that won the Philadelphia Open Tournament and the Eastern Regional Tourney in Camden, New Jersey.

Last year while stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Bob was head of the Indianapolis "Y" team.

Post Bowlers Drop Series In SF Match

Last Friday the Presidio Bowling Team dropped a two out of three game series to the Roselli's Restaurant crew while rolling in the downtown Bagdad "900" classic. The Presidio bowlers won the second game of the series, setting a new high for the soldier rollers and coming within two pins of the league record.

The Presidio squad was tied for first place prior to the loss but so closely bunched are the teams that the loss dropped them down to fifth place in the league standing.

Team members with their total scores for the three game bowl are Jacobs 588, Hoffacker 511, Taylor 460, Johnson 506, and Murphy 564 for a grand total of 2629 pins smashed.

The San Francisco league meets each Friday night at the Bagdad Bowl, 27th and Noriega, at 2100 hours. Post personnel are urged to come out and support their team.

Red Raiders' Long Knives Clip Edwards AF Wings

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Roaring back from a 7-7 half time deadlock the Presidio Red Raiders roared to 18 points in the last half to defeat the Edwards Air Force Wings, 25-7, last Saturday on the Fort Scott field.

Left half Jim Guimarin and fullback Bobby Ratliff each scored a pair of touchdowns to pace the Red Raiders to their victory of the 1955 season as against a single defeat.

Big Frank McDonnel, Raider center, kicked off to start the seesaw first quarter. The elusive pigskin changed hands no less than five times during the first five minutes of action.

The break finally came when Doug Weaver, Presidio guard, fell on an Edwards fumble and the Raiders took over on the Wings' 20. Presidio quarterback Dodson, filling in for the injured Morris Maytubby, sneaked to the 18; on the next play the Raiders were offside and were penalized back to the 23. Fullback Ratliff was stopped after a one-yard gain at tackle, setting up a third and 13 situation.

Quarterback Dodson then faked the ball to Ratliff and fired a perfect strike to Guimarin on the five where in Guimarin eased over for the first TD of the afternoon. Ratliff added the extra point with John Mahoney holding and the Presidio led 7-0.

Midway in the second quarter the Edwardsmen started to roll behind the throwing arm of Bob Poole. Using a spread formation, Poole hit LE Burke on the Raider 26; Poole then scampered to the 15; Poole hit Christman on the six and the Wing were set, first down and goal to go.

Here the Raider line, sparked by Snyder and Weaver, stiffened, and the count went to fourth and six to go for the TD. QB Poole then faked a run at left end and tossed to Carter in the end zone for six points. Poole passed to RE Wilcox for the extra point and the half ended, seven all.

Frank McDonnel kicked off to Edwards to set the second half under way. The Wings couldn't get steam up and the Raiders took over on the Edwards' 45.

Presidio QB Dodson fired a bullet pass to end Dick Piggot on the Wing 26 and the Red Raiders were on the march. Lefthalf Guimarin picked up three yards at tackle; Colarossi dove for six more at left guard; and Dodson quarterback sneaked to the 15-yard line and a first down. Ratliff plunged to the 13 and Colarossi churned around left end to the six. Ratliff then took a pitch out and scampered around right end, behind a great block by Jerry Nims, for six points. Ratliff's conversion attempt was wide and the Presidio led 13-7.

Edwards' halfback Atkinson took the next kickoff on his 20, and rolled to the 32 before Crane stopped him. Two running plays netted 12 yards and then lightning in the form of Raider halfback Guimarin struck. The speedy halfback snared an Edwards pass on his 45 and sprinted 55 yards for his second TD of the game. Ratliff's conversion from the 17, after a holding penalty, was short and the score stood 19-7 in favor of the Raiders.

The Wings took the next kickoff and marched to their 45-yard stripe before they were stopped by the combined efforts of Wilson, Lewis, Macias, Lowen and Trotter in the Presidio defensive lineup.

Here the Raiders started their last touchdown march sparked by the running of Guimarin, Colarossi and Ratliff. Seven plays later they stood on the Wing's five-yard stripe as the quarter ended.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, big Bobby Ratliff rolled around right end for the score, his second of the afternoon. His conversion attempt was wide and the score stood 25-7.

Neither side could come with a scoring drive till midway in the fourth quarter when Edwards' sub-quarterback Christman threw 26 yards to Naylor in the end zone. However a Wing's lineman was detected holding and the TD was

basketball

Presidio sports director Hal Fischer announced this week that Post intra-mural basketball play will begin the middle of next month. Personnel interested in becoming coaches and managers for teams from any units, companies or clubs on post should contact the Post Sports Office. The coaches and managers will be placed on TDY for one day late this month to attend a basketball clinic to be held in the Letterman Gym under the auspices of the Sports Office. Coach Fischer said "we will spend the morning going over rules and regulations and the Post basketball team will demonstrate casaba techniques in the afternoon."

called back and the Raiders took over on downs.

The Raiders drove to the Edwards' 30-yard line before their attack bogged down and the Wings took over on downs.

Powerful Dick Wenke, Raider guard, broke through on the next play from scrimmage to belt Christman so hard he fumbled, and Wenke fell on the pigskin for the Presidio on the Wings' 25.

On the last play of the game, Presidio QB Pat Logan fired a short pass to the left flat where Edwards' halfback Franklin gathered in the ball and ran it back to the Raider 20 before he was hauled down from behind.

huachuca wins

A high spirited Fort Huachuca eleven smashed the El Paso Red Devils for an overwhelming 55-0 win in their opening game last week at Fort Huachuca.

Quarterbacks Frank Reeves and Bud Hales led the White & Gold scoring with two TD's each.

Fort Huachuca journeys to San Francisco November 26 to meet the Presidio Red Raiders in the Raiders' last game of the current season.

Ord Warriors Drub Marines For 3rd Win

Showing great offensive punch, the Fort Ord Warriors rolled to eight touchdowns to smash the San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot Devil Dogs, 51-18 last week at Fort Ord.

Pacing the Ord victory was speedy right halfback Alex Burl of Colorado A & M, scoring two touchdowns; a pair of scoring pass receptions by end Ron Miller of USC, and three lightning touchdowns on first plays from scrimmage.

The Warriors had a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage after halfback Paul Cameron, UCLA All-American, returned the kickoff from the six to the 31. Former USC and San Francisco 49er star Jimmy Powers then hurled a 39 yard pass to Miller, who caught it behind the Marine safety man on the MCRD 30 and raced over for the first score on a play covering 69 yards.

J. D. Roberts and Jackie Ging, Oklahoma standouts in '53, are on the Quantico, Va., grid squad.

Dispensary Rollers Grab First In Pacific League

The Post Dispensary rollers shot into the lead in the Pacific Bowling League with a sizzling 56-24 mark in league action. Individual high game of the week went to Bragg of the League leading Dispensary with a 243 roll. The medics captured high team game with handicap honors with 1166 pins smashed.

The Army medics also captured the high team series with handicap when they knocked down 3145 wooden pins.

Receiving "200" game awards his week were: Bragg, Dispensary, 243; Ward, Dispensary, 206; Macias, Dispensary, 203; and Brown of Hqs. Co., Station Complement with a 203.

Over in the National League the Masonites climbed out of last week's tie for first to take over undisputed ownership of the top spot. Moving up a notch from last week the Soltechs advanced into second place just ahead of the third-place Hilltoppers and the fourth-place Hooks.

Holding the high individual series honors so far on league action is Green of the King Pins with a 572 mark. High individual game award goes to Yeager of the Soltechs with a sizzling 251. Only "200" game award so far goes to Green of the King Pins with 204.

pirates win

The Naval Treasure Island football team edged the San Francisco State Jayvees, 14-13, last weekend at Treasure Island. The margin of victory was Gene Wellman's two conversion kicks. The Red Raiders journey to Treasure Island on the fourteenth of October for their clash with the Pirates.

Gulf-State Maneuver!

Company B MPs Among First To Serve With 'Sage Brush'

Company B, 505th MP Battalion, tucked another "first" under the local MP Battalion's expanding belt line recently when they became the first unit in the Military Police Corps to serve with the mammoth Army-Air Force maneuver, Exercise SAGE BRUSH, which is centered at Camp Polk, Louisiana.

In some respects the company, commanded by Capt. Francis Hoskins, was a little more than "first" since it arrived at the Louisiana marshlands more than two months before the big nuclear, air-land maneuver, is slated to begin, 8 November.

Part of the Presidio-based unit, a total of 60 officers and enlisted men, made the nearly 2000 mile journey across the hot and arid Southwest in a convoy of 60 military vehicles.

The remainder of the company, 103 officers and enlisted men, were flown to the sprawling site of the largest Army-Air Force maneuver to be staged since the close of WWII.

First SAGE BRUSH task of the much-traveled local MPs was to establish Military Police operations at Camp Polk which had been in moth balls for more than two years.

There they handle a broad variety of routine Military Police operations, including the manning of the installation PMO and stockade.

One of the first public relations chores which the local MPs tackled occurred recently when the unit took part in a western Louisiana parade which opened a week-long festival in Leesville, Louisiana.

Town patrol in more than a score of Louisiana communities affords Company B of the 505th additional opportunity for helping the Army team keep its best foot forward.

When the gigantic, air-land maneuver gets underway in November, Baker Company MPs will be called upon to exhibit an extensive range of combat skills for which they have been trained at the Presidio and at other Sixth Army installations.

Since nearly 110,000 soldiers and 30,000 airmen will participate in the huge war games, one of the big jobs of the local MPs will be traffic control operations in the maneuver area.

Much of the experience gained by the local unit when it was assigned to the Army's nuclear weapons testing exercise at Camp Desert Rock, Nevada, last spring should find wide application at SAGE BRUSH which is basically a tactical atomic weapons, ground force and air force test.

Residency Training Offered 500 Interns By Selective Service

Some 500 physician interns are being considered by the Selective Service System for deferment while they undergo one year's residency hospital training, according to Dr. Frank B. Berry, Assistant Secretary of Defense, Health and Medicine.

The interns would be trained in 15 medical specialties considered essential to the military under the Armed Forces Reserve medical officer commissioning and residency training program.

Designed to obtain better trained physicians for the Armed Services, the program permits a selected number of draft-eligible doctors to continue their training for an additional year. The program was launched for the first time last year, when 300 physicians were selected for residency training.

All the 1955 graduates from the nation's medical schools were sent questionnaires this year in which they were asked to indicate their preferences.

Of the 2,500 replies, 1,300 preferred deferment; 1,200 indicated a desire to enter on their tour of active duty within a year after finishing their internships.

School Problems

Sixth Army, Post Educators Attend Governor's Conference

Four representatives of Sixth Army and Post education sections attended Governor Goodwin Knight's two-day conference on education last week-end in Sacramento. The first of its kind held in the United States, the statewide confab served as a prelude to the forthcoming White House Conference on education 28 November.

Said Colonel R. M. Connolly, chief Sixth Army Troop Information and Education section, "California has been educationally most generous to the Army, making adult courses and college level classes readily available to servicemen within its boundaries. The gigantic problems which the state faces attract our sympathetic interest."

With Colonel Connolly went Major Earl K. Stewart, Post TI&E officer; Mr. Earl Kofoed, Sixth Army education division, and Mr. Ralph L. McElroy, post Army Education Center.

At one session, an informal discussion arose on the problems created by the establishment of permanent or temporary military installations within the community, Major Stewart said. Care and planning for servicemen's dependent children is always a matter for special consideration, he pointed out.

Among the problems discussed by the conference at large, California's rapidly increasing population presented itself as a major difficulty in terms of the state's physical capacity to educate. Every three minutes, California acquires an additional school child. Estimated costs of meeting the state's new schoolroom needs have been set at as high as two billion dollars.

The questions discussed by state educators during the two-day conference included "How Can We Obtain a Continuing Public Interest in Education?" and "How Can We Get Enough Good Teachers and Keep Them?"

The conference was attended by teachers, administrators, parents, and business and civic organization representatives.

the surrounding area. When a target is acquired it is transferred to the target tracking radar antenna for automatic tracking. This piece of equipment provides target data to the electronic computer, necessary for a successful engagement of Nike and target. Identical in appearance (bowl-shaped) is the third vital link, the missile tracking radar antenna, which provides the data on the missile's flight to the electronic computer.

Now the electronic computer as well as all the instruments necessary to fire the battery during an engagement, are located in a nerve center known as the battery control trailer, presently off-limits operations as far as the press is concerned. Additionally, there is a radar control trailer which houses both the target tracking and missile tracking radar.

A simulated alert was demonstrated at both the launcher and the radar control areas so we could visualize the intricate yet smooth fashion in which Nike could be sent skyward.

It was calm—it was quick—it was deadly accurate!

These men in the AAA are on 24-hour call, and, because of their locations in the hills, even in off-duty hours "don't manage a night out very often."

What about spare time?

We were at "C" Battery for quite a while, and were escorted around by a smart-looking group of 10 men who comprise the battery's honor guard. They train in off-duty hours and are on tap to greet all incoming dignitaries and provide escorts.

The mess hall was a prize, spotless, bright, curtained windows, lattice work with ivy intertwined separating the serving area from the dining area, fresh flowers on each four-place table.

In the barracks, areas for each man or two men were semi-private, with dressers, desks, lockers, windows with curtains and beds with neat rows of shoes under each. Officers and key NCO's have rooms.

There is a TV room with a large screen television, a games room for pool, ping pong and other recreation, and a small but well-stocked PX for the necessities of life.

Captain Arthur Voss, who commands "C" Battery, stated that nightly movies are shown in conjunction with a coffee hour, and that stage shows and Red Cross visits are regularly scheduled.

"C" Battery, Sgt. Roehm and Sgt. Tolliver are typical in Nike sites that dot the Bay Area, ever in operation and ever-ready to protect the coastline from sneak attack.

Army Selection Board Convened In Pentagon To Pick 1-Star Gens.

Washington (AFPS) — An Army selection board to consider colonels for temporary promotion to brigadier general has convened in the Pentagon.

The zone of consideration includes all regular army permanent colonels and all colonels with 48 months' active duty service in that grade as of 31 Dec., 1955.

The Army said about 2,600 officers will be considered. Their length of service varies from 15 to 30 years, with an average of about 24. Their ages range from 38 to 55 years, with an average of about 48.

The names of those selected will be announced as nominations are approved by the President for submission to the Senate for confirmation.

Mobilized—mapmakers of the 30th Engineer Group will carry out cartographical mission for Exercise Sage Brush by means of a map reproduction train. Separate vans containing all the equipment necessary for surveying, photographing and drafting during the 45-day maneuvers will form a single highly mobile caravan. Elements of the 30th Engineers are on assignment at Camp Polk, La., preparing for the Sage Brush Operations which begin 8 November.

Elements of 30th Group

Engineers Plan to Enter 'Sage Brush' Aboard Mechanized Mapmaking Train

In the midst of intensive training at Camp Polk, La., elements of the 30th Engineer Group from Fort Scott are preparing to ride through Exercise Sage Brush as a cartographical caravan on wheels.

Adapting to their mission as the Reproduction and Map Distribution Detachment for Sage Brush, the Engineers have mounted their equipment aboard a mobile map reproduction train.

Separate vans carrying equipment for each processing of the mapmaking mission are linked together in a single train. Under the command of Captain John E. Fleming, the Engineers' caravan recently filed through ten miles of Louisiana countryside to a preappointed site.

Once arrived, they were able to assemble and put their equipment into operation within two hours. The return trip was made by night. Aboard the train, the Engineers carried equipment for plate processing and photo developing, cameras and presses.

In another month, Exercise Sage Brush will open its 45 days of maneuvers. Until November 8 when Sage Brush begins, the Engineers are being quartered at Camp Polk. Recreational facilities of all kinds from volleyball to fishing and golf are available to them.

The largest Army-Air Force maneuvers since World War II, Sage Brush will be held in the 7,000,000 acre area surrounding Camp Polk. Some 110,000 Army and 30,000 Air Force personnel will participate.

General O. P. Weyland, chief of the Tactical Air Command will oversee the operations.

Want a Bumper Crop? Try USAFI Course In Farming Methods

"How ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm . . .?"

Well, a bumper crop might be some inducement. And the most recent addition to USAFI's course list is aimed at keeping the soldier with agricultural interests in touch with the latest improvements in farm crop production.

Courses MB/CB 719 deal with the newest developments in small grains, rice, legumes, grasses, sugar plants, cotton, tobacco and a number of minor crops as well as with major grains like corn, wheat, alfalfa.

The course materials are equivalent to those taught in high school farm crops classes in a vocational agricultural department.

Course MB 719 is available for self-teaching and group methods of study while Course CB 719 lends itself to correspondence study techniques.

Further information may be obtained from the Post Army Education Center, Building 117, Ext. 2974 or 3189.

Once the crop is harvested, the student is on his own, as the course does not consider marketing or the complexities of rigid vs. flexible price supports.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday 14 October, 1955

Lt. Col. O. Griest

Reactivated 441st AA Battalion Joins Area Defense Team

Bay Area Anti-Aircraft defense was strengthened recently with the addition of the 441st AAA Missile Battalion to the 30th AAA Group at Ft. Baker. The 441st was reactivated from general reserves status recently and has now become a regular Army unit.

Addition of the 441st brings the number of 30th AAA Group battalions up to an even half dozen. The four line batteries and one headquarters battery of the new unit is presently undergoing orientation and group SOP training at Ft. Cronkite.

As soon as the newly activated battalion builds its rosters up to full strength, its batteries will be assigned duties at NIKE sites throughout the San Francisco Bay Area.

During WWII when the unit was known as the 441st AA Automatic Weapons Battalion (Self Propelled), the battalion made a distinguished record in the Mediterranean and European theaters.

Commanding the new AA unit is Lt. Col. Oliver Griest whose most recent assignment was at the university of Missouri where he was an ROTC instructor. In the Second World War, Col. Griest was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters in addition to the Army Commendation Medal. He also wears five battle stars.

Executive officer of the 441st is Maj. Harold E. Young, who comes here from Ft. Bliss, Texas, where he served as S-3 and Headquarters Commandant of the 1st Guided Missile Brigade.

Sage Brush Troops Will Be Given Equal Chance At Promotions

Local soldiers now on duty with provisional units taking part in the mammoth Army-Air Force Exercise SAGE BRUSH in Louisiana will be considered for promotions on the same basis as personnel here with the parent units, it was disclosed this week by Sixth Army Headquarters.

Time in grade requirements will be considered as having been met to the parent unit even though personnel concerned are assigned extended temporary duty elsewhere.

$10,000 Short!

United Crusade Drive Needs Boost To Hit $30,000 Target

The Presidio's United Crusade Drive still hasn't gained the momentum needed to hit the campaign's $30,000 target. With little more than two weeks remaining, local United Crusade donations and pledges reached a total of $20,000, this week.

To bring the campaign's dollar goals sharply into focus, donations and pledges during each of the next two weeks must reach the $5,000 mark, or about 50 per cent more than the weekly average of $2,600 turned in during the first seven weeks of the drive.

United Crusade is the single charity drive conducted at the Presidio and sub-posts for which all personnel, military and civilian alike, are asked to contribute.

Consolidation of the 288 Bay Area charities was effected recently to make it easier and more convenient for persons to make contributions to charities. No longer must persons be burdened with making a large number of small gifts to scores of worthy causes.

Instead, a single check, cash donation, or pledge is all that is required of persons wishing to support all 288 of the charity groups.

For this reason, unit and section representatives this year have urged local personnel to give one day's pay, an amount which constitutes less than one-fourth of one per cent of an annual salary.

To make contributions to the Presidio's United Crusade Drive even easier, arrangements can be made to have portions of pledges taken out over several pay periods.

Part of every Crusade dollar goes to health agencies such as the American Cancer Society. Other Crusade dollars support welfare agencies such as the Red Cross, and still other drive funds are used by character building and recreation groups such as the Scouts and the Y's.

Personnel who wish to add to their original contributions and pledges in order to help the Presidio reach its $30,000 goal are urged to contact their unit or section United Crusade representative before the campaign closes 30 October.

President's Nurse, Lt. Lorraine P. Knox, has been among the Army medical personnel attending President Eisenhower at Fitzsimons Army Hospital in Denver, where he has been treated following a heart attack. One of Lt. Knox's duties has been to read to the President from the "Reader's Digest" and other periodicals.

Zorch— is the new taupe shade raincoat which has been introduced in the Army to replace the old olive drab model. Made of nylon with an inside coating of water-resistance plastic, the new raincoat is belted and light weight. It can be folded into a more compact package than the older model.

Bricker Proposal

Ohio Senator Urges Early Discharges For Married Personnel, Men Over 26

Married servicemen and draftees over 26 should be allowed early discharges, Senator John W. Bricker (R., Ohio) recently urged the Department of Defense.

Following a Selective Service offer to grant deferments for the majority of draft-eligible fathers, Senator Bricker's proposed action would dovetail with the current drive to create a younger Army.

If Selective Service stops drafting married men and those in the upper age brackets, Senator Bricker argued, it should also discharge those men in the same category now on active duty. He said the nation no longer needs to draw men from the married or older age group upon whom compulsory military service is a greater hardship.

Available to the Selective Service system is a growing reservoir of manpower in the 18 to 25 year category. In two years, their numbers have increased from 940,000 to 1,765,000.

Since 1952-53 when the average age of inductees was 20, the level has risen to 23. Only during the Korean war did the mean age of draftees decline to 19 and a half. It is from this age category that the services are now seeking to draw recruits.

As the law has stood, men over 26 who have had one deferment or more, are eligible for the draft until the age of 35, if the basis for deferment no longer exists, as in the case of educational deferments.

A change such as has recently been suggested would probably

Specialists Equal To Counterparts In Other Services

Army specialists will rank equally with personnel of other services in the same or lower pay grades, according to instructions recently issued by the Adjutant General.

The latest policy reestablishes the pay grade as the scale by which rank and precedence are to be judged among enlisted men.

Although the new ruling evens the standings among armed services enlisted personnel, non-commissioned officers will continue to outrank specialists within the Army.

The recent practice of reducing a master specialist to a rank below that of airman first class or Navy petty officer drew a number of complaints, especially from the National Security Agency which objected that the policy simply did not work in joint service activities.

The Army has since agreed that if the other services make no distinction between leaders and technicians, it can hardly require its highly skilled specialists to rank below journeymen and apprentices in the other military arms.

What the Army has sought to do in its NCO-specialist program is to give additional recognition to those who hold positions of leadership, the specialty most in demand by the Army.

By changing the rank situation, the Army has reinstituted the concept of taking as little as possible from the rated enlisted man.

chief will speak

General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff and one of the most articulate military men in the world, will make a major address in San Francisco on 31 October. Sponsored by the Commonwealth Club and Chamber of Commerce, General Taylor will explain "The Army's Role in National Defense" at a luncheon scheduled for 1200 hours in the Garden Court of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel. Interested parties are urged to make early reservations, since tickets are at a premium. Reservations may be obtained through Major Andrew Bretz, special events officer, Sixth Army Information section, Ext. 2470, or by contacting Mr. Stewart Ward, executive secretary of the Commonwealth Club at DO 2-4903.

Reservists Can Win Commissions After Active Tour

Young men entering the Army Reserve and completing six months of active duty training may later become eligible for a commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Reserve, the Department of the Army announced recently.

Such personnel must first meet the requirement of attaining the grade of sergeant while satisfactorily participating in Reserve training after completing the six months training period. Men seeking appointment as second lieutenants must complete appropriate Army extension courses.

The applicant must be between the ages of 18 and 28, and be physically, morally and professionally qualified for the appointment. A board of officers will make recommendations as to qualifications of those seeking appointment.

Most Army Reserve units have vacancies for enlistees and promotion in grade can be attained in a reasonable length of time after completion of the six months of active duty training.

The eight-year enlistment program offers men under 18½ years of age draft-deferred status if they agree to take active duty training for six months and then satisfactorily participate in training with their local unit for the balance of the eight-year enlistment.

High school students who enlist may be deferred from the six months training until they complete high school or reach the age of 20 whichever is earlier.

A Doubleheader was marked recently by Mr. Bernard Kahn, Sixth Army Comptroller Section, who received congratulations from Maj. Gen. L. R. Dewey, Assistant Comptroller of the Army, for completing 25 years of Federal Civil Service and also for being elected President of the San Francisco Bay Area Chapter, Armed Forces Management Association. A graduate of George Washington University Mr. Kahn began his government career in 1930 with the Navy Department. He has been assistant chief of the Review and Analysis Division, Sixth Army Comptroller Section, since June 1949.

30 Faithful Years of dedicated service with the Army were rewarded recently when Mr. Ira Smith, Sixth Army Transportation section, was awarded a Certificate of Achievement. It was presented by Colonel C. L. Whittle, Sixth Army Transportation officer, as, l. to r.: Nathan Archer, Alyus Wayman and Edward Caron, also of the section, look on. In 1944, Mr. Smith was presented an Emblem of Meritorious Civilian Service by Major General William E. Shedd, then commander of the 9th Service Command, for his service during the time of emergency transportation of personnel and cargo. His present duties with the Transportation section are supervisory and administrative.

New Concept!

Army Tests New Rifle Training; Would Improve Military Marksmen

Washington (AFPS)—A new concept of rifle training designed to improve army marksmanship currently is being tested by the 8th Inf. Div. at Ft. Carson, Colo., and the 101st Airborne Div. at Ft. Jackson, S. C.

The Army said the experimental concept, called "trainfire," reproduces in training many of the marksmanship problems that rifle-men meet in combat. The object, in addition to teaching marksmanship, is to teach how to detect and effectively engage combat targets.

It is based on three fundamental principles: the combat rifleman's targets consist of enemy men; these targets rarely appear beyond 300 yards, and his effectiveness as a rifleman depends on his ability to neutralize individuals.

The experimental concept reduces marksmanship training time from the present 86 hours during the first four weeks of basic training to 74 hours. It also cuts down on the number of rifle rounds needed for this instruction.

Bulls-eye targets are used less. Known-distance target ranges have been eliminated in favor of 1,000-inch ranges and low outline targets at unknown distances.

Camouflaged targets and the Army's new pop-up silhouettes help create battlefield realism. They simulate the enemy and are exposed at irregular time intervals, briefly and at unknown distances.

These targets, both stationary and moving, are electrically powered and remote-controlled. They automatically fall when hit by a bullet.

Other new features stressed in the trainfire system are quick selection of firing positions, firing in combat uniform, and shooting almost immediately after training begins without "dry runs."

The new system will undergo comparative testing at Ft. Carson and Ft. Jackson. At each post two companies will be paired, one to operate trainfire and the other to take conventional marksmanship training.

Tests will be repeated with different companies until next June. After evaluating the results of both methods, the Army will decide which is better.

nike housing

Washington (AFPS) — The Army is going to build housing units for personnel of Nike installations and their families, chiefly in places where houses can't be rented reasonably.

Present plans call for 900 such units. But, the Army said, funds for the program have not yet been made available. Until they are, it will not be known exactly how many can be built.

The majority of dwellings will go to enlisted men's families, the Army added. Wherever possible, houses will be built on land already acquired by the Army for permanent Nike installations.

ARP Training Now In Action At Five Major Installations

Washington (AFPS)—More than 1,100 young men—the first group of youths enrolled in the Army's new six months reserve training program—have begun their training at five Army posts.

Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., is training the largest number, 374. Another 314 are being trained at Ft. Bliss, Tex., 285 at Ft. Knox, Ky., 99 at Ft. Jackson, S. C., and 95 at Ft. Ord., Calif.

Forty states are represented by the 672 national guardsmen in the program. New Mexico has the largest single group. Two hundred and seventy-five of its guardsmen are taking training at Ft. Bliss.

The Army said that 2,000 men have enlisted in the reserve since enactment of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955. Most of these have chosen the six months training program. Some of them are high school students whose basic training period will be deferred until they graduate or reach 20 years of age, whichever is first.

OEI Indexes for '55 Now Ready At Pentagon Level

Washington (AFPS) — Army officers' overall efficiency indexes (OEI) for 1955 are now available for examination at the Pentagon, the Army has announced.

The OEI, computed once each year, reflects an officer's relative standing compared to all other Army officers.

Career management officials point out that although it is not an absolute indicator of an officer's efficiency, it is one of several important factors considered in individual personnel actions.

OEI's range from 51 to 150. Two-thirds of all officers fall between 80 and 120. One-sixth are rated above 120 and the remaining one-sixth below 80.

The OEI indicates the officer's performance during his last five years of service. It is recomputed each year by dropping the oldest year's report and adding the latest rating.

An officer may obtain his OEI either by visiting his career management branch or giving another officer written authorization to review his record and obtain his OEI. More specific information regarding relative standing by branch and grade can also be obtained.

Career branches are not authorized to release OEI's by letter or telephone, the Army said.

Local Armory Course Brings New Reserves Up to Date Info

Officers recently assigned to the Army Reserve program in the Sixth Army area today will complete a course at Harmon Armory designed to teach them the policies, laws and functions of the Army Reserve program.

Entitled "Sixth Army Indoc-trination Course for USAR Unit Advisors," the program began Monday. Major General William F. Dean, Deputy Commanding General of Sixth Army, gave the welcoming address.

Instruction was given in fields such as the Army Reserve structure, the Reserve obligation, the new Armed Forces Reserve act, pay, logistic support of the USAR program, retirement, promotion policies, USAR schools, active duty training, unit administration and public relations.

Sixty-nine officers attended the course.

officers recently assigned

Lt. Colonel WILLIAM H. BED-FORD has joined the plans division, G-4 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In Korea for the past 17 months, Colonel Bedford held two positions, the first seven months with the 7th Division and the past 10 months with Headquarters KMAC.

Entering the Army in 1940, the colonel commanded an eight-inch Howitzer battalion in the European theatre for a year during World War II. In 1947 he went to Japan where he served three years as G-4, 1st Cavalry Division. He has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart and the Commendation ribbon.

The colonel attended the Artillery school, Fort Sill, Oklahoma, in 1941, the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, 1949-50, following which he was an instructor there for three years, and the Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Virginia, 1953. He and his wife and their two children now reside in Mill Valley.

Major ROBERT A. HAMILTON has spent the past year with the Japan Central Exchange, prior to which he spent a year in Korea as S-1, Seoul Military Post. He is now with the G-2 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Veteran of 20 years' Army service, Major Hamilton was a first sergeant with the Coast Artillery in Hawaii at the time Pearl Harbor was attacked. He then attended the Armored O.C.S. at Fort Knox, Kentucky, went to Europe with the 746th Tank battalion, and took part in the D-Day landings at Normandy and the five subsequent campaigns which ended the war.

In addition to five battle stars and the Bronze Arrowhead for his ETO ribbon, the major has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Belgian Fouragere. He returned to this country to attend both the advanced Armored course at Fort Knox, and the general staff officer's course, Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Major and Mrs. Hamilton and their four and one-half year old daughter are residing at the Presidio Park apartments.

Major MAX R. MCCARTHY returned recently from Iceland where for a year he was assistant J-3, Iceland Defense Force. His assignment here is that of chief, plans branch, plans and services division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

During this 14-year Army career, Major McCarthy has had two European tours, the first in World War II when he served 18 months as a battery commander, 141st AAA Battalion. In 1947, he returned to England for 18 months of schooling at the British Artillery School, followed by an 18-months' tour in Germany with AAA units assigned to the 1st Division.

Graduate of the advanced Artillery course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and Fort Bliss, Texas, 1950-51, and the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, 1953-54, the major has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation Ribbon.

Major and Mrs. McCarthy and their 12-year-old son, Kent, are residing in Novato.

Major WILLIAM I. INGRAM, another new addition to the G-2 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, has been in Germany for the past 30 months. While there he spent 18 months as plans officer with the S-3 Section, Northern Area Command, Frankfurt, and a year as executive officer, Scheinfurt Sub-area.

In the Mediterranean theatre during World War II, Major Ingram was a rifle platoon leader, personnel officer and adjutant with the 362nd Infantry, 91st Division, for 18 months, and participated in three campaigns. He was commissioned Infantry at Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1942, having served a previous three-year tour during 1934-37. He is also a graduate of the advanced course at Fort Benning.

Among the major's decorations are the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantry Badge.

His Far East service was during 1947-49, and was with 8th Army Headquarters in Japan. He and his wife now reside at the Presidio Park apartments.

Second Lieutenant LONDON EVANS, JR., has just completed 31 weeks of Flight School, Camp Rucker, Alabama, and is assigned as an Army aviator with the Sixth Army aviation detachment.

Enlisting in the Army in 1945, he first served a 13-months' tour on Okinawa with the 8th Air Force. Next came a special operations assignment on Eniwetok during 1946-47, and in 1952, one to Greenland for six months. In each instance Lt. Evans was awarded a Certificate of Achievement for his work.

He attended Artillery O.C.S. at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, late in 1953, and was assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington, from which point he embarked on another special assignment with a cold-weather testing combat team to Alaska for three months early in 1954.

Native of California, Lt. Evans and his wife are presently residing in Oakland.

First Lieutenant ALBERT C. ELDRIDGE has been assigned to the Communications Center of Sixth Army Signal section. He returned recently from three years with Headquarters Allied Forces, Southern Europe, Naples, Italy.

Lt. Eldridge began his service career back in 1941, when he enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps. He served two years in the Pacific with the 5th Amphibious Corps, and, in 1944, received a battlefield commission. He also was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Presidential Unit Citation.

After leaving the Marine Corps, he reenlisted in the Army in 1946, and served as a master sergeant until recalled to active duty as an officer in 1951. At that time, he also attended the Signal School, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey.

Lt. and Mrs. Eldridge and their two sons, 17-year-old Frank and nine-year-old Wayne, reside in quarters on the Presidio.

CWO IRVING J. NATHAN has spent the past three years in Germany, the first with a replacement depot at Camp Grohn, Germany, and the past two years with the Bremerhaven Port of Embarkation.

His new assignment here is that of administrative officer, Finance and Accounting section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Veterans of 22 years' Army service, Mr. Nathan has received the Commendation ribbon with Oak Leaf Cluster and numerous theatre ribbons.

Army's First Voice-Powered Telephone

Fort Monmouth, N. J. — The power of the human voice — long known to sway multitudes, influence the course of history and tie up party lines — has been tapped by the Army Signal Corps Engineering Laboratory here to operate a new radio-telephone device.

Completely independent of wires and batteries, the voice-operated equipment weighs only a pound and a half and continues to operate as long as the user keeps talking into it.

The technique employed puts the voice to work so that it both runs and operates a transistorized transmitter. After speech syllables strike the microphone, part of the power is filtered to operate the radio-telephone, while the rest puts "intelligence" into the signal it sends out.

In short, voice-energy is substituted for electric energy in transmission. At the present stage of testing this new kind of energy does a competent job up to 600 feet.

Further development plans call for a companion receiver weighing about three ounces, which could be powered by the same source. Voice energy would be built up and stored in the set when sending and used later for receiving.

device are obvious: Transistorized transmission could eliminate batteries in both walkie-talkies and hand-held tactical radios, cutting their weight in half and easing the soldier's burden.

As for civilian uses, engineers here look forward to the day when small, self-contained radio-telephones will be used by the businessman to call his office while

C Rations A Dream Compared To Ghengis Khan Army Fare

Ghengis Kahn solved his Army's field rations problem by issuing soldiers a hollow tube through which they could drink blood drawn from the veins of their horses. Nutrition experts today even suggest that such a liquid diet might have been ideally balanced.

The modern American soldier is not subjected to such fare (however well-balanced) even in the heat of atomic maneuvers. The horse has become mechanized and armor-plated and the soldier now joins his "best-fed" buddies in a gastronomically more appropriate and easier-to-digest diet of Army "C" rations.

True, when not under the strain of combat, the soldier will not find "C" rations exactly like Mom's home cooking or comparable to the "blue plate" at the Gourmet's Ritz, and the Army readily admits that a diet of "C" rations doesn't sufficiently prepare its soldiers for a shot at TV's "$64,000 Question."

Post T.I.E. plans to give local military personnel a comprehensive idea of the reason and necessity for "C" rations at the weekly information sessions.

The "C" ration is the Army's individual ration which is eaten when the tactical situation makes it impractical to provide kitchen facilities. The Army feels that a properly maintained, fresh stock of "C" rations is as essential to combat readiness as having ammunition, gasoline, and weapons.

To insure that a fresh reserve stock is always on hand, "C" rations must be eaten within three years from the date they were packed. By using up the reserve stocks every three years, the Army can insure that a fresh nutritious supply of "C" rations is always on hand and that the reserve stock is ready for use in combat when needed.

Use of the reserve stock of hard rations is also an economy measure. Since the reserve stocks are consumed, the American taxpayer doesn't have to pay to have the reserve stocks poured down the drain.

In reality there is nothing cheap about these rations. They are processed from first quality foods and by no means from excess or surplus food stocks.

Cost of the "C" ration is double that of standard chow, the "C" costing $1.89 per unit as compared to $.998 per unit for the "A" ration (kitchen-prepared).

To conquer the monotony in the "C" ration diet the rations come in seven varieties or classifications, ranging from beans to stews. Recent Army policy has been to encourage mess hall staffs to embellish and garnish the rations to make them more attractive and consequently more palatable.

Red Raiders Play Navy Pirates At T. I. Redoubt

The powerful Presidio Red Raiders, fresh from their 26-0 triumph over the Naval Shipyard Pachunters, journey to Treasure Island this afternoon for a grid tilt with the Navy Pirates.

Coach Larry McInerney's soldier gridsters will go in quest of their fifth victory of the current season. The Red Raiders have rolled up 105 points while giving up but 33 points so far this year and have a four and one official game record.

The starting offensive line for the Presidio will be Nims and Pig-gott at ends, McDonnell and Ter-rell at tackles, Wilson and Holmes at the guard slots and Snyder at center.

Starting in the backfield will be Maytubby at quarterback, Gui-marín and Colarossi at the halves and Ratliff at fullback.

Named as game captain was right half Ed Colarossi from the Honor Guard. This will be Ed's last game for the Presidio as he is slated for discharge next week.

Last week the Treasure Island Pirates edged a strong Moffet Field eleven by the narrow margin of 13-12. Ex-College of the Pacific star Gene Wellman proved the sparkplug with his successful conversion attempt. Wellman also scored one of the TI touchdowns on an eight yard pass from halfback Ottoson.

Wellman's accurate toe proved the difference two weeks ago when the Pirates edged by the San Francisco State Jayvees, 14-13.

Last year the Red Raider tidal wave rolled over the Pirates, 20-0. The soldier gridsters scored one TD in the first stanza and two in the fourth and final frame to earn the victory.

A change in the Presidio schedule was announced this week by Post Special Services. The 29 October contest with the Camp Hanford, Washington Atomeers was called off at the request of the northern foes. The open date was filled with the Petaluma Leghorns. The semi-pro Leghorns have one of the better semi-pro clubs in northern California and should give the Raiders a strong battle.

It was also announced that the Fort Huachuca contest slated for the 26th of November here at the Presidio has been changed to the 25th and will be played at the Yuma Test Station in Arizona.

dream!!

Bolling AFB in Washington, D.C., has a "dream" backfield consisting of Bernie Faloney (Maryland), Johnny Lattner (Notre Dame), Chet Hanulak (Maryland) and Billy Reynolds (Pittsburgh). Sharing quarterback duties with Faloney will be former Illinois standout Tommy O'Connell.

Ord Rolls To Fourth Win, Drub SD Air

The potent Fort Ord Warriors continued on the winning path last Saturday as they blasted the San Diego Navy Air Skyraiders 41-7, at Coronado, California.

Former USC and 49'er star quarterback Jimmy Powers piloted the Warriors to their fourth straight victory by tossing seven completions out of 17 attempts for 152 yards.

After a scoreless first quarter, Ord broke the ice as Powers tossed ten yards to end Ron Miller, USC, for a touchdown.

The Warriors scored again in the second period when half-back Paul Cameron, UCLA All-American, boomed over from three yards out.

Fort Ord started rolling in the third period when they blasted out four touchdowns to put the game on ice. The first tally came when Cameron took Navy punt on his own 35 and raced 65 yards up the middle for the score. Chicago Card halfback Alex Burl burst 60 yards inside tackle for another. Washington Redskin fullback Sam Baker scored the next and a pass from Bob Reinhart to Julian Spence netted the final TD.

AF Academy Signs Shaw To Grid Post

Lowry AFB, Colo. (AFPS) — Lawrence T. "Buck" Shaw, a veteran of more than 30 years in college and professional football coaching ranks, has been signed as head coach of the Air Force Academy eleven.

Shaw signed a five-year contract which goes into effect 1 January, 1956. He completed his present assignment as consultant to the AF academy grid staff 30 September.

AF Col. Robert V. Whitlow, former West Point griddier and currently director of athletics at the Air Force Academy, is coaching the fledgeling team which is playing an eight-game schedule against regional freshman squads this fall.

In addition to his duties as coach, the 56-year-old Shaw, whose colorful football career dates back to 1919 when he played tackle at Notre Dame, will serve as advisor to the AF Academy Athletic Assn.

TOUCHDOWN bound is Raider quarterback Sid Dodson. Dodson scored one touchdown in last week's victory over the Navy Pachunters on a twelve yard keep play. Centering the pigskin is big Doug Weaver and halfback Jim Guimarin is on the left. The Presidio Red Raiders journey to Treasure Island this afternoon to engage the Navy Pirates in quest of their fifth win of the 1955 pigskin parade.

Presidio Sink Pachunters 26-0 After Scoreless Half

By Pvt. Bob Malone

Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Soaring back from a half time scoreless deadlock, the Presidio Red Raiders blasted out twenty points in the third quarter and six in the final period to drub the Pachunters from the San Francisco Naval Shipyard last Saturday at Fort Scott.

Big Bobby Ratliff, Raider full-back from West Texas State College, proved the individual scoring star of the afternoon as he scored two touchdowns and added two conversions for fourteen points.

The Presidio gridsters drove to the Pachunter five yard line late in the first quarter on a fine thirty-eight yard sprint by right half Ed Colarossi. However, the Raiders drew two penalties in a row and the drive stalled on the Shipyard twelve yard stripe.

Early in the second period Navy back Green romped forty-five yards for an apparent touchdown only to have the play called back on an offside penalty.

Late in the second stanza quarterback Maytubby fired a perfect strike to end Jerry Nims, who made a sensational catch on the Navy thirty-four, taking the ball away from three defenders.

Fullback Ratliff went to the Pachunters nineteen and from there Maytubby threw to right half Colarossi in the end zone. However, a holding call on a Presidio player nullified the TD and time ran out before the Raiders could strike again.

Early in the third quarter, defensive end Hane intercepted a Navy aerial and ran it back to the Pachunter nineteen. Two plays later big Bobby Ratliff boomed over from six yards out and the Presidio was ahead to stay. Ratliff's attempted conversion was wide.

The Pachunter eleven was unable to gain after the kickoff and punted to the Presidio forty-three. Ratliff rolled through left tackle to the Navy forty-six. Colarossi went to the thirty-nine and Ratliff went to the fourteen on a great run off right tackle.

An offside penalty pushed the ball to the Navy nine, wherein Ratliff drove to the two. The ace fullback cracked over the middle on the next play and added the extra point which put the Presidio ahead thirteen to 0.

Great defensive play by Trotter, Weaver and Devereux in the Raider front wall stopped the next Navy attack dead and the Sailors punted to the Presidio forty-four.

The Raiders drove to the Tars thirty before a clipping penalty pushed the ball back to the forty-five, where Maytubby kicked into the end zone and the Sailors took over on their own twenty.

At this point Navy quarterback Branon faded back to his ten, trying to get a pass away. The ball was partly blocked in the air where guard Bob Trotter grabbed it and steamed over for his first touchdown of the year. Ratliff's conversion was good, with one minute left in the third quarter.

Navy thrusts were held to a minimum in the last frame as the Raider line, sparked by Thomas and Maddock, got through time after time to spill the Pachunter runners before they got under way.

The Presidio gridsters started their last scoring drive on the Pachunter. Halfback Waterland smashed to the forty-one, where the attack bogged down. On fourth down quarterback Dodson faked a kick and passed to Hane, who was downed on the Navy sixteen.

Fullback Lewis bolted to the ten and with less than two minutes to go in the game, Dodson went back to pass and instead ran wide to his right, cut in and was over for the final score of the game. Ratliff's conversion attempt was blocked and the gun sounded, ending a twenty-six to 0 victory for the Presidio.

Masonites Take Over Top Slot In National Bowling

The red hot Masonites kept right on winning last week to continue their bulldog-like grip on first place in the National Bowling League official standing.

Paced by Masten's 168/475 roll, the Masonites rolled over the seventh place Headquarters Sixth Army pin splitters 4 to 0. Sakurado led the headquarters with a 175/492 roll.

The second place Hooks kept pace by thumping the fourth place Soltechs 4 to 0. Pacing the Hooks' win was Mimster's sizzling 212/589 roll while Fong led the Soltechs with a 175/471 bowl.

The third place Hilltoppers split with the sixth place Fogbounders, two-two. Walker was top man for the men from the hill with a 200/557 performance. Chuck was high man for the Fogbounders with a 179/459.

Over in the Pacific League the Sixth Army Signal squad regained first place over the Post Dispensary crew. The Signal rollers now boast a 60-24 mark while the second place medics slipped to a 57-27 record.

Individual high game of the week went to Thorne of the Keystone Kops with a dazzling 242 roll. Getting the nod for posting scores of 200 or over were Adair of the Sixth Army Signal team, 215, Wright of Company B, 505th MP's, 207 and Hoffacker of the 102nd MRU.

Action continued hot and heavy in the Eastern League as the Hilltoppers No. 6 team took over the top spot from the 6513 SU squad which slid to third place in the standing. Taking over the second place was the Ichi Ban's.

In the downtown Baghdad "900" Classic the Presidio squad dropped a tough two out of three set loss to the Wentworth Painting and Decorating team. The soldier bowlers still remain in fifth place however, just ten points behind the league leaders.

Total scores turned in this week by the Presidio team saw team captain Jacobs grab top honors with his 509 total. Right behind him was Johnson's 507. Owen's 492, Murphy's 450, and Taylor's 437 rounded out the scoring for the week.

Thousands Of Stranded Fish Saved

Department of Fish and Game crews have rescued thousands of young salmon and steelhead which were stranded in drying streams on their downstream migration last month.

Tempo of the rescue work, which often results in saving of more than a million salmon and steelhead fingerlings a year, will be stepped up this month as more and more streams either dry up or fall to levels which will not support the downstream migration.

Biggest rescue operation of the past month was at Uvas Creek in Santa Clara county, a tributary of the Pajaro River. More than 100,000 steelhead fingerlings were rescued and planted in live streams.

A sizeable rescue took place on Toomes and Dye Creeks in Tehama County, where 80,000 King salmon fingerlings were saved and planted in the Sacramento River.

On the western side of the valley 10,000 King salmon fingerlings were taken from the drying lower reaches of Stoney Creek in Glenn County.

Fortunately, late spring rains opened the way for many thousands of fish to reach the ocean in that area, and probably saved hundreds of thousands in the area south of San Francisco Bay.

Mizell Flips McPherson To Crown

Ft. Belvoir, Va. (AFPS) — Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, former St. Louis Cardinal fireballer, hurled a sparkling one-hitter to give Ft. McPherson, Ga., a 9-0 victory over Ft. Hood, Tex., and the 1955 all-army baseball championship.

The slender southpaw struck out 13. He was touched for his only hit in the second inning when third baseman Don Montgomery rapped a single. Mizell was discharged from the Army Oct. 5.

Earlier in the double-elimination tournament here, Hood edged McPherson 2-1 in a five-inning game halted by rain. Then the Georgia nine evened things up by beating Hood 7-1 behind the four-hit pitching of ex-Baltimore Oriole hurler Billy O'Dell.

Pacing the McPherson attack in the championship game with three hits apiece were Tom Quackenbush, Chicago Cub farmhand; Norm Siebern, Yankee farm player; and Joe Moran, Cleveland's $45,000 bonus baby.

In his previous tourney start against Ft. Lee, Va., Mizell turned in a two-hit performance and fanned 18. He finished the regular season with a 21-0 record, including 16 shutouts and five no-hitters.

As you may recall the Marine Corps won the recently completed National Rifle matches which took place at Camp Perry, Ohio. The Marine Corps was roundly congratulated by Navy Secretary Thomas and Marine Commandant Shepherd on their apparent victory.

After the matches ended, a re-check showed that the Army, instead of losing by eight points, had won by twenty-two points over the Marines in the Infantry Trophy competition. No decision has been made as yet as to how the trophy, which was headed for the Marines, will be diverted to the Army.

CONGRATULATIONS are given by Colonel Archie R. Traynor, Post S-1 to Major Robert Jones of the 56th Machine Records Unit. Major Jones headed the MRU Volleyball team that won the Post intra-mural championships in the playoffs this week. The records men defeated the Headquarters team from the 752nd AAA.

MRU Drubs 752 AAA In Volleyball

Paced by the sensational spiking of Mat Schmutz and all-around team play the 102nd Machine Records Unit captured the Presidio intra-mural volleyball championship this week. The MRU hot shots defeated the Headquarters of the 752nd AAA by the scores of 15-6, 15-1, 15-5 and 16-14 for the gold trophy symbolizing Post champions for the 1955 season.

After dropping the first three tilts the ack-ackers stormed back to lead 14-9 in the final tilt, but steady team play combined with the effective use of a screen boosted the records men over the top.

The MRU squad came into the finals on the strength of their sweeping the American Division of intra-mural competition. They finished with a perfect 7 and 0 record for league competition. The ack-ackers from the 752nd topped the National Loop with a similar 7 and 0 mark in league play.

The champion MRU squad was made up of the following players: Major Bob Jones, team captain; Jack Aldridge, Dick Godnino, Harry Mathews, Mat Schmutz, Bob Noel, Bob Moran, Frank McDonnell, Alex Nichols and Jerry Steiner.

MRU's Schmutz on the basis of his fine play in league competition was named team captain for the Presidio squad that goes to the All-Sixth Army tourney at Fort Ord, 24-28 of October. Schmutz, a former Stanford University athlete, was number two man on the Presidio Tennis Team this past summer.

The final team roster had not been picked by press time this week but will appear in next week's Star Presidian. Some very good players may be left behind as tournament rules state that players must be selected from units whose total strength can not exceed 1,000.

'56 sports

Washington (AFPS)—Dates and sites for nine all-Army sports tournaments in 1956 have been announced by the Army.

The schedule: basketball—Mar. 11-17, Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.; bowling—Mar. 27-29, Ft. Sill, Okla.; triathlon and track and field—June 1-3, Ft. MacArthur, Calif; swimming and diving—July 26-29, Ft. MacArthur; golf and tennis—Aug. 12-18, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; baseball—Sept. 16-22, Ft. Dix, N. J.; and boxing—Oct. 1-6, Ft. Myer, Va.

The Presidio squad in the Sixth Army matches will be coached by Major Bob Jones of the 56th MRU. Bob's coaching experience includes bringing his MRU team into the All-Army finals in 1950 representing the Far East.

Rededication of the Ft. McDowell Chapel at Angel Island is scheduled for Sunday, 16 October, at 1400 hours. Closed since early 1946, the chapel has been re-opened to provide religious facilities for D Battery, 9th AAA personnel stationed on the island. Presidio Chaplain, (Maj.) Henry C. Butt, will deliver the re-dedication sermon.

Closed Nine Years!

Rededication Of Angel Island Chapel Slated For 16 October

After nine years of silence, the bells of the Ft. McDowell Chapel at Angel Island will ring anew next Sunday afternoon heralding the rededication of the historic old chapel which was closed at the end of the Second World War.

Reopening of the chapel follows the recent assignment of D Battery, 9th AAA Battalion, to duty and quarters on the island. Currently, 16 families of the AAA artillerymen are housed on the Island in addition to other Government employees and non-married troops.

Special services to rededicate the chapel are slated for 16 October at 1400 hours during which time Presidio Post Chaplain (Maj.) Henry C. Butt will deliver the dedication sermon.

Officiating at the services will be Chaplain (1st Lt.) Wayne F. Kildall, 9th AAA Missile Battalion, who will be assisted by Chaplain (1st Lt.) John O. Larsgaard of the 441st AAA Missile Battalion.

To accommodate local personnel wishing to attend the rededication services, a special boat will leave the Fort Baker Dock at Horseshoe Cove at 1300 hours next Sunday.

The chapel has been cleaned and refurbished and also equipped with the appropriate liturgical furnishings. Sunday School classes for children, which follow the regular Sunday afternoon services, have been established by Chaplain Kildall.

The first chapel on Angel Island was built in 1883 and in 1910 to accommodate the Army depot for casualties and recruits, a permanent chapel was built by prisoners from Alcatraz Military Prison.

During the Second World War the chapel was attended by thousands of troops going to and from the Pacific Theatre of Operations.

It is believed that D Battery, 9th AAA Battalion, is the only battery in the Sixth AAA Regional Command to be provided with their own chapel and religious facilities.

The Defense Department spends almost 17 billion dollars annually for pay, benefits, and allowances for military and civilian personnel.

4th Inf. to Swap With 3d Armored In Gyro Move

Washington (AFPS) — The 4th Inf. Div. now in Germany will be replaced in Europe by the 3rd Armored Div., now at Ft. Knox, Ky. The move will begin in May 1956.

The Army said, however, that the stateside station of the 4th Div. has not yet been determined. Neither has it been decided what division will be stationed at Ft. Knox to replace the 3rd Armored.

Ft. Knox was previously announced as one of seven posts that will be permanent homes for pairs of Gyroscope divisions.

The designation of the 4th Div. as a Gyroscope outfit means that three of the five U. S. divisions stationed in Europe will be Gyro-scope units.

The 10th Inf. Div. is in the process of taking the place of the 1st Inf. Div. in Germany, with the 1st returning to Ft. Riley, Kan. Beginning in January the 11th Airborne Div. at Ft. Campbell will switch with the 5th Inf. Div. in Germany.

The remaining divisions in Europe are the 2nd Armored and the 9th Inf.

in step

A retreat Parade will be held at the main parade ground this afternoon at 1630 hours. Participating in the parade and vying for the Honor Unit Plaque will be Company D, Station Complement, Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, Company A, Station Complement, Headquarters Company Station Complement, the 30th Engineer Group and the 561st Engineer Company (Port Construction).

3 Russian Officers Complete First Visit To Infantry Center

Ft. Benning, Ga. (AFPS) — Three Soviet military attaches recently visited the Army's Infantry Center here.

An Army spokesman said the visit was authorized after the Russians allowed U. S. officers to visit a Soviet military installation.

The Russian visitors were a colonel and two lieutenant colonels.

During their two-day stay they met the commandant of the Infantry School, Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Harper, and observed the various activities carried on here.

mail call

The Defense Department urges that Christmas parcels to servicemen overseas be mailed between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15.

Boxes for overseas shipment must be made of double-faced corrugated cardboard, strong wood, metal or fiberboard, and securely tied with strong cord. Seal any loose flaps with gummed tape. Packages may be crushed in transit unless tightly packed, the DOD warned.

Overseas parcels must not weigh more than 70 pounds, except for Britain, where the limit is 50 pounds. They cannot be more than 100 inches in length and girth combined. Matches and lighter fluid are banned.

Thinking, Always Thinking

Army Invests $334,000 in Ideas; Realizes Some $20 Million Return

For an investment of only $333,956 the Army estimates it has bought itself more than $20 million worth of ideas through the past fiscal year's Incentive Awards Program.

At the Presidio, in the past three months alone, eight civilian thinkers have thought themselves into a total of $380 extra income. The Army expects to realize a return of nearly $18,000 in overall savings, as a result of those eight brainy suggestions.

Of the 60 ideas submitted on post from July to September, eight made the payroll. The largest single award at the Presidio was made this week when Mr. Benjamin Yip of Post Ordnance received $175. Mr. Yip's idea concerned the simulated reactor load for fire control generators.

Last week, Mr. Theodore Hamby, Sixth Army Signal section, collected his fifth idea award—$50 from an idea for a high speed electronic keying adapter.

Topping Mr. Hamby, Delbert Tanner from Post Signal last week collected $10 for a Signal equipment testing unit—his sixth award.

On the national scene of the Incentive Awards Program, the tidest cash prize to date went to Mr. Herbert G. Poenisch of Columbus General Depot, Ohio—$1,700 for devising a new method of processing requisitions for spare engineering parts. It has been estimated his idea would save the government $1,390,000 in a single year.

Runner-up to Mr. Poenisch was Mr. John F. Logothatis, employed by an overseas Ordnance Depot. Mr. Logothatis received $910 for a new method of reclaiming wheel bearing seats.

In the past year, 61,669 suggestions were submitted by civilian and military personnel. Civilians are given cash awards; the military — commendation ribbons, three-day passes and letters of commendation.

Employees and personnel with ideas for doing a job better, faster or cheaper should submit them on Employee Suggestion Form 1045 to the Local Incentive Awards Committee, Civilian Personnel Division, Building 36.

Col. Fancher Named Deputy Commander

Colonel Paul S. Fancher was named deputy commander of Letterman Army Hospital this week, assuming the new duties in addition to service as Chief of Medicine.

Colonel Fancher was named chief of the Department of Medicine in July, after having been medical consultant for the Far East Command. A specialist in medicine, he has served 25 years in the Army.

...zie deutsch?

Any military personnel who know the German language are urged to contact the Information Section, Sixth Army, extension 3740, as soon as possible. Persons with this background are needed to assist in the production of a radio program pertaining to Christmas in the San Francisco Bay Area. These programs will be recorded in German for release overseas on German radio stations.

Credit Safety Drive For Reducing Army's Death Toll 11 Percent

Washington (AFPS) — The Army's participation in the nationwide "Slow Down and Live" campaign has reduced army traffic deaths 11 per cent from last Memorial Day through Labor Day, compared to the same period in 1954.

During the 101-day period this year, 131 army personnel died as a result of traffic accidents. There were 148 deaths last year.

The Army pointed out that while it did not meet its objective of a 20 per cent reduction, its "credit-able performance" was achieved at a time when the national total was increasing.

models wanted

Personnel, whether they be military, dependent or civilian, who are interested in entering a fashion show, to be held at the Presidio Service club Monday at 2000, may contact the Service club, Ext. 2000, for entrance information. A total of 10 will be selected from this showing to appear in downtown style shows. Deadline for applications is today.

San Francisco women will have an opportunity to participate in a statewide showing of a life-saving American Cancer society film, "Breast Self-Examination," it was announced this week.

Edward McDowell, president of the San Francisco branch of the society, said that in cooperation with local theatre managers and projectionists, free local showings are being arranged throughout the city from 17 to 20 October, inclusive. Times and places will be announced.

MY STAKE IN THE AMERICAN WAY

"... I live in a country that promotes the largest insurance company in the world with a minimum premium. I, as an American citizen, am insured of freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of thought ..."

—H. R. Delaney, YN3, USN, COMSERVPAC
1954 Freedoms Foundation Honor Certificate Winner

A Freedoms insurance policy was the theme Yeoman Delaney used in writing his letter to Freedoms Foundation during 1954. He won an Honor Certificate in the contest.

This year you, too, can win an award. Just write a simple letter of no more than 500 words explaining your stake in the "American Way" and mail it to Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa.

The top cash award for the best letter is $1,000. New cash awards include one for $500 and two for $250. Other awards include: 50 prizes of $100, 50 George Washington Honor Medals and 50 certificates.

All letters must be received by Nov. 11, 1955. Letters submitted after that date will be considered for the next year's awards. (AFPS)

German Studied By Troops Before Gyroscope Transfer

U. S. Army men who have re-enlisted for oversea duty with the 3d Armored Division are going to school at Fort Knox, Ky. Subject of the schooling is Germany: its people, language, and customs.

The orientation is part of the training program aimed at preparing members of the Division for duty in Germany. The 3d will be moving out shortly for a 33-month tour under provisions of Operation Gyroscope.

Lectures, films, informal talks and language courses are being conducted for the men, who will soon be visiting most of the countries on the Continent.

The course of instruction was formulated and based on the Army's premise that a well-informed soldier is a happier and more effective one.

Reenlistees and those men who have volunteered for duty with the 3d Armored will have an excellent opportunity to see Europe, accompanied by their families.

Rapid and inexpensive transportation facilities on the Continent will make it possible for Army men to see many of the sights while on pass or leave.

Aided by the Army's well-organized Special Services program, Germany serves as an excellent steppingstone for sight-seeing in Scandinavia, England, France, Luxembourg, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, and other countries.

At the Presidio current vacancies still exit in the 3rd Armored Division at Ft. Knox for certain grades and MOS. Interested enlisted men may contact Post Classification and Assignment, room 214, Building 220, telephone extension 3412 prior to initiating a request for transfer to be sure that they qualify by MOS and grade.

Medal of Honor Winner!

Colorful Pageantry To Highlight Retirement Of General Dean

In one of the most elaborate retirement ceremonies in Presidio history, the Armed Services will pay tribute 31 October to Major General William F. Dean, Deputy Commanding General, Sixth Army, and holder of the nation's highest military award, the Congressional Medal of Honor.

More than 2,000 men from the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, National Guard, Army Reserve and ROTC will march in a final review before the hero of the Korean War.

A unit of the 24th Infantry Division, the group led by General Dean, and the first Army unit to fight in Korea, will stand among the 19 companies from all the services taking part in the ceremonies.

Following the traditional "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "General's March," played by Sixth Army Band, General Dean is scheduled to mount a jeep for inspection of the assembled troops.

Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, will read General Dean's retirement orders, the epilogue to 32 years of service in the Army of the United States.

In one further salute to General Dean, a formation of Air Force planes will stage a "flyover" the Presidio parade grounds.

Following a short message from General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chief of Staff of the Army, General Dean is expected to make a reply.

In addition to the flags carried by the color guards of 11 units from all the services, the banners of 60 members of the United Nations will fly at intervals along Montgomery Avenue, framing the line of troops on the west side of the parade ground.

The participating units will include a company from each of the Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, a company of cadets from the Reserve Officers Training Corps, University of California at Berkeley, a company from the 49th Infantry Division of the California National Guard and a company from the 91st Infantry Division of Northern California's U.S. Army Reserve.

Four companies from the Sixth Infantry at Fort Ord will participate in the ceremony along with the unit of the 24th Infantry Division from Korea.

Other units include a company from the Post Station Complement, one company of the 505th Military Police Battalion, two companies of the 30th Engineer Group, two batteries from the 6th Antiaircraft Regional Command and one company from the Presidio WAC Detachment.

The ceremony will be open to the public for whom bleacher and parking space will be provided.

winner

The Honor Guard, Company A, Station Complement, was designated the winner of the parade competition last Friday. The "Honor Unit" plaque was presented to Capt. Eugene J. Gasior, Honor Guard commanding officer, by Lt. Col. Phillip J. Vander Zwiap, 6th Army G-2 section, who was commander of troops at the parade.

Top Soldier of the month with the 16th Base Post Office is SP2 Claude T. Gills, who was selected on the basis of personal appearance, knowledge of subjects bearing on the mission of his unit, and general military subjects and a positive cooperative attitude. He is currently serving his third hitch and has served previously in Germany and Japan. With his present unit he is an instructor.

Pocket Set

New Electronic Device May Warn Future Soldier Of Sudden Dangers

Fort Monmouth, N.J.—A new electronic device which may allow the soldier-scout of the future to carry his own tiny portable radar set has been developed by the Army Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories here.

It's the world's smallest self-contained magnetron tube.

It weighs only eight ounces, is no larger than a golf ball and engineers here visualize it in a portable radar kit which will warn isolated units of the approach of vehicles or infiltrating enemy troops.

The magnetron tube was the "mystery" development shared by the Allies during World War II which allowed radar to pinpoint enemy ships and planes through fog and darkness.

In its new miniature version, the Army-developed magnetron tube is 50 times more powerful and transmits on a frequency about 100 times higher than that used by FM broadcasting stations.

Now in pre-production stage, the new tube is expected also to be of military value in short-range field communications—between advanced lines and rear echelons.

In appearance, it resembles a standard radio receiving tube. Because of its miniature size, it must be made with watchmaker precision of such metals as gold, silver, nickel, cobalt, tantalum, copper, molybdenum, iron, aluminum, lead, tungsten, tin and barium.

Service Dental Officers Wind Up Symposium Here

The first military dental symposium to be held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Dental Association was concluded at Harmon Armory this week. Dental officers of the Armed Forces throughout the nation attended.

Following the welcoming address by Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army commander, Major General Oscar P. Snyder, Chief of the Dental Corps, Washington, D. C., spoke on "Military Dentistry Today."

Other guest speakers Monday included: Brigadier General Arthur L. Irons, director of dental activities, Walter Reed Army Medical Center; Colonel George N. Schulte, USAF, assistant for dental services, Ent Air Force Base, Colo.; Major Robert W. Hobson, Office of the Surgeon General, Washington, D. C.; and Lieutenant Colonel William P. Barnes, Letterman Army Hospital.

Tuesday's symposium was opened with a discussion on "The Army Dental Professional Training Program," by Brigadier General Dale B. Ridgely, chief of dental services, Letterman Army Hospital.

Tuesday's other speakers were: Brigadier General James M. Epperly, Colonel Clare T. Budge, Lieutenant Colonel William F. Perkins, Jr., and Colonel Clarence T. Richardson.

Army Chief of Staff To Make First Visit To SF Area 31 Oct.

Army Chief of Staff General Maxwell D. Taylor will make his first visit to San Francisco and the Presidio since assuming the Army's top post last June, on 31 October to attend the retirement ceremonies for Major General William F. Dean and also to speak before a luncheon meeting at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel.

The luncheon meeting is sponsored jointly by the Commonwealth Club of California, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and the Bay Area Council.

Ticket reservations for the meeting may be obtained by local personnel by contacting Maj. Andrew Bretz, Jr., Information Section, Building 87A, extension 2470.

promotions higher!

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has authorized 54,419 enlisted promotions for October, the second highest monthly total in 13 months.

The greatest number of authorized promotions was to E-3—28,301. There were 20,770 authorized promotions to E-4, 4,977 to E-5 and 371 to E-6. No advancements to E-7 were included in the October allocations.

'US Army' Should Be Standout On Public Signs And Displays

Department of the Army policy regarding use of the designation "U. S. Army" on printed posters and display material by organizations and agencies in the Army has been emphasized in a recent post memorandum.

Use of the term, "U. S. Army," it was pointed out, should be in keeping with the style, size and color of signs, but so designed that it is the most prominent or conspicuous part of the sign.

By placing the term in the most prominent place in a public display, the Army rather than an agency within the Army, is emphasized.

Information Please is the query of Maj. Karl W. Lillage, Information Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, who visited the U.S. Military Academy at West Point recently following graduation from the Army Information School at Ft. Slocum, N. Y., this week. With Maj. Lillage (left) at the Academy battle monument is Capt. J. B. Bowley, USAF, of the West Point staff. Major Lillage will return to duties here soon.

The Treasury Department awarded special citations to Col. Rudolph W. Nuss, Sixth Army Finance and Accounting Officer, and 1st Lt. Louis Zehner, Sixth Army Finance and Accounting Section, this week in recognition of their efforts to accelerate payroll savings purchases of savings bonds in the Sixth Army area. As a result of an intensive campaign last June more than 7,000 military and civilian personnel in the command joined the payroll savings program. Harold R. Stone (right), California State Sales Director of the Savings Bond Division of the Treasury Department, presented the citations in a ceremony in Col. Nuss's office.

Two-Day Conference

Army Reserve Administrative Needs Discussed by Conferees From 8 States

Representatives from eight military districts met at the Presidio this week in a two-day conference on USAR administrative matters, presented by the Adjutant General's Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

At the conference's opening session Monday, Major R. D. Jones, chief of the Machine Records Division, outlined the objectives of the two-day confab.

The representatives from each military district headquarters (the Personnel Management Officer and/or the key civilian in each case) had gathered to review the mechanization program, examine MRU's potentialities, attain uniformity in report preparation and discuss Operations Manual M 6-38.

In his initial remarks, Colonel R. S. Nourse, Adjutant General, pointed out, "Each of you represents a different district in which these problems take similar yet varying forms. Through discussion, we should be able to help each other considerably."

The military and civilian conferees represented the military districts of Arizona, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington and the Southern California sub-district.

Jammed into the two days of conference and discussion were several demonstration lectures on punch card and electronic equipment, machine processing and reports preparation.

Operations Manual M 6-38, around which much of the discussion revolved, was published in April, 1955, to serve as a guide for agencies in the Sixth Army area whose concern is the administration of the Army Reserve. The manual's full title is Statistical Accounting and Mechanized Administrative Operations for USAR.

Representing the Department of the Army, Mr. Oscar Sanker of the Statistical and Accounting Branch, Adjutant General's Office, spoke on the use of USAR Reports prepared through MRU Reporting System.

Army Discoveries Seen as Big Help To Polar Conquest

Washington (AFPS)—New developments that may help conquer the frozen polar wastes have been disclosed by the Army's engineers.

They include an electronic crevasse detector and electric trail marker which for the first time makes it possible to travel over ice and snow during day or night.

Another discovery is that tunneling under polar ice and snow is surprisingly practical and may be a cheap and easy means of providing shelter.

A theory has also been advanced, a spokesman reported that the mining of snow might some day prove to be a source of electric power. However, nothing definite has been proved in this respect.

The crevasse detector is said to have been tested already on weasels and other tracked vehicles. It sets up a field of vibration ahead of the vehicle. When the field of vibration is interrupted, it indicates that a crevasse lies ahead.

The trail markers consist of two uninsulated wires laid along each side of the route with batteries placed at intervals transmitting impulses through the wires.

An instrument in the vehicle traveling along the trail picks up the electrical impulses and enables the driver to stay on the path despite darkness or stormy weather.

Commission Outlines Welfare Standards For Teen Reserves

Washington (AFPS)—A detailed report stressing high moral, health and welfare standards for teenage youths volunteering for the new six months reserve training program has been submitted to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

The recommendations were made by five members of the National Security Training Commission.

The commissioners said they agreed with present regulations dealing with safety, health, and welfare and recommended they be continued for trainees.

The commission asked communities near training camps to form citizens' advisory committees to help provide recreation for the trainees. The commission asked that training during the six months period be as realistic as possible. It said that trainees should be given "little, if any, leave" while on active duty.

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

officers recently assigned

Lt. Colonel CLEO B. SMITH has just completed three years' service in Hawaii as advisor to the 299th Infantry, Hawaiian National Guard. He is now with the Inspector General section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Veteran of 25 years' Army service, Col. Smith attended O. C. S. in 1942, and later the advanced Infantry course, Fort Benning, Georgia, 1949, and the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1951.

The colonel was at Pearl Harbor at the time of the bombing on 7 December, 1941, and subsequently served 18 months in the ETO with the 3rd Army. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal with "V," the Combat Infantry Badge, the Commendation ribbon and the ETO ribbon with three battle stars. During the period 1946-49, he served in the Caribbean theatre with station in Panama.

Colonel and Mrs. Smith now reside in San Francisco with their 17-year-old son and 14-year-old daughter.

Lt. Colonel ALVIN B. AUERBACH is newly assigned as chief, plans and training division, Engineer section, Headquarters Sixth Army, following two years of service as Post Engineer, Fort Richardson, Alaska.

Colonel Auerbach has been on active duty for 18½ years, and during World War II commanded two aviation Engineer battalions, an aviation Engineer regiment and finally became Engineer, China theatre Air Force, and Engineer, MAAG, in China. He served 30 months in the C-B-I theatre, his unit building two airfields each in China, Burma and India.

Author of numerous published articles, Colonel Auerbach also served a year as director, department of training publications, the Engineer School, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, and three years with Army Field Forces. He is a graduate of the Engineer school and the Command and General Staff college.

Decorated with the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Chinese Order of Yen-hui, the colonel resides at Corte Madera with his wife and 15-year-old son.

Major ALBERT S. LESCH has become chief of the supply branch, supply division, Quartermaster section, Headquarters Sixth Army. He has just returned from two years of duty as depot property officer, Alaska General depot.

Veteran of 20 years' Army service, Major Lesch attended O.S.C. at Fort Francis G. Warren, Wyoming, in 1942, and also has attended the Quartermaster school at Fort Lee, Virginia.

His World War II service was with the Transportation corps in both the Caribbean and the Southwest Pacific theatres, serving overseas for 21 months. In 1949 he was assigned to Okinawa for a year's service there.

Major and Mrs. Lesch and their two daughters are now residing in San Francisco.

Captain RICARDO DE VILLA has been named motor officer for the Post Motor pool, Presidio of San Francisco. He has been stationed at Fort Ord, California, for the past 40 months, with the 26th Transportation Battalion (truck).

Captain De Villa joined the Philippine Scouts at Corregidor in 1940, and was captured when that fortress fell during World War II. Following four months of captivity, he was released due to his ill health. He received a battlefield commission but when he came to the United States in 1948 he reenlisted as a master sergeant.

It was in Korea, in September 1950, that the captain was recalled to active duty as an officer. He served there 18 months with the Transportation section of 8th Army, and an additional six months in Japan, returning to the states in January, 1952.

Graduate of the officer's associate Transportation course at Fort Eustis, Virginia, Captain De Villa has been decorated with the Presidential Unit citation with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Korean ribbon with five battle stars. He and Mrs. De Villa and their four children are residing in quarters on the Post.

Captain HERBERT O. F. FENSKE is newly assigned to the G-2 Section of Headquarters Sixth Army. On Formosa for the past 21 months, he has served as Infantry advisor to the Chinese Nationalist Army, MAAG.

With 14 years of Army service, Captain Fenske has also served two tours in the European theatre, the first in World War II, when he joined the 79th Division there early in 1944, remaining on after the war with the military government for Bavaria, stationed at Munich, Germany, until 1947. The following year, he returned to Trieste, Headquarters TRUST, where he remained until 1953.

Graduate of the Intelligence school, Fort Riley, Kansas, the captain has among his decorations the Purple Heart, the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation ribbon.

Captain and Mrs. Fenske are residing in quarters on the Post.

First Lt. KARL W. PELTZ has been assigned to the 30th Engineer Group (Topographic Survey) as assistant adjutant. Lt. Peltz, who graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1951, has just completed a one-year graduate course in Geodesy at Ohio State university.

Following his commissioning in 1951, Lt. Peltz was assigned to the 74th Engineer Combat battalion in Korea, where he served for one year, first in the capacity of a platoon leader and then as a company commander.

In January, 1953, Lt. Peltz was assigned as project engineer for the Japan Construction agency and served in that capacity until November of 1953, when he returned to the United States.

First Lt. GEORGE A. MEIGHEN, aide-de-camp to Major General Riley F. Ennis at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, since February 1954, has accompanied the general to his new assignment here as deputy commander of Sixth Army, and will continue to be his aide.

Following graduation from the United States Military Academy, class of 1951, Lt. Meighen attended the basic Infantry course, Fort Benning, Georgia, until November, following which he was assigned to the 7th Engineer Combat battalion, 5th Infantry division training, Indiantowngap, Pennsylvania, until April 1952.

In the Far East from June 1952 to June 1953, the lieutenant served with the 15th Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division, and upon return to this country was assigned as instructor at the Infantry school. Following an injury and recuperation, he took up aide duties.

Lt. Meighen has received the Bronze Star Medal, the Combat Infantry Badge and three battle stars for his Korean ribbon. He and his wife reside in quarters on the Post.

X's Squared!

660th Engineers Field Test New Automatic Brainchild

Determining the square root of a ten-digit number is about as challenging an operation to the new MONROBOT V as the performance of a one-handed push-up on solid ground is to a tightrope walker.

The MONROBOT V is the electronic computing machine which is currently being field-tested by the 660th Engineer Battalion. It was developed recently by the Engineer Research and Development Laboratories at Ft. Belvoir, Virginia, and the Monrobot Laboratory of the Monroe Calculating Machine Company of Morris Plains, New Jersey.

The computer is expected to greatly step up the 30th Engineer Group's map-making by paring down the time required for complicated engineering calculations to the barest minimum.

Any problem that can be solved by numerical methods can be tackled by this brainy machine. Addition, subtraction, comparison and modifications are handled at the rate of 450 operations per minute.

It can breeze through 100 multiplication and division problems in the brief span of one minute and a mere ten minutes is all the time required for the machine to do the Engineer's standard survey computations which take at least three man-hours when conventional methods are employed.

Computation is fully automatic. Results are printed or punched on tape by a high-speed electric typing machine which clicks off the answers at the rate of 10 characters each second.

This electronic computer is powered by a 110 volt, five kilowatt generator. Just to make sure that the machine doesn't toss in a few extra numbers and decimal points in its calculations, it can be given a five-minute check problem at the start of each day.

The new electronic brain is roughly the size of a standard office desk and it can be readily separated into two units to facilitate handling and movement through narrow doorways.

Field-testing of the Monrobot V is being conducted under the direction of Lt. Col. Wayne Walters, 660th Engineer Battalion commander.

A school which has been set up to teach personnel how to operate the computer, is being conducted at Ft. Scott by Mr.

Aviation Detachment From 30th Engineers To Join Sage Brush

Elements of a Provisional Army Aviation Detachment of the 30th Engineers will converge on Camp Polk, La., 25 October to participate in the giant Air Force and Army Exercise Sage Brush.

Including 45 officers and 69 enlisted men, the unit will be equipped with a force of some 30 helicopters and fixed wing aircraft.

Personnel for the detachment will be drawn from Fort Scott and from Stockton Field Annex, Sharpe General Depot in Lathrop.

Four U-1 aircraft and crews will come to Sage Brush from a TDY assignment at Fort Benning, Ga. While two of the planes and their crews will go directly to Camp Polk, the remaining two have already proceeded to Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, first for installation of camera mounts and radios.

The provisional aviation detachment will remain on Exercise Sage Brush from 25 October to 15 December, then return to its home station at Stockton Field Annex.

A large part of the detachment will be taken from the 521st Topographical Aviation Unit which only recently moved its base of operations from Fort Scott to Stockton Field.

The same unit did duty this summer with the 30th Engineers in Alaska,

Army Offers Direct Reserve Commissions For Doctors, Dentists

Doctors and dentists subject to induction by Selective Service under the Doctor Draft Law now may fulfill their military obligation by applying for a direct commission in the Army Reserve and immediate call to active duty.

Others who have served less than 17 months in active military service are eligible to apply for commissions and assignments to units of the Army Ready Reserve. Those who are not obligated under Selective Service regulations may also apply for commissions and active duty.

Inquiries concerning appointments as officers in the Army for doctors and dentists may be addressed to the Commanding General, Headquarters Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.

Make-Up Schedule For Military Justice Instruction Issued

A schedule for final make-up instruction in Military Justice was issued this week by Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander. Personnel who have not completed the course will attend the necessary presentations to meet mandatory requirements.

The first 180 minutes of six-hour course B will be presented from 0800 to 1100 22 October at Fort Scott Theater and from 1330 to 1630 26 October at the Main Post Theater.

The last three hours will be given from 0800 to 1100 29 October at the Fort Scott Theater and from 1330 to 1630 2 November at the Main Post Theater.

To receive credit for training in Military Justice, the individual must have attended the complete six-hour course. The October-November schedule lists the last instruction for the calendar year 1955.

Names of personnel who have not completed the training will be submitted to Post Headquarters by unit commanders 10 November along with the reasons for failures to meet the requirement.

Ten Days to Go

Post United Crusade Drive Lingers Along $20,000 Line

With only ten days remaining in the Post's United Crusade drive, the Presidio continues to linger for a second week on a line $10,000 short of its $30,000 goal.

Most recent counts tallied $14,935 in cash contributions and $5,218 in pledges for a total of a little more than $20,000.

Since the campaign opened 1 September, two military and four civilian paydays have successively boosted the campaign totals up to the two-thirds mark.

Planners of the local drive are looking to the final payday of the campaign 31 October to put the Post over the $30,000 hump.

Throughout the Bay Area, the United Crusade is campaigning to reach a $10,000,000 goal. The money will be distributed to some 288 recognized charities in five Bay Area counties.

The 1955 One Big Give Drive represents over 90 per cent of the local and national charities in the San Francisco region. By combining their efforts, the health and welfare organizations have managed to keep campaign and operating costs down to a minimum. Only 8.9 per cent of the total contributions this year will be spent on the campaign itself. Out of that same percentage will be taken the year-round operating expenses of five regional offices.

The major share of the $10,000,000 will be distributed locally to each of the participating organizations on a basis proportional to past needs.

The military in the Bay Area has been assigned its own mission in the campaign, Operation 288, headed by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander. On the Presidio, an ideal contribution of one day's pay for civilian and military personnel has been suggested as the basis for the $30,000 goal. Unit representatives will continue to accept contributions until 31 October, final day of the campaign.

Army Urges Troops To Enter All-Service Camera Competition

Recognizing the value of the power of display as well as of the display of power, the Army is seeking to encourage soldier shutters to enter the forthcoming Sixth Interservice Photography Contest.

Offering prizes in the form of savings bonds to the top photos, the Army will hold its preliminary contest at the installation level in December.

Winners will compete next spring against contestants from the Navy, Coast Guard, Air Force and Marines.

Categories in the competition include black and white single photographs, from a minimum size of eight by 10 inches to a maximum 16 by 20 inches, unmatted and unmounted; black and white picture stories, a series of three photos presenting a narrative of one phase of the Special Services recreation program.

Army contest winners will receive bonds in the amount of $100, $75 and $50 for the first, second and third prizes in the black and white single photograph competition. Similar awards will also be made for color transparencies from 35mm size to a maximum of four by five inches.

The final interservice contest will be held in June, 1956.

cg exams

Competitive examinations for appointment to the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., will be given 27 and 28 February, 1956, in over 100 American cities and abroad. Open to men of all the Armed Services, the examination requires that the candidate be a high school senior or graduate between 17 and 22 years old. He must have 20/20 vision in each eye uncorrected and stand between 64 and 78 inches tall. The New London Academy gives a four-year course in engineering, leading to a BS degree, as well as a commission as ensign.

Army NCO's Training In Specialist Courses Must Take Sp Rate

Washington (AFPS) — Army NCOs who apply for specialist MOS school courses which do not have a supervisory or leadership skill level must agree to be rated as specialists when training is completed.

Change 2 of AR 611-215, which deals with attendance at Army service schools, states NCOs will not be selected for such school courses unless they sign a statement consenting to the specialist appointment.

The statement will be included in the individual's 201 file until completion of the course and appointment in the appropriate specialist grade.

The Army said that this policy is not intended to preclude the retraining of NCOs. They may be selected for retraining at the specialist level when the MOS in which they are being trained has a supervisory or leadership skill level to which they may advance.

Army Leads Services With Near 60 Percent Regular Re-Up Rate

Leading all the other Armed Services, the Army's reenlistment rate among regular volunteers has run close to 60 percent for several months, according to recently released figures.

The trend is in the direction of one of the Army's long-sought goals—a purely volunteer organization.

Since 1954, the Army's reenlistment rate for regulars has nearly doubled. In the past two years, it has shown a 300 percent increase. The concrete figures show a re-up level of 9,000 men a month, not including those men who may have become civilians for a day or two before reenlisting.

Because all men discharged have 90 days to consider returning to uniform, total reenlistment statistics are never available until four or more months after the month a group is discharged.

During July, 1954, reenlistment rates were running as low as 30.3 percent, as compared with 56.6 percent in July, 1955. The Department of the Army interprets the recent trend as an indication that most Regulars are satisfied with their Army lot.

Clarence W. Kitchens of the Engineer Research and Development Laboratories and Mr. Jean B. Cook of the Monrobot Laboratory.

The first group selected to attend the school includes Sfc. Richard H. Gwinup, Pfc. Danny Johnson, Pfc. Harvey Trilli and Pvt. Karl Henry.

Son of Former LAH CG Selects New Army Med Student Program

The first Californian to apply for a commission under the Army's new program offered to senior medical students is James T. Gillespie of San Francisco, the son of Brig. Gen. James O. Gillespie, former commanding general of Letterman Army Hospital and currently chief of Professional Services for the Surgeon General.

He was granted a commission recently as a second lieutenant, the status which he will hold while completing his final year of medical studies at Stanford Medical School. Under the new program he will receive full pay while finishing school.

As soon as he completes his studies he will serve an internship at an Army hospital and then commence a tour of active duty.

During the internship he will be selected for resident training in one of 15 medical specialties considered essential to the military.

Self-Portrait of the artist as a civilian depicts Pfc. Jerry Snow with mustache and somewhat more elegant hair-style. A draftsman at the Post Telephone Exchange, Snow does portraits as a hobby, recently received a note of appreciation from Mrs. Eisenhower for a pencil sketch he did of the President. With little more than a month remaining as a soldier, Snow contemplates his civilian future, while trimming the mustache which is now in reality only a memory.

PFC's Sketch of Eisenhower Hangs in Denver White House

Somewhere in the Denver White House, where the President is recuperating from his recent heart attack, hangs an 18 by 20 inch pencil portrait of Dwight D. Eisenhower, sketched by 26-year-old Pfc. Jerry Snow.

A draftsman at the Post Telephone Exchange, Snow makes a hobby of portraiture. People in the public view—statesmen, entertainers, thinkers attract his eye and his drawing pencil.

Snow did the sketch of the President from a newspaper photo three years ago while still a civilian and a commercial illustrator for a major aircraft manufacturer. Just a week before the President was stricken, Snow rediscovered the picture among his folios and sent it to Eisenhower in Denver.

A week later he received a note of appreciation written personally by Mrs. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower is not the only president to attract Snow's admiration and his talents. In 1949, Snow sent his impression of Franklin D. Roosevelt to Mrs. Roosevelt. It now hangs in the Roosevelt Library at Hyde Park, New York.

Six feet six inches tall, Snow was drafted in his stocking feet. By taking his shoes off, Snow's Draft Board managed to slip him under the wire of the Army's height restrictions.

"I don't care much for modern art," Snow said. "Portraits for me make a relaxing hobby. My principal aim is simple realism."

Educated in El Segundo, California, Snow won several scholarships in high school poster and folio contests. He took a brief course at the Choinard Art Institute in Los Angeles.

While at Fort Ord, he did sketches of singers Frank Sinatra, Billy Eckstine and Tony Martin. (Another of Snow's hobbies is song-writing, particularly lyrics. Snow does not read music and has to have his melodies transcribed by a pianist friend. Among his titles are Peace of Mind and My Lucky Chance.)

Although Snow likes to imagine his portraits on the covers of national magazines, he plans to return to the drafting tables after discharge next month.

Special Events Today Mark 30th Engineer Group's Organization

A full slate of special events is planned by the 30th Engineer Group to celebrate its organization day today. At 0900 hours the group will stage a military review at the Fort Scott Parade Ground for which Brig. Gen. Louis T. Rumaggi, Sixth Army Chief of Staff and a former 30th Engineer Group member, will be the reviewing officer.

Movies of the group's 1955 Alaska survey operation will be shown at the Ft. Scott theatre from 0930 to 1030. Following the movies, "Open House" will be observed in the plants of the 99th and 21st Engineer Companies. At the same time the group's survey equipment will be displayed at the Ft. Scott football field.

Families and friends of group personnel are invited to a turkey dinner at the organizations' mess halls. All events except the dinner are open to the general public.

Film "Martin Luther" In Presidio Showings On Reformation Day

Two special showings of the film, "Martin Luther," will be held at the Presidio Sunday, 30 October, in observance of the Protestant Festival of the Reformation.

The film will be shown at the Fort Scott chapel at 1430 hours and at the Presidio Post chapel at 1800. It is open to all interested personnel.

Reformation day, as celebrated by Protestants throughout the world, commemorates the nailing of the 95 theses on the door of the Castle church in Wittenberg, Germany, on 31 October 1517. This event is generally considered to be the official beginning of the Protestant Reformation.

The film, "Martin Luther," presents the drama of the origin of Protestantism as it unfolded in Europe more than 400 years ago. For the sake of authenticity, it was produced in 16th century monasteries, castles, churches and market-squares of Western Germany.

Army Board to Pick Active Duty Reserve Offs. for Promotion

Washington (AFPS)—An army selection board will meet here in early November to consider non-unit reserve officers for promotion. Officers who hold higher AUS grades will not be considered.

All officers, except those of the army medical service, on active duty, and warrant officers and enlisted personnel serving on active duty who hold reserve commissions will be considered.

AMS officers will be considered at a later date.

Eligibility requirements are: To lieutenant colonel—male majors with both 17 years service and seven years promotion service as of Oct. 31, 1956.

To major—all captains with both 12 years service and seven years promotion service as of Nov. 30, 1956.

To captain—all first lieutenants with both six years service and four years promotion service as of Dec. 31, 1956.

Washington (AFPS)—The Association of Military Surgeons of the U. S. will meet here in November to discuss the medical problems facing the armed forces and the nation in an atomic war.

New Text!

USAFI Course In Radio Fundamentals Is Now Available to Local Personnel

One of the most recent USAFI courses now on stock at the Army Education Center here is Fundamentals of Radio, a course for which the textbook has been completely revised and improved.

The course covers all phases of the first course in radio, including fundamentals of electricity related to radio.

Mathematics is kept to a minimum and explanations are given throughout the course textbook to help the student understand radio principles.

The textbook also contains self-instruction aids to help you in individual material covered. New technical terms used in each chapter are clearly defined at the end of the chapter.

Schematic and pictorial drawings of radio circuits are shown throughout the text to clarify radio principles and techniques.

A complete radio-tube characteristics chart is included at the end of the text for ready-reference purposes.

This course may be taken by any one of three methods; either group study, individual study with lesson service from USAFI and individual study without lesson service.

Personnel wishing to take this course are best prepared with a background of algebra and high school physics. It would also be a good idea to have an old radio handy on which to practice.

Interested personnel may contact the Army Education Center, Building 117, extension 2974.

"Sound Off" Show Rehearsals Continue; Chorus Wacs Sought

The musical comedy, "Sound Off," being directed by Sgt. Elsie Davis, features a number of musically talented personnel from the Presidio, and more, especially Wacs, are needed to take part in the production numbers.

Rehearsals are being held regularly, and the opening date for the program will be announced soon.

Heading the combo is Pvt. Steve Schall, pianist, whose varied pre-Army background includes college dance bands and a 45-minute weekly radio show during which he played the accordion.

Pvt. Schall is presently serving as supply clerk with Headquarters company, 6002 Station Quartermaster.

officers recently assigned

Major WILFRED C. FORD has been assigned to the student detachment at Syracuse University the past 14 months, where he recently earned his M.A. in business administration, with emphasis on Army Comptrollership. His new position is that of chief, survey branch, management division, Comptroller section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

The major entered the Army in 1937, and during World War II served 42 months in Europe with the 899th TD battalion, 9th Infantry Division, 7th Corps, 1st Army, participating in the six big campaigns of the war that began at Normandy. Returning to Europe in 1951, Major Ford spent 18 months as S-4 and S-3, Combat Command A, 2nd Armored Division, and 18 months as assistant G-4, Berlin Command.

Graduate of the Armored school, Fort Knox, Kentucky, the major has also attended the University of Akron. He wears the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart, and the ETO ribbon with six battle stars. He and his eight-year-old son are residing in San Francisco.

Of special interest is the fact that the major's father, Colonel A. R. McConnell, Retired, was one of the pioneer Air Force officers, having served with that organization for a total of 32 years. He and Mrs. McConnell now reside in Los Gatos, California.

Captain EPHRIAM L. PUFFER has become assistant S-4 for the Presidio of San Francisco. For the past 30 months he has been in Europe, spending the first 18 months with the 42nd Field Artillery battalion and the past year with the Northern Area Command, Frankfurt, Germany.

On active duty for 11 years, the captain's service began during World War II. In 1944 he went to the Philippines and Japan with the 81st Division, serving two years. In 1946, he again returned to Japan, serving there until 1948 when he left the service.

Recalled to active duty in 1950, Captain Puffer went to Korea where he served until March 1952 with the 213th Field Artillery battalion, National Guard unit, and earned four battle stars for his Korean ribbon. He attended Transition course No. 7 at Fort Bliss, Texas, upon his return to this country.

The captain's wife and step-daughter will join him shortly. Additionally, he has two sons, both of whom are students at Utah State Agricultural college.

The new assistant post confinement officer and assistant post police officer is 1st Lt. EVERETT L. A. HAYES, who comes to the Presidio from Camp Gordon, Georgia, where he completed the MP Corps' Confinement and Correction course.

Assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 505th MP Battalion, he is a 1951 graduate of Seton Hall University and a native of Montclair, New Jersey. Before beginning his college studies he served a one year hitch with the Navy.

He received his reserve commission and was called to active duty September 1951. From 1951 to 1952 he was with the 171st MP Battalion at Ft. Custer, Michigan. He then served three years with the 382nd MP Battalion in Germany.

The Lieutenant presently resides at Wherry housing with his wife and two sons.

Second Lieutenant KENNETH M. EBERTS, JR., is in his first Army assignment as assistant Finance officer, Presidio of San Francisco.

He entered the service on 30 June, receiving his commission from R.O.T.C. ranks at Stanford university.

At the same time, he received his degree in economics.

Lt. Eberts has just completed the basic Finance school at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

Eisenhower in 1952, sketched from a newspaper photo by Pfc. Jerry Snow. The portrait is now in the Denver White House. Snow sent it to the President just a week before his recent illness.

MH Winner Is Guest of Premiere Of "To Hell and Back"

Medal of Honor Winner M/Sgt. Wilburn K. Ross of Fort Lewis, Washington, was invited as special guest by the producers of "To Hell and Back" to the film's recent West Coast premiere.

A member of the 9th Infantry Regiment, Sgt. Ross was chosen for the guest's seat because he had won his citation while serving with the 3rd Infantry Division during World War II—the same unit with which movie actor Audie Murphy earned the nation's highest military honor.

"To Hell and Back" is the story of Murphy's World War II exploit.

Ross's present unit, the 9th Infantry Regiment, was used by the picture-makers in filming a number of battle sequences.

While in Hollywood, Ross attended a studio luncheon, toured the sound stages and escorted a starlet to the premiere.

He had met Murphy once before—at President Eisenhower's inauguration in 1953.

Halloween Week Set At Ft. Baker Service Club; Varied Program

Salute to Halloween week will herald the reopening of the Fort Baker Service Club, Tuesday (25 October) with a "Spook Shuffle," beginning at 2000. Costumes are the rule and prizes will be awarded for the most unique and most beautiful, and intermission time will bring on bobbing for apples and other games.
On Wednesday night, there will be a Halloween carnival with such favorites as Hit the Witch, Spear the Apple, Shoot the Jack O'Lantern, Goblin race, Fortune telling and an array of prizes and Halloween refreshments.
At the Thursday square dance, again the Halloween theme will prevail with costumes, a western band and caller, games and a weiner roast. And Friday night will be bingo. Night with prizes and a jackpot.
If you are very brave, there is the Halloween spook show on Saturday night, featuring a full length spook movie and assorted ghosts and a haunted house thrown in. Popcorn will be served to quiet your nerves.
The week's festivities will come to a close Sunday with a Halloween party beginning at 1900. Students of the Irene Weed Folk Dance school will entertain, and all young children of post personnel are asked to attend the party in costume, since there will be a kiddie parade following the show. Games and refreshments are also on the docket.

New AAA Unit Already Shows Broad Troop I&E Program

Although activated for the brief period of four weeks, the 441st AAA Battalion, 30th AAA Group, has already established a comprehensive troop information and education program. Even with the unit's men on 24-hour alert more than 60 men have already enrolled in USAFI correspondence courses.
Another group of 441st personnel, some sixteen strong, have started work on a San Francisco High School Diploma by beginning GED testing at the Presidio's Army Education center. Other men are being encouraged to participate in other facets of the Army's extensive education program.

'Beyond Control'

VA Rules Training Cut-Off Flexible For Vets Reentering Military Service

Veterans who interrupt their Korean GI Bill training to go back into military service will be permitted to resume their courses after discharge, even though their starting cut-off date has passed, Veterans Administration said today.

Ordinarily, a veteran who suspends GI training after his cut-off date for more than 12 consecutive months must prove to VA that the suspension over and above the 12-month period was due to reasons beyond his control. Also, he must get VA's prior approval before he may continue his training.

VA has ruled that a training suspension of longer than 12 months, caused by a veterans' return to active military duty, will be considered to have been caused by a reason "beyond his control."

Therefore, after he finally is released from service, he will be allowed to resume his elected program of GI training—so long as he does so within a reasonable period following his discharge or release.

VA explained that conditions are different for veteran-trainees who suspend their courses for periods of 12 months or less, after their cut-off date. Under the law, they do not need to justify their suspension, nor do they need VA approval in order to get back into training. It is only suspension of longer than 12 months that requires justification and approval.

Deadlines for completing Korean GI Bill training have not been changed by VA's ruling. Even though a veteran suspends training to re-enter the armed forces, he still has to complete his course within the original time limits set by law.

The deadline for veterans separated from active service before January 31, 1955, is eight years from the date of separation. For those separated after January 31, 1955, the deadline is eight years from separation or January 31, 1965, whichever is first.

Spooks and Witches To Hobble Around At City's USO Facilities

Halloween costume parties and dances are being scheduled for Bay Area servicemen and women by San Francisco USO centers, it was announced today by club directors.
Embarcadero-YMCA USO plans a costume dance for Sunday night, 30 October. The club is located at 166 Embarcadero.

NCCS-USO, 70 Oak street, has scheduled a "Witches Delight" costume party for Saturday, 29 October at 2030. During the festivities, junior hostesses will crown the king and queen of October.

Included in the YWCA-USO's plans for Halloween are a "Cat's Meow" dance, 29 October, and "Nonsense Night, 30 October. The Club is at 966 Market.

It is believed that U.S. Army soldiers used the bayonet more often in Korea than in any war since the War between the States.

Raiders Smash Pirates, 34-20

Football!!

South City Windbreakers Play Raiders Tomorrow

The powerful Presidio Red Raiders, fresh from their 34-20 triumph over the Treasure Island Pirates, engage the strong South San Francisco Windbreakers tomorrow afternoon on the Fort Scott turf. Kickoff time is slated for 1400 hours.

Head coach Larry McInerney's soldier gridsters will be in quest of their sixth victory of the current season. The Red Raiders have rolled up 139 points while giving up but 53 points so far this year and have a 5 and 1 official game record.

The starting offensive line for the Presidio will be Nims and Piggott at ends, McDonnell and Terrell at tackles, Wilson and Holmes at the guard slots and Snyder at center.

Starting in the backfield will be Maytubby at quarterback, Guimarin and Macias at the halves and Ratliff at fullback.

Macias will be starting his first game in the first string backfield replacing Ed Colarossi who was discharged this week.

The South San Francisco Windbreakers are one of the better semi-pro teams in the Bay Area. So far this season they have compiled a 5-1-2 record.

The Windbreakers have, rolled over the Martinez All-Stars twice, the Madera semi-pro's, Moffett Field, and San Quentin. They tied the Petaluma Leghorns, 12-12 and lost to the Santa Cruz Seahawks, 7-6 and the powerful Fort Ord Warriors 41-20.

Starring in the Windbreaker single wing attack will be Al Alston, former San Francisco 49'er and Clipper Star at quarterback.

Probable starting line-up for the Windbreakers will be Hightower and Bullard at ends, Rivers and Cahee at tackles. Du Pont and Smith at guards and Marion at center. Backs will be Springer and Foote at halves and Barbetti at fullback.

Pete Newell Heads 1955 Cage Clinic

Pete Newell, famed basketball coach at the University of California, Berkeley, will head up the 1955-56 Bay Area Armed Forces Basketball Clinic. The clinic will be held in the main gym at the Naval Air Station, Alameda, commencing at 0900 hours on 15 November.

A native Californian from Los Angeles, Pete graduated from Loyola of Los Angeles in 1939. After a successful tour of duty in the United States Navy, he became coach at the University of San Francisco where he established his reputation as an outstanding basketball coach. In 1950 he moved to Michigan State as head coach, thence to the University of California this year, upon the retirement of Nibs Price.

The coordinators of the BAAF will release information at an early date on the details of the clinic. Bay Area Armed Forces Commands will be invited to send their coaches and players to the clinic.

Such areas as offense, defense, rules and regulations, techniques and methods will be included in the syllabus.

Pvt. Jay P. Murphy's $100,000 hydroplane, "Breathless," placed fourth with 338 points in the special two-heat race for the William Rogers Trophy in the President's Regatta on the Potomac. Murphy is stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

cage clinic

November 2d has been named as the date for intra-mural coaches and managers to attend the one day basketball clinic at Letterman Gym. Coaches from any company, unit or club on post desiring to enter the winter casaba sport should contact the Post Sports Office, Ext. 3968. Coaches will be placed on TDY for the one day clinic which will be conducted by Presidio Basketball Coach Hal Fischer.

AF Academy Grid Terms 'Real Gone'

Lowry AFB, Colo. (AFPS) — When the AF Academy freshmen football team takes the field with its secret weapon, the spectators will probably take to the shelters.

The coaching staff at the academy has compiled a football glossary which includes such expressions as "blast off," "buy the farm," "afterburner" and "sonic boom."

Confused? Its simple, once you study the glessary. For example: a player, who assumes the take off position, blasts off into a pogy and gives the latter the afterburner is merely taking his stance, charging into an opponent and turning on an extra amount of steam to drive him back.

On the other hand, a cadet who takes the runway, makes a hot start and buys the farm has jumped offside, made a serious error and in general loused up the operation.

As the academy enlarges to a four-year institution, other expressions will undoubtedly be added to those already compiled. But by that time everyone will be able to decipher such basic terms as hard hat (helmet), sand bagger (player who is a spectator rather than doer), flame out (power failure), barrier buster (good tackler or tackle), and hassle (tough contest).

ord wins

The powerful Fort Ord Warriors whipped the Camp Pendleton Marines 40-7 last Saturday to gain their fifth straight win of the current pigskin season.

The play of quarterback Jimmy Powers, end Ron Miller and fullback Sam Baker featured the Ord attack.

The Warriors scored 7 points in the first quarter, blasted out 21 in the second, 12 in the third for their 40 points. The Marines got their lone score in the fourth and final period.

Grid Contest!

Colarossi Stars As Red Raiders Win Fifth Victory

Grabbing a quick touchdown in the first period, on Ed Lewis's 10 yard run, the Presidio Red Raiders rolled for 28 points in the last half to defeat the Treasure Island Pirates, 34-20. The grid contest was played on the Pirates' home field last Friday afternoon.

With the Presidio ahead 27-0 in the final quarter, the Sailors scored three times within five minutes against the Soldier reserves. All the Pirate scores came on passes from Ray Ottoson, former College of the Pacific quarterback.

Presidio Coach Larry McInerney then sent his first string back in and with 10 seconds remaining, quarterback Morris Maytubby sprinted 65 yards for the final tally.

Right half Ed Colarossi led the Raider scoring with two touchdowns, a three yard plunge and a 10 yard run around right end for 12 points. This was Ed's last game for the Presidio as he was discharged early this week.

Fullback Bobby Ratliff scored one TD on a 15 yard run through left tackle and added four conversions for 10 points.

Standing out for the Presidio in the front wall were big Rex Dunn, recovering a fumble and knocking down a pass; Bob Swenko, recovering a fumble, and Bob Trotter, Frank McDonnell, and Dick Piggott. In the backfield Lewis, Macias and Ratliff looked good on defense.

Trout Plant Nears End For Season

Planting of catchable trout for the 1955 season is virtually completed, with only the tag end of the hatch to be distributed, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

The season runs until October 31, but the bulk of catchable planting ends with the Labor Day weekend.

With planting activities soon over, egg-taking has gotten underway at Hot Creek Hatchery, Mono County; Mt. Whitney Hatchery, Inyo County; and Mt. Shasta Hatchery in Siskiyou County.

At Hot Creek some 12,000,000 fall spawn rainbow trout eggs will be taken by early December. Mt. Shasta will produce about 7,000,000 late fall spawning rainbow eyed eggs, and 7,000,000 spring spawning rainbow eggs will be taken at Mt. Whitney beginning in January.

Final Results

Sixth Army Signal Wins First In Pacific League

The front running Sixth Army Signal bowlers captured first place in the Pacific Bowling League as play ended this week. The signal rollers won 61 games while dropping but 27 in official league play.

Team members with their season's average were Adair 170, Okley 158, Weber 152, Paul 148, and Slagle with 140. The signal men ended the league with a .690 team average and a grand total of 57762 pins smashed.

The smooth rolling Masonites continued to top the National Bowling League with a 19 and 1 mark. Last week's third place Hilltoppers climbed to second in this week's standing.

High individual games so far were rolled by Yeager of the Soltechs with a 251, Alexander from the Hooks with a 224 and Greene of the King Pins with a 221.

Awards for bowling "200" games go to Jacobs of the Hooks with a 201 and a 203 and Masten of the Masonites with a 205.

In the down town Bagdad "900" classic league the Presidio squad captured three games from the league leading Jim Lasky team. The five-man Presidio team rolled a high total of 974 in the third game. Up to this week, this would have been a new record. However, another squad rolled a 1001 game the same night to take the honors.

Total scores turned in this week by the Presidio team saw Owens grab top honors with a dazzling 564 total for the three games. Right behind him was Murphy's 564. Hoffacker's 537, Jognson's 525 and

bowlers

Post Special Services announced this week that a new mixed bowling league is being formed with action slated to commence on the second of November. Teams will be made up of three men and two women each. Interested teams and single bowlers desiring to enter teams should contact Sgt. Kite at Ext. 3968 for information.

Jacob's 505 rounded out the scoring for the week.

Action continued hot and heavy in the Eastern League as the 6513 SU squad regained the top spot from the Hilltoppers No. 6 who dropped to second place in league standing. Last week's second place club, the Ichi Ban's, dropped to third in the league standing.

High team handicap with Pins went to the eighth place Ten Pins with 1087. In the high series with handicap, the fourth place Nuggets rolled 2970 for top honors.

High Net Men To Fort Ord For Tourney

Headed by playing coach Major Bob Jones, the eight-man Presidio Volleyball squad leaves Sunday afternoon for action in the All-Sixth Army Tournament. The four day tourney will be held at Fort Ord next Monday thru Friday.

Players named on the squad are Lt. Jack Aldridge, Lt. Harry Matthews, PFC Frank McDonnell, PFC Mat Schmutz (team captain), Pvt. Dick Godino, Pvt. Bob Noel, Pvt. Jerry Steiner and Coach, Major Bob Jones.

The squad has been working out this week against the Embarcadero YMCA and the Central YMCA. Paced by Mat Schmutz' spiking and Dick Godino's setting the Presidio men beat the Central 'Y' club and split with the powerful Embarcadero team.

Seen watching the final workouts of the Presidio squad were Lt. Col. Burt DeGroot, vice-president of the United States Volleyball Association and Bob Miller, Physical Director of the Embarcadero YMCA and noted national volleyball authority.

Fencing

Tafoya Scores Second In California Foil Clash

Jose Tafoya, the fencing medic from Letterman Army Hospital slashed his way into the finals of the Men's Northern California Handicap Foil Championship last Saturday at Stanford University. Tafoya lost out in the final match to John Klatz of the University of California, the All-Western College Fencing Champion.

The final match went to four all with Klatz getting credit for the final touch, which gave him first place in the tourney. Tafoya was second and McDougall of Stanford was third.

The tournament drew 23 entries from Stanford University, University of California, S. F. State College, Berkeley Fencing Club, Halberstadt School of Fencing, Olympic Club and Letterman Army Hospital.

The event consisted of four preliminary strips with the first and second place winner on each strip going up to the finals. Thus eight fencers qualified for the finals out of the field of 23.

Of the eight finalists, five were from the combined Presidio and Letterman team. They were Colonel Laurance Brownlee, Frank Dama, Chuck Ward, Bill Stark and Jose Tafoya.

Other entries from LAH and the Presidio were John Beauvois, Herb Rhodes and George Kester. The competition was extremely difficult due to the number of entries and the range of handicaps given.

The next competition for the combined LAH and Presidio group will be held tomorrow at San Francisco State College, for beginners in foil. The Presidio will be represented in the matches by John Beauvois, Doug Bostard and Carl Klein. From Letterman will be Bill Stark and Frank Dama.

Directing the Ft. Dix, N. J., grid attack is Pat Stark, who led Syracuse University to the Orange Bowl a few years back.

Five Teams See Action For Wacs

Wac winter bowling got off to a fast start this week on the Fort Scott alleys with four of the five teams entered seeing action. Tied for the top spot are teams 1 and 2 with four wins and no losses.

Teams 2 and 4 have 0 and 4 marks and the number five squad has yet to see action.

Pacing the number one team is Glynn with a 159 high game and 382 pins smashed in three games played. Right behind her is Baker with a 147 high game and 413 pins destroyed. Other bowlers on the number one squad are Bernardini, 131, Sinnett, 128, and Brockhaus with a 115 roll.

Heading up the number 3 team is Engels with a 180 high game and 520 pins downed. Just behind her is King with a 152 high and 420 pins demolished. The other members are High with a 114 roll and Fergus with a 107 top score.

Team No. 1 captured high team game with a 670 total roll and it also rolled a high team series with a dazzling 1854 total.

High game honors went to Engels with 180, Glynn with 159 and Owens with a 153 mark. Engels also took high series for the week with a 520 score followed by Owens with a 438 and King's 420.

In 66 grid seasons, Notre Dame has an overall record of 424 wins, 86 losses and 34 ties.

Prizes For Fish Tags Announced

Over $500 worth of rods, reels, and other fishing tackle, plus $200 in cash, will go to lucky Sacramento River anglers who return Department of Fish and Game steelhead tags this year, the Department reported.

The tackle prizes have been donated by 29 sporting goods dealers, resorts, and bait shops along the river from Colusa to Redding. The $200 in cash has been donated by Kamloops, Inc., the northern California sportsmen's organization which has been active in fostering steelhead planting in the river.

Drawing for the prizes will be held in April 1956. All anglers who turn in tags will be eligible.

Tag returns so far this year indicate a slightly smaller run than last year's spectacular run of 30,000 fish, according to Biologist Dick Hallock, in charge of field work for the Department's Sacramento-San Joaquin River federal-aid salmon and steelhead project.

Examination of fish trapped for the tagging operation indicate that about 20 per cent of this year's steelhead run is made up of hatchery-stocked fish, Hallock reported.

... Pepperrell AFB, Nfld., won the 1955 NFOC softball title.

DRIVING In for a sure two points is big Pvt. Mike O'Neill of the Red Raider cage squad. Mike, a member of Headquarters Company Station Complement, was the leading scorer in the Bay Area Armed Forces League last year while playing for the Raiders.

Scrimmage!

Raiders Upset Olympic Club In First Cage Tilt

Paced by Mike O'Neill and Don Lofgran, the Presidio Red Raider cage squad defeated the Olympic Club of San Francisco 82-40 in a game type scrimmage Tuesday night at the Olympic Club.

Big Mike and rangy Don poured in 28 and 27 points respectively to lead their Raider teammates to the victory. Rounding out the starting five were Bill Aires, Bill Davis, and Herb Slavitt.

Forward O'Neill was the leading scorer for the Raiders last season in the Bay Area Armed Forces League. Mike played his pre-service ball at the University of California where he was the leading scorer in 1948.

Continuing on with basketball Mike was chosen on the 1951 AAU All-American squad while playing for the Oakland Blue and Gold team. He was also chosen as captain of the United States team in the 1951 Pan American games.

Center Lofgran did his pre-service playing at the University of San Francisco where he was chosen most valuable player, after USF won the 1949 National Invitational Tournament.

Don also spent two years at Indianapolis and two years at Philadelphia playing pro ball. Last season Don starred with the powerful Fort Ord Warriors.

new mascot

The Air Force Academy took to the air in search of a mascot and name for its athletic teams and bagged the falcon—a hunting bird noted for its swift flight, courage and ferocity.

It will join West Point's mule and the Annapolis goat as a service academy pet.

Selection of the name was unanimously made by the cadets from a list of nominations which included the golden eagle, black panther, Bengal tiger, cheetah, ocelot, mountain lion and wildcat.

Alameda NAS Clobbers SF Navy By 73-13

Alameda Naval Air Station unleashed an 11-touchdown barrage to crush San Francisco Naval Shipyard, 73-13 last weekend. The win enabled the Hellcats to take over first place in the 12th Naval District League.

Steve Nyers tallied three times for Alameda, while John Lewis and Harry Landry each scored twice.

Last month the Hellcats went down to defeat at the hands of the Presidio Red Raiders, 16-7 for their only loss of the current season. The Red Raiders journey to Alameda for a return match on the 18th of November.

The 16-man Army fife and drum corps recently performed at the national rifle and pistol matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

U.N. DAY October 24

The attention of the world was focused recently on the opening in New York of the 10th annual meeting of the United Nations General Assembly, the "congress of the world."

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, speaking to the Assembly, emphasized the importance of the U.N. when he declared "... we see the nations becoming more and more sensitive to the moral verdict of this organization. ... The perceptions and the moral judgments of the nations meeting here endow this assembly with genuine power. No nation lightly risks the Assembly's moral condemnation, with all that that condemnation implies."

These words of Secretary Dulles help explain why the U.S., a charter member of the U.N., regards it as such a vital organization. President Eisenhower again this year has proclaimed Oct. 24 as United Nations Day.

The DOD has urged commands throughout the world to honor the observance with appropriate ceremonies. (AFPS)

October Anniversary

Troop Information Period To Mark UN's Tenth Year

A decade ago, the diplomats of nearly 60 nations gathered in San Francisco's Opera House to sign a charter which declared in its preamble their joint determination "to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind. ..."

On 24 October, that Charter of the United Nations will be 10 years old.

To mark the anniversary, the next troop information instruction period will deal with The United Nations—Organization and Purpose.

Since World War II, out of which it was born, the United Nations has labored in behalf of the high ideals voiced in the preamble to its charter.

Not in any sense a world government, it has acted as the meeting place for nations, offering the moral incentive and the institutional framework for cooperation on the international level. Its techniques have been for the most part persuasion and the influence of moral power, rather than forceful coercion. On a number of occasions, it has determined the course of history.

Despite disappointments and setbacks, growing out of shifts in the world power constellations, the United Nations can point to a long list of accomplishments in the past 10 years. It was the diplomatic medium through which the Soviet Union was persuaded to withdraw its troops from Iran.

It was instrumental in bringing about the removal of French and British forces in Lebanon and Syria. The international impasse of the Berlin Blockade was surmounted through the agency of the United Nations.

And for the first time in diplomatic history, an aggressor force was repelled through the recommendation and implementation of collective action by an international organization.

But in less sensational ways, the United Nations has for 10 years been working through its permanent organizations to realize its original goals—through the International Law Commission, the International Court of Justice, the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), Food and Agriculture

Army Will Train Helicopter Pilots At Civvie School

Washington (AFPS) — The Army plans to give its cargo helicopter pilots their primary flight training at a civilian flying school. This training is now conducted at the Army Aviation Center at Camp Rucker, Ala.

Under the new system, students will report to Camp Rucker for screening and then be transferred to a civilian contract flying school for 18 weeks of primary flight instruction. They then will return to the aviation center for 12 weeks of advanced flight and tactics training.

The Army said the step was in accord with DOD policy that operations should be performed by civilian firms when possible in order to release military personnel for combat units.

Brig. Gen. Carl J. Hutton, commander of the aviation center, has been authorized to negotiate a contract for this training as soon as possible. The site to be selected will be within 500 miles of Camp Rucker.

Enlisted men and warrant officers may volunteer for cargo helicopter pilot training. EM completing the course will be promoted to the grade of warrant officer.

Reorganizes Port Facilities Into Three 'Terminal' Commands

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has reorganized its stateside ports of embarkation into three separate transportation terminal commands serving the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf of Mexico.

The new commands are responsible for all terminal operations and related activities along their respective coastlines.

On the east coast, the New York Port of Embarkation at Brooklyn has become the Atlantic Terminal Command. Its subordinate installations are known as the Brooklyn Army Terminal and the Hampton Roads Army Terminal.

The newly activated Sunny Point Army Terminal, N. C., near Wilmington also is included in the Atlantic Command.

The Gulf Command includes the New Orleans Army Terminal and the Theodore Army Terminal, Ala. Its headquarters are in New Orleans.

On the west coast, the ports of embarkation at Seattle and San Francisco have been renamed army terminals. They operate under the Pacific Terminal Command with headquarters at San Francisco.

Postgraduate Course In Dental Specialty Ends At Letterman

An annual postgraduate course in prosthodontics was concluded recently at Letterman Army Hospital. The course was held for 21 military dentists from areas west of the Mississippi, including 16 Army, four Air Force and one Public Health Prosthodontists.

It was directed by Lt. Col. William P. Barnes, Jr., LAH prosthodontist, and the course included clinics, panels and instruction on all phases of prosthetic dentistry by outstanding dentists from the Bay Area, from Letterman and from other Army installations.

Prosthodontics pertains generally to teeth correction by straightening and also to bridgework.

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME

"... A country of many different religious denominations, with freedom to worship in the church of one's choice. ..."

—M/Sgt. James E. Morgan, Jr., Kirtland AFB, N. M.
1954 Freedoms Foundations Honor Medal Winner

Freedom of worship was M/Sgt. Morgan's theme in one section of his Honor Medal winning letter to Freedoms Foundation during 1954. It can be your theme, too. Enter the new 1955 letter awards program and explain your stake in the "American Way."

The top cash award for the best letter is $1,000. Armed forces personnel on active duty are eligible to enter the contest. Reservists and national guardsmen on active duty are also eligible. There is no limit to the letters you may submit.

Send your letter of no more than 500 words to Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa. All letters must be received by Nov. 11, 1955. Letters submitted after that date will be considered for next year's award. (AFPS)

At Army's Expense

Civilian Medical Services Allowed Soldiers in Emergency and Other Cases

Under certain circumstances, military personnel are authorized to employ civilian medical attendance at public expense, according to an explanatory memo recently distributed by Headquarters Sixth Army.

Such services are permitted mainly in instances where the Army is unable to provide the necessary attention, as in a number of emergency cases, where prior authority is not needed.

The serviceman's access to civilian medical attention at public expense is not transferable, however, to his dependents.

Personnel will need approval beforehand in instances where civilian services are sought to supplement Army facilities, as in the hiring of anesthetists, consultants, specialists, etc.

When a member of the Army receives emergency medical or dental service, he should submit a complete itemized statement of the account to his commanding officer. He should also furnish complete information, including name, grade, service number, organization and permanent duty station to the civilian or agency involved.

As in the case of medical treatment, dental services by civilians is also permitted to the soldier in emergencies or when Army facilities cannot provide the necessary treatment. Civilian dentists cannot be engaged, however, where routine examination or extensive dental care is involved, without permission of the individual's headquarters.

In the event a soldier is hospitalized and unable to return to duty, all efforts must be made to inform the proper authorities. Charges for civilian medical care accumulated while absent without leave are the sole responsibility of the individual involved.

new a-tests!

Washington (AFPS)—A new series of atomic tests—this time to test the safety of various weapons in the event of fire or other accidents—will be held at the Nevada testing grounds starting about Nov. 1.

The Atomic Energy Commission said all test explosions would be of "low explosive force." A commission announcement said laboratory calculations and previous experiments indicated little chance of nuclear detonation occurring as a result of fire or other mishaps but that "confirmation through field tests is desired."

un day...

With the theme of encouraging international relations, the YWCA-USO will celebrate United Nations day with festivities at the 966 Market street clubrooms Sunday.

Junior hostesses and servicemen and women may come dressed in the native costumes of their particular nationalities. Everyone will be invited to describe the particular nation from which their ancestors came and to participate in songs and dances that originated in various countries.

The Junior Hostess council will decorate the clubrooms in a theme of all nations and arrange various shows to display international goodwill.

army aids

Washington (AFPS)—During the coming school year the Army will lend its support to about 80,000 youths between the ages of 12 and 18 years who are interested in marksmanship.

Schools and clubs affiliated with the Army's National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice will receive free .22- and .30-cal. ammunition for their members to fire in qualification courses prescribed by the Army.

Officials said a $400,000 appropriation by Congress will enable the board, for the first time since before WWII, to carry out most of the functions assigned to it by the National Defense Act of 1916.

S F Mayor Proclaims Monday General Dean Day

Final Meal with the troops was served to Major General William F. Dean, deputy commanding general of Sixth Army, last week at the Headquarters Sixth Army Mess Hall. The famed field commander of the 24th Infantry Division in Korea will retire Monday before 2,000 officers and men from all the services in ceremonies on the Presidio Parade Ground. General Dean has been assigned to the Presidio since 17 December, 1953. He was released 4 September, 1953, by the North Korean Communists who had held him from 1950 as a prisoner of war.

Retirement Eve!

Services, Bay Area Pay Honor To Heroic Combat Commander

A 32-year career of service to the Army and to the nation will close Monday with a mammoth retirement ceremony for General William F. Dean, pace-setter for the early days of the Korean War and holder of the Medal of Honor.

Over 2,000 men from all the armed services, 17 companies of Army, Marine Corps, Air Force, National Guard, Army Reserve and ROTC will mass on the Presidio Parade Ground to pay homage to the retiring Deputy Commander, Sixth Army.

As the Sixth Army band sounds Adjutant's Call, then breaks into a march, four battalions of troops will form before the reviewing stands. Commander of troops for the ceremony will be Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander.

General Dean will mount a chrome jeep from which he will inspect the long line of assembled troops. When he returns to the reviewing platform, Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, will direct the reading of the retirement orders, a testimonial to General Dean's 32-year career.

Streaming over the parade ground, an Air Force "flyover" will pay a further salute to General Dean.

With the colors returned to their original positions, General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chief of Staff, United States Army, will present General Dean with the Combat Infantryman's Badge and deliver a brief message.

General Dean is expected to reply.

Against the background of flags representing 60 United Nations, the massed troops will pass in review.

Participating in the mammoth ceremony by order of march will be the Sixth Army Band followed by the First Battalion Commander and Staff, including: the Sixth Army Colors, Company A, Station Complement, U. S. Marine Corps Colors, Provisional Detachment U. S. Marine Corps, U. S. Air Force Colors, Provisional Detachment, U. S. Air Force, and a Provisional Detachment 24th Infantry Division, part of the unit which General Dean commanded in Korea.

In the second battalion, two companies of the 6th Infantry Division from Fort Ord will be followed by the 6th Infantry colors and two additional companies. The third battalion will include the 505th MP Battalion Colors, Company A, 505th MP Battalion, 21st Engineer Company, the 30th Engineer Group Colors, the 549th Engineer Company, a Provisional Battery, 441st AA Battalion, the Sixth

General Taylor

First Soldier Due This Monday For Dean Retirement, Speech

General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chief of Staff, United States Army, will speak Monday at the retirement of General William F. Dean, Deputy Commander, Sixth Army.

He will present General Dean with the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

After being received on his arrival Monday morning by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Commander Sixth Army, General Taylor will confer on military matters with members of the Sixth Army Staff. He is also scheduled to visit Letterman Army Hospital Monday morning before giving an address at a Commonwealth Club of California luncheon downtown.

It was while General Taylor commanded the Eighth U. S. Army in Korea that General Dean was released by the North Koreans on 4 September, 1953.

During General Taylor's Korean service, four post-armistice operations were carried out.

Operation "Little Switch" in April, 1953, saw 648 sick and wounded men returned to the United Nations. It was during "Big Switch" in August and September that General Dean returned to United Nations territory, along with 12,773 UN troops.

In the next year "Operation Comeback" repatriated 21,793 Chinese and North Koreans who had renounced Communism, while "Operation Glory" saw the exchange of the remains of 4,176 UN and 13,543 Chinese Communists and North Koreans killed in combat.

Under General Taylor's supervision, a new Republic of Korea Army was built to 20 divisions. In November, 1953, General Taylor

Army Survey Finds Gyroscope Favored By NCO Regulars

Fifty per cent of the Regular U. S. Army noncommissioned officers interviewed have indicated they will likely reenlist in the Army under provisions of the new Unit Rotation Plan.

Among the other important reasons given for reenlistment, according to the survey, were the opportunities for world travel, ability to plan for the future with more assurance, lessening of interference with family life, and the chance to serve with friends in the same outfit.

The plan makes it possible for a soldier to serve approximately 3 years overseas with the division of his choice, followed by 3 years stateside.

This same cycle can be repeated by subsequent reenlistment. In each instance, the location of the assignment is known beforehand.

The 10th Infantry Division from Fort Riley, Kans., first unit to move out under this plan, is currently shipping to Germany. The 11th Airborne and 3d Armored Divisions will also rotate to Europe.

Information concerning enlistment or transfer for duty with a Gyroscope unit may be obtained at Post Classifications and Assignment Section, Room 14, Building 220, Extension 3412.

Chief of Staff, United States Army, General Maxwell D. Taylor will present retiring Major General William F. Dean with the Combat Infantryman's Badge at ceremonies Monday. During his one-day visit to the Presidio, General Taylor will confer with members of the Sixth Army Staff as well as visit Letterman Army Hospital. Accompanied by Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander, General Taylor will receive a 17-gun artillery salute upon his arrival at the Presidio Monday morning.

Said General Walker

Military Annals Hold Nothing Comparable To Dean's Saga

"Never in the annals of military history has a general officer written a saga that can compare with this," said the late General Walton H. Walker of Major General William F. Dean's record in Korea.

As commander of the inexperienced and untried 24th Infantry Division, suddenly shifted from occupation duty in Japan to the war in Korea, General Dean "felt it his duty to take action which to a man of his military experience and knowledge was clearly apt to result in his death."

So stated the citation, accompanying the Medal of Honor which his country gratefully awarded him.

In the desperate days of July, 1950, while American forces withdrew before the mass attacks of the North Korean armies, General Dean himself confronted an enemy tank, while armed with only a hand grenade. Exposed to enemy artillery and small arms fire, the General personally directed American tank fire.

When flaming Taejon was finally overrun, General Dean remained behind to organize his retreating men and to direct the straggling remnants of the American force. In mid-December 1951, the Communists announced that General Dean was a prisoner of war.

The ultimate success of the American operation, General Dean's citation stated, "is in large measure due to General Dean's heroic leadership, courageous and loyal devotion to his men, and his complete disregard for personal safety."

On 4 September, 1953, General Dean was released by the Communists.

Home At Last there is uncontained joy on the face of little four-year-old Steven "Chip" Peterson, as he arrives in America on his way to his new life as an American, and his new parents, ex-Sergeant and Mrs. Gordon Peterson of Buffalo, New York. It all began in Korea when "Chip" was found in the village of Chun-Chon by Sfc. Jerome M. Heinrich, who also escorted him to the states when Sgt. Peterson had to return earlier for discharge. Ritual Dance performed by the Mission Dolores Indians in 1816, as seen by artist Louis Choris during a visit to San Francisco. "I have never seen one laugh," he said. "I have never seen one look one in the face." Founded three weeks after the Presidio of San Francisco, Mission Dolores quickly submerged the local Costanoan Indians among the other peoples of the area. The picture is part of a collection of photos gathered by Major Earle K. Stewart, Post Troop Information and Education Officer. The study of Indian life is part of a research project on the History of the Presidio under Major Stewart's direction.

Bay Area Coastal Indian Culture Passed Into Rapid Extinction

(Editor's Note: The materials used in this article were gathered by Major Earle K. Stewart, Post Troop Information and Education Officer. They will be incorporated in a History of the Presidio of San Francisco being compiled and written under Major Stewart's direction. Part of an historical series, a picture display dealing with the original Indian inhabitants of the Presidio area is on exhibit at Post Headquarters, Building 220. Major Stewart cites A. L. Kroeber's "Handbook of California Indians" as the chief source for those interested in the subject.)

Where a million modern Americans bustle about the business of an abundant metropolitan life, less than 200 years ago fewer than 7,000 Indians eked a meager living from the Northern California coast to which they clung in the years before Spanish colonization.

"Costanos," the Spanish called them—coast peoples. Of the 7,000 who dwelt by the sea in 1770, a few years before the founding of the San Francisco Presidio, only ten descendants remained in 1910. By 1930, they had vanished from the face of the California earth.

It was not long after the arrival of the Spanish Franciscans about 1770 that the Costanoans were submerged in the mixed group referred to indiscriminately as "Mission Indians." Behind them, the Costanoans had left only the most fragmentary evidences of the world they once inhabited on the Pacific Coast.

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

But bit by bit, from the records of missionaries, official reports, visitors' accounts and archaeological discoveries, a scanty sketch of Costanoan culture has been reconstructed.

Contemporary visitors to the Mission and Presidio of San Francisco during the early years were unfavorably impressed by the aboriginals.

"They are dark, dirty, squalid and apathetic," one account stated. Of course many of the visitors to San Francisco were often returning from Hawaii, where they had seen the more highly developed cultures of the Pacific islands.

Artist Louis Choris, sailing with Otto Von Kotzebue on a Russian round-the-world voyage of exploration, spent some time in San Francisco in 1816. Of the Indians he wrote, "I have never seen one laugh. I have never seen one look one in the face."

But Choris was observing the Indian as he lived among the European invaders at the Mission. His sketch of a ritual dance shows them fully clothed, as their civilized Spanish teachers preferred them. It was their own custom to go naked when the weather allowed. On cold mornings, they might coat themselves with a layer of mud until later in the day when the sun broke through the fog. The women wore two short skirts made of deerskin, tulle or bark fiber. Rabbit skins served as both bedding and robes.

Living in tule or brush covered shelters, the Costanoans never organized politically beyond the village level. A limited village leadership passed from father to son. In their local wars, more like village feuds, the Costanoans seldom took a prisoner. They preferred his head as a victory trophy rather than simply the scalp. There are records of a number of such village wars among the natives of the San Francisco, East Bay, Berkeley and Palo Alto areas.

Marriage for the Costanoan was strictly a business deal. He literally "shelled out" for his bride in the seashell currency of his people. Unless the bride coyly scratched the groom's face, she was considered an immodest woman. In divorces which were easily arranged, the children went off with the mother. It was Costanoan custom to place the mother recuperating from childbirth into a bough-lined pit of heated stones during convalescence.

Like most California Indians, the Costanoans subsisted mainly on plant foods, particularly acorns from wild oaks and the seeds of a number of annual plants which they harvested and stored. To increase annual grain production, the undergrowth was scorched each season.

But as the number of shell mounds discovered in the San Francisco area indicate, the Costanoans also looked to the sea for food. Some of them 3,000 years old, the mounds were built up of shells from ocean mussels and soft shell clams. Though whales and sea lions occasionally supplemented Costanoan diet, it was only when a benevolent sea washed them ashore.

Rabbits provided the chief small game food. In organized drives, hunters armed with sharp sticks beat them out of the bush. More infrequently deer and bear found their way into the Costanoan meal.

For the Costanoan, death was something to be spoken of only when absolutely necessary. The dead, it was said, traveled in after-life to an island beyond the Western Sea. Perhaps it was only appropriate that he should look beyond to the generous sea which often brought him luxury, for the land was apparently too hard a competitor against the Costanoans' crude tools of life.

Wave Making Unit Allows Close Study Hurricane Protection

Washington (AFPS)—Army engineers are generating what are believed to be the largest man-made waves ever produced in a laboratory wave channel.

The wave-making machine was designed to aid researchers find possible methods of protecting coastal areas from hurricane damage.

The machine, mounted in a concrete tank 635 feet long, 15 feet wide and 20 feet deep, can build a wave up to seven feet. A bulkhead is pushed back and forth by two large crank arms to produce the waves. The largest artificial wave possible until now by this method was only two feet.

The installation, which was started five years ago, cost $700,000. The data obtained from the new machine will make possible substantial savings in the construction costs of structure subject to wave forces.

Stress Economy!

Despite Reduction Aims DOD Sees Little Change Ahead

Washington (AFPS)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has predicted that military strength and expenditures will remain about the same for the "nearby years."

Mr. Wilson made this statement at a press conference here the day after his return from Denver where he discussed the defense situation with the convalescing President Eisenhower.

Present defense department figures call for 2,850,000 personnel in the armed forces by June 30, 1956. The defense budget for the 1956 fiscal year was $34.5 billion.

The defense secretary said that the present military program is one of "maintaining great military strength." He declared it was necessitated by the present world situation in which he could not foresee any change.

At the same time, Mr. Wilson made public his defense guidelines for the 1956 and 1957 fiscal year, which were released to the service secretaries earlier.

He said that if this guide was properly implemented by the services it would cut defense expenditures by about $500,000,000.

He declared it was geared to "tighten up" the job and place "first things first" in the military program.

One of the key measures called for in the report is a six per cent reduction in the number of civilian personnel employed by the armed forces by June 30, 1956, except in "civil functions." It was stressed, however, that this would be achieved mainly by normal attrition.

Other economy measures called for by Mr. Wilson included:

1. Reduce support activities — particularly overhead groups — to minimum strength.
2. Reduce the rotation rate by stabilizing tours of duty.
3. Adopt promotion policies which insure advancement only of well qualified personnel.
4. Re-enlist only those personnel whose qualifications clearly contribute to the mission of the service.
5. Tighten up approval of flight time.
6. Reduce temporary duty travel.
7. Evaluate all outstanding procurement and production contracts.

8. Review requirements for conventional weapons, to reflect in full the availability of more modern weapons.

9. Reduce stocks on hand to reflect actual needs.

Mr. Wilson said he would welcome "competition" among the services to see that his directive is carried out.

WW I-II Vets Must File For W.Va. Bonus Before End Of Year

Charleston, W. Va. (AFPS)—WWI and WWII veterans from West Virginia have until Dec. 31, 1955, to file for their state bonus.

The state legislature has granted two extensions from the original deadline of Dec. 31, 1952, but no further extension beyond the new date is anticipated.

Eligible for the bonus are veterans of West Virginia who were residents of the state six months before entering the service. At least 90 days' active duty during either war also is required.

WWI veterans must have served between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, while WWII service extends from Dec. 7, 1941, to Sept. 2, 1945.

The question of paying a bonus on the Korean conflict will be brought up during the November 1956 general election with July 1, 1957, seen as the "earliest possible date" West Virginia could begin its K-bonus program, according to the State Department of Veterans Affairs.

Bonus applications may be obtained by writing: West Virginia Department of Veterans Affairs, State Capitol Building, Charleston, W. Va. Formal claims must be filed by Dec. 31, 1955, and letters of inquiry or requests for application cannot be considered as valid claims.

MY STAKE IN THE AMERICAN WAY

1954 Freedoms Foundation Honor Medal Winner

There is still time to enter the 1955 Freedoms Foundation Letter Awards Program. A letter of no more than 500 words explaining your stake in the "American Way" can win the top prize of $1,000.

Armed forces personnel on active duty are eligible to enter the contest. Reservists and national guardsmen on active duty are also eligible. There is no limit to the letters you may submit.

Mail your entries to Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa. All letters must be received by Nov. 11, 1955. Letters submitted after that date will be considered for next year's award.

Their Last Goodbye for a time anyway, was spoken between "Chip" Peterson, four-year-old waif from Korea, and the man who found him in a Far Eastern village that day, Sfc. Jerome M. Heinrich. Heinrich wanted to adopt Chip himself, but is already the father of three children. So he appealed to the men with whom he was stationed, and the now ex-Sgt. Gordon Peterson eagerly reached for Chip. Then came the day when Peterson had to return stateside for discharge without the boy. Months and "red tape" later, Heinrich also returned for reassignment, and Chip was allowed to accompany him. Shortly after this picture was made, Sgt. Heinrich accompanied Chip on his way to his new parents in Buffalo, New York.

Beautiful America!

Journey "Home" Completed By Korea Waif And Man Who Gave Him Start

By WAC Sgt. Doris I. Allen
Editor "The Trans Port," OAB, Oakland

"Thanks for bringing my little boy home" were probably the first words of conversation between Sfc. Jerome M. Heinrich and ex-Army Sgt. Gordon Peterson when they met in Buffalo, New York, last week. The subject of that conversation was four-year-old Steven Peterson who was adopted by Sergeant Peterson while he was stationed with Heinrich in Korea at the 44th Surgical Hospital.

Steven, known to his "GI buddies" as "Chip," was the "first sergeant" mascot of the 44th Surgical Hospital. He was "found" in the village of Chun-Chon, Korea, by Sergeant Heinrich while he was on one of his frequent off-duty trips to that city.

Heinrich wanted to adopt "Chip" but is already the father of three. Not wanting to see the boy without parents, Heinrich made a plea to the men with whom he was stationed and came up with the answer to the $64,000 question. The person who answered was Sergeant Gordon Peterson of Buffalo, New York. And even Peterson had to get his wife's permission before putting in for adoption papers.

The catch came when Peterson's time was up in Korea and he had to leave. Enter Heinrich once more—he took care of all the procedures which finally gave "Chip" permission to leave Korea and the chance of a lifetime—to become an American citizen with benefit of mother and father.

They finally arrived after months of waiting and wondering and now, after the ordeal, "Chip" is safely at home with his new mother and father. They reside at 1260 Kensington Avenue in Buffalo, New York.

Sgt. Heinrich, whose home is in San Francisco, will be reassigned to Fort MacArthur, California.

The Army estimates its expenses in fiscal 1956 for disciplinary matters would total $347,000. Since August, 1954, the Provost Marshal General of the Army has been charged with staff supervision of disciplinary barracks—formerly administered by the Adjutant General.

College Courses On Post Scheduled To Begin 15 Nov.

Another group of on-post college courses are slated to be conducted in Presidio classrooms beginning 14 November, it was announced this week by the Army Education Center of the Post T.L.&E. division.

The three courses will be available to qualified enlisted men and officers and will be given under the auspices of San Francisco State College. Each course carries three units of transferable credit.

Anthropology 141 will be conducted in Building 1101 (LAH) by Dr. Adam E. Treganza on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 1830 to 2100. This course is a study of the Aztec, Toltec, and Inca civilizations, emphasizing their achievements in art, metallurgy, government and religion.

The basic concepts of psychology along with the practical application of the concepts will be stressed in the Psychology 110 course which will be taught by Dr. Ferd Reddell, in Building 1131 (LAH). The course will be given on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 1830 to 2100.

The turbulent first half of the Twentieth Century in the United States, from the assassination of President McKinley to the Cold War, will be covered in the History 174 course. Instructing the course on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 1830 to 2100 will be Dr. Charles McClellan. This course will meet in Building 1101 (LAH).

Personnel can sign up for the classes by calling the Army Education Center, Ext. 2974 or 3189.

new army G-3

Washington (AFPS)—Lt. Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman, commandant of the Army War College at Carlisle, Pa., has been named deputy army chief of staff for plans.

He succeeds Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, who recently was appointed chief of research and development for the Army.

Gen. Eddleman returned to the U.S. from Europe last June. He had served there since May, 1954, as CG of the 4th Inf. Div. During WWII, he served as G-3 of the Sixth Army all through its campaigns, in the Southwest Pacific and in the occupation of Japan.

Four Days Left!

Presidio Must Beat The Clock To Score United Crusade Win

Four days and $7,000 stand as the last obstacles in the Presidio's big United Crusade offensive. Prospects for reaching the $30,000 goal by 31 October brightened only slightly this week as nearly $3,000 poured into the campaign coffers, bringing the total pledged and contributed to a little over $23,000.

The pay lines Monday will provide the Crusade's last challenge for military personnel. It will also be the final day for the Presidio to fulfill its share of Operation 288, the military section of the big community drive.

Both civilian and military personnel have been urged by unit and section Crusade representatives to take a second check of their billfolds and purses and add to their initial contributions before the campaign closes.

When the consolidated charity drive was being planned here more than a month ago, local representatives indicated that the Presidio could easily reach the $30,000 mark if all personnel would give at least one day's pay.

Contribution of a day's pay, it was pointed out, would approximate only one-half percent of an annual income, and much less than the deduction for charity allowed on the short income tax form.

The Crusade is the only major charity drive to which all local civilian and military personnel are asked to give. Consequently this drive has been considered to be a significant opportunity for Presidio personnel to demonstrate their support of the Bay Area community.

Dollars collected by United Crusade keep each of the 288 agencies participating in the big drive operating for another year.

The functions of these 288 agencies vary from important medical research groups such as the American Cancer Society to character-building organizations such as the Boy Scouts.

Operations of some of the 288 United Crusade agencies can be observed daily at the Presidio and sub posts. The American Red Cross, for example, stands ready to help local personnel meet emergency situations, while the Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops located here provide children and teen-agers with a variety of constructive activities.

Presidio Crusade spokesmen see prospects for the Presidio attaining its $30,000 goal by the end of the campaign Monday to be favorable.

greetings!

Washington (AFPS)—Eighteen-thousand men will be drafted into the Army and Navy during December. The Army is to receive 8,000 and the Navy 10,000.

The Department of Defense has requested the Selective Service System to provide this number between Dec. 1-10. Both the DOD and Selective Service have agreed to end induction on the evening of Dec. 10 and resume Jan. 3. The move will enable prospective draftees to remain home for the holidays.

EM May Volunteer For Assignment To Guided Missile Units

Stateside EM may volunteer for training and later assignment to guided missile battalions and their direct support companies if qualified under AR 611-231.

Areas of training open to volunteers are conducted at the AA & GM Center, Fort Bliss, Texas and at the Signal School, Fort Monmouth, N. J.

The AR also gives the prerequisites and procedures for applying.

EM in the following categories are not eligible to apply: basic trainees, men alerted for overseas movement, service school students, individuals on stabilized assignments, and those under court-martial charges or under investigation which may result in trial by court-martial.

Top Three Graders; Highly Skilled EM Needed For WO Jobs

Top three graders, as well as highly skilled EM in lower grades, who have technical skills in or closely associated with certain MOS's may apply for appointment as Warrant Officers with concurrent call to active duty in that rank.

The critical specialties are:

MOS	Job Title
0820	Master or Mate
0823	Marine Engineer
1066	Helicopter Pilot
1121	Artillery, Electronic Fire Control
1184	Guided Missile, Integrated Fire Control
1185	Guided Missile, Material Assistant
4806	Fire Control Maintenance and Repair
4819	Guided Missile Maintenance and Repair
4823	Aircraft Maintenance Officer
4880	Engineer Maintenance and Repair
4219	Weather Officer

This program for appointment in any of these MOS's is outlined in DA Circular 601-6, and is effective until 25 April 1956.

The circular lists qualifications and procedures for applying.

m-1 adapter

By means of a newly designed adapter, the M-1 becomes a semi-automatic weapon when firing blank ammunition. Designed by Sgt. Matthew Zotti of Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, the adapter makes possible a more realistic atmosphere in training exercises.

Its basic principle is simple. The adapter catches the escaping gases to provide enough force to drive the operating rod to the rear and push the bolt back. A further advantage of the adapter is the resulting reduction of hazard involved in using blanks at night and at close range in maneuvers.

Ten States Continue Paying K-War Bonuses To Veterans

Washington (AFPS)—At least 10 states have passed laws providing bonuses for Korea war veterans, a recent survey has revealed.

Following is a list of the states and brief summary outlining amounts payable and qualifications.

Connecticut: $10 per month of service up to a maximum of $300. Active duty in the armed forces for 90 days or more at any time between June 27, 1950 and Oct. 27, 1953.

Delaware: $15 per month for stateside service up to a $225 maximum. $20 per month for overseas duty up to a maximum of $300. Active duty service between June 25, 1950 and Jan. 31, 1955.

Indiana: $15 per month for each month served in the Korea area. $600 for veterans who had 10 per cent or more service-connected disability. This payment comes from Indiana's WWII bonus fund and will depend upon ability of the fund to meet K-bonus claims. Active duty at any time between June 27, 1950 and Jan. 1, 1955.

Louisiana: $250 for service in the Korea combat area. $150 for overseas service outside the Korea combat area. $50 for stateside service. Active duty for at least 90 days between June 27, 1950 and July 26, 1953.

Massachusetts: $300 for foreign service. $200 for more than six months' active service in the U. S., $100 for 90 days stateside service. Minimum of 90 days service between June 25, 1950 and Jan. 31, 1955.

Michigan: $10 per month of domestic service. $15 per month of foreign service. $500 maximum. Minimum of 61 days during period of June 27, 1950 to Dec. 31, 1953.

New Hampshire: $10 per month of service up to a $100 maximum. A minimum of 90 days between June 25, 1950 and July 27, 1953.

South Dakota: Fifty cents a day for stateside service ($500 maximum). Seventy-five cents a day for foreign service or sea duty ($650 maximum). Active duty between June 25, 1950 and July 27, 1953.

Vermont: $10 per month for $120 maximum. Enlisted status between June 27, 1950 and Jan. 31, 1955.

Washington: $100 for service in excess of 89 days within the continental U. S., $150 for 90-364 days service and $200 for more than 364 days where any part of such service was outside the continental limits of the U. S. Active federal service between June 27, 1950 and July 26, 1953. Men with five years or more continuous service immediately before June 27, 1950, are considered career servicemen and do not qualify.

show tickets

Tickets are available at both the Presidio and the Fort Baker Service clubs, for the Grand National Livestock show at the Cow Palace tonight (Friday), which has been designated military personnel night. Military in uniform holding tickets may attend the show without charge, while one guest will be permitted at $.50 each, or, in the case of a family man, he may receive enough tickets to cover the entire family, each at $.50. Tickets may be picked up at the clubs and are to be exchanged at the Cow Palace no later than 1930 hours. Two buses, holding a total of 74 persons, will leave the Service club at 1845 hours and return after the show. Those wishing transportation may sign up at the club.

new guard chief

Washington (AFPS)—Maj. Gen. Donald W. McGowan, commander of the 50th Armored Div. of the New Jersey National Guard, has been appointed chief of the Army division of the National Guard Bureau.

He succeeds Maj. Gen. William H. Abendroth, who has held the post since October 1951.

Gen. McGowan commanded the 102nd (Essex Troop) Cav. Regt. during WWII, leading it in the D-Day assault on Normandy. He joined the guard in 1916.

initiated the Armed Forces Assistance to Korea program. Army supplies totalling $20,000,000 supported the Armed Forces drive to rebuild the devastated nation.

It was General Taylor who in 1953 began a large-scale educational program to give all non-commissioned officers at least an eighth grade education and bring all lower ranking men to a fourth year level.

General Taylor assumed both the Far East and United Nations Commands on 1 April, 1955.

Two months later, he was sworn in as Chief of Staff, United States Army, replacing General Matthew B. Ridgway.

Holder of honorary degrees from New York University, Bowdoin College and the University of Missouri, General Taylor was commissioned in 1922 as a second lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers upon his graduation from West Point Military Academy. After study in Paris, he returned to teach French and Spanish at West Point.

During the thirties, General Taylor served in Tokyo, Japan, and Peking, China. In World War II, he went overseas with the 82nd Airborne Division.

Just 24 hours before the airborne invasion of Italy, he traveled by British PT boat and Italian corvette through enemy lines to Rome to confer with high ranking Italian authorities.

In his book "Crusade in Europe" President Eisenhower said of Taylor, "The risks he ran were greater than I asked any other agent or emissary to undertake during the war—he carried weighty responsibilities and discharged them with unerring judgment, and every minute was in imminent danger of discovery."

In March, 1944, General Taylor commanded the 101st Airborne Division which he led in the invasion of Normandy. After the war, he was assigned to European Command Headquarters at Heidelberg, Germany, as chief of staff and in September, 1949, became the first U. S. Commander, Berlin.

He replaced General James A. Van Fleet as Commanding General, Eighth U. S. Army, in Korea 11 February, 1953.

General Taylor will tour Fort Ord and the Presidio of Monterey Tuesday before leaving for Fort Huachuca, Arizona, Wednesday.

officers recently assigned

Colonel CHARLES G. RAU has recently been assigned as acting assistant to the assistant chief of staff, G-2, Headquarters Sixth Army. Formerly in the office of the assistant secretary of the Army (manpower and reserve forces), Colonel Rau was executive officer for the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, in which capacity he was also director of civilian marksmanship, D/A.

He served with the 2nd Armored Division from its inception in 1940 and was a battalion and regimental commander during the Africa and Sicily invasion and up to the invasion of Normandy, at which time he was assigned to the 19th corps. While with the 19th corps, as Armored officer, Colonel Rau had the dual job of commander of the Seventh Armored Group. Subsequently he became commander of CCB, 13th Armored Division, until that unit was deactivated in 1945.

The colonel has attended the regular and tank courses at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, 1935-37, the advanced tactics course, Fort Knox, Kentucky, 1942, and following the war was given credit for attendance at the Army Staff College.

His decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Soldier's Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with three oak leaf clusters, the Purple Heart, the Combat Infantryman's Badge, and the Arrowhead for European duty. He was also awarded the Order of the Orange Nassau with swords, in the Degree of Commander, by the Netherlands, the French Croix de Guerre with Palm, and, in 1939, he was awarded the Distinguished Pistol Shot Badge by the then Secretary of War.

Other appointments held by Colonel Rau were as executive officer and coach of the United States Shooting Team (World Championship) 1952; coach for the shooting contingent of the United States Olympics Team, 1952, and executive officer for the US Shooting Team participating in the meet at Caracas, Venezuela, 1954. He was chosen as team captain for the US shooting unit in the Pan-American games in Mexico City, March, 1955, but for cogent military reasons could not attend.

Currently, the new assistant G-2 is one of the directors of the National Rifle Association of America and a member of the executive committee of that association. Now serving his third duty tour at the Presidio, he was assigned here as a lieutenant with the 30th Infantry in 1932 and served as assistant G-3 here from 1946 to 1948.

Colonel Rau's wife resides here with him. The couple has one married daughter and their son attends the University of California at Riverside.

New supply officer for the 561st Engineer Port Construction battalion here is First Lieutenant THOMAS L. ANDREWS, who formerly served as commanding officer and accountability officer for the 640th Engineer Field Maintenance company with the United States forces in Austria.

Lt. Andrews was drafted into the service and had achieved the grade of staff sergeant during duty in Okinawa when he returned to civilian life, only to come back to the Army less than a year later. He came up through the ranks and was a platoon master sergeant with the 919th Field Maintenance company in Korea when he won a battlefield commission.

Upon his return from Korea, Lt. Andrews was assigned to the Engineer school at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, going from there to Austria, where he feels his most outstanding accomplishment was in meeting the girl who later became his wife.

Lt. Andrews wears the Bronze Star Medal, the Presidential Unit Citation, and the Korean Presidential Citation. He resides with his wife in Mill Valley.

First Lieutenant ROBERT M. JACKSON is assigned as an Army aviator at Crissy field with the Sixth Army Flight Detachment. He has served in similar capacities for the past seven years, two and a half of which were with the US Navy's amphibious section.

The new air officer has two years' European duty with an LST unit in Africa, Sicily and France. He took the Army aviation pilot's course, the tactical course and the helicopter and instrument examiner's course for twin engines.

Lt. Jackson wears four stars on his European theater ribbon.

Going Strong!

Psy-Warfare School Celebrates Third Anniversary Of Unique Instruction

On 22 October the Psychological Warfare School at Fort Bragg, N. C., celebrated its third anniversary.

Since that date in 1952, the school has graduated some 598 officers of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps. Its list of graduates also includes many civilians of the United States Information Agency, and officers from ten foreign countries. The key personnel, schooled in the techniques of psychological warfare, are scattered on diverse assignments that cover every part of the world. They have received instruction which is indispensable in any future combat or cold war planning for ideological operations.

The primary mission of the school at Fort Bragg is to prepare selected individuals for psychological warfare and special forces duties in combat.

In addition, the school initiates action for the formulation of new, and revision of old, psychological warfare techniques.

Recently, 26 graduates of the Psychological Warfare Officers Orientation course received their diplomas after completing the short two-week instruction period.

Among them were two prominent USIA civilians, two Marine, one WAC and two National Guard officers, typifying the representation of students in the four separate courses conducted there; two in psychological warfare and two in special forces operations, each varying in duration and instructional subjects.

Such a representation graphically emphasizes another mission of the school—to aid cross-service understanding of psychological warfare and special forces tactics by providing training for members of other components of the Armed Forces.

The school, ever conscious of its important mission to prepare officers for eventual psychological warfare and special forces tasks in event of war, is carrying out its objectives with pride and efficiency.

Optional Choice!

EM May Now Reenlist For Purpose Of Attending Specific Army School

EM may now enlist or reenlist for the specific purpose of attending Army Schools, under AR 601-229.

This enlistment option is applicable world-wide to all qualified in-service men and women (Regular Army enlistees, inductees, and Army reserve component personnel on active duty). It also applies to those who enlist or reenlist within 90 days from date of discharge or relief from active duty.

Courses covered by this regulation are listed in the current Detailed Schedule of Classes, Army Schools, published by Continental Army Command.

The new AR states "reenlistment officers at installations and personnel at recruiting installations will make available to applicants information on school courses available under this program."

Applicants must meet these qualifications: Be fully qualified for enlistment or reenlistment under the provisions of AR 615-120, meet the prerequisites contained in DA Pamphlet 20-21 for the particular course desired, and meet the selection criteria prescribed in AR 611-215.

However, the regulations authorizing this option (AR 601-220) establish the restriction, "No person previously enlisted or reenlisted under these regulations may again reenlist under the provisions of these regulations until the expiration of a period of 3 years from date of such enlistment or reenlistment."

An exception to this provision may be made for individuals currently serving in the Regular Army who apply for, and are qualified for immediate reenlistment at any time during the last 90 days of a current enlistment.

Easily Operated

Many-Tongued Vari-Typer Speaks 50 Different Major World Languages

A polyglot machine that writes in 50 foreign languages has been developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps in cooperation with the Chief of Psychological Warfare.

Using 50 different type fonts, the typewriter-like device can be operated by the most monolingual soldier.

Actually a modified vari-typer, the device meets the Army's need for a portable machine simple enough for operation by the ordinary soldier and which will permit writing in the major world languages through the use of interchangeable type fonts.

Operation of the machine is simple. The message is written by a linguist familiar with the language appropriate to the situation. Then he substitutes numbers for the characters of the language involved, with circles, diagonals and squares to indicate punctuation.

Inserting the proper type font, the operator then follows the numbers called for.

Providing for languages which employ the Latin alphabet was no problem. But the difficulties arose with such tongues as Hebrew, Arabic, Indo-Chinese Sanskrit and others. Some read vertically, others from right to left, and in the case of a language like Burmese, as many as 700 characters are employed in comparison to English and its 26-letter alphabet.

After exhaustive research, the machine was completed and equipped with a reverse carriage for the right to left languages.

Once a message is typed, it is photographed and an offset plate is made from which the communication is printed.

The multilingual machine is 12 inches high, 18 inches deep and 27 inches long. It weighs 40 pounds.

Petaluma Leghorns Play Red Raiders Tomorrow

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

The mighty Presidio Red Raiders, on the strength of their 27-0 win over the San Francisco Windbreakers, will be slight favorites over the Petaluma semi-pro Leghorns in tomorrow's grid clash. Kickoff time is slated for 1400 hours at Fort Scott for the game, which will be televised in the Bay Area over KPIX, Channel 5.

Coach McInerney's powerful gridsters will be seeking their seventh victory of the 1955 pig-skin season. So far the Red Raiders have rolled up 166 points, and yielded but 53 points and boast a six and one official game record.

Last year the Red Raiders journeyed to Petaluma to suffer a 46-19 lacing from the semi-pro Leghorns. The Raiders led at half-time 19-17 but a strong second half rally by the Petaluma proved too much for the soldier gridsters to handle.

Tomorrow's game will give local fans their last chance to view the Red Raiders in action. The last four games of the current season will be played away from home. All Presidio personnel are urged to attend the game to give a winning team some much needed support.

The starting offensive line-up for the Raiders, barring last-minute changes, will be Nims and Piggott at ends, McDonnell and Terrell at tackles, Wilson and Holmes at guards and Big John Snyder at the center post.

Starting in the backfield will be Maytubby at quarterback, Guimarin and Macias at the halves and Ed Lewis at fullback.

Lewis will be starting his first game in the first string backfield as regular fullback Bobby Ratliff suffered a broken hand in last week's victory over the San Francisco Windbreakers.

Probable starting line-up for the Petaluma Leghorns will be J. Armstrong and G. Glass at ends, C. Poehlman and B. Corda at tackles, B. Zanoline and A. Yermian at guards and J. Everett at center. Backs will be Pedro at quarterback, Boccoccio and Eaton at halves and Marshall at fullback.

Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, Cardinal-owned southpaw now stationed at Fort McPherson, Ga., fanned 22 Fort Bragg batters when he turned in a 3 to 0 no-hitter during the Third Army tournament at Fort Benning, Ga., September 9.

RAIDER line coach Lt. Steve Glick will be missed on the Presidio sports scene as he will be discharged this week. Besides coaching the football team for the last two years, Steve has been assistant Finance Officer for the Presidio.

Wildlife Area Opened For Pheasants

Officials of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service have announced that pheasant hunting again will be permitted on portions of the Tule Lake National Wildlife Refuge during the regular season, Nov. 19 to December 4.

Only the northern part of the refuge will be open, and sportsmen are advised to check locally for boundary lines.

On November 19 and 20 only, pheasant hunting will be permitted on the Frog Pond and Lower Sump areas of the refuge. Designated routes of entry must be taken, and firearms being carried across closed areas must be unloaded and broken, or encased.

Each hunter may use two hunting dogs for retrieving only, and are not permitted to run at large. A valid California hunting license and tags are required.

Swordsman Takes First In Tourney

In his first stab at the Northern California Men's Prep Foil Championship, George Kester of the composite Presidio and Letterman Army Hospital team slashed his way to a first place. The foil event took place last Saturday night at San Francisco College.

Kester won the top position without the loss of a single strip in the finals of the championship. Another local fencer, Bill Stark, took third place in the event that attracted over 18 teams, from colleges and fencing clubs in the Bay Area.

Other team members from the Presidio-Letterman team were Frank Dama, John Beauvais, Doug Bostaid and Carl Klein. Dama and Bostaid lacked only one bout of making the finals.

Ruth Veloza, LAH, won second place in the Northern California Women's Prep Foil championships held the same night.

Tonight the women's team from Presidio-Letterman journey to Berkeley for the Women's Junior Foil clash. Tomorrow the men's team goes to Stanford University for the Northern California Junior Foil Championships.

The local sabre team, ranked fifth in the nation, have been invited to fence against Fort Bliss and the University of Arizona at Fort Bliss on the 26th of November. Members of this powerful squad are Laurance Brownlee, Herb Rhodes, Leo Thompson and Jose Tafoya.

cage clinic

November 2nd has been named as the date for intramural coaches and managers to attend the one-day basketball clinic at Letterman Army Hospital gym. Coaches from any company, unit or club on post desiring to enter the winter casaba sport should contact the Post Sports Office, Ext. 3968. Coaches from the various teams will be placed on TDY for the one-day clinic. Presidio basketball coach Hal Fischer will conduct the clinic.

Navy Hellcats Sneak By TI Pirates, 14-8

The Alameda Naval Air Station football team leaped in to first place in the 12th Naval District league last Friday by edging the Treasure Island Pirates, 14-8, at Treasure Island.

The Airmen scored on a 63 yard pass from Mickey Conery to Bub Bagnall, and again on a five yard run by Pat Slaughter.

Last month the Hellcats went down to defeat at the hands of the Presidio Red Raiders, 16-7 for their only loss of the current season. The Red Raiders journey to Alameda for a return match on the 18th of November.

Guimarin Stars As Red Raiders Win Sixth Game

Rolling for nineteen points in the first half on great individual play by Jim Guimarin, the Presidio Red Raiders won their sixth victory of the current season, over the South San Francisco Windbreakers, 27-0. The game was played at Fort Scott last Saturday afternoon.

The Red Raiders won the toss and elected to kick off. The Windbreakers were unable to generate a scoring drive and the Presidio took over on the mid-field stripe. The first running play gained two yards and then Raider quarterback Morris Maytubby fired a quick look-in pass over the middle to lefthalf Guimarin and the speedy back sprinted 35 yards for the first Presidio touchdown of the afternoon. Bobby Ratliff's kick was wide to the left and the score was 6 to 0.

The very next time the Raiders got their hands on the ball, Maytubby pitched out to Guimarin, who raced 45 yards for his second six-pointer of the afternoon. Ratliff's kick split the uprights and the score stood 13-0.

Presidio scored once in the second quarter on a tricky pitchout from Maytubby to Guimarin, who in turn tossed a 30-yard aerial to end Jerry Nims, who stepped over for the TD.

Presidio kicked off to start the second half and two plays later Windbreaker halfback Al Alston was trapped in his own end zone by the hard-charging Raider line for a safety and two more points for the Presidio.

The last score in the game came in the third stanza when Maytubby threw a pass to veteran end Dick Piggott, who legged it over for six points. The play covered 35 yards and the conversion attempt was wide, which ended the scoring for the afternoon with the Red Raider on the long end of the 27-0 final score.

Standing out in the Raider front wall were Burt Terrell, formerly of Georgia Tech, Frank Wilson, Doug Weaver and John Snyder. Leroy Waterland, 505th MP's, was especially effective on defense in the Raider backfield.

A severe blow was suffered by the Raiders when it was disclosed that big Bobby Ratliff, Raider fullback, broke his hand during the game and will be lost for at least two weeks. His position will be filled by Ed Lewis, Colgate University, from the Headquarters Company, 30th Engineer Group.

Two Camp Chaffee, Ark., athletes are eyeing berths for the 1956 Olympics. They are Pvt. Larry McBride, record-breaking Houston University sprinter, and Sgt. Lawrence Lumsden, who played with the 1951 all-amateur ice hockey team.

Wildlife Not Badly Hurt In Fires

Although September was one of the worst forest fire months in recent years, California's wildlife, particularly deer, were not badly hurt, a Department of Fish and Game survey of burned-over areas showed.

In the north, where 130,000 acres of brush and timber were burned, less than 50 deer carcasses were found. In the 2,000 acre Placer County fire no reports of deer losses were received.

A similar situation prevailed in the central coastal counties, where forest fires were relatively minor this year.

In the McGee fire in Sequoia National Forest the department estimates that up to 200 deer may have been lost, and the National Forest Service believes there was a major gray squirrel loss.

Again in the Santa Barbara fire, which consumed 75,000 acres of dense brushland, few carcasses were found, although some deer with sore feet were reported by game managers.

In many cases the fires will have a good effect as far as deer forage for the next several years is concerned.

8 Service Boxing Stars On AAU European Trip

The Amateur Athletic Union has sent a 12-man boxing team—eight of them servicemen—on a tour of Europe to fight all-star squads from various countries in an unofficial preliminary to the 1956 Olympics.

The team, composed of top amateur fighters who were finalists and semi-finalists in the NAAU boxing championships earlier this year, opened its invasion in Dublin, Ireland, 21 Oct. Other countries on the itinerary are England, Germany, Sweden and Scotland.

The tour is sponsored by the AAU in cooperation with Pan American World Airways. Louis G. Wilke, president of the AAU, said the trip should furnish the American pugilists with needed experience for the Olympics and help stimulate interest in boxing at home and abroad.

Servicemen on the team are: Cpl. Heiji Shimabukuro, USARPAC (112-lb. class); A/2C John Cereghin, Brookley AFB, Ala. (119 pounds); A/2C Joe Boy Charles, Hamilton AFB, Calif. (125 pounds); A/2C Frank Davis, Brize Norton AB, England (156 pounds).

A/2C Paul Wright, Offutt AFB, Neb. (165 pounds); A/2C John Horne, Bolling AFB, Washington, D.C. (178 pounds); Sgt. John Johnson, USAREUR (heavyweight); and S/Sgt. John Stewart, Hamilton AFB (light-heavyweight or heavyweight class). (AFPS)

State Hunting Areas Tops For Ducks

Duck hunters who made reservations for five state operated public waterfowl shooting areas had excellent hunting on opening weekend, the Department of Fish and Game reported.

Nimrod at Grizzly Island, Solano County, enjoyed the best gunning in the area's history on opening day. Saturday's shoot saw 588 hunters bag 4,360 birds for an average of 7.4 per hunter. Scores of limits were recorded.

In all there were 9,486 birds taken on opening weekend on Honey Lake, Madeline, Grizzly Island, Imperial and Finney-Ramer public shooting areas. Last year's opener saw only 4,933 birds taken in the same areas.

New registration arrangements at Grizzly were credited with a big increase in the number of hunters using the facility.

Texan wins

Lieutenant Edgar A. O'Hair, Jr., of San Antonio, Texas, won the pistol shooting event of the modern penthalon world championships this week with 20 hits and 194 rings for 930 points. The championships are being held in Macolin, Switzerland.

Aires Stars As Raiders Whip Tars

The Presidio Red Raider cage quintet under the direction of Coach Hal Fischer won their second game-type scrimmage of the 55-56 season this week when they rolled over the USS Wasp, 83-39, at the Kezar Pavilion.

Bill Aires, although not the top scorer, proved the sparkplug with his leadership and brilliant ball handling.

Don Lofgran with 26 points was the leading scorer from his pivot position, closely followed by O'Neill's 22, and Davis's 16.

Next Tuesday night Raider fans will get their first glimpse of the 1955 cage quintet. The Raiders will tangle with the San Jose State College Alumni at the Letterman Army Hospital Gym pre-season game type scrimmage.

Big Increase For Salmon, Trout Planting

Since June, 1950, planting of trout and salmon in California waters has increased 153 per cent, a report by the Department of Fish and Game shows.

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1950, there were 488,397 pounds of fish planted. In the year ending June 30 of 1955, the poundage was up to 1,240,689.

Bulk of the production was in catchable-sized trout, of which 7,599,428 were planted during the past fiscal year. In the 1950 fiscal year there were only 2,501,000 catchables planted.

During the past fiscal year there were 10,294,133 fingerlings weighing a total of 49,261 pounds planted. These plantings were mainly in high country mountain lakes and streams.

bowlers

Post Special Services announced this week that a new mixed bowling league is being formed with action slated to commence on the second of November. Teams will be made up of three men and two women each. Interested teams and single bowlers desiring to enter teams should contact Sgt. Kite at Ext. 3968 for information.

ice hockey

Fifteen soldiers from posts all over the world have been invited by the Department of the Army to participate in the Olympic open ice hockey trials to be held in Minneapolis in November. The Olympic Committee has approved their entry in the trials.

Those getting past the preliminary eliminations at Minneapolis will move on to Western Sectional Olympic Trials early in December and then on to the final trials at Duluth, Minnesota, 14-27 December.

LANKY Don Lofgran of the 505th MP's will be first string center on this year's Presidio cage squad. A former All-American at the University of San Francisco, Don played four years professional basketball prior to entering the service. Last season Don played with the powerful Fort Ord Warriors.

Masonites Still Leading In National Bowling Race

The smooth-rolling Masonites continued to top the National Bowling League with a 23 and 1 mark in official competition. So far the league leaders are 11½ games in front of their closest rival, the second place Hilltoppers.

Third spot belongs to the Hooks with a 12 and 12 record just ahead of the Fogbounders' 11 and 13 marks.

Members of the league leading Mason crew with their high for the year are Masten 205, Shumaker 193, Vida 201, Alba 177, Raish 195, Ball 191, and Bales 141.

High team series with handicap honor goes to the first place Masonites with a smashing 2933 high so far this season. High individual series so far goes to Mimster, Hooks, with a fine 589 mark. Second place for high series honors goes to Jacobs, Hooks, 585 followed by Greene of the King Pins with a 572.

In the rugged downtown Egdad "900" classic league, the Presidio squad dropped three games last week and slipped to fifth place in the league standing. So closely bunched are the teams that the Presidio squad is only five games behind the league leaders.

Best scores turned in by the Post bowlers were Murphy's 209, Johnson's 207, Jacob's 205, Hoffacker's 187, and Owen's 160.

ord wins

The powerful Fort Ord Warriors drubbed the Seattle Ramblers semi-pro club, 59-13, last Saturday in Seattle for the Warriors' sixth straight victory of the current season.

Three touchdown passes hurled by former USC and 49'er quarterback Jimmy Powers, gave the soldier eleven a lead in the second quarter which they had no difficulty in retaining. The Ramblers tired in the final quarter and the Warriors scored four more touchdowns.

latin ball

Vinegar Bend Mizell, Cardinal southpaw recently discharged from the Army, is among a large group of young major leaguers who will play winter ball in Caribbean leagues. Mizell, who recently pitched Fort McPherson to the Army championship, will play with Havana in the Cuban League, along with Catcher Dick Rand, Shortstop Bobby Stephenson and Rookie Outfielder Jackie Brandt of the Cardinals. Other major leaguers who will perform in Latin leagues this winter include Willie Miranda, Jose Valdivielso, Spook Jacobs, Milt Smith, Sandy Consuegra, Gail Harris, Marv Throneberry, Russ Kemmerer, Bob Borikowski, Jerry Lynch, Rudy Regainado and Ted Kazanski.

171st Engineers Present CG With First 3-D Presidio Map

Every detail of the Presidio from the Lombard Gate to Baker beach appears in miniature form on the impressive relief map presented to Sixth Army Commander Lt. General Robert N. Young this week by the 171st Engineer Detachment, 30th Engineer Group.

Produced as a primary training project, the map required more than four months to complete. It measures approximately four by six feet and is the first product completed by the unit since its assignment to the Presidio in April.

The basic form of the realistic 3-D map was constructed from ply-wood and plaster while details such as buildings and shrubbery were made from an assortment of materials ranging from balsa wood to sponge rubber.

Great care was taken by the map modeling technicians to duplicate exact colors and textures. The result presents about the same picture of the Presidio that may be observed from a plane flying directly over the post.

The map was built entirely by six men under the direction of Lt. James W. Jennings, detachment commander. The men are: Sfc. Michael Moner, SP2 Robert Ruhf, SP2 Robert Barker, Pfc. Robert Johnston, SP3 James Wades and Pfc. Viking Leon.

The 171st is the only organization of its kind in the Army and in many respects is an experimental unit. Part of its mission is to devise training techniques and SOP's for the unique relief-mapping process.

New Training Circular Stresses Need POW Code Understanding

All members of the Army will soon be thoroughly grounded in the Code of Conduct, according to Training Circular 21-1, published this week.

The directive says that the presentation "shall in no way assume the approach of merely training soldiers on how to behave as POW's."

Although the principles of the Code have long prevailed in the Army, the circular stresses that military training in its support will "have the primary object of increasing unit fighting strength and individual will to resist."

It will be mandatory during the training to explain each article of the Code of Conduct so the soldier will realize that full and loyal observance of the spirit and letter of the Code is in the best interest of his Nation, Army, unit and himself.

A record of instruction will be entered in the Form 66 of every officer and the Form 20 of enlisted men.

nists. He came to his assignment as Deputy Commander, Sixth Army, on 17 December 1953.

General Dean, a second lieutenant in the Infantry Reserve in 1921, became a second lieutenant in the regular Army in 1923 after graduation from the University of California.

After a varied career, August, 1944, found him as assistant commander of the 44th Infantry Division when it moved into action in France as part of XV Corps. After participating in the capture of Strasbourg, the 44th drove on through the German 130th Panzer Division to Fort Simserhof on the Maginot Line. General Dean's 44th Infantry Division remained in action to participate in the taking of Mannheim and Weinheim, then moved on with the VI Corps south into Austria.

In December, 1944, General Dean took command of the 44th and brought the division back to the United States in preparation for an engagement in the Pacific. But the war ended before the 44th was ready for action.

Assigned in 1947 as Deputy for Military Government in South Korea, he became Military Governor a short time later. In October, 1947, he took command of the 24th Division, then stationed in Japan.

General Douglas A. MacArthur, while Commander-in-Chief of the Far East Command, said in recommending General Dean for the Medal of Honor, "The dauntless courage and the selflessness demonstrated by General Dean bespeak the noble character of our brave men who are fighting for a unified cause under the flag of the United Nations."

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, Major General William F. Dean is retiring from active military service on October 31, 1955, with an appropriate ceremony in his honor at the Presidio of San Francisco; and

WHEREAS, General Dean, during the most critical days of the Korean conflict, not only headed the 24th Division but was in command of all United States armed forces in Korea and all South Korean troops; and

WHEREAS, General Dean by personal example of courage and bravery, badly needed at that time, was instrumental in securing the necessary two-day delay of the enemy on the battlefield of Taejon, permitting the landing of forces and materiel which turned the tide of battle; and

WHEREAS, For not only his courage, but the effect of his heroism on the soldiers themselves, General Dean has been awarded his country's highest honor, the Congressional Medal of Honor, and also has been awarded the Medal of Honor by the State of California:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Elmer E. Robinson, Mayor of the City and County of San Francisco, do hereby proclaim that Monday, October 31, 1955, shall be known and observed in our city as "MAJOR GENERAL WILLIAM F. DEAN DAY."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City and County of San Francisco to be affixed this twenty-first day of October, nineteen hundred and fifty-five.

ELMER E. ROBINSON, Mayor.

New Electronic Sensing Devices Will Give Commanders Combat Edge

Electronic devices, developed by the Army Signal Corps, may soon give the combat commander an edge on the enemy by giving him a "sixth sense."

By extending the range of the human senses through these devices, the all-weather detection and location of the enemy and his equipment (including weapons) will be possible.

This idea, called Battlefield Surveillance, began in July, 1952, when a group of prominent scientists studied its possibilities and later recommended further development of the new sensing devices.

In combat it is often extremely difficult to locate the enemy, his gun emplacements, and other equipment. These modern techniques of Battlefield Surveillance will give a broader picture and substantially improve speed and accuracy in gaining combat information from behind an enemy's line.

The job of raising the battleship Maine from her grave in Havana Harbor was given to the Army Engineers.

Bastogne was a common trial for both General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, and Mr. Donald J. Litwin, civilian supervisor of the Radio Unit, Adjutant General's Section. Mr. Litwin lost a hand and a leg while on a reconnaissance mission during the Battle of the Bulge. He was a Chief Warrant Officer assigned to the 501st Parachute Infantry Regiment of the 101st Division. General Taylor commanded the 101st in 1945 when Litwin was wounded.

Bulge Hero Shares Bastogne Memory With Chief Of Staff

It was ten years ago near Bastogne, during the bitter Battle of the Bulge, that Chief Warrant Officer Donald J. Litwin of the 101st Division lost a hand and a leg in an enemy bombing and strafing attack.

Monday, under happier circumstances, Mr. Donald J. Litwin shook hands with General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chief of Staff, United States Army, and former commander of that same 101st.

General Taylor had come to the Presidio to participate in the retirement of General William F. Dean. Mr. Litwin came to the Presidio in 1951 to serve the Army again—this time as civilian supervisor of the Radio Unit in the Adjutant General Section.

Mr. Litwin was wounded 16 January 1945 while on a reconnaissance mission sent to select a site for a new command post near Bastogne. He had been married in England the year before and returned there for hospitalization.

Six months later he went to the United States, where he was finally discharged from Letterman Army Hospital in August, 1947.

As one of the many physically-handicapped veterans holding man-sized jobs at the Presidio, Mr. Litwin went to work for the A-G section in 1951.

During his Army career, Litwin fought in four European campaigns and won the Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

The Army estimates almost 109,917 soldiers are enrolled in 130,725 United States Armed Forces Institute courses; about 29,000 enrolled in 50,420 group study classes; and almost 7,500 in 9,734 civilian school courses. Thus, about 161,000 soldiers are actively completing their education while in the service.

sky cav—new weapon?

Washington (AFPS)—A revolutionary new company-size unit employing helicopters, fixed wing aircraft, jeeps and tanks to test new battlefield concepts, has been formed by the Army.

Dubbed "SkyCav," the unit is being used on the mock battlefield "Exercise Sage Brush," a joint Army-Air Force maneuver that began at Camp Polk, La., 1 November.

The Army said the unit was organized at Ft. Bragg, N. C., last August.

Using airborne television, photographic, radio and radar equipment, it is designed to quickly provide commanders with information about the enemy. Similar equipment is employed in jeeps and tanks.

During Sage Brush one of SkyCav's objectives will be to reduce the time needed for the unit to gain required information and transmit it back to headquarters.

16th Anniversary Marked By 30th Engineer Group

Sixteen years of measuring and recording features of the earth's surface at distant parts of the world were marked by the 30th Engineer Group at its recent Organization Day celebration at Ft. Scott.

Twice during the 16-year period, the group was awarded unit plaques for Meritorious Service; the first one for superior performance in the Mediterranean Theater from 1 August to 31 October, 1944, and the second for outstanding devotion to duty in the Hawaiian Islands from 15 March to 15 September, 1945.

The anniversary celebration began with a review ceremony on the Ft. Scott parade ground with Brig. Gen. Louis J. Rumaggi, Sixth Army Chief of Staff, serving as the reviewing officer. In 1939 General Rumaggi was the first officer assigned to the newly-organized 30th Engineers.

After the review, color movies of the year's Alaska mapping operations were shown group personnel and their guests. The group's base plants held "Open House" during which trained technicians explained the methods and equipment used by Relief Map, Photomapping and Reproduction units to visitors.

Later, the 660th Engineer Battalion (Topographic Survey) set up a display depicting a typical field camp used by the unit in Alaska this year.

The day's activities were capped with a special turkey dinner which was served in unit mess halls to the engineers and guests.

Commonwealth Speech!

General Taylor Shows Army's Broad War-Deterrent Effects

General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, outlined the war-preventive effect of the Army in a speech before the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel this week. The military program to deter war, General Taylor urged, must show any potential enemy tangible evidence that aggressive acts inimical to American and free world interests will be met with armed might.

This deterrent force must serve as a "visible big stick, rather than a heavy tread," said the general.

The Army's vast operations of training combat-ready troops at home, of maintaining American forces along the Bamboo and Iron Curtains, and of developing native forces among allies abroad, General Taylor sees as activities "directed at developing the sinews of war, capable of supporting our national and international policies today and in the future."

"They are activities directed at getting the most defense out of the men, money and materials placed at the disposition of the Army," the General elaborated.

To bolster the deterrent strength of the Army, the Army makes continuing efforts to improve the

"... in the name of Sgt. Joe Lynton . . .," said General William F. Dean to the crowd of more than 7,000 onlookers who had come to do him homage, "I accept this award that I covet more than anything in the world. . . ."

That Monday afternoon, over 2,000 carefully groomed troops from all the nation's Armed Services stood in respectful review before the modest hero of the Korean War.

The Army's highest ranking officer, General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chief of Staff, had come to present General Dean personally with the single military award he had not yet received in a 32-year Army career—the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Across the brilliant blue dome of a sunlit afternoon sky, an Air Force jet flyover flashed in salute to the man and the legend toward whom the attentions of those thousands, massed on the Presidio parade ground, were directed.

The Chief of Staff of the United States Army had bestowed the foot-soldier's badge of courage upon General Dean with the words:

"One of America's great heroes. . . His great stand symbolic of our national failure to anticipate the need of a strong Army at all times. . . . Already the recipient of all our highest honors, there was left to us to give General Dean only this badge of the Infantryman, the highest honor of all. . . ."

General Taylor pinned the coveted badge to the retiring hero's blouse. The crowd stirred in anticipation. With the attentions of those thousands focused upon him, General Dean made his answer. He made no effort to mask his tears or his emotions as he accepted the award—not for his own sake—rather "... in the name of Sgt. Joe Lynton and for those thousands of other infantrymen killed by the

Last Count Shows Presidio Nearing Big Crusade Goal

With almost $25,000 already in the United Crusade tills, another $3,000 which is expected to be realized from earlier pledges, and money still coming in from outlying units, Presidio Crusade leaders see the trend moving toward the $30,000 objective.

Units turning over Crusade cash earlier this week were hitting figures above those of the original pledges.

If the Presidio hits the $30,000 mark in this year's campaign it will be the second year in three that the post has registered such a high mark.

The Presidio's campaign was based on the Bay Area communities' "One Big Give" slogan, which spelled out the convenience of a single donation large enough to reach all of the 288 United Crusade agencies.

Crusade representatives here urged both military and civilian personnel to base their individual donations on the scale of a day's pay.

Small business firms of the San Francisco Bay Area received 89 per cent of the total dollar value of procurement awards made during the quarter ended September 30, Headquarters Oakland Army Terminal announced today.

The dollar volume of expenditures for ship repairs, cargo contracting services, and supply purchases totalled $1,923,300 of which small business firms received $1,703,702.

Six years of Red control in China is time enough to show Communists are Communists, wherever you find them.

When the Reds took over in 1949 some hoped the men of Mao would be more amiable than their Russian counterparts. Perhaps the 500 million Chinese, mostly the impoverished variety, would find life a little lighter, a little less a grim struggle for survival.

But six years of Red rule have produced little material benefit for coolie and farmer. In China Mao Tse-tung has developed the same ruthless and aggressive imperialism we have seen in Soviet Russia.

A steel-like alliance binds China to her Russian partners. Her "volunteer" armies intervened in Korea on the side of aggression. In Indochina, Ho Chi Minh won control over the northern area with Red armies. Burma and Malaya seethe with Red guerrillas. Three million Red soldiers stand ready for Mao, or his CO in the Kremlin, to start calling offensive signals.

If there has been some unification, overflowing slave labor camps show at whose expense it came.

The best example of Chinese regard for the new regime is the fact that 14,209 of the 24,440 Chinese captured by U.N. forces in Korea refused to go home when released.

The net result of six years' rule has been that the "new democracy" has brought no democracy to peasants, workers and businessmen of China, but it has brought power to a new privileged group—the Chinese Communist Party upper echelons. (AFPS)

Unique History!

Three Flags Have Flown Over Old Fort Point, Bay Guardian

The first plan for a fortress in San Francisco was submitted to the Spanish governor by the local military commandant in 1792. It was completed two years later, on a site which had been selected 18 years before by Anza. The $6400 fort, known as Castillo de San Joaquin, was built on a jutting promontory of hard serpentine rock called the Punta del Cantil Blanco about 100 feet above the water.

The fortress was built out of adobe by Spanish soldiers and Indian laborers. It was horseshoe in shape and had 14 embrasures lined with brick for the cannons. The parapet was 10 feet thick with a barracks for the artillerymen on the inside. Six artillerymen and a corporal garrisoned the post and took care of the eight 12-pounder cannons. Four of these cannons are still on post. Two are in front of the Officers' Club and two near the flagpole.

The "Castillo," as it was called, was made more formidable during the next few years and after it was damaged by a series of earthquakes, it was rebuilt partly of brick and stone in 1816. During the Mexican rule in California the fort was virtually abandoned because of lack of funds and political unrest.

In 1846, at the beginning of the Mexican War, Colonel John C. Fremont and a small party of men sailed across the Golden Gate from Marin County, climbed up to the abandoned fort and spiked the cannons so the Mexicans would be unable to use them in the future. The following year the Castillo was occupied for a short time by U.S. troops.

After California became a state, there was agitation in Congress for the military defense of the port of San Francisco. A new modern fort on the site of the Cantil Blanco was authorized and before it was finished it had cost three million dollars.

Work was begun in 1853. The Old Castillo de San Joaquin was dismantled, the site was cut down to near the water's edge and a new fort was constructed. Some of the material from the old Spanish fort was used in building the new structure. Much of the salvaged material was used in the construction of the post hospital which is still in use today as the post dispensary.

The fort was built similar to Fort Sumter in South Carolina. One of the engineers in charge was the son of General Robert E. Lee. Some of the material used in the building was shipped from the way around Cape Horn from the East Coast of the United States. Fort Point was completed in 1861 and the granite sea wall was finished the year after. Armament consisted of 127 guns.

At the outset of the Civil War, Fort Point was garrisoned by two artillery companies. The development of iron-clad ships and improved breechloading cannons made the fort obsolete. The guns were kept in trim by the firing of salutes on special occasions. The last time a gun was fired was in salute to the first troopship that sailed for Manila in the Spanish-American War. About the turn of the century the old fort was abandoned, its guns going to a junk dealer.

The cannons of the two forts on this site, which have operated under three flags, had never fired a shot in anger.

The average account in the Army soldier's deposit is $113.

Coast Guard Unit On Post Performs Key Rescue Work

The Army is not the only element of the nation's Armed Forces which makes use of the Presidio's defense acres. The United States Coast Guard has long maintained a station near Fort Point at the Presidio for carrying on vital rescue missions.

The Fort Point Coast Guard Station aids thousands of maritime vessels to safe waters and patrols the sea from Half Moon Bay to Duckberry Bay for 100 hours per month.

Protection of life and property, with special emphasis on search and rescue, aptly sums the routine duties of the "Hooligan Navy" which makes use of five, fast seaworthy craft.

Variations in emergency duties which the Coast Guard performs are as complete as their more routine chores. Medical cases are taken from the ships at sea, grounded ships bring a Coast Guard rope to aid, derelicts are sunk (12 last year) and capsized skiffs and men overboard are retrieved.

Boarding and inspection of motorboats takes up a good portion of the station's time. All boats less than 15 tons and under 65 feet in length are inspected. In 1954, a total of 407 were inspected and in 1953 the total inspected numbered 936.

The Mile Rock lighthouse station, just off Baker Beach, requires the services of four men. The unit also transports technicians out to the light stations and also to check strategic buoy lights.

Last year the unit responded to over 300 emergency calls in which they aided and rescued boats and persons in distress. In connection with the Armed Forces Day celebration Saturday, the Coast Guard will demonstrate a rescue by helicopter on the parade ground at 1330 hours.

officers recently assigned

Colonel ERNEST H. BEARSS has recently been assigned as chief of Plans and Services Division, G-1 section. Formerly with the Inspector General Division, EUR, in Heidelberg, Germany, where he served for three years, the colonel held an earlier ROTC assignment as senior officer in charge of instructor courses at Saint Thomas Military Academy, St. Paul, Minnesota.

He has served the Army for 17 years and during the second world war was on duty with the 32nd Infantry Regiment, Seventh Infantry Division, in charge of Training during the campaigns at the Aleutians, Attu and the Marshall Islands. He later transferred to the Central Pacific (13th Replacement Depot) on Saipan Island where he established operations.

In April of that year, Colonel Bearss came to Okinawa as Tenth Army Replacement staff officer in charge of Arms for the 24th Corps in action there. He was graduated from the Command Staff College at Fort Leavenworth (1946/47).

Decorations worn by Colonel Bearss include the Bronze Star Medal with two oak leaf clusters; the CIB and the European and Asiatic-Pacific Theater ribbons for four campaigns.

The newly-assigned officer resides with his wife at 5520 California Street.

Representing the distaff side for incoming officers to the Presidio is Major FLORENCE B. BOUCH, newly-assigned custodian of funds, replacing Major Elsie Weible.

Formerly in charge of the Operations branch of the Procurement Division, office of the deputy chief of staff for Logistics, at the Pentagon, Major Bouch served in that capacity for three years. She entered Federal service in 1942 and is a graduate of the second Officer Candidate Class at Des Moines, Iowa.

The new custodian spent her two-year Far East tour with the Judge Advocate Section in charge of War Crime Trials at Yokohama. She is a graduate of the Command General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth.

Recently assigned here from duty in the Far East is Major ARTHUR J. HARWOOD, newly-appointed executive officer in the Post Comptroller's office. Formerly with the 2nd US Army Port in Yokohama, Major Harwood earlier served as finance officer for the 40th Division in Korea, later with the IX Corps.

During World War II, he was assigned to the Fifth Infantry Division of the late General Patton's Third Army, as division finance officer.

His awards include the Bronze Star Medal, the Good Conduct Medal, the American Defense Service Medal, American Campaign Medal, the World War II Victory Medal, Army of Occupation Medal, the Korean Service Medal, United Nations Service Medal, the Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant, the National Defense Medal and the Armed Forces Reserve Medal.

Major Harwood was graduated from the Infantry School (OCS), at Fort Benning, Georgia. He attended the Army School of Finance at Duke University and the Military Government School at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania.

A future resident of San Rafael, Major Harwood resides presently in the Presidio area with his wife and three sons.

A national track figure, 2nd Lt. FRANCIS I. ZELLARS, has been assigned to Company A, 505th MP

Battalion as platoon leader and unit fund recorder. He completed the ROTC program at the University of Indiana where he received a B.S. degree in Education and a reserve commission.

He comes to the Presidio from Camp Gordon, Georgia, where he attended officers basic classes at the Provost Marshal General School.

Lieutenant Zellars is one of the nation's leading runners, having placed second in the 1955 U.S. National Track Meet by running the mile in 4 minutes, 9.5 seconds. A native of Tobinsport, Indiana, the lieutenant lives at Presidio BOQ.

Now serving as platoon leader, mess officer and area fire marshal with Company C, 505th MP Battalion is 2nd Lt. RICHARD W. MASSEY, a 1955 graduate of the University of Wisconsin. Prior to his assignment here, the lieutenant had just completed the MP Officers basic course of the Provost Marshal General School at Camp Gordon, Georgia.

At the University of Wisconsin he was affiliated with the Provost Corps, an honorary organization for MP students in the ROTC program and Acacia Fraternity.

A native of Madison, Wisconsin, Lieutenant Massey lives at BOQ 40 on the post.

Just returning stateside after three years duty in England is CWO CLYDE R. THOMPSON, the new personnel officer of the 505th MP Battalion.

A veteran of 19 years Army service, he received his warrant in 1943 and in 1944 he served overseas with the 102nd Infantry division, participating in the Rhineland and the Central Europe campaigns.

Following the war, he remained in Europe to serve as a personnel officer with a squadron in the U.S. Constabulary Regiment in Germany. He served with the Armed Forces special weapons project at Sandia base in New Mexico from 1948 to 1952.

Warrant Officer Thompson holds the Bronze Star medal with two Oak Leaf clusters and the Combat Infantry Badge. He now resides at Presidio Park with his wife and two sons.

New Army Power Unit Can Furnish Energy For Industrial Plant

Washington (AFPS)—A mobile gas turbine railway power plant so potent it could easily furnish the electrical needs for an average industrial plant has been developed by the Army.

The power plant, first of its kind, is now being tested by the Corps of Engineers at Ft. Meade, Md.

Mounted on two railway cars, it is designed to support the armed forces in any theater of operations. The Army said it can be operated on all U.S. rail lines and most foreign ones.

Lt. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis Jr., army chief of engineers, declared it "could prove invaluable in support of military operations when conventional power sources are damaged or unavailable."

Built by the Westinghouse Corp., it consists of a 5,000 kilowatt gas turbine power plant and transformer. The first railway car carries the gas turbine and generator. The second holds the switchgear, electrical controls and a transformer capable of putting out 2,500 to 15,000 volts.

Make Your Own Holiday Cards At Service Club Crafts Room

Now is a good time for local soldiers to beat old Saint Nick to the draw months ahead of the holiday season. Using the silk screen printing materials at the Service Club crafts room, enlisted personnel can make their own Christmas cards and have them ready for mailing long before the big rush starts.

One night's session at the crafts room is usually about all the time required to produce a large quantity of the personalized greeting cards.

Cost of making Christmas cards here is considerably lower than purchasing the manufactured variety at drugstores and stationery shops.

The Service Club provides all of the materials except the paper and the envelope. These items may be purchased cheaply at "five and dime" and office supply stores.

Creating the design is probably the most difficult part of the card-making process. But even this can be easy if beginners take crafts director Miss Ruth Rippon's advice and stick to simple and un-elaborate designs.

Craftsmen are also urged to design cards equal to the size of bulk-packaged envelopes in order to reduce the cost of buying envelopes to a minimum.

As soon as a design is developed, the silk screen process can be started. The first step is to make a stencil of the design.

For this task, a sheet of nearly-transparent lacquer film is used. The design is placed under the film so that the portions of the design which are to be printed in ink may be cut and removed from the stencil. Exacto tools, knives, and razor blades are commonly used for the cutting.

The stencil-cutting phase is repeated according to the number of colors established in the design.

Transferring the design on the stencil to the silk screen is the next step. This is done by placing the bottom side of the silk screen over the stencil and saturating the screen with a stencil-adhering solution.

After this solution is applied and let to set for about three seconds, the entire area of the design is rubbed vigorously to make certain that the solution has penetrated the silk.

The screen is let standing three minutes before the stencil is ready to be removed. To prevent ink smears in portions of the cards which will not be covered with the actual printed design, a frame is cut from heavy composition paper and placed on the screen.

Printing the Christmas cards is probably the easiest part of the whole project. First, a thick, sticky oil-base ink is poured in a line at one side of the screen. Then, a hard rubber squeegee is firmly moved to the opposite side of the screen, pressing the ink through the screen and onto the paper, leaving an imprint of the design on the card.

Just as in preparing the stencils, the printing phase is repeated as often as the number of colors to appear on the cards.

The finished product is frequently not only one which has saved the craftsman money, but also one which displays something of the individual's personality.

The Service Club crafts room is open on week nights from 1900 to 2200, on Saturdays from 1400 to 1600 and on Sundays from 1400 to 1800.

Four Armed Services Police Members Earn Special Commendation Letters

Four enlisted members of the local Armed Services Police Detachment today were given letters of commendation by Lt. Colonel Charles A. Fanning, ASP Commanding Officer, for superior efficiency in the performance of their duties.

PN2 John F. Alwine, USN, was commended for rendering assistance above and beyond the call of duty at the scene of a vehicle accident involving Dr. Alvin Beckett of San Jose State College.

In a letter to Lieutenant General Robert Young Commanding General of Sixth Army, Dr. Beckett commended Alwine, who was on leave at the time of the accident, for aiding the injured, directing traffic and salvaging property.

Dr. Beckett told the General that he felt "this matter is worthy of your attention for it is to your everlasting credit, as well as those individuals worthy of the credit, when men of this calibre demonstrate to the American public that they are more than mere soldiers doing duty to which they are assigned."

General Young forwarded the letter with an indorsement to Cap-

New Info Pamphlet Tells Of Job Openings For Service Women

Washington (AFPS)—Young women entering the armed forces today have more job opportunities than ever before in peacetime.

A new pamphlet, "Careers for Women in the Armed Forces," outlines the seven basic career fields where women may find these jobs.

The fields include administration and personnel, machine accounting, finance, supply, communications, medical and dental specialties and air operations support.

Some women volunteers also may enter specialties such as photography, intelligence and drafting.

The book explains that jobs for women range from those similar to civilian office work to positions requiring special technical skills, the latter often acquired in co-educational service schools.

The pamphlet, prepared under the sponsorship of the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services, can be obtained without charge from the committee, Room 2D939, Pentagon, Washington 25, D.C.

Realignment!

Army Streamlines Reserves For Mobilization In 6 Months

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has started to streamline its reserve structure under a long-range program already announced. Under the plan, the reserve will include only units needed in the early stages of war mobilization.

These reserve units will supplement the active army in forming balanced forces in accordance with strategic plans.

The goal is reserve and national guard forces which can be completely mobilized within six months, instead of 18 months, as at present. By 1960 the ready reserve force would number 1,692,235.

Atomic warfare demands speedier mobilizing of reserves, the Army indicated. Officials said the reorganization, which will take considerable time to complete, is a major step toward building a truly ready reserve as has been strongly advocated by President Eisenhower.

Some reserve units will be converted to different types and others, in excess of requirements, will be inactivated under the plan.

But Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker made it clear that this was no sudden change in the reserve structure. He said it was part of a program which was drawn up as long ago as 1954 and worked out in conjunction with the reserve forces act passed at the last session of Congress.

First Annual Career Awards Slated For 5 Civilian Employees

Leading government, political, and business figures will pay tribute to ten outstanding career civil servants who were selected to receive the first annual Career Service Awards in Washington on 2 December.

Speakers at the awards dinner will be the Hon. Thomas E. Dewey, former governor of New York, and Senator Olin D. Johnston (Dem.), chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

The Awards winners were selected from over one hundred nominations from thirty-three different government departments and agencies. The Awards program is part of the National Civil Service League's continuing campaign to increase the prestige of the public service.

Names of the Award winners will be announced at a later date.

nike housing

Washington (AFPS) — The Army will lease 750 family housing units in large U. S. cities for personnel manning Nike anti-aircraft guided missile sites, the Defense Department has announced. Because key personnel must be near their Nike batteries at all times, the Army has received 750 of the 1,000 units Congress authorized the DOD to lease at a maximum rate of $150 a month.

These housing units will be assigned to men whose quarters allowances are inadequate to cover rental costs in the area. The other 250 units are being held in reserve. Personnel occupying these units will not receive quarters allowances.

New Pamphlet Is Student Aid On Service Life

Washington (AFPS) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has received the first copy of a study unit designed to assist high school students plan their careers and meet their military obligations.

The guide is titled "Your Life Plans and the Armed Forces." It helps answer questions such as: "Why must I serve? How long must I stay in? What will this do to my vocational plans? Should I enter college after high school or should I enter the service first?"

The unit consists of a 160-page text and a teacher's handbook. Prepared by the defense committee of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, it is being offered to schools by the American Council on Education.

Dr. Lowell Fisher, chairman of the committee, said the guide enabled students to find for the first time under one cover an account of all the education and career opportunities available to them in the armed forces.

Military obligations and options, including those contained in the reserve forces act of 1955, are clearly set out in the guide to inform the student of the alternatives available to him.

Naval Officer Named Executive Of Armed Service Police Unit

Lieutenant Commander Roy E. Reeves, USN, recently was appointed Executive Officer of the local Armed Services Police Detachment replacing Captain Francis E. Caliguiri, U.S. Army, who had been acting executive officer.

Commander Reeves was assigned to the Armed Services Police from the U.S. Atlantic Fleet where he served as Commanding Officer of the USS Waldo County.

Capt. Caliguiri, who had been with the detachment for the last three years, is leaving shortly for his new assignment at Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands.

Among local girl scouts officiating at the conference are Jerry Kitchen, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. B. M. Kitchen. Jerry is designated junior delegate from the city of San Francisco, with Mrs. John Kemble as senior delegate.

Other Presidio girl scouts attending the conference are Penny King, daughter of CWO and Mrs. Paul King (30th Engineers); Dixie Halen, daughter of Marine Master Sergeant Halen; Shelia Foley, daughter of Captain and Mrs. George Foley, (MC); Catherine Sudano, daughter of M/Sgt. and Mrs. John Sudano, (Letterman); Carolyn Chandler, daughter of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Leroy Chandler, (Letterman); Patricia Ball, daughter of CWO and Mrs. Fred Ball, (30th Engineers); Helen French, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. S. W. French; Virginia Cates, daughter of Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. John Cates; Paula Foster, whose parents are M/Sgt. and Mrs. John Foster; Lyndia Youngdahl, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Herbert Youngdahl, and Gail Roberts, daughter of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Ernest Roberts.

Among Presidio wives attending the conference are Mrs. Benjamin LaFare (Fort Mason), Mrs. James Enmeir and Mrs. George Masters.

Service women present include Major Elizabeth Hoisington and Sgt. Virginia Chaffee of the Presidio.

This year the Army plans to make four conversions from manual to dial telephones at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.; Fort Story, Va.; Camp Hanford, Wash.; and another in Missouri. At present there are 170,000 dial telephones in use, including both commercially rented and government owned.

Law Student Tops Sixth Army AG School Graduates

Honor student in a class of 28 military men and one woman graduating from the Sixth Army AG Personnel Administration School late last week was Sergeant First Class Edward A. Panelli of San Jose, California. With six years' Army service to his credit, the 24-year-old soldier is presently assigned as a military intelligence specialist with a Reserve unit in this area.

Sergeant Panelli received a B.S. degree from the University of Santa Clara where he won a six-year scholarship enabling him to achieve a bachelor of law degree at his alma mater. He was also the honor student of the law school graduating class.

Sgt. Panelli took the California State Bar examinations this month and is currently awaiting news of the result. Meanwhile, he is to be assigned as senior non-com Intelligence analyst with his unit. At the AG school he studied maintenance of personnel records, in a class marking the 43rd of its kind since the school's inception and the 13th class to be graduated this year.

CWO John Drake, the school commandant, announced that a new student class of 45 reported here for attendance at the AG school this week.

General Gavin

Research, Development Chief Sees Brilliant Technical Future

Ft. Benning, Ga. (AFPS)—A picture of the army of the future and some of the "radical changes" in weapons it would use were presented here recently by the Army's chief of research and development, Lieutenant General James M. Gavin.

Speaking at the first annual meeting of the Association of the U.S. Army, Gen. Gavin said that during the 1960-70 period the Army would have these advanced military developments:

1. Nuclear shells for cannon smaller and more mobile than the present 280mm atomic gun.
2. Improved Redstone artillery missiles with ranges up to 150 miles or more.
3. An improved version of the Wac Corporal, called the Sergeant.
4. Smaller rockets with greater power than the Honest John.

He also envisioned a missile that would be capable of intercepting and destroying an intercontinental ballistic missile, the ocean-spanning weapon that is still on the drawing boards.

"The traditional artillery gun may well be on the way to obsolescence," Gen. Gavin declared, "for the new missiles have almost unbelievable possibilities both for antiaircraft and anti-tank purposes and for all kinds of other enemy targets."

Most battle supplies, he said, should be delivered by assault cargo and convertiplane aircraft. The tactical transport of units into and within the battle area must be accomplished by aircraft and fast naval vessels.

Gen. Gavin said that tactical units would possibly be smaller regimental combat teams or integrated battle groups, of all arms. They would be semi-independent, self-contained and capable of operating over extended distances with little control by higher headquarters.

Turning to the present, Gen. Gavin asserted that today's weapons in the hands of U.S. soldiers are the "most effective of any army in the world."

"Our Nike system can destroy any airplane present or planned, regardless of great height or speed," he declared. "Our infantry weapons, our armor and our airborne forces are improving daily."

Memorial Services At Fort Scott Chapel For Engineer Trio

Memorial Services were held on last Friday at the Fort Scott Chapel for two officers and two enlisted men of the 30th Engineer Group who lost their lives north of the Arctic Circle during the Alaska Mapping Operations this year.

Chaplain (Major) Henry C. Butts conducted the services in memory of the late First Lieutenant Howard B. Smith, First Lieutenant Harry M. Spellman, Private First Class James M. Shaheen and Private Earl E. George.

Lieutenant Smith crashed on 20 June, near Umiat, Alaska. Shortly after taking off on the return trip to his base camp about 2 o'clock in the morning, the tail rotor of his H23B Helicopter, was struck by a Great Snowy Owl. After the in-flight contact with the owl, weighed about ten pounds, Lieutenant Smith was critically injured. He later died at Ladd Air Force Base Hospital as a result of exposure and his injuries.

On 14 July, Lieutenant Spellman and his passengers, Private First Class Shaheen and Private George, perished when their H23B Helicopter crashed while returning to a survey camp near Umiat, Alaska. Cause of accident was not determined.

During the Service, Chaplain Butts declared, "These men were called upon to give their lives in the line of duty. We who are left must carry on so that what they lived for will continue to live in us."

Organ music furnished melodic background to the Memorial Service.

The service was concluded by the playing of "Taps," during which time the officers and enlisted personnel attending the service stood at attention in honor of their departed comrades.

Army Med Museum Displays Nazi's First Electronic Microscope

The German prototype of the electron microscope is now being displayed at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology's Medical Museum in Washington. The instrument was the property of Adolph Hitler's personal physician until it was commandeered by the U.S. Army in 1945.

The giant microscope stands high above the more than 550 other microscopes that are part of the permanent display of the museum.

Composed of more than two tons of mechanical and electronic parts, the electron microscope is capable of more than 20,000 times magnification as compared to the light microscopes which attain a maximum of 2000 times magnification.

The German microscope, which is far larger than electron microscopes in use today, was reassembled at the Army Signal Corps Research Center at Ft. Monmouth, New Jersey.

Here, Miss Allison Barr, club hostess goes a little overboard and puts some muscle to the wooden walls while Dorothy Webb, service club director, confines her waxing efforts strictly to the hardwood. Now that the new floor has been completed, the Ft. Baker club will again provide varied facilities and programs for the recreation of troops stationed across the Golden Gate.

Concerts Set

Union Square, Presidio Service Club Will Host Army Band Recitals

Twin concerts by the Sixth Army Band are being presented today and tomorrow, the first at Union Square in downtown San Francisco (12 noon), the second at Presidio Service Club, 1400 Sunday.

Making his final appearance with the band is Specialist Third Class Donald B. Thompson, talented radio musical script writer. He conducts his own composition, "Intermezzo for Band," during the forthcoming two concerts by Sixth Army musicians. Thompson returns to civilian life this week to advance his studies in the field of music.

Other bandmen featured in the concerts are SP2 Robert E. Carter, Private Bertram Baylon, conducting two marches, and a trio of trumpeters, SP3 Donald Wiehe, SP3 Larry Huck and Pfc. Noel LaDue presenting the novelty composition "Bugler's Holiday."

Other highlights in the Sixth Army Band concerts will be "Missouri Shindig," "China Doll," "Elsa's Procession from the Cathedral" and "Viking March."

All concerts are under the baton of Chief Warrant Officer Louis Ferraro who has slated two further concerts by the band, one at McClymonds High School, Oakland, at 1000 a.m., 8 November, another at San Mateo High School, San Mateo, 10 November, at 1045.

50 Dogs Graduated At Carson; Scheduled For Air Force Duty

No speaker was announced for recent graduation ceremonies at Ft. Carson, Colorado. The graduating class consisted of more than 50 German Shepherd dogs, which the Army has groomed for sentry duty with the Air Force.

The Army Dog Training Center there plans for the eventual training of 600 canines for the Air Force. The dogs will be used at installations within the United States to guard sensitive materials and restricted areas of the American Defense and Strategic Air commands.

The Army Quartermaster General is purchasing the dogs required for the program from their owners.

Local 'Y' Affords Presidio Newcomers Happy Social Scene

Newly-arrived soldiers at the Presidio would do well to visit the Armed Services YMCA, (166 Embarcadero) while doing the social life in San Francisco. The Y presents a free feature movie at 1800 hours every Saturday, with dancing from 2030 to 2230.

A Thanksgiving dance, semi-formal, takes place there on the evening of 9 November.

On Tuesday evenings the YMCA offers a 35 cent home-cooked supper at 1800 hours, with dancing, games, discussion, bridge and canasta for entertainment.

Wednesday evening is swimming and volley ball night at the Y from 1800 to 2200 hours. Mixed pairs will vie for honors.

A variety floor show is presented at the Y every Friday from 2000 to 2030 hours.

On Friday, 18 November, the YMCA presents a benefit performance featuring a stage show by the Y fellows and girls.

The building is open daily except Sundays. The swimming pool opens at 1130 hours and the gym and showers are available from 1000 to 1800 daily, excepting Saturday when they are closed at 1800.

36th Year!

Presidio Women's Club Will Celebrate Anniversary Next Thursday Afternoon

Wives of commanding officers of all San Francisco Bay Area military establishments as well as the presidents of the officers' wives clubs of the area, have been invited to attend the thirty-sixth anniversary of the Presidio Woman's Club on Thursday, November 10th at 2:00 p.m. in the ballroom of the Presidio Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. W. K. Jones of Palo Alto, Charter President, and Mrs. Sue R. Merriman of San Francisco, who with Mrs. Jones founded the club, will be the guests of honor for the afternoon and will cut the initial slices of two large birthday cakes which will form the centerpiece on each of two beautifully appointed tea tables.

Lorita Baker Vallyely, analyst of world affairs and current literature, will be the guest speaker for the afternoon's program.

Mrs. T. J. Siegler, Mrs. L. C. Persons, Mrs. Herman Bretzer and Mrs. F. J. Naisbett will be hostesses for the program-tea, and Mrs. C. L. Sampson, Mrs. George Perkins, Mrs. P. J. Lloyd and Mrs. L. T. Lathrop will preside at the tea tables.

Since the need for a women's club was felt by Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Merriman 36 years ago, the efforts of the members over the years have been directed toward welfare activities on the post as well as to contributing to its social life.

At the present time the club operates the Post Thrift Shop, which is staffed entirely by volunteer workers. The proceeds from this activity are used to support all the youth activities at the Presidio as well as the post children's nursery. The club's present project, still in the planning stages, will benefit the children's ward at Letterman Army Hospital.

Presidio Aero Club Looking For Pilot To Teach Locals

The Presidio Aero Club is seeking a person stationed or employed at the Presidio who has a pilot's license with an instructor's rating. The club's need for an instructor is based on its recent expansion to twelve members.

The club also announced this week the recent acquisition of a sleek, single engine, all metal plane, doubling the club's fleet.

Men and women who have pilot instructor's credentials are urged to contact Lt. Col. George W. Adair, telephone extension 2809, during the day or 5185 evenings.

7 October '56?

Sergeant Robert W. Sherman, Sixth Army AG reenlistment section, is a great believer in not only doing things right, but doing them in an orderly and routine fashion. This penchant for schedule seems to have carried over into the soldier's family life with the birth this month of his second son, Robert Anthony. For the lusty 8 lbs. 6 ounce new addition not only arrived on the exact same date, a year later, as his older brother, Michael Wayne, but within 15 minutes of the same hour and weighing only 4 ounces more than his big brother. Both youngsters were born at Letterman Army Hospital on 7 October, 1954-55. Next 7 October? Never underestimate the power of Army routine!

new arrivals

Sons and daughters born at Letterman Army Hospital to personnel of the Presidio and its sub-posts during the past week are listed below:

Soldiers Are often called upon to stand alone in moments of great decision. And in moments of high public acclaim a soldier may also stand alone. Alone in the memory of those who died gallantly in great cause. Alone in the sad knowledge that oftentimes to command is to send those we love and respect the most into the very arms of the enemy. Alone in the shellfire of memories of battlefield dying and already dead. Alone in the great humility of . . . Why me? Yes a soldier is often loneliest in the crowd of acclaim!

Big Moment of the colorful retirement ceremony came when the Army Chief of Staff, General Maxwell D. Taylor, pinned the coveted Combat Infantryman's Badge on Major General William F. Dean. This final award climaxed a 32-year career that saw General Dean's combat brilliance rewarded with all of his country's highest decorations.

A Special reception at the Presidio Officers' Open Mess was one of the many highlights that marked Major General William F. Dean's final day as a soldier. Here the Medal of Honor winner stands in the reception line with his long-time aide, Major William Girard (l.), Mrs. Dean, General and Mrs. Taylor and Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Young.

Honor Guard unit made up of 64 members of the 24th Division, now manning the front lines in Korea, was on hand to bid farewell to one of their former commanders, Major General William F. Dean. General Dean led the famed fighting division at the outset of the Korean War. In the foreground is Major Charles R. Sniffin, the unit's commander.

A Facsimile of the special award scroll presented to Major General William F. Dean by the State of California in recognition of 32-years of brilliant military performance is shown above. Governor Goodwin Knight signed the special scroll, which said in part: "on behalf of the people of California, I am happy to extend sincere thanks to General Dean for his service to our nation above and beyond the call of duty and to wish him happiness and peace in the years of his retirement."

Army Commander Lauds Troops

I take this means to thank each and every one of you for your fine contribution to the many activities that made the visit of General Taylor and the retirement of General Dean such outstanding successes.

I am sure that I speak for the Army Chief of Staff and our former Deputy Commanding General when I say that they thoroughly appreciated the hard work, imagination and devotion that you gave to the colorful ceremonies of this past week.

I am confident that in the eyes of the nation and the world we brilliantly upheld many of the United States Army's most colorful traditions.

ROBERT N. YOUNG,
Lieutenant General, USA,
Commanding

A Proud State also had a special act of honor reserved for her favorite hero son on the eve of his retirement. California Governor Goodwin Knight sent a special envoy in the person of Colonel James Hicks, USAF-R, center, to present a special state scroll to retiring Major General William F. Dean. Lieutenant General Robert N. Young (l.) was present for the ceremony.

Army Chief of Staff General Maxwell D. Taylor (l.) is shown with Major General William F. Dean and Mr. Albert H. Moffitt, Jr., following an address to the Commonwealth Club of California at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel in San Francisco. General Taylor's topic was the Role of the Army in National Defense. This was the Army Chief of Staff's first visit to the Sixth Army area since his appointment to his current key military position.

Sixth Army staff members are shown greeting General Maxwell D. Taylor on his arrival at the Presidio. Brigadier General Louis Rumagosa (l.), Sixth Army Chief of Staff and Sixth Army Commander, Lieutenant General Robert N. Young, flank General Taylor as he greets an old friend, Major General William F. Dean. Standing next to General Dean are Major General Riley F. Ennis, new Sixth Army deputy commanding general and Major General Horbatt Hewitt, commanding general of the 6th Regional AA Command. Visible in the rear rank are (l.) Colonel Ruel E. Hewitt, Sixth Army surgeon and Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, deputy post commander.

A Soldier's last parade isn't only the bright pageantry of marching troops, flying flags and throngs of proud and grateful citizens. It is a deeply moving and emotional trial. The end of a way of life. The period that marks finis to a lifetime of singular dedication. Attention in the face of a destiny of tomorrows that promise rest and memories. Shown with General Dean on the reviewing stand are (l. to r.) Colonel Carl E. Lundquist, commander of troops and deputy post commander of the Presidio; General Dean; General Robert N. Young, Sixth Army Commander and General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff.

Steamcleaning this 2½ ton truck at the 9th AAA Battalion Consolidated Motor Pool is Pvt. James E. Bush, Headquarters Battery, 441st AAA Battalion. The steam treatment clears away all mud and grime from axles, springs and shock absorbers and prepares the truck for lubrication.

mule train!

Of the 539 mules in the Army, two are draft and 537 are pack. The draft mules are at Camp Cooke, Calif. However, the two most famous Army mules—or at least the most televised and publicized—are Army mascots at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

$20 Millions Savings From Key Suggestions Expected By Army

Washington (AFPS) — Suggestions made by army civilian and military personnel during the 1955 fiscal year will result in savings estimated at more than $20,000,000 over a one-year period, the Army has announced.

A total of 61,669 recommendations for improving efficiency and economy were received from personnel during the year. Of this figure 11,734 civilian suggestions and 3,287 offered by men and women in uniform were adopted.

Civilian employees received $332,956 in cash awards for their suggestions. Military personnel, who are not authorized to receive cash awards, received commendation ribbons, three-day passes and letters of commendations for their suggestions.

changes made

The infantry division has undergone some changes since World War II. One is the inclusion of two tank battalions equipped with the M-48 medium tank mounting a 90-millimeter gun instead of the single tank battalion that was separately attached to the division in World War II.

Today's Army division can deliver about 80 per cent more fire power than its WWII counterpart.

daughters meet

San Francisco Chapter of Army Daughters will meet for luncheon Thursday, 10 November at 1245 hours at the Treasure Island Officers' Club. Reservations should be made with Mrs. L. V. Harris, 67 Lake Vista Avenue, Daily City, phone PL 6-0368.

Enrollment For 3 On-Post College Classes Still Open

Enrollment in the three on-post college classes is still open to Presidio and sub-post military personnel, it was announced this week by the Army Education Center.

Each of the three courses, Anthropology 141, Psychology 110, and History 110, will be given by San Francisco State College in local classrooms two evenings a week during an eight-week period beginning 15 November.

In many cases these courses meet typical undergraduate requirements and the three semester units credit given for each course is generally transferable.

Arrangements for enrollment may be made by calling the Army Education Center, Extension 2974 or 3189. Personnel may also determine whether or not they can qualify for enrollment by contacting an education advisor at Building 117.

New Pocket Pamphlet 'Tips For Instructors' Issued by Sixth Army

"He deserves the best training possible," declares a new pamphlet, "Tips For Instructors," recently issued by Headquarters, Sixth Army.

The shirt-pocket booklet lists in brief outline form a number of suggestions for military instructors on lecture preparation, presentation, application and examination.

It also provides hints on discussion and critique techniques.

Available by request through Sixth Army Headquarters, the pamphlet urges beforehand preparation of training aids and demonstration devices.

The motto running throughout the booklet reads, "Prior Planning Prevents Poor Performance."

Requests for the pamphlet should include the number considered necessary by the unit or installation concerned.

The Army operates 77 troop information radio broadcasting stations overseas.

MY STAKE IN THE AMERICAN WAY

The 1955 Freedoms Foundation Letter Awards Program is fast drawing to a close. Better hurry and explain your stake in the "American Way" before it's too late. You may win the top prize of $1,000.

Armed forces personnel on active duty, reservists and national guardsmen are eligible. There is no limit to the number of entries you may submit.

Simply write in 500 words or less your stake in the "American Way" and mail it to Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa. All entries must be received by 11 November, 1955. Letters submitted after that date will be considered for next year's award.—(AFPS)

Army QM Asks Veterans To Pick Up Medals

Washington—The thousands of veterans entitled to unclaimed service medals are urged by the Army Quartermaster Corps to place their orders, as the saying goes, "now—to ensure early delivery."

Veterans Day, Memorial Day and other national holidays evoke a flurry of requests to all the Armed Forces:

"Please rush my medals in time for the parade on Tuesday. . . ."

It just can't happen that fast.

When an application is received, the military services, say the Quartermaster Corps experts, must check painstakingly the individual veteran's records to determine that his service has been honorable and to ascertain what medals, together with appropriate heraldic appurtenances, are his rightful due.

Except in the case of commissioned reservists, veterans' records are not on file in departmental headquarters of the service in Washington; they must be obtained from the record centers of the individual service, none of which are located here.

As a consequence, a veteran may expect to receive his service medals within 60 days—not six—after the date of application.

WORLD WAR II: Service medals available to qualified veterans and servicemen for active duty in the United States Armed Forces and specific requirements for each medal are as follows:

World War II Victory Medal, for service in the U.S. Armed Forces anywhere, between 7 December, 1941 and 21 December, 1946.

American Campaign Medal, for service within the American Theater of War between Dec. 7, 1941, and March 2, 1946. The American theater includes the continents of North and South America.

European-African, Middle Eastern Campaign Medal, for service between Dec. 7, 1941, and Nov. 8, 1945, in the European-African and Middle Eastern theater, which includes Europe, Greenland, Holland, Egypt and Africa.

Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal, for service in the Asia-Pacific theater. This includes the Hawaiian Islands, Midway Island, Gilbert Islands and the India-Burma theater, Japan, China, the East Indies and various other islands in the Pacific.

Army of Occupation Medal, for service for a minimum of 30 consecutive days in an American Army of Occupation following World War II; also for service during the Berlin Airlift (June 26, 1948, to Sept. 30, 1949).

Woman's Army Corps Service Medal, for service in both the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps between July 20, 1942, and Aug. 31, 1943, and the Women's Army Corps between Sept. 1, 1943, and Sept. 2, 1945.

Veterans and servicemen with service prior to World War II are also eligible, if their service was honorable, for the American Defense Service Medal, if they served between Sept. 8, 1939, and Dec. 7, 1941, under orders to active duty for a period of 12 months or longer.

KOREAN EMERGENCY: The following medals are available for service:

National Defense Service Medal, for honorable active service for any period between June 27, 1950, and July 27, 1954, inclusive.

Korean Service Medal, for service between June 27, 1950, and July 27, 1954, in Korea or in direct support of the military effort in Korea.

United Nations Service Medal, for service in Korea or adjacent areas during the same period in behalf of the United Nations military action in Korea. Those eligible for the Korean Service Medal qualify, per se, for the U.N. Service Medal.

WORLD WAR I: Veterans with the requisite service still may apply for the following service medals:

World War I Victory Medal, for service between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, or with the American Expeditionary Forces in European Russia between Nov. 12, 1918, and Aug. 5, 1919, or in Siberia between Nov. 12, 1918, and April 1, 1920.

Army of Occupation of Germany Medal, for service in Germany or Austria-Hungary between Nov. 12, 1918, and July 11, 1923.

Heraldic appurtenances issued along with service medals to qualified veterans and servicemen include:

Service Stars, for battle participation.

Bronze Arrowheads, for participation in a combat parachute jump, combat glider landing or amphibious assault landing.

Battle and service clasps.

The Berlin Airlift device, for participation in the Berlin Airlift, during the period of 18 June to 30 September, 1949.

Service ribbons: A service ribbon is issued with each service medal. It is identical in color with the suspension ribbon of the service medal it represents. It is worn in lieu of the medal.

Servicemen on active duty should apply for service medals for which they are eligible through their commanding officer.

Qualified veterans or the next-of-kin of deceased veterans may send their applications to the appropriate office of the service with which they served. These are: ARMY: The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D.C.; NAVY: The Chief of Naval Personnel, Navy Department, Washington 25, D.C.; MARINE CORPS: The Commandant of the Marine Corps, Headquarters, Marine Corps, Washington 25, D.C.; AIR FORCE: Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, Washington 25, D.C.; COAST GUARD: The Commandant, U.S. Coast Guard, Washington 25, D.C.

Applications must give applicant's full name, present address and military serial or identification number.

Headquarters Sixth Army Releases Early Discharge Policy Announcement

Requests for early releases will be granted wherever the applicant complies with the necessary conditions of SR 615-360-5, Headquarters Sixth Army announced this week.

But leaves in conjunction with early releases will not be favorably considered, the policy announcement said.

Early separation is permitted if the individual plans to attend school or would lose an opportunity to return to a regular civilian employment of a seasonal nature. Discharges up to 90 days in advance of regular ETS are allowed.

To qualify for early discharge for educational purposes, the individual must have completed 21 months of his military obligation and have been accepted by the school for a specific term. A statement from the proper school official indicating the latest possible date of registration is necessary.

The course of study which the individual chooses must be conducted on a full-time basis as part of either a quarterly or semester system. Institutions not accepted by the Association of Accrediting Institutions of Higher Education or an equivalent agency will not qualify. Early releases will not ordinarily be authorized for part-time, night school or summer sessions.

The individual's application must show clearly that he would be unduly handicapped by a further delay in his educational plans.

For an individual to seek early release on the basis of employment, he must show that the job in question was his regular employment before he entered service or that he intends to make it a career upon discharge.

Among the occupations which fall into the seasonal category are those of school teachers, truck farmers, cotton farmers, Alaskan fishermen, professional baseball players, resort hotel managers and similar jobs. Such jobs as do not qualify as seasonal occupations include accountants, policemen, sales clerks, dairy farmers, electricians and others.

The applicant must give evidence that he has been accepted for the position in question and have certified the latest possible date he can report on the job.

He must also show that the employment is not of a temporary nature and that it represents his main source of income.

cat's sake!

It's happened again!

Jane, only female cat employed by the Fort Baker Service club to terrorize mice and other small creatures, has again become a mother.

Once again the litter consisted of three (we ran this item just last June—time marches on!).

Anyhow, they are wonderful little kittens, six weeks old, playful, terrific ham actors and all. Wouldn't you like one for your very own? A phone call to 58-239 could get you one if you hurry. The first litter was gone one hour after the item appeared in the Star-Presidian issue of 24 June.

Sacramento Signal Depot Issues Plea On Critical Openings

The Sacramento Signal depot has issued a critical appeal to fill the position of supervisory general engineer, GS-13, at a starting salary of $8,990 a year.

Applicants are to have successfully completed a full four-year or longer professional engineering curriculum leading to a bachelor's degree in an accredited college or university; or

Four years of successful and progressive experience in technical engineering, with a thorough knowledge of fundamental physical and mathematical sciences underlying professional engineering, and a good understanding (both theoretical and practical) of the engineering sciences and techniques and their application.

In addition, applicants must have had four years of broad and progressive professional engineering experience, including at least six months of very important and responsible work. Experience must have been in two or more fields of engineering, preferably electrical, electronics, industrial, or mechanical.

Other engineering positions open at the depot include: electrical (radio), general, and mechanical, $5,440 a year; electrical engineering (general), $4,970; supervisory electronics engineering (general), $5,915.

Officials said there is also a vacancy for an electrical engineer, GS-11, $6,390, in Davis, California.

Qualified persons may contact the civilian personnel office, Sacramento Signal depot, Sacramento 1, California, telephone Hillcrest 6-7841, extension 541.

surplus kitty high!

Washington (AFPS) — Defense Department sales of surplus property during the 1955 fiscal year have brought $143,526,844 into the U.S. Treasury — only slightly less than the sales for the previous three years combined.

Thomas P. Pike, assistant defense secretary (supply and logistics), said the surplus property sold last year had a value of nearly $1.5 billion when acquired, but was mostly worn out and obsolete when sold. By getting rid of the unneeded property, he noted, the DOD was avoiding paying housing and maintenance costs.

The basic element of the infantry division, the infantry squad, has been reduced from 12 to nine men since World War II. The nine men include a squad leader and his assistant, five riflemen and two automatic riflemen.

Official Infantry School Quarterly Boasts Wide Range Topical Items

Fort Benning, Ga.—How does the Soviet Army attack? How detailed are Soviet defensive systems? At what point may a Soviet onslaught be broken most easily? These and other related questions are answered by Major Charles A. Jackson in the October issue of The Infantry School Quarterly. In an article entitled "Soviet Tactics," Major Jackson describes the methods and techniques of attack and defense as employed by the Red Army. A number of illustrations and diagrams have been included which help to point up this informative article.

"The deadliest killer in a thermonuclear war may not be heat or blast or radiation. It may be panic. In the grip of panic, an army becomes a mob. And a mob is defenseless, incapable of taking these simple preventive measures which might save it from destruction." So begins another of the feature articles in the current issue of the Infantryman's magazine. "How to Survive an Atomic Blast," by Lt. Colonel Robert F. Bell, examines the effects of a nuclear explosion as well as the measures which should be taken to survive an atomic attack.

"Infantry Speaks Up," by Major General Armistead D. Mead, is a first-hand report on the missions and functions of the newly formed Infantry Section, Headquarters, CONARC. This agency sponsors such research projects as TASK TRAIN-FIRE and OPERATION MOONLIGHT. It also participated in the planning and review of EXERCISE FOLLOW ME.

Captain Arthur R. Underwood describes a method of analyzing target patterns whereby marksmanship instructors are able to pinpoint firing errors in an article entitled, "Target Analysis." The author furnishes several examples which show how errors made during sustained fire can be diagnosed and corrected.

Another Infantry School Quarterly article, "Prepare for Inspection," contains several inspection check lists which may be used to check barracks, unit day rooms, mail rooms and unit administration procedures. These lists are designed to assist officers and non-coms to save time and raise the standards of their inspections.

There are a number of other articles covering a wide range of topics in the current issue of this magazine.

The Infantry School Quarterly is the official publication of The Infantry School and is available by subscription from the Book Department, The Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia. Rates are $2.50 (one year); $4.75 (two years) and $7.00 (three years).

Installation Passport Set-Up To Facilitate Big Overseas Moves

The establishment of on-post passport facilities at posts where mass troop overseas movements such as Gyroscopic rotations are heavy, was encouraged in a recent change in Army regulations.

Provisions can now be made by posts in cooperation with local clerks of court for everything to be done at the military installation concerning passports except the signing of the application and its certification by a clerk of court.

Such a program is expected to ease the detail workload of clerks of court and eliminate passport snarls confronted by personnel rotating overseas with Gyroscopic units.

Soldiers Were Major Factor In Colonization of California

According to several American historians, the soldier was the most important factor in the colonization of California.

The presidial soldiers of Spain and Mexico enlisted for ten years and at their discharge date were entitled to any amount of land which they could use. The Spanish government in particular expected their soldiers to turn into settlers and exercised some care in picking potential good citizens—usually married soldiers.

Some settlers were also enrolled and received money and rations for a specified period. They were required to live in Spanish pueblos, were given a lot for building and shared in common the adjacent pasture lands and rights to nearby water and timber.

In exchange the settler was supposed to be ready to "march at the order of the governor." Not too many settlers were attracted by these inducements, so that the population of California was pretty much dependent on the garrisons for protection.

It is interesting to note that American General Fremont's chief contribution to San Francisco was in geographical nomenclature, he having suggested the name Golden Gate which became permanently affixed to the bay's famous portal.

The soldiers of the California presidios frequently acted as school teachers in the early Spanish and Mexican periods. In 1782, only about a third of the soldiers could read and write. Officers usually taught their own children and occasionally a friar would teach one of the soldiers.

There was little necessity for a soldier to learn to read and write unless he wished to become a corporal.

The United States Army, from 1848-1860, protected emigrants, frontier settlers and the overland mail. They opened up new trails, built roads, surveyed the principal Western rivers and routes for transcontinental railroads, and mapped international and territorial boundaries.

Most of the Army was infantry which was quite ineffectual in Indian warfare. Cavalry was too expensive to maintain.

The frontier soldier was always prey to disease. The most frequent disorder seemed to be of the digestive organs, probably because of poor food, impure water and "rotgut" liquor.

Sites for posts were seldom picked with an eye on health conditions with the result that during the winter months the men frequently suffered a great deal from the cold.

Raiders To Meet Cal Ramblers

Seventh Win!

Raiders Rally To Edge Petaluma Leghorns 12-9

Coming from behind in the third quarter the Presidio Red Raiders scored their seventh win of the 1955 season last Saturday when they edged out the rough Petaluma Leghorns 12-9 on the Fort Scott field.

The semi-pro Leghorns jumped off to an early lead in the first period when after taking the kickoff they rolled to the Presidio 17 yard line before being stopped. At this point Leghorn halfback Eaton booted a field goal to set the visitors ahead 3 to 0.

The Red Raiders took the ensuing kickoff on their 10-yard stripe. At this point a fumbled pitchout rolled into the end zone, where Leghorn tackle Corda fell on the elusive pigskin for six points. The extra point attempt was no good and the first quarter ended with the Leghorns on the long end of the 9-0 count.

However, in the second stanza Raider quarterback Morris Maytubby reached in his bag of tricks and called for an end around. Speedy Dick Piggott responded with a mighty 65-yard gallop to outrun the three defensive backs for the touchdown. The extra point attempt failed and the half ended without either side able to ring up a scoring drive.

Early in the third frame, after a Raider drive had gone to the Petaluma 20, Maytubby pitched out to right half Armando Macias, who galloped the necessary yardage for the winning six pointer.

Playing great defensive football were Storey, Hane, Covington, and Dodson. Bert Storey made probably the best defensive play of the contest when he intercepted a Leghorn aerial on his 40 and steamed 45 yards before being hauled down from behind.

Other Presidio standouts were Trotter, Dunn, Ebhardt, and Williams. Big Duke Holmes suffered a mild head bump during the contest but is OK and will see action in tomorrow's clash with the University of California Ramblers.

Spence Stars As Ord Wins 8th, 52-20

Julian Spence scored four touchdowns last Saturday as the powerful Fort Ord Warriors smashed the Stanford Braves, 52-20.

Spence caught passes from Rudy Bukich for 12 and 24-yard scores; ran an intercepted pass 40 yards for another, and sprinted around end for 68 yards on his longest scoring gallop.

Paul Larson, former California great, ran a kickoff back 90 yards for the longest Warrior touchdown.

The victory was Fort Ord's eighth straight win in eight starts this season.

Jose Tafoya Wins First In Foil Tilt

The fencing medic from Letterman Army Hospital, Jose Tafoya, won the Northern California Junior Foil Championship in last Saturday night's clash at Stanford University. Tafoya took the top honors from a field of over 16 entries from colleges and fencing clubs in the Bay Area.

Tafoya went through his bouts without the loss of a single strip, only to find himself tied with Jerry Klotz, the Western Intercollegiate Fencing Champion. Tafoya won a clear-cut decision in the fence-off to emerge victorious.

Herb Rhodes of the composite Presidio-LAH team tied for third place with McDougale of Stanford. Rhodes lost the fence-off and ended up with fourth place honors.

Tomorrow night composite teams from the local installations journey to San Francisco College for the Northern California Foil Team Championship. Among the teams entered is the one composed of Doug Bostard, Frank Dama and John Beauvais.

So far this season in six meets entered, the composite team from the Presidio-LAH have won four first places, three second places and one third place award.

The local sabre team is currently ranked fifth in the nation.

Fort Carson, Colo.—Reserved tickets are now on sale for the second annual Shrine football game at Pueblo on Nov. 6 matching Fort Carson against Pensacola Naval Air Basic Training Command of Florida. Pensacola boasts a star-studded lineup, featuring Steve Eisenhower, a former All-American guard at the Naval Academy. Another Navy star on the roster is fullback Joe Gattuso, who was voted the most valuable player in Navy's Sugar Bowl triumph last January. All proceeds from the game, sponsored by the Al Kaly Shrine chapter of Pueblo, will go to the intermountain unit of the Shrine Crippled Children's fund.

grid star

All-Army light-middleweight boxing champion Willie Russell is also quite a football player. Russell is co-captain, halfback, and place kicking specialist for the Fort Leonard Wood Hilltoppers.

RED RAIDER halfback Jim Guimarin (No. 22) is shown being tackled after a seventeen yard gain in last Saturday's game against the semi-pro Petaluma Leghorns. Making the tackle is Leghorn quarterback Bill Pedro. Coming up to help is Leghorn tackle Pete Garihan. The Presidio gridsters had to come from behind in a rough, tough contest to overcome the Leghorns, 12-9.

Underdog Soldier Eleven Runs In To Powerhouse

By Pvt. Bob Malone
Star Presidian Sports Editor

Tomorrow morning at 1100 hours Coach Larry McInerney takes his Presidio Red Raider eleven into the University of California stadium for their toughest game of the 1955 pigskin schedule. The opponents will be the California Rambler squad (Junior Varsity).

The JayVee bears will be definite favorites to win the contest on the basis of their overwhelming strength and imposing game record to date.

Paced by their 140 pound scatback, Donn Smith, the Ramblers have been to the starting gate six times this season, for a 4-1-1 mark. Their wins have come at the expense of the San Diego Navy Training Center, 25-0, the San Jose State Junior Varsity, 33-24, the San Diego Marines, 22-13, and the Cal Davis Aggies.

The powerful Ramblers have tied the Stanford Junior Braves and dropped their only game of the year to the potent Hamilton Air Force Base Defenders.

Last year the local soldier eleven journeyed to Berkeley and suffered a 32-14 setback at the hands of the junior bears. Bear quarterback Jim Lorenz paced the victory by tossing three touchdown passes and scoring two more himself. This year Lorenz has been alternating between the Ramblers and the Varsity squad.

Against this mighty juggernaut, Coach McInerney brings his Raider squad that has rolled up 178 points and yielded but 62 in establishing their 7 and 1 season record.

The starting line-up for the Raiders barring last minute changes is Piggott and Williams at ends, Dunn and Terrell at tackles, Wilson and Holmes at guards, and big John Snyder at the center position.

Starting in the backfield will be Maytubby at quarter, Guimarin and Macias at the halves and Ed Lewis at fullback. Regular fullback Bobby Ratliff is not slated to see action because of his broken hand.

The contest starting at 1100 hours will be the preliminary to the afternoon game featuring the University of California vs. the University of Washington.

local bowlers

The Presidio bowling team in the downtown Bagdad "900" classic took two games from the Grenat Bros. squad and in so doing vaulted into fourth place in league standing.

The local pin-splitters are a four way tie for fourth place just four games behind the leaders.

Team members with their total scores for the three games rolled this week were headed by Murphy's 595 mark. Others were Johnson 544, Owens 523, Hoffacker 515 and Jacobs with 509.

Santee Runs 4:05 Mile In Olympic Sports Show

New York (AFPS)—Wes Santee, a second lieutenant at Quantico, Va., topped off the Olympic Sports Carnival at Madison Square Garden with an off-season 4:05.2 mile—the second fastest mile ever run on the Garden boards.

The Kansas flash ran away from the rest of the field on the final lap and beat his arch rival from Ft. MacArthur, Calif., Pvt. Fred Dwyer, by 20 yards. Other service entries were Pfc. Joe La Pierre of Ft. Lee, Va., and 2nd Lt. Len Truex of Lockbourne AFB, Ohio.

The mile event highlighted the program which was presented by the U.S. Olympic Committee to kick-off the fund drive for the games at Cortina, Italy, and Melbourne, Australia.

In the 440-yard run, Dick Maiocco of the N. Y. Pioneer Club won in 50.7 seconds. Finishing second and third respectively were 2nd Lt. Jim Lea, Edwards AFB, Calif., and Pvt. Lou Jones of Ft. Meade, Md.

Pfc. Lang Stanley, a teammate of Dwyer at Ft. MacArthur, won the 880-yard run in 1:54.8. Other servicemen competing in this event were 2nd Lt. Lon Spurrier,

skiers

Two Fort Carson skiers have been nominated for the military ski team which will be entered in the Winter Olympics at Cortina, Italy, next year.

Cpl. Andrew Miller and Pvt. Lynn Levy of Carson's Mountain and Cold Weather Training Command were selected by the Olympic Games committee to compete in tryouts at the Olympic Training Camp in Walla Walla, Wash. They are now at the camp, which will be open until Christmas. Then the final team will be chosen.

Miller is the holder of many cross-country titles and should be a top contender for a berth on the team.

cage stars

Three members of last year's Parris Island, S. C., cage team are trying out with pro teams. They are guard Richie Regan (Rochester Royals), center Jim Hoverder (Minneapolis Lakers), and forward Jim Mooney (Philadelphia Warriors).

Hamilton AFB, Calif. (second); and 2nd Lt. Gene Maynard of Ft. Monmouth, N. J. (fourth).

Navy's NCAA 191-pound wrestling champ, Ens. Pete Blair of the destroyer Shields, defeated William Oberly, Penn State's NCAA heavyweight champ.

Other events on the program were fencing, gymnastics, weightlifting and figure skating.

airdrop

Aerial planting of over 4,000,000 trout fingerlings in 700 high mountain lakes from Lake Arrowhead north to the Oregon border was accomplished this summer by Senior Warden Pilot Al Reese and his crew. During the 1954-55 Fiscal Year, the department airmen flew 235,000 miles performing duties that ranged from fish planting to patrol work, aerial waterfowl and game censuses, and ocean fish surveys.

Presidio Wins Volleyball Crown

Wac's Second

Mat Schmutz Leads Post To All-Sixth Army Title

Paced by the well placed slams and shots of Mat Schmutz, the Presidio swept to the 1955 Sixth Army Volleyball title last Friday night by blasting Fort Ord 17-15, 15-1. The four-day tournament took place at the Fort Ord Sports Arena.

As a result, the Presidio club will represent the Sixth Army in the All-Army Volleyball Championships scheduled for November 7-11 at Fort Ord.

The Presidio squad, pulled away handily in the first game of the finals Friday night, but the serve changed hands 13 times before the scoring ice was broken in the second game.

Schmutz finally served three points to send Presidio on its way to the win. Ord averted a shutout by scoring at 4-1, but the locals ran out the count for the win.

The defeat was the second pinned on Fort Ord by the Presidio in the double-elimination tournament. Ord fell 15-7, 15-6 on Wednesday night.

The Presidio netmen opened the tourney by blasting the Fort Lewis Chiefs 15-4, 15-10.

The Presidio team, headed by playing coach Major Bob Jones of the 56th MRU, included Mat Schmutz, Jack Aldridge, Harry Matthews, Frank McDonnell, Dick Godino, Bob Noel, and Jerry Steiner.

The Presidio Wac team finished second in the Women's Sixth Army Volleyball tourney. The surprising Fort MacArthur girls won the crown by edging the locals in the finals of the double elimination contest.

Earlier in the week the Presidio lassies drubbed the MacArthur squad 15-11, Fort Ord 15-4, 15-0, and the Oakland Army Base 15-6, 15-3.

ace spikers

The Fort Myer Comets spiked their way to a berth in the All-Army volleyball championships next week by winning the Military District of Washington title last week.

Myer was undefeated throughout the tournament and topped Walter Reed Army Medical Center, 15-9 and 18-16 in the finals of the five day meet.

2nd Lt. Jack Walsh, who played with Quantico, Va., last year's all-marine basketball champions, will coach the San Diego MCRD, Calif., team this season.

Outlook For Winter Fur Trap Good

Continuing good demand and resulting higher prices, plus further extension of the muskrat domain in California, should make for good fur trapping prospects this winter, according to preseason estimates of the Department of Fish and Game.

The 1955-56 trapping season opens 15 November and runs to 28 February.

The department's optimism is based in part on last year's fur trapping figures, which show the 1954-55 fur catch to have increased 56 per cent in value over the previous season. This came despite the fact that there were fewer trappers in the field, and that the total catch was up only 5 per cent.

A good demand and resulting higher price for muskrat pelts accounted for the increased value.

During the 1954-55 season licensed trappers took 112,409 pelts as against 107,435 for the previous season, although the number of licenses issued dropped 7 per cent.

Continuing the trend of recent years, highest buyer demand was for the short-haired fur species such as muskrat, mink, beaver and river otter. Long-haired species, including coyote, badgers, bobcats and raccoons, continued low in value.

Total value of the past season's catch was $144,600, with muskrat accounting for about two-thirds of the total.

Royal Ping Pong

Pvt. Jirair J. Ghahramanian, a trainee at the Brooke Army Medical Center, Tex., has played table tennis (ping pong) with nearly every member of Iran's royal family. He was the national table tennis champ of Iran in 1949, and national intercollegiate king of the U.S. in 1953-54.

O'Hair Wins Pentathlon Pistol Title

Army Lt. Ed O'Hair of USAREUR won the pistol event in the modern pentathlon championships at Macolin, Switzerland, this week, but hopes that the United States team would place among the top three teams in the meet appeared exceedingly dim as the championships went into the final two days of action.

Following the riding, fencing and pistol events, the U.S. team, made up of O'Hair, Navy Lt. Bill Andre and Air Force Pfc. George Lambert ranked 7th in the team standing.

O'Hair shot 194 out of a possible 195, the same total racked up by Istvan Szondy of the Hungary team. O'Hair was awarded the pistol championship, however, because he had a better series of bullseyes. O'Hair's shooting gave the U.S. team 980 points.

Earlier in the week in Zurich, Switzerland, the U.S. squad finished second in the swimming event of the modern pentathlon.

Only four points separated the U.S. from the winning team from Hungary. Hungary scored 2756 points, the United States 2752. Russia was third with 2740. Pfc. George Lambert placed fourth in the individual standing.

In fencing, the U.S. did better than expected, finishing third only eight points behind Hungary. Switzerland won with 2616 points.

Deer Bag On Coast 2nd Highest

In spite of one of the driest and hottest coastal deer hunting seasons in decades, the 1955 bag will be the second highest total on record, Department of Fish and Game tag returns show.

Coastal season tag returns totaled 25,520 by the last week in September, against 27,479 returned by the same date in 1954.

The 1954 season saw a new record bag of 28,076, or about 6,000 more than the average for the previous several years.

But the 1955 total has already surpassed the 22,478 taken in 1953, until now the second highest year.

Game managers estimated another 500 to 1,000 of the 1955 coastal area tags had yet to come in by the end of September.

The 1955 total includes 1,276 deer taken in southern Humboldt County and northern San Diego County, which were not in the coastal area last year.

The season was also a week longer this year than in 1954. But the extra hunting time was largely nullified by extreme fire danger and the fact that forest fires were burning in many deer areas.

Dry woods, extreme temperatures, and forest fires kept many hunters from the field this year, and made hunting difficult for those who did make the attempt, the department believes.

The New York football Giants have lost offensive halfback and end Buford "Cutter" Long to the Army. He's at Ft. Dix, N.J.

CONGRATULATIONS are being extended to SP/3 Roger Kindy (L.) by Captain John Hoover, Presidio Special Services Officer. Kindy was the sparkplug of the Headquarters Company, Station Complement flag football squad that recently won the Post Championship.

Flag Football

Kindy and Shelly Spark Hqs. To Football Crown

Paced by the fine passing of Roger Shelstad and the running of Roger Kindy, the Headquarters Company, Station Complement team won the Presidio intra-mural flag football championship last week by beating the Headquarters Company, 740th, 48-18.

Leading the way for the winners were Shelstad with three touchdowns and three extra points. He was ably assisted by team captain Kindy with two touchdowns and one extra point.

Other members of the championship squad were Ken Whitfield, Hushell Huff, Dick Johnson, Bob Striker, Doug Kirkland and Lee Diuginsky.

The 740th team from Fort Scott was headed by team captain Kotlarek. Other players on the roster during the past season were Wagler, Crowson, Crews, Pike, Dawson, Szczuprek, Lam-mey, Smith, Ratkovich, Kirkland, Everett and Johnson.

Following are the final team standings for the flag football intra-mural.

Pin Smashers!

Alba Stars As Masonites Extend Lead In National

The red hot Masonites maintained their hold on first place in the National Bowling League by edging the third place Hilltoppers 3 to 1 in this week's action.

Alba paced the Mason rollers with his 192/528 roll. Leonard topped the men from the hill with his 197/486 score.

The second place Hooks, led by Jacobs 193/549, took a three-to-one decision from the seventh place Company C, 505th MP's. Schuster topped the police bowlers with his 214/550 roll.

Other matches saw the Sol-techs drub the Kingpins 4 to 0, and the Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, beat the Fogbounders 3 to 1.

Honors for high average go to Pawenski, Company C, 505th, with 173. Jacobs of the Hooks is next with 172 and Schultz, 505th, is third with 169.

Over in the Eastern League the Hilltoppers # 6 squad holds a narrow one-game lead over the Ichi Bans. The 6513 SU team is currently in the third slot just ahead of the Nuggets. Individual high average honors for the league go to Owens 173, Bram 171, and Ishihara with 170.

The winter Pacific League got under way this week with the Keystone Kops and the Dispensary tied for the top spot with 4 and 0 records. The Kops, paced by Pawenski's 207/557, demolished the Sixth Army Signal crew 4 to 0.

The smooth rolling medics pushed through the G-2 bowlers 4 to 0. Fischer topped the pill-rollers with a fine 201 score.

The only other scheduled match this week saw the 102d MRU edge by the All Stars 3 to 1.
